PROGRAM FOR INSTITUTE OF MODERN HISTORY ANNOUNCED

Noted Historians, Scholars and Diplomats to Discuss Important Topics

All of the lectures will be given in the evening, beginning at 8.15, with the exception of that of Dr. Bowman on April 25, and that of Professor Seymour on April 28, when afternoon sessions will be held. The series will start Monday, April 16, and continue through Saturday, April 28, when some of the most momentous lectures of the course will be given. The program is as follows:

Monday, April 16—Professor Alfred F. Pribram of the University of Vienna. "Foreign Policy of Austria and Germany from 1908 to 1914."

Wednesday, April 18—Professor Pribram. "Diplomacy of Austria and Germany During the War."

Thursday, April 19—Professor William L. Westermann of Cornell. "Nationalism in the Near East."

Saturday, April 21—Professor Westermann. "Turkey from the Treaty of Sevres to the Conference at Geneva."

Sunday, April 22—Professor Robert H. Lord of Harvard. "Poland at the Versailles Conference."

Monday, April 23—Hon. Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey. "Turkey During the War."

Tuesday, April 24—Professor Robert H. Lord. "Poland Since the Versailles Conference."

Wednesday afternoon, April 25—Dr. Isaiah Bowman of Yale. "The Balkans."

Thursday, April 26—Professor Charles Seymour of Yale. "The Disintegration of Austria-Hungary."

Friday, April 27—Dr. Isaiah Bowman. "The Mohammedan World."

Saturday afternoon, April 28—Professor Seymour. "The Adriatic Problem."

Saturday evening, April 28—Lecturer not yet announced.

Round-Table Conferences

The round-table conferences to be held in connection with the Institute of Modern History will be open to the students of the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes. There will be eleven such conferences held during the period from April 16 to 28. The number of students attending each conference will be limited to twenty.

Students desiring to attend these conferences will find special application blanks at the library desk. It may be possible for individual students to attend more than one conference and application should be made accordingly.

Absences from other courses resulting from these conferences will not be regarded as cuts. Permission will be granted to make up these absences.

Conference Hours and Subjects

Tuesday, April 17, 3.30 p. m.—Pribram: Foreign Policy of Austria and Germany 1908-1918.

Wednesday, April 18, 11.30 a. m.—Same.

Saturday, April 28, 10.30 a. m.—Same.

IMPORTANT! PAY BLANKET TAXES

It's the same old tune, accompanied by words perhaps more interesting this time! Here's the dope: In the Bowdoin Orient of Wednesday, April 18, Anno Domini 1923, will appear a list of names of those who have not paid their Blanket Taxes. This is not a threat—it's a promise. A Fraternity comparative table will also be published at that time. Sunday night, April 15, is the last chance to prevent your name from being published in said list.

N.B.—The stubs attached to the Blanket Taxes which were given out this semester having been all used up, on Thursday afternoon, April 12, new Blanket taxes will be given out at the Managers' Room at Gym from 1.00 to 4.00. Don't fail to replace your old one for the new one, for the new ones are of different color and shape. Presentation of the old one is not necessary at the time of exchange.

Morrell New Grid Captain Elected to Succeed Gibbons

Malcolm E. Morrell '23, halfback on the 1922 football team, was recently elected captain for the next season to fill the vacancy left by Gibbons. Morrell has also made his letter in baseball as second baseman and as catcher.

Dramatic Recital By James P. Webber '00

On Tuesday evening March 27 James Plaisted Webber M. A. '00 presented a dramatic recital in Memorial Hall. He took as his subject Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island" using Jules Eckert Goodman's Dramatization. This recital was arranged with Charles Hopkins's Punch and Judy theatre of New York. Mr. Webber's interpretations of the various characters were excellent and he held the attention of his audience throughout the evening.

Team To Debate Bates Is Chosen

The team to debate Bates has recently been chosen. The debate will be held on May 10, at the City Hall in Lewiston. The subject will be announced later. Bowdoin will be represented by Theodore W. Cousins '23, George E. Hill '24, Athern P. Daggett '25, and Roy M. Fitzmorris '23, alternate.

Cast of Commencement Play Chosen

Trials for the Commencement Play, "Merry Wives of Windsor," were held in Memorial Hall on Wednesday, March 28: A large number tried out for the different parts, and it was with some difficulty that Professors Brown and Davis and President Karl R. Philbrick and Manager Langdon A. Jewett of the Masque and Gown selected the following cast:

Sir John Falstaff Philip S. Wilder '23
Fenton G. William Rowe '24
Shallow, a country justice Athern P. Daggett '25 and Edward G. Fletcher '25
Slender, cousin to Shallow J. Stewart Bigelow '26
Two gentlemen dwelling at Windsor Mr. Ford Carl K. Hersey '26
Mr. Page Laurence F. Shurtleff '26
Sir Hugh Evans, a Welsh Parson Emerson W. Hunt '23
Dr. Cains, a French Physician Gunnar Bergenstrahle '23
Host of the Garter Inn Horace Ingraham, Jr., '24
Follower of Falstaff: Bardolph Marshall G. Gay '26
Pistol James W. Shea '25
Nym Byron L. Mitchell '25
Simple Richard G. Wignot '26
Rugby Noel W. Deering '25
Mrs. Ford Clarence D. Rouillard '24
Mrs. Page Glenn R. McIntire '25
Mrs. Anne Page, in love with Fenton Radcliffe B. Pike '25
Mrs. Quickly, servant to Dr. Cains Donald W. MacKinnon '25

BOWDOIN TEAM LOSES FOUR GAMES ON SOUTHERN TRIP

Cold Weather and Lack of Outdoor Practice Prove Costly to the White

With defeats by Fordham, Brooklyn Polytech, Princeton, and West Point, and the game with Columbia cancelled on account of wet grounds, the baseball team can not be said to have had an exactly successful southern trip. The loss of the Fordham, Princeton, and West Point games was due to a considerable extent to the poor pitching of Walker who has as yet been unable to hit his old time pace. In the Brooklyn game Southwick outpitched his opponent and kept the hits scattered. The trip should prove to be excellent practice for the state championship games in the near future.

FORDHAM GAME

The White lost its first game of the season to Fordham 6 to 4. The contest was limited to seven innings on account of the cold weather. In fact all college games in Washington were called off on account of the cold.

The wildness of Walker, who pitched the first five innings really gave the game to Fordham. Walker gave five passes to first, hit six batsmen and delivered one wild pitch. His battery mate, Morrell, helped the Maroon cause along with three passed balls.

On hits Bowdoin had a decided advantage with nine clean safeties to five for Fordham two of which were of the scratch variety. The work of Capt. Schermerhorn at the bat, and Landry in the field however, were no negligible features in Fordham's victory.

Schermerhorn with a single in the first inning and a triple in the third frame, accounted for the Bronxites first two runs.

Protests Curbing Bowdoin Athletics

Judge Fogg Voices Opinion Of The Graduates

Alumni are not in sympathy with any plan to curb athletics at Bowdoin. Judge Sanford L. Fogg of the Kennebec Alumni association voiced the sentiments of the graduates when he declared that athletics of the past were the foundation of the splendid standing Bowdoin has today, and he should resist any attempt to check athletics at the Brunswick institution.

Judge Fogg is an '89 man, the class of President William DeWitt Hyde, Dr. Frank N. Whittier, Attorney Little, and others. He constantly maintains a keen interest in all Bowdoin activities, whether in the class room or on the playing field.

Referring to the present day activities at the college while speaking before the Kennebec association this week he said that alumni had read propaganda to the effect that Bowdoin had entered into an arrangement with five or six other colleges whereby the athletic activities of the institution were to be greatly diminished.

"I don't believe a great majority of Bowdoin graduates believe athletics as they exist today and have existed, should be curbed," he declared, adding that it is largely through athletics that Bowdoin spirit has been brought up to the point where it glorifies the college and gives a thrill of pride to Bowdoin men everywhere.

Professor MacMillan On Western Tour

Professor Donald B. MacMillan, the Arctic explorer is meeting with great success in his lecture tour through the Middle West. He has talked to 20,000 boys and girls in Detroit, and to capacity houses elsewhere. On March 20 the Chicago Rotary Club gave the explorer a large reception at which he spoke on "Unknown Baffin Land."

In one of the letters received from Professor MacMillan by George F. Carey '88 of Portland, treasurer of the MacMillan Arctic Association he writes:

"Every night is taken up to May 15. Shall be glad to head the Bowdoin North again. I start back East April 2, and shall be glad to see old New England again and the good old State of Maine."

In another letter Professor MacMillan writes that he expects to get away early in June for the North and that he may go as far Etah in Greenland for a series of educational motion pictures.

Blake Will Contest Settled Out Of Court

The contest over the will of the late Hon. Edward H. Blake of Bangor who bequeathed to Bowdoin the sum of $500,000 was settled out of court by the attorneys of the estate and of Mrs. Louis Curtis Smith of New York City, a cousin of Mr. Blake. The amount of settlement, $30,000, was made public on April 5 when formal entry in the case was made in the records of the April term of the Supreme court now in session in Bangor and before which the contest was scheduled to be heard.

Maine Intercollegiate Winter Sports Assn

On March 24 at Waterville representatives from the four Maine colleges formed a Maine Intercollegiate Winter Sports Association. Each college sent two or more representatives. From Bates came William L. Jarr, Henry A. Rich and Evan A. Woodward. Karl R. Philbrick and Gunnar Bergenstrahle represented Bowdoin. Colby sent George E. Jash and Roland Payne, and from Orono came Lloyd G. Hay and Merle C. Niles to represent the University of Maine. William L. Jarr of Bates was chosen chairman of the association and Karl R. Philbrick of Bowdoin was selected to be the secretary and treasurer.

The association authorized the events in winter sports for intercollegiate competition and it laid down rules under which the events should be run.

The events authorized are: 150 yard snowshoe dash, 1 mile ski relay, 3 mile snowshoe cross country and ski jump.

Points in each event are to count 5, 3 and 1. Individual scores will count in all events with the exception of the relay races. The snowshoe obstacle race and ski proficiency are two events approved by the association but these two will not count in the scoring.

Entries are limited to three men in each event from each college except in the relay races in which four man teams are entered. Positions in the heats are to be chosen by lot; two men will qualify in each event. In the ski relay runners must touch hands in passing.

Representatives of college teams shall compete only in college events and those open events advertised as open to amateurs only. Eligibility rules in regard to scholastic standing are the same as in other sports. The National Amateur Rules for ski jumping were also adopted by the association.

Bowdoin Musical Clubs At Beverly

The feature of the concert, given by the Bowdoin College Musical clubs at the Dane Street Congregational Church of Beverly in conjunction with the Men's Singing Club of Beverly was the presentation of a fund raised by the Beverly club for a scholarship for a Beverly boy at Bowdoin. This scholarship was founded in honor of Rev. Joseph McKeen, who was pastor of the First Parish Unitarian Church of this place, and the first president of Bowdoin College. Walter N. Heath, president of the Beverly Club made the presentation, and the acceptance was by President Kenneth C. M. Sills. A ball was given in City Hall following the concert.

Memorial to Perpetuate The Public Service Of Edwin U. Curtiss

Many small subscriptions are sought for the proposed Edwin U. Curtiss memorial, to be placed on the Charles river esplanade on the axis of Clarendon street, in the belief that thousands of Bay state citizens will be glad to aid in honoring the late commissioner of police in Boston, former mayor and park commissioner.

A description of the memorial, given by Guy Lowell the architect, says that in execution it contemplates the use of only such materials as are worthy and enduring, modeled potently by hand to the delicate adjustment of proportions and profiles characteristic of the highest grade of architectural sculpture.

Foundations will be of stone concrete supported upon piles. The visible superstructure will be of hand-wrought light pink marble, resting on base courses of New England coast granite, while the steps and pavings will be of similar material.

The memorial is described as essentially a monumental gateway, expressed by two simply moulded and simply decorated pedestals, each of which is in turn surmounted by a marble urn of imposing scale and and graceful silhouette.

The pedestals are flanked by two generous exedrae, through which the path extending the northwesterly end of Clarendon street proceeds to the basin esplanade.

Appropriate inscriptions will decorate the approach faces of the pedestals, while carefully restricted plantations of shrubbery will form agreeable backgrounds where needed.

A good beginning has been made in securing the $40,000 fund needed to complete the memorial. It is the desire of friends and associates of Curtiss, who have assumed the task of carrying the project to completion, that

Defeat Non-Frats in Rubber 12-6

The Chi Psis won the interfraternity basketball championship when, after a fast game with the Non-Frats, they emerged victorious with the score of 12 to 6. The game started off with a crash and remained even to the end of the first half, when the teams were tied with 6 to 6. In the second half however, through superior speed and shooting ability the Chi Psis forged ahead and held the lead to the end of the game, keeping the Non-Frats from scoring. The Non-Frats missed Needelman, who was not able to play. Burnard, York and Philbrick were the stars for the Chi Psis. Burnard played his usual speedy game, while Philbrick and York were the stellar lights in the shooting and passing end. For the Non-Frats Schwind and Fasso played the best game, Schwind at forward was in the game every moment, and Fasso at guard was largely responsible for stopping several Chi Psi attempts at baskets. Schwind had to temporarily leave the game when he collided with Butler in the second half, but in a few minutes came back as strong as ever.

Masque and Gown

Tomorrow the Masque and Gown leaves Brunswick for a two day trip with this year's road play "Her Husband's Wife" which is the play that the Masque and Gown presented last Ivy. Thursday night the club plays in Gardiner in the High School Auditorium and the next day April 13, in Skowhegan.

In Portland on April 28 "Her Husband's Wife" will be presented in Frye Hall. This evening will be a Bowdoin Night with a banquet preceding, and a dance following the performance.

The cast of "Her Husband's Wife" follows:

Stuart Randolph, a good looking husband George H. Quinby '23
Richard Belden, his brother-in-law F. Webster Browne '25
John Belden, the genial uncle of Irene and Richard Langdon A. Jewett '24

Vol. LIII. April 11, 1923. No. 1

Volume LIII of The "Orient".

The "Orient" starts with this issue upon the fifty-third year of its existence. As the new editorial board is the first to be selected under the system of a dual managing editorship, it has before it the task of proving the merit of that system. The editors have now undertaken their duties with a determination to make this year's volume one which shall be truly representative of the college and which shall follow in a worthy manner the splendid traditions passed on by the previous board.

In order to make the "Orient" a really worth-while organ of the college the support of members of both the college body and the alumni is essential. As in former years, the policy will be to publish all available news of the college, and to present the views of Bowdoin men in regard to whatever questions may arise. Many communications of value were received and printed in the issues of last year, and it is to be hoped that this precedent will be followed in the future. The editorial board, however broad it may be, can never reach the state where it will fully represent all the varied attitudes. It is, therefore, entirely essential that students, past and present, and members of the Faculty employ the "Orient" as the proper vehicle for the expression of their views on college problems. As such a medium of expression the college newspaper cannot fail to be of large advantage in assisting the college in its progressive growth.

It is apparent that the "Orient" is the only means by which many alumni can keep in touch both with the activities of the campus and with the varied interests of their fellow alumni. In the past no little difficulty has been experienced in keeping the alumni department up to the standard of efficiency which it should maintain. This has been largely due to the comparative scarcity of material concerning former members of the college. An excellent clipping bureau is maintained at the library, but can obviously cover only a part of the field. Many of the class secretaries and others interested also send in, from time to time, pertinent items concerning alumni, but there are still wide possibilities for expansion. It is to be hoped that the "Orient" may come in time to be able to furnish complete news of alumni activities, and to this end all members of the graduate body are encouraged to furnish whatever information they may obtain. An Alumni Issue has been planned and will be published later in the year.

An important change has been made in the circulation department of the Bowdoin Publishing Company. At a recent meeting it was decided that the "Quill" should be combined with the "Orient" for purposes of circulation only. This change was made after a long struggle to maintain the literary magazine on an independent financial basis. It was made because it seems the only way in which the "Quill" can be continued, and the members of the Publishing Company feel confident that the change is for the better. An increase in the subscription price is, of course, unavoidable, but it is for the support of a magazine which, not long ago languishing, is now come to be of real literary merit as a worthy representative of that branch of the college. Surely it will be well supported.

Inability of High Schools to Give Proper Fit for College

In the old days the boy who was going to college took courses in high school that prepared him for college. He was given to understand that the academic highway he had elected to travel was a difficult one and that progress could be made only at the expense of hard intellectual labor. He got himself in the habit of working. Then when he entered college he was able to keep on working. Today the high school course, even for those who have it in mind to continue their education in the higher institutions, has too many soft spots. The boy who takes it is not mentally disciplined. In their highly commendable desire to be of the utmost service to the greatest number of persons the high schools have insisted that almost any subject they teach shall be accepted for admission to college. And in varying degree the various colleges have acquiesced. But the colleges have not carried the matter to its logical conclusion. They have left their own curriculum practically intact and unchanged, thereby assigning to themselves a task not unlike that confronting a factory which tries to make $5000 automobiles out of the parts which belong in a Ford.

Notice

Candidates for Assistant Manager of the Bowdoin Publishing Co. should report at once to Manager Lawrence Blatchford. There should be plenty of competition for these positions, for in addition to the valuable experience which it gives, the managership of this activity is the only one in college which pays a salary.

A candidate's work requires only one day a week. For further information see Manager Blatchford, A.D. House.

Memorial to Perpetuate

the memorial shall be as representative as possible.

Concerning this memorial the Boston Herald says:

If Edwin U. Curtis could have been consulted as to the type of memorial in his honor, nothing would give him greater pleasure than that planned by Guy Lowell. In effect, it is a big chair or seat at the head of Clarendon street, facing the Charles river—a seat flanked by shrubbery and flowers, inviting the weary to restfulness, the thoughtful to reflection.

Doubtless some who knew Mr. Curtis only in connection with the Boston police strike would suggest a memorial more martial in its nature, but those who knew him most intimately would be quick to explain that such a memorial would misrepresent the man. He was never a martial figure, and had no desire to be so considered. He became police commissioner because it was a call to duty, just as he accepted other calls for service to the city, the state and the nation.

Probably no one regretted the police strike more than he, or did more to try to avert it. He admitted that the restlessness was not without cause, that some of the conditions of the men were sound, and he did all that was within his power to bring equitable adjustment about.

He felt nevertheless, that these men had betrayed their trust when they struck, and were, therefore, forever unworthy to wear the uniform. That contention he maintained during all the pulling and hauling during and immediately following the strike. More than any other man he won the strike. As Vice-President Coolidge said, two years ago, when the National Institute of Social Sciences presented him a medal for his part in this strike: "If it had not been for the clear insight of Edwin U. Curtis, a former mayor and then police commissioner of the city of Boston, the question that came to me never would have come. It was because he decided that question right in the first instance that I had the opportunity of supporting him in the second instance."

This was a matter of moral courage rather than of physical courage. It was not the kind of question solved in legislative debate, but to be determined dispassionately. Only a sound moral philosophy could point the right answer, and, having given it, could defend it. The problem could best be solved by retirement to some such sylvan retreat as the proposed memorial will be, and to which, perhaps, other men of other generations will go with their problems, to be aided by the spirit of Edwin Upton Curtis.

Arthur L. Robinson

Had Brilliant Record in Scholarship, Athletics And Military Life

Concerning the unfortunate death of Major Arthur L. Robinson '08 on March 8, the Orient gave but a brief notice. The following is a more detailed account of Major Robinson's brilliant career together with a letter from his brother Clement F. Robinson of the class of '03.

Major Robinson was born at Brunswick, February 4, 1887, the son of Franklin C. Robinson, professor at Bowdoin College, and Ella M. Robinson, both of whom are now dead. He was educated in the public schools of Brunswick, graduating from the Brunswick High School in 1904, and from Bowdoin College in 1908.

While in college he was prominent in both athletics and scholarship. He was a member of the track team and manager of the baseball team and served as editor-in-chief of the Bowdoin Orient. Prominent in all college activities, he was class orator, a member of the debating team and graduated with the highest honors, being made a member of Phi Beta Kappa in his junior year. He was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

Mr. Robinson was graduated from Harvard Law School in 1911 and for a year was associated with a New York attorney. He came to Portland in 1912 to practice law with his brother, Clement F. Robinson.

Military affairs always interested him. While in school he was a member of the Cavalry of the Massachusetts Voluntary Militia and when he came to Portland, he organized the 11th Company and became a lieutenant in this organization. In the Mexican troubles he served as a Federal recruiting officer at Caribou several months. When America entered the World War he entered the federal service and served until his discharge in 1919. At the expiration of his service he was a captain in the anti-air craft forces. He was one of the organizers of the Association of Service Men which later became the Harold T. Andrews Post of the American Legion and was the first commander of the Post.

When the coast artillery was reorganized a short time ago, he became major.

Governor Milliken appointed Mr. Robinson associate legal member of the Industrial Accident Commission and he remained in that position until he resigned in March, 1921, when he resumed the practice of law.

In August, 1921, Mr. Robinson married Miss Priscilla Kimball of Bath and they had one child, Marjorie, aged six months.

He was a 32nd degree Mason and a member of the Shrine.
Editor, Bowdoin Orient:

As a boy of about ten my brother Arthur began to take an interest in newspaper work and printing. At that time I had a printing press and published a monthly amateur paper. Arthur acted as assistant editor, which meant that he was very helpful, both in the printing and the literary features.

I gave up the paper and the printing in 1899, just before entering college. Arthur took it over, enlarged and expanded it, published throughout his High School course a paper called the Sigma and did really an extensive job printing business. He bought a larger press with foot power, and many varieties of type.

BROOKLYN GAME

The Brooklyn Polytech was victorious over the White to the tune of 3 to 2.

Bowdoin scored in the first-inning when Smith singled and got home on a sacrifice. Jones gained the second run for Bowdoin in the eighth after doubling.

The engineers evened things in the second frame when Lincke scored after hitting safely. Lincke again scored in the fourth on a walk and a single by Richardson.

The third and what proved to be the winning run for Brooklyn was also Lincke's in the sixth. He got to first when Southwick elected to get Carey at second. Richardson's double, which followed, sent Lincke home.

Faculty Notes

On March 15 Dean Nixon went to Deering and presented Deering High School with the Abraxas Cup which it won the first semester.

Dean Nixon gave an address in memory of Professor Woodruff, on March 30, before the New England Classical Association at Mount Holyoke College.

President Silis will be tendered a banquet by the members of the Bangor Bowdoin Club on the occasion of his visit to Bangor on April 10 when he will deliver an address before the Teachers' Club of that city.

President Silis has recently been made a member of the committee in charge of the spring convention held in Portland on April 20 and 21 of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary schools.

1862—Judge Clarence Hale of the U. S. District Court has recently returned from his visit to the Brazilian Exposition. On this southern trip which was around the entire coast line of South America, stops were made at Valparaiso, Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro and after passing through the straits of Magellan Judge Hale sailed up the western coast through the Panama Canal and up the entire coast of the United States to New York.

VOLTA EXPLAINING HIS

BATTERY TO NAPOLEON

How Electrical Engineering began

IT IS not enough to experiment and to observe in scientific research. There must also be interpretation. Take the cases of Galvani and Volta.

One day in 1786 Galvani touched with his metal instruments the nerves of a frog's amputated hind legs. The legs twitched in a very life-like way. Even when the frog's legs were hung from an iron railing by copper hooks, the phenomenon persisted. Galvani knew that he was dealing with electricity but concluded that the frog's legs had in some way generated the current.

Then came Volta, a contemporary, who said in effect: "Your interpretation is wrong. Two different metals in contact with a moist nerve set up currents of electricity. I will prove it without the aid of frog's legs."

Volta piled disks of different metals one on top of another and separated the disks with moist pieces of cloth. Thus he generated a steady current. This was the "Voltaic pile"—the first battery, the first generator of electricity.

Both Galvani and Volta were careful experimenters, but Volta's correct interpretation of effects gave us electrical engineering.

Napoleon was the outstanding figure in the days of Galvani and Volta. He too possessed an active interest in science but only as an aid to Napoleon. He little imagined on examining Volta's crude battery that its effect on later civilization would be fully as profound as that of his own dynamic personality.

The effects of the work of Galvani and Volta may be traced through a hundred years of electrical development even to the latest discoveries made in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company.

Francis M. Hatch, LL.D. '73

The death of Francis M. Hatch '73, former Hawaiian minister, occurred recently in Honolulu. Since 1878 he had taken a prominent part in the legal and public life of Hawaii. He was strongly in favor of annexation with the United States being president of the annexation club. After the formation of the provisional government under President Sanford B. Dole he became vice-president of the republic. Later he accepted the responsible office of minister of foreign affairs and displayed marked diplomatic talent and great ability in his official relations with foreign governments.

Mr. Hatch was born at Portsmouth, N. H., on June 7, 1852, and graduated from Bowdoin College in the class of 1873. After leaving college he studied law and while a young man removed to Honolulu where he took up the practice of law. He was appointed by President Roosevelt to be Justice of the Supreme Court of Hawaii in 1904, but resigned the next year because of ill health.

Outing Club Letters

At the last meeting of the Athletic Council minor letters were awarded to members of the Outing Club who won them during the past winter carnival season. Men receiving letters are: Gunnar Bergenstrahle '23, Robert J. Lavigne '24, Harold F. Eastman '25, Alfred C. Andrews '26, Carlton L. Nelson '26, Gilbert Spear '26, J. Harold Stubbs '26 and Karl R. Philbrick '23, manager of the Outing Club team. Harold F. Eastman '25 has been elected captain of next year's team.

At the end of his Junior year in High School, he tried most of the final examinations for College, and passed them, although some of the language subjects covered were much more advanced than he had ever taken. His father felt, however, that he was too young to enter College, so he kept him in High School to graduate with his class, but in the meantime, at the same time, he took a special course in College and was on the Editorial Board of the Bowdoin Orient, thus serving one year longer on that board than any other editor ever did.

He was in the City Government for the City of Portland as a member of the Common Council of Ward Seven for two years, but declined re-election in order to enter the World War.

During the World War he received special training in the Anti-Aircraft Branch and was in command of Battery B of the 7th Battalion as Captain. He was exceedingly popular with his officers and men, and at the mustering out of the battery was presented a gold watch which he always treasured.

Before his service with the Industrial Accident Commission he was employed in the office of the Attorney General of the State for some months.

He was one of the first members of the Bowdoin Alumni Council. In New York he was law clerk of Judge Hand of U. S. District Court.

Private services were held at his residence in Portland, March 10, Rev. H. S. Bradley, Flagg on city hall, by direction of the Mayor, on State house by direction of the Governor, on Portland Club and posts in Portland of American Legion and Veterans Foreign Wars were at half mast.

His brothers Clement F., of Portland (Bowdoin 1903) and Dwight S., of Dupont, Washington (Bowdoin 1907), also survive him.

Very truly yours,

CLEMENT F. ROBINSON.

Biology Club Meeting

It was announced at an informal meeting of the Biology Club held March 23 at the Beta Theta Pi house, that the club was corresponding with Dr. Little of the University of Maine in regard to a lecture on Eugenics and Evolution which he will give under the auspices of the club at some time during the next week or two in Memorial Hall. This lecture will be open to all undergraduates. An informal reception will be held after the lecture at the D.K.E. house.

At this meeting Paul Phillips '24 gave a very interesting lecture on the Beaver. The lecture was followed by a business meeting and refreshments. The club is planning a several days' trip to either Rangeley Lakes or the White Mountains.

PRINCETON GAME

Princeton won from Bowdoin 7 to 1 in a rather listless contest. Townsend who pitched for the Tigers held the Housemen to four scattered hits. It would appear that Princeton has some kind of perpetual jinx on Bowdoin because the score was the same as that of last year's game.

Walker started on the mound for Bowdoin but was sent to the showers after three innings of his wildness which resulted in three tallies. Johnson succeeded him.

Morrell scored the White's lone tally in the initial frame when he walked, took second on an infield out and crossed home plate on Small's single to centerfield. In the first inning, three Tigers were walked and Captain Jeffries was hit, forcing in Gorman. In the second frame, a walk, error and safety filled the bags and Townsend was forced in when Smith walked and Barry was forced in when Captain Jeffries was hit by a pitched ball for the second time.

WEST POINT GAME

The Army won by a score of 14 to 11. The game was an exhibition of free hitting and numerous errors on both sides. In the opening stanza Stork of the Army drove out a homer over Needelman's head and scored two runners ahead of him.

Walker was replaced by Johnson, and Bowdoin began to pile up runs, taking the lead until in the sixth Stevenson of the Army scored Lancaster with the 12th run for the cadets. After this Bowdoin was unable to score, but the Army got two more counters in the eighth.

INSTITUTE OF HISTORY OPENS WITH ADDRESS BY DR. PRIBRAM

President Sills Explains Aims In Introductory Address— Large Audience Hears Noted Historian

President Sills' inaugural address at the opening of the Institute of Modern History marked the beginning of the first and only of the kind ever conducted by any American college or university. The lectures will continue until April 28.

In the opening of his address, President Sills read letters of endorsement from President Warren G. Harding and Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, and messages of interest and approval of Lord Robert Cecil and the ambassadors of Great Britain and France. He said that through the presence of speakers from Greece and Austria-Hungary international relations were to be made stronger through the knowledge of each other.

President Sills' address follows:

We are inaugurating our Institute of Modern History this evening not only with the endorsement of President Harding and Secretary Hughes, whose letters I have just read, but with cordial messages of interest and approval from Lord Robert Cecil and from the ambassadors to this country of the friendly nations—Great Britain and France. And these greetings with the presence at the Institute of speakers from Greece and from Austria-Hungary indicate the importance of international amity. As President Harding wrote in his letter—"Undoubtedly we shall have from this time forward a much more adequate conception of the essential unity of the whole story of mankind." "Historians in colleges and universities have emphasized such a point of view for some time past; but it has not yet been sufficiently grasped by other teachers of history or by the public in general.

The Bowdoin Institute of Modern History has three main objects. In the first place it is an experiment in education. Here are afforded opportunities in lectures and conferences conducted by men of international reputation to study some of the important problems now confronting the world. But there is no compulsion on the students to attend; no grades are given; no work is required. The fact that the opportunity to take part in the round table discussions has been most eagerly grasped by the undergraduates is a proof that college boys are more eager for learning than is sometimes supposed. In this undertaking the college says: "Here is an unusual chance for you—and here is perfect freedom of choice. What you get will be to your advantage without assessment by your teachers."

Lecturer Announced For Saturday Afternoon

K. P. Tholainos of New York, formerly private secretary to Venizelos when the latter was Premier of Greece, has been secured to give a lecture at the Institute of Modern History on April 21 in the afternoon. His subject will be "Greece and the Near East." Through his relations with the Paris Peace Conference which he attended as a member of the Greek delegation and with Premier Venizelos, Mr. Tholainos is an authority on the Near East with especial reference to Greece. He has spent part of his life in Armenia, having graduated from McGill University in Montreal and later taking a course at Columbia University.

Athletic Council Meeting

Lyman A. Cousens '02 of Portland, chairman of the Athletic Council, was appointed by President Sills graduate manager ad interim, and the appointment was confirmed. Mr. Cousens will continue as chairman of the Athletic Council.

Several athletic contests were approved at the meeting:

Baseball
April 21 Portland K. of C. at Brunswick.

April 28 Bates at Brunswick (Exhibition.)

April 21 Second Team vs. Westbrook Seminary at Westbrook.

May 9 Second Team vs. Westbrook Seminary at Brunswick.

Football
Sept. 29 Second Team vs. Hbbron at Hebron.

Stanley Blackmer '25 of South Sudbury, Mass., was appointed assistant manager of baseball to fill a vacancy.

In the second place the Institute emphasizes the importance, so far as the undergraduates are concerned, of interest in what is going on in the world today. All of us who are older hope with all our hearts that the coming generation will solve some of the great international problems that we have botched. A college would not be true to its high mission did it not suggest that the study of international relations and of our national story is a necessary part of any formal education today.

In the third place, in the Institute the College is endeavoring to make its contribution to the community at large and to the building up of a proper public opinion in peace, an object as necessary as the defense of vital principles in times of war. The College is not, of course, responsible for the varied opinions and suggestions that will be offered here. They must be tested and assessed. But by opening these lectures to all who care to come, the College is calling the attention of the community to the need of a careful and intelligent study of international problems to the end that the United States backed by enlightened opinion may in our day and generation make its proper contribution to all efforts devised to promote peace, to outlaw war and to help in the progress of the world.

The letter read by President Sills at the opening of his address received from Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, is printed in full below. The letter from President Harding appeared in a recent issue of the "Orient." Secretary Hughes' letter:

My dear President Sills:
I have received your letter of March seventh and highly appreciate the invitation to give an address before the Institute of Modern History which you propose to conduct at Bowdoin College. I am in cordial sympathy with this undertaking and I wish that I could have the opportunity to meet with the members of the Institute but my engagements for that time absolutely forbid. I wish for you the greatest success in this enterprise.

With high regard, I am
Very sincerely yours,
(Signed)
CHARLES E. HUGHES.

President Sills in his address said: "The 'Orient' is very unfortunate in having gone to press without being able to include the excellent address by Dr. Pribram on 'The Foreign Policy of Austria and Germany From 1908 to 1914.'"

Eames To Represent Undergraduates
At Intercollegiate Conference—
Student Body Vote On Blanket
Taxes

Donald J. Eames '23, President of the Student Council, was elected at a meeting of the Student Council held before vacation to represent the college at the Second Biennial Intercollegiate Conference on Undergraduate Activities at the University of Pennsylvania on April 27 and 28.

At this meeting the Council voted to enforce rigidly the provision of the constitution of the A. S. B. C. which reads that no man may represent the College in any activity of the A. S. B. C. unless he has paid his blanket tax.

It was also voted to have the student body vote on the proposition that the blanket tax be placed on the term bill. In the opinion of the Council the football game which is scheduled with Norwich University next fall should not be transferred to Portland. The Council also recommended to the Faculty with regard to a possible elimination of final examinations for men obtaining a certain grade.

Sigma Nu District Convention at Bowdoin

For the first time since Delta Psi chapter of the Sigma Nu fraternity was established, in 1918, a district convention of the New England chapters is to be held at Bowdoin on May 4 and 5. Delegates from the Vermont, Dartmouth, Brown, Maine, Trinity, Wesleyan, Massachusetts Institute of Technology chapters and from the several alumni chapters will be present.

Subject Bates Debate Announced By Council

New System of Voting Suggested
By Bowdoin

"Resolved, that the proposal of President Harding that the United States should join the World Court merits the approval of this assembly" is the question upon which Bowdoin will debate Bates in the Lewiston City Hall on May 10th. Bowdoin will uphold the negative side.

The members of the Bowdoin debating team are Theodore W. Cousens '23, George E. Hill '24, Athern P. Daggett '25, and Roy M. Fitzmorris '23, alternate. The Bates team which has been recently announced includes Edwin D. Canham '25 of Auburn, Theodore R. Pinchney '23 of Washington, D. C., and William E. Young '24 of Lewiston.

Bowdoin made a suggestion that a vote be taken in any suitable manner by the audience on the merits of the question before the actual debate. The audience should be grouped: those for the question, those against and those uncertain. Another such ballot should be taken after the debate. The idea of this plan, which is somewhat similar to the Oxford plan of judging, is to determine in some measure the effectiveness of the debate.

Masque And Gown

Large and appreciative audiences greeted the Masque and Gown in both Gardiner and Skowhegan during the past week end. Presenting "Her Husband's Wife," a sparkling farce in three acts and last year's Ivy Play, on April 12, under the auspices of the Gardiner Girls' Club and under the auspices of Skowhegan High School on April 13. The Masque and Gown scored two big hits and held up its past record. Those who made the trip and were in the cast were Langdon A. Jewett '24, Clarence D. Rouillard '24, George H. Quinby '23, John Watson '24, Ernest Joy '25, and F. Webster Browne '25.

TOOTELL BREAKS COLLEGE RECORD IN PRE-SEASON TRIAL

New Bowdoin Mark Best Collegiate Record in America— Is But Eleven Feet Under World Mark

Track Prospects Bright For Coming Season

With the close of ten years of track coaching at Bowdoin, Jack Magee this year has the largest number of men out for spring track that he has ever had. In all about 100 aspirants for berths on Bowdoin's famous track team have donned track uniforms without being in any way solicited by either the coach or alumni. Coach Magee feels that such a large turnout is an excellent tribute to him and to his system of coaching and training. The men were divided into four groups according to their various specialties, and for three days had their training on the Maine street mall. By Friday, Whittier Field was in good enough condition to allow the men to work there. Because of the rather cold weather, however, Coach Magee has not yet given any hard workouts. He feels that with proper amount of co-operation on the part of the candidates, the team will be ready and fit to give an excellent account of itself at the Maine Intercollegiate meet at Orono May 12. From now on the men will be given numerous time trials in their various events, and it will be from these trials that the track authorities will be able to secure much advance dope on the State Meet. The Freshman class has produced several promising athletes who can bear watching. These boys have worked hard and have trained faithfully all winter and now the results of their work are becoming more and more apparent.

Because of the fact that Whittier Field has been covered with snow and ice, outdoor training has been greatly retarded this year. As a result, the squad has been forced to continue its indoor training of the winter. The outdoor track is now in fairly good condition, however, and intensive work on it will begin at once.

Meet Arranged With Holy Cross

Final arrangements have been made with Holy Cross for a meet on May 5. This meet, held in conjunction with the Bowdoin-Maine baseball game, promises to be of great interest. It is not only the first meet of the year, but it is also, in a way, Bowdoin's final examination before the Maine Intercollegiate. In Holy Cross, Bowdoin meets a formidable opponent. Our runners will meet real competition in every event as Holy Cross has some excellent dash men, several good quarter-milers, and some fast half-milers and milers. In the field events the outlook is indeed bright. Without doubt competition in the various branches of field work will be keen, but it is believed that Bowdoin will spring several surprises upon the Worcester boys. Only by hard work, however, can the Bowdoin team hope to win the meet.

The Maine Intercollegiate Meet
On May 15 the team will journey to Orono ready to fight to the last man

With a heave of 178 feet 7 1/2 inches Captain Frederic D. Tootell bettered all American intercollegiate 16-pound hammer records last Saturday. The collegiate record for the event is held by E. W. Shattuck of the University of California, who hurled the hammer 175 feet 10 inches at Berkeley, California, on April 19, 1913. John W. Merchant made the intercollegiate record of 171 feet 2 inches last year in the Stadium. From these records it is seen that Tootell's colossal throw is substantially greater than any existing collegiate records in the country. If Tootell never threw a hammer again in his life he would have placed himself already among the great hammer throwers of this country and of the world. Twice during the last week he has unofficially better his record-breaking throw. On Thursday he made a heave of 181 feet in the presence of many witnesses, and again on Saturday he tossed the ball 183 feet 8 1/2 inches.

The record was made under the rules of the I.C.A.A.A., which call for six qualifying throws. The results of these attempts are: (1) 170 feet 8 inches. This throw established a new record. (2) 171 feet 11 1/2 inches. This throw broke the record made on the first heave. (3) 174 feet 6 1/2 inches. The record distance was again raised on this distance. (4) 173 feet 8 inches. (5) Foul. (6) Foul. This throw went through the fence and when it was measured it was found to be 183 feet 8 1/2 inches.

After a fifteen minute rest the giant captain resumed his weight throwing. His six heaves may be termed "finals." On his first throw the hammer covered a distance of 164 feet 2 1/2 inches. On the second try all previous intercollegiate records were bettered; the hammer went out 178 feet 7 1/2 inches. The third throw was a foul, while the fourth covered 166 feet 6 inches. The fifth was a foul and the last covered but 161 feet 11 inches.

This splendid exhibition makes "Tootell" a "marked man" from now on. It marks the latest step in Tootell's meteoric development. With such a performance for encouragement, Jack is planning on grooming his pupil for higher honors, and hopes that the Bowdoin captain will end his steady upward climb with the world's championship crown. With Tootell going at his present rate it is easily possible that he will succeed, barring mishaps. The present world's record is held by Patrick J. Ryan, who established the record of 189 feet 6 1/2 inches, on August 17, 1913, at New York. Thus it is seen that Tootell's official throw was but eleven feet under the world's record.

Tootell's progress has been nothing short of miraculous. When he came to Bowdoin as an untrained Freshman

Hockey Letters Awarded

A meeting of the Athletic Council was held last Monday afternoon. Hockey letters were awarded to ten men, of whom 3 are freshmen. The hockey letter voted was a B with crossed hockey sticks, and the men receiving this new insignia are as follows: Capt. Miguel '24, Manager Stone '24, Plaisted '24, Preble '25, Bowker '25, Cronin '25, Tolman '25, Cutter '26, Bucknam '26, and Widen '26.

It was voted that when track men win a point or more in the I.C.A.A. Meet, either outdoor or indoor, he shall be awarded a regulation B surrounded by a circle. This insignia was then awarded Captain Tootell for his work in the Indoor Meet this winter, when he set up a new intercollegiate record for the 35-pound weight throw.

Nominations were made for the offices of football manager and assistant managers as follows:

For manager:
Ross '24.

For assistant managers:
Blanchard '24.

William H. Gulliver '25.

The dual meet with Holy Cross was approved for May 5 in Brunswick. This meet will be run on the same afternoon as the Bowdoin-Maine baseball game, making the first double-header athletic event that Bowdoin has had for many years. The track meet will begin at 1:30 p. m. and will be followed by the baseball game at 3:30 p. m. An admission fee of 75 cents will admit to both events, while grandstand and bleacher seats will cost 25 cents.

The Institute of History.

The Institute of Modern History has started under particularly happy auspices which seem to argue well for its success. This is, without question, one of the greatest, if not the greatest undertaking upon which the college has ever set out. Its importance is seen in the wide editorial comment it has roused throughout the nation, and in the interest shown in it by the great political and diplomatic leaders of our country. Enthusiasm among the members of the college is evidently at a high point, if attendance at the lectures thus far, and enrollment in the Round Table conferences are criteria.

We of the present college generation are unusually fortunate in being able to have a part in so great an educational program. One of the greatest difficulties of the college has always been to provide sufficient influences for broadening the viewpoint of the student. In a small college the faculty can not be sufficiently large in include more than two or three professors in each department, and thus, however fair the professors may be, the instruction can not but be rather closely confined to the viewpoint of the instructor. The fact is in no way a depreciation of the value of the work of the individual professor, but it simply shows the situation.

The field of modern history is a broad and intensely interesting one, opening as it does the whole question of present day diplomacy and governmental policy. It is difficult for the student to grasp from his general reading and experience the solid realities of what is going on in the world, particularly in foreign countries where he has no opportunity to know from actual investigation what the situations truly are. In addition to that fact, the student can not be expected of himself to attain all at once to the possession of an international viewpoint unless his thought is directed to some extent by men who thoroughly know the trend of affairs of state in other countries, as well as the facts of the present inter-relations of nations.

Bowdoin is to be particularly congratulated on having brought together a group of men so thoroughly cognizant with modern world affairs not only by means of independent research, but by intimate participation in the great events which have made the history of the last decade. These men are entirely capable to present the thoughtful viewpoints of many different nations. Some of those viewpoints will of necessity clash with those of the men who attend the lectures and conferences, and this fact is one of the best of the Institute. Provincialism in modern society is a condition of mind almost insupportable. The world has so changed in the last generation or so, facilities of communication have been so tremendously increased, that the world is at our door. We have but to look about us to realize this fact. Never before in the history of mankind were the peoples of the earth so closely associated in actual space association; never before were opportunities so great for the expansion of an international consciousness, yet even now trifling bickerers hold the nations from closer association of mind and purpose, as well as of mere geographical boundaries.

The time has come for the development of cordiality among the nations of all the world in their relations with one another. The world has expanded, yet grown small, and in so doing it has come to present vast international problems. To meet those problems there must be developed among the people of the world, particularly among the educated young men who will in time be the leaders of the people, a broader conception of international relations. No better way has been yet suggested than that of so altogether splendid an educational program as the Institute of Modern History here at Bowdoin offers.

Ibis Hears Lecture

By Dr. Pribram

Professor Bell entertained the undergraduate and faculty members of the Ibis at his home on Sunday evening. Professor Pribram of the University of Vienna and the first speaker of the Institute of Modern History, informally discussed with Professor Bell's guests the present European situation and the background of the war. The evening was indeed interesting and profitable to those present. The members of the Ibis present were Karl Philbrick, George Quinby, Emerson Hunt, F. King Turgeon, Robert Hanscom and Albert Black and Edward Ham who has recently arrived on the campus. The faculty members included Professors Bell, Van Cleve, Cram and Abbott, President Sills and Mr. MacCormick.

Communication

Editor of the "Orient":

May I request a little space in the "Orient" for the following communication. It has, I believe, an element of interest for all Bowdoin men:

In the Harvard Union tonight, in a talk on "Teaching as a Vocation", Bowdoin scored twice, notably and nobly scored. It was one of the most distinguished and impressive talks I ever attended. It was an extra-curriculum talk, yet the students fairly filled the immense hall of the Union. Far as I sat from the platform, yet could I distinguish down front two Harvard Deans and her former President. The speaker was Professor Bliss Perry.

It was a wonderful talk which I hope may be reported in full that every Bowdoin man may read, read for two reasons: that he may understand about teaching as a profession; but primarily that he may understand and appreciate how halloved is the thought and pervasive the influence of Bowdoin and her men in the circles of humane and illustrious scholars. Twice Professor Perry, with the colleges of all America to draw on for his proofs, all unconsciously, drew on two of Bowdoin's teachers: President Hyde and Professor Woodruff.

In touching on the practical aspects of teaching, Professor Perry recounted almost in detail President Hyde's findings from his circular to the Bowdoin alumni some fifteen years ago. Farther on in the speech, of the three examples of the ideal teacher, he mentioned our own Professor Woodruff as one; showed how Professor Woodruff, when Greek was eliminated as a requirement for college entrance instead of throwing up his hands and wailing and moaning, as the majority of the professors of Greek at that time did, humbly set himself to the task of teaching elementary Greek to the college man, and of teaching the Greek tragedies in translation. More students as a consequence studied Greek and Greek literature at Bowdoin than ever before.

I took the "Greek Lit." course, as many of you Bowdoin men did; and listened to that high and noble phrase from a high and noble source of the influence of a man before whom I personally sat, reflected how strange that of things in our midst we should learn the value of but afar off. I thrilled, as would every Bowdoin man, at the prominent position Bowdoin held in that dignified discourse.

I wish to make no homily of this communication; and a few observations which I am going to make, are, I trust, not impertinent here. Bowdoin has been a great little college; but her influence and glory are not all of the past. There are, doubtless, among her present teachers those who in years to come will be extolled no less fervently than many of her illustrious leaders of the past. You undergraduates are before them now. Comparisons are not only odious, but dangerous—we are unduly prone to set up one thing as a foil for the other,—yet we cannot help but make comparisons. I conceived a love for literature at Bowdoin; and I have come to the University most famed today for its literary instructions. It deserves its present fame, and more; but Bowdoin suffers not a jot by comparison. Take certain plays: here I study them as fine plays and superb poetry; at Bowdoin I studied them as fine plays and superb poetry, but also as an interpretation of life. There is much to be said for the simplicity of treatment here; yet the vital interest the presentation at Bowdoin provoked in me, here I somehow lack. This however, is but a detail; yet on the whole, Gentlemen, to put it bluntly, Bowdoin is not surpassed. Are you aware of it? Or are you indifferent to influences whose value, to your shame and regret, you will later learn from a distant stranger?

in order to win another leg on the ten year Maine Intercollegiate Athletic Association cup. This trophy was won in 1915-16 by Maine. In 1919 Bowdoin hit its present day stride and won the state championship. The process was repeated in 1920, 1921 and 1922. Accordingly, a win this year will clinch the cup for Bowdoin. Several of Bowdoin's stellar track men are expected to smash state records, and beyond the shadow of a doubt these men will live up to all expectations.

Penn Relay Carnival

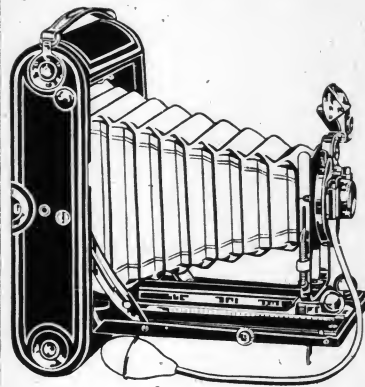

In addition to the Holy Cross meet and the State meet, Coach Magee is planning to send several men to the Pennsylvania Relay Carnival, to be held in Philadelphia, April 27 and 28. Capt. Tootell, Francis Bishop, and several other stars will make the trip accompanied by their coach. It has not yet been decided whether to send a relay team or not to this meet. At any rates Bowdoin will be well represented and she may rest assured that these representatives will render an excellent account of themselves.

Albert Thayer '22

The Lafayette College varsity debating team, coached by Albert R. Thayer '22, recently received an unanimous decision in a three-cornered debate with Hamilton and Union Colleges. This victory is the most notable forensic triumph in the last college generation and the Lafayette team set a new record in the Triangular Debate League founded four years ago. This victory has also caused a tremendous revival of interest in debating at Lafayette.

Editorially commenting on the debate "The Lafayette," the newspaper of Lafayette College, says, "The Lafayette-Hamilton debate last Friday night stands out as an epoch-making event in the history of extra-curriculum activities at this college. Debating at last has come into its own at Lafayette. The event of Friday night ought to establish it firmly as an activity commanding the interest and support of the entire undergraduate body. In developing a championship debating team Coach Thayer has done a signal thing for Lafayette. Lafayette debaters have emerged from the lump into which they fell some years ago. Lafayette stands at the dawn of a new day."

Dean A. K. Heckel of Lafayette paid a high tribute to Coach Thayer when he declared at chapel that "Lafayette has a new championship team on the campus this morning and Coach Albert R. Thayer takes his place beside Dr. Sutherland as a championship coach."

Pi Delta Epsilon Meets

Five Men Eligible To Membership Are Elected

At a meeting of Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalistic fraternity, held on Thursday evening of last week, plans were discussed for the coming year. The five men who have become eligible to membership through recent elections were voted into the club. The men are Blatchford '24, business manager of the Bowdoin Publishing Company; Watson '24, chairman of the Quill Board; Rouillard '24, editor-in-chief of the Bugle and member of Bear Skin Board; Tolman '25 and Perkins '25, managing editors of the Orient.

A report of the recent national convention recently held at Union College was also read.

Stanley Plummer Contest Postponed

The final contest for the Stanley Plummer Prize has been postponed because of the Institute of Modern History, until the middle of May. All members of the junior class intending to enter the competition will please secure appointments with Professor W. H. Davis not later than April 20. As heretofore, the competition will be limited to original, carefully prepared addresses not committed to memory.

Chapel Address

"Who Is My Neighbor?" Text Of President's Address

"Who is my neighbor?" Upon this text President Sills delivered the Chapel address last Sunday afternoon. This question, the President said, is very much akin to that other oft-repeated query of "Am I my brother's keeper?" a query that has been made the world over for centuries. And it has taken the people of the world centuries to understand that they are their brother's keeper and to find out just who their neighbors are. We can no longer, the President went on to say, find any excuse for believing our neighbor to be only the man who happens to live next to us—we are now neighbors to people in the uttermost parts of the earth. We must realize what is perfectly patent, that the world is growing smaller and smaller and that we cannot longer disregard the people of foreign lands, even though they may lie beyond broad seas. When we can sit quietly in New England and converse with other Americans in Texas, when we can relay messages across the oceans, we must realize that the whole world is our neighbor. Nowadays a man who has travelled over one hundred and fifty miles in an automobile in an afternoon can scarcely believe that his father, who had only journeyed one hundred miles from home, was looked upon in his day as a travelled man. Can there be longer any question as to who our neighbors are?

Although the physical neighborliness of the world has grown by leaps and bounds, although it is still growing hour by hour, we must be forced to concede that the spiritual neighborliness has not grown correspondingly. We will find, if we pause to consider, that human nature is still much the same as it was when Jesus Christ was alive, and that, in spite of the fact that mankind is being brought steadily closer together, men are no more concerned with the welfare of their neighbor than before. The average man has a kindly heart, but a kindly heart without corresponding actions to accompany it means nothing. How to make the mere instinct of kindness effective is the mission of Christianity. We may as well begin here at college to find the solution of the problem in its application here. In this community of approximately five hundred men we can find many who are unhappy, who are finding it difficult to fit themselves into the life of the college, and we can also find plenty of "big" men on the campus who experience no trouble in holding their elevated positions. Do these "big" men realize the power which they might exercise to help their less fortunate fellows to find their places, to make their lives easier? The average person is too lacking in insight and imagination to see that others need his help.

The Institute of History which is soon to meet here, the President continued, will bring together many famous men from various parts of the world. This Institute will emphasize the question of who our neighbors are in the field of international affairs. The same note can be applied here as well as in the case of individuals. The United States has its duty to perform toward the other nations, it must be the good Samaritan among the states of the world.

We must get back to the principles of Christianity. To have the feelings of kindness is not enough—we must have imagination and insight. Let us remember that in our dealings with our fellow men.

"And he, wishing to justify himself, said, 'who is my neighbor?'"

How would we here at college answer that question in regard to ourselves as individuals and in regard to the industrial world at large?

Tennis Schedule Announced

Dual Meets With Bates, Colby, And Wesleyan

The tennis schedule for the coming season has been announced and will undoubtedly be played as follows:

May 4—Bates at Lewiston.

May 7—Colby at Waterville.

May 10-11—State, Intercollegiate Tournament at Brunswick.

May 18-19—Annual Interscholastic Tournament at Brunswick.

May 21, 22, 23—New England Intercollegiate Tournament at Boston.

Arrangements are in progress for a match with the Augusta Country Club, which will probably be played May 1st.

With three veteran men in Captain Bishop, Lord, and Young, there is the nucleus of a team that should come through the season with more than average success. There is a large amount of material to pick the remaining one or two to fill out the team. From the prospects at present and with a fair amount of practice the team should be able to hold its own against any team in the State. Colby will undoubtedly furnish the hardest competition, having Captain Sackett and ex-Captain Gow both playing this year. This is the same pair that won the singles and doubles championship of the state last year.

A New York alumnus has recently written to Pres. Sills, complimenting the College on the conduct of the baseball team. He says:

"I can not resist the impulse which keeps coming back to me, to speak to you about our boys of the baseball team. The Bowdoin team has recently spent a week at the Hotel Westminster, where Mrs. M. and I are at present living. You would be very much pleased if you could have heard the favorable comments which were made by the guests of the hotel. The boys were at all times quiet, dignified and gentlemanly in manner. Bowdoin Representatives Undergraduate Conference

At a meeting of the Bowdoin Publishing Company last week Blatchford '24 was elected chairman and Watson '24, secretary for the coming year. Rowe '24 and Blatchford '24 were elected delegates to represent the Bowdoin publications at the Second Biennial Conference on Undergraduate Affairs to be held on April 26, 27, 28, at the University of Pennsylvania. Eames '23 will represent the student body. The purpose of the conference is clearly seen in its title, that is to discuss and if possible arrive at some definite solution of the problems that are facing the undergraduate bodies of the American colleges. The first of this series of conferences was held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1921, and proved unusually successful. It is confidently expected that many of Bowdoin's undergraduate problems will find their final solution in this conference.

Dr. Gray Will Speak Under Auspices Of Y. M. C. A.

Dr. A. Herbert Gray, a famous minister of Glasgow, Scotland, will lecture under the auspices of the Bowdoin Y.M.C.A. in Memorial Hall on May 3 and 4. Dr. Gray is now on tour arranged by the Y.M.C.A., speaking at Harvard, Bowdoin and other leading colleges in the United States and Canada. The Bowdoin Y.M.C.A. is very fortunate in securing Dr. Gray because he is available to only a limited number of Colleges. He will speak on several of the following subjects: "Industrial Situation," "What's the Good of Religion?", "What are Fundamentals?", "The Secret of Power," "The Relations of Men and Women."

Williams' VII

—the softest course in college

WILLIAMS' VII is a course for every man in the institution. It's seven times a week but the sessions are short—less than five minutes each. And best of all, no man who elects Williams' ever fails—to get a better shave than he ever got before.

The first thing you learn in shaving with Williams' is of the remarkably beneficial effect it has on your skin. You can't fail to be impressed—even after the closest examination—with the fact that here, at last, is a shaving cream which really does your face good.

Then, especially if you're of a practical, business-like turn of mind, you'll be pleased with the efficiency of Williams'. It softens the beard in so much less time. It does everything a shaving cream is supposed to do.

Get a tube of Williams' today. Use it for two months. See then if you ever could go back to any other shaving cream.

On Links By Golf Team

For the first time in her history, Bowdoin will have a golf team. Plans are being made to place a team in the field this spring to compete with other college teams and country club organizations, and already, due largely to the untiring efforts of the promoters of the scheme, an attractive schedule has been arranged which includes several trips to Boston and one trip to Hanover, N. H. A college tournament has also been planned for the purpose of selecting the men who will represent Bowdoin on the links. This tournament, scheduled for the 23rd, 24th and 25th of April, will be of the handicap variety, the handicaps to be based on the comparative scores turned in by entrants before the play begins. A tentative handicap list has been posted on the bulletin board, but this is subject to change. All those who desire to compete in the tournament should hand their names to Harry Keany '23. The entry list is open to any man in college who hands in a score on which his handicap may be based.

There is no reason why, with the material at hand, Bowdoin should not rightfully expect to be able to place a creditable team on the links. With such men as Pierce, Fasso, Richards, and others equally as good, the college has the nucleus of a respectable team, with the prospects of making a favorable showing in the majority of the matches.

The first tournament will be Saturday, April 21, with Martindale C. C. at Brunswick.

The schedule, though it may seem at first glance rather pretentious, is an excellent one. Of special note are the matches which have been arranged with Massachusetts Tech, with Brown, and with Dartmouth. A match with Harvard also seems likely, although final negotiations on this matter have not been completed. Besides these colleges several country clubs appear on the schedule,—such as Brunswick, Augusta, and Portland.

Musical Clubs' Trip
Tremendous SuccessMany Letters Of Praise Received
After New York Trip

The recent concert tour conducted by the Bowdoin Musical Clubs during the Easter holidays proved to be one of the most successful trips yet undertaken. Even the Boston trip, which took place earlier in the season and which was considered at the time to be unusually successful, was less noteworthy than the trip which has just been completed. At every concert in which the Musical Clubs appeared on this last tour, they were well received by large, appreciative audiences, all of which were unanimous in their praise of the quality of singing exhibited. The program at each of the concerts was essentially the same as that presented during the Boston trip. The popularity of the Musical Clubs' concerts this year may be attributed in no small measure to the excellently composed program which they have chosen. Never before in the history of the Musical Clubs has there been an effort to present a program consisting of selections of such a high order, and the fact that the Clubs have succeeded so well this year argues well for future endeavors.

The first concert of the tour took place in Beverly on Tuesday evening, April 3. A joint program had been arranged with the Beverly Men's Singing Club, an organization which sang at Bowdoin in the fall. After the concert, there was a ball which was followed by the formal presentation of a scholarship fund raised by the Beverly Club for worthy boys at Bowdoin. On the next evening, the Clubs appeared in Newton Center, Mass. Like the first concert, this proved to be very successful. The program was presented by the Big Glee Club and the Instrumental Club with Professor Wass directing. After the Newton Center concert, the small Glee Club and the Instrumental Club travelled on to New York, where the third concert of the trip was presented on Thursday evening at the Hotel Plaza under the auspices of the New York alumni and the State of Maine society. The program was carried off very well before a good audience. The concert in Philadelphia, which took place at the Hotel Adelphi on the following evening proved to be one of the best of the trip. It was the first appearance of the Clubs in Philadelphia, but it is certain that it will not be the last. So pleased were those who heard the concert that an immediate request was made to have Philadelphia placed regularly on the list of cities visited during the spring tour.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.

Of The Bowdoin Orient, published weekly during the college year at Brunswick, Maine, for April 1, 1923.

mediate request was made to have Philadelphia placed regularly on the list of cities visited during the spring tour. The last appearance of the Clubs was at the Crescent Athletic Club in Brooklyn on Saturday evening, April 7. The program took the form of a dinner concert, which was most favorably received.

The Easter trip concludes the schedule of long tours for this year. There will be, however, a concert given on May 5 in Brunswick as the conclusion to one of the most successful seasons ever experienced by the Bowdoin Musical Clubs. This concert will be followed by an informal dance in the gymnasium. The Clubs should be given the heartiest of congratulations and the greatest appreciation for the excellent work that they have done this year,—work that has never before been done by any Bowdoin musical organization, and the college and the students should give their wholehearted support to these representatives of Bowdoin who are doing a wonderful thing in promoting the institution through the favorable impressions which they have created upon their various appearances. Perhaps the best way in which the favorable impression created by the Musical Clubs can be expressed is by quoting the following letter written by H. L. Palmer, Secretary of the New York Alumni Association to President Sills:

"In the absence of President Pierce of the N.Y.A.A. I am taking occasion to write you to tell you how very much we members of the New York Alumni Association enjoyed the Glee Club concert given last Thursday evening under the auspices of the Maine Society at the Hotel Plaza. We of the Alumni Association guaranteed 200 tickets as our part in supporting the Maine Society on their financial obligations. The quality of the concert and the talent displayed by the members of the club individually and collectively, were, in the judgment of everyone present to whom I talked, the best we have listened to here in New York in a number of years. The men conducted themselves splendidly, and they were a fine looking lot. I think we all felt that in this organization the college has a group of men who are representing it to excellent advantage. Should you have occasion to be talking to any of the men I hope you will express this opinion to them."

his best throw was only 97 feet. In his Sophomore year, however, he threw a distance of 133 feet. Last year he made a record of 158 feet 10 1/2 inches at the A.A.U. Junior Championship meet held in Newark, N. J., on August 17. His most recent throw should not be considered the best that he can do, for according to Coach Magee, he is capable of even better honors.

TWO DEFEATS SUFFERED BY BOWDOIN BASEBALL TEAMS

First Home Game Featured by Ragged Playing and Loose Fielding—White's Second Team Unable to Cope With Sem's Pitcher

In the first home game of the season, the Bowdoin baseball team met with an unfortunate reverse at the hands of the Portland K. of C. team last Saturday afternoon. The playing, save for a few bright patches, was rather listless throughout, neither team showing a great deal of pep either in the field or at the bat. Ragged playing and loose fielding were responsible in a large measure for Bowdoin's defeat, several gross errors being committed which aided the K. of C. team materially in their victory. There were, on the other hand, however, a number of brilliant catches in the outfield which minimized the damage done by loose playing in the infield. Needelman and Small figuring prominently in the former.

The K. of C. team was the first to score, when Carroll sent Embleton across the plate with a long single after the latter had pounded out a triple to left field in the second inning. Bowdoin did not even count until the fifth inning. At this point, McLaughlin, who had taken Davis' place at second, knocked out a nice two-bagger, and reached third on Nichols' sacrifice. An error brought the runner across the plate a moment later.

With the score still tied at 1-1, the game dragged itself out to the ninth inning, when several successive errors allowed the K. of C. to bring in the two winning runs. Bowdoin failed to produce in her half of the ninth, and the game ended with the score 3-1 in favor of the Portland team.

Three Bowdoin pitchers and two catchers were given a chance during the course of the game, and the batteries upheld their share of the work in good style. The loss of Saturday's game cannot be blamed, as some of the games on the Southern trip were, upon the pitching staff, for it was poor support that was responsible for the loss of this first home game.

SECOND TEAM GAME

In a one-sided but interesting game the second team bowed to Westbrook Seminary last Saturday to the tune of 9 to 1. Bowdoin's lone tally came in the sixth inning after Bowker drove out a two-bagger, went to third on Pettengill's single, and crossed the plate on Spear's sacrifice. The pitching of Holston, the seminary moundman, was the main obstacle in Bowdoin's way. For five innings he held Bowdoin hitless. Although the field work of the second team was not admitted the latter outclassed our stickmen in hitting. For four innings Bowdoin held their opponents to one run, but in the fifth frame, Westbrook started a rally which resulted in an addition of three runs to their credit. While both teams were making many errors, the team work was for the most part good. Both Stafford and Hildreth did creditable work in the box. Williams, at left field, performed

Bowdoin Golf Team Defeats Martindale Country Club

The Bowdoin golf team opened its season in most auspicious fashion last Saturday afternoon when it overwhelmingly defeated the Martindale Country Club by winning five out of the required six matches. Bowdoin experienced but little difficulty in coming out on top in the five matches which she won, and the sixth was lost only after Beals had given Bonney, his opponent, a hard fight which was carried to the nineteenth green. Beals was handicapped in his match due to the fact that he had been unable to secure as much preliminary practice as his teammates, and was therefore not playing his usual game. The remaining matches were as a whole rather one-sided, with Bowdoin taking all the honors. The results were most gratifying to those interested in seeing golf come into its own at Bowdoin, and such a splendid start argues well for the success of the team in future matches.

The feature of the Martindale match on Saturday was the playing of Fasso, who turned in the remarkable score of 78—a score which is only four strokes over the winning score turned in by the professional Chisholm at the State open tournament held at the Brunswick course on Patriots' Day. Such scoring at this early stage in the season bodes well for Fasso's chances later in the year. It may be of interest to note that Fasso is expected to compete in the national intercollegiate championships to be held at the Siwanoy Country Club, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., on June 26-30. When we consider that this golfer tied for second gross prize, and took third place for net score in the recent state tournament at Brunswick, we may feel sure that Bowdoin will be ably represented in the national event.

The other members of the team, while not equaling the remarkable scoring of Fasso, made a very creditable showing considering the fact that the match was played so early in the season. Outside of the match which Beals lost to Bonney on the nineteenth green, only one of the Bowdoin golfers was forced to extend himself to win. In the match in question, the

Sunday Chapel

Basing his sermon upon the 27th verse of the 24th chapter of St. Luke, the Rev. Benjamin R. Lane, rector at St. Luke's Cathedral in Portland, spoke last Sunday of the need of spiritual insight into material affairs. He likened the disciples of Christ to the people of today, showing how, in their discouragement, they thought of material things only in the terms of failure and death. When Christ, "beginning at Moses and all the prophets, expounded unto his disciples in all the scriptures the things concerning himself," he spoke not of the material side of his life but of the spiritual side. The Bible tells us nothing of Christ after his resurrection except things concerning his spiritual gifts of service and self-sacrifice. Christ, the interpreter of our lives, points out in his every word that we must look to the spiritual side of daily material occurrences if we wish to interpret them correctly. He lets us know that the only things that really count in this world and the next are the things which come through self-sacrifice.

After delivering a sermon at Yale University, Dr. Bell, president of St. Stephen's College, was asked, "If, as you say, one can sin in material things without hurting himself or anyone else, what harm is there in such sin?" Dr. Bell replied, "The harm done is not material but is spiritual." Such was the substance of the Reverend Dr. Lane's sermon. "Then opened he their understanding that they might understand the scriptures, And said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behooved Christ to suffer and to rise from the dead."

Jordan Defeats Deering In Interscholastic Debate

Jordan High School of Lewiston won the championship of the Bowdoin Interscholastic Debating League, April 20, by defeating Deering High by a 2 to 1 decision. Jordan High upheld the negative of the question: "Resolved, that the United States should cancel the loans made by her to her allies during the World War."

The members of the Jordan High team were Ida Pettengill and Clara Parnell, while those that represented Deering High were Clyde L. Rogers, Frederick T. Goggin with Gifford Davis as alternate. Raymond J. Saunders '24 coached Jordan High and G. William Rowe '24 Deering High. The presiding officer was Professor Davis and the judges were Professor Cushing, Mr. MacCormick and Rev. Harry F. Shook.

DIPLOMACY AND STATECRAFT REVEALED BY AUTHORITIES ON EUROPEAN HISTORY

Pribram, Westermann, Tsolainos, Lord, and Morgenthau Deliver First Eight Lectures in Modern History Course in Memorial Hall

Prof. Alfred F. Pribram

"Foreign Policy of Austria and Germany from 1908 to 1914"

The lecturer spoke on the Austro-Hungarian foreign policy from 1908 to 1914. In outlining the causes which led up to the world war Professor Pribram laid much of the blame on Emperor Francis Joseph for his lack of decision. He said that the ambitions of the Hapsburgs were never wholly successful as they were never able to devote their entire energy to the task of controlling a unified state on a German basis. His description of the emperor was as follows: Francis Joseph was not one of those of whom contemporaries, especially those at a distance, form any definite impression. The reserve which he observed even toward the great majority of his advisers, made it more difficult to penetrate into his real nature. He had a deep sense of his exalted position as a ruler. To the end of his days he remained profoundly convinced that the empire over which he ruled was his empire and the peoples his people. This conception of the majesty of the office bestowed on him by God found expression in his bearing.

He always maintained a regal attitude. He showed kindness and winning courtesy to everyone. Nothing was further from him than posing and one never heard him utter high sounding phrases, but he avoided every kind of intimacy, even with members of the imperial household, and even with them knew how to maintain his distance. His intellectual gifts were not remarkable, but he possessed sound common sense and wit. He had a strikingly good memory for persons and events. As a ruler he was a model of the sense of duty. From early morning to evening he attended to business with clock like regularity and dealt with all the documents laid before him with the greatest punctuality. This industry and his exact memory made him one of the best authorities in all government affairs. He sometimes startled his ministers by his intimate knowledge of the business in hand and occasionally embarrassed them but he went no further than the details and lacked the power of surveying the whole. He also lacked especially in his later years, the ability to take the initiative in important questions, to form independent resolutions and to carry them to their logical conclusions. In an ever increasing degree he left the decision to his responsible ministers. He was not without skill in the choice of his advisers but he had an instinctive dislike for men whom he felt to be his intellectual superiors. He also disliked people of independent and upright character and even within the family circle he preferred those who were more subservient.

He was essentially cold in temperament with great self control, increased by practice. Among the European rulers he enjoyed great respect during the last decade of his reign, a respect which he owed to his age, his great experience and also to his personal charm. His blameless conduct and above all to the fact that his word could be unconditionally relied upon.

Francis Joseph was a faithful son of the Catholic church and looked up with reverence to the holy father, but quite in the spirit of the traditions of his house he guarded the rights of the dynasty and the state with utmost tenacity, even against the Pope. He took no interest in the arts and sciences, being in this respect more of a Lorrainer than a Hapsburg. But whenever he expressed an opinion on these subjects he showed a decided aversion to the modern tendencies in music, literature and art.

In beginning his consideration of the Austro-Hungarian foreign policy Professor Pribram said: "This foreign policy in crucial decade which through the world war led to the downfall of the empire can only be understood by recalling the main historical problem that confronted the old Monarchy."

Since the foundation of the German Empire, and the Kingdom of United Italy, an extension of Austria-Hungary towards the south and west of Europe had become impossible. Only in the southeast could she still count on the expansion of her territory and power. Thus from the close of the nineteenth century onward the policy of the leading Austro-Hungarian statesmen had taken the direction indicated by geographical conditions.

In this Austria had to reckon the opposition of Russia, which with the pressing back of Turkish influences, had become her great rival in southern Europe. In order to maintain herself as a great power, make her frontier secure against hostile attacks, and suffer no restriction of her further development, she could not allow another great power to command the Danube and its estuary and arrogate to itself the hegemony of the Balkan peoples. This political and economic opposition between the Hapsburg monarchy and Russia was reinforced by rivalry of ethical and cultural nature.

In view of this struggle against a competitor far superior in population and military strength, Austrian statesmen had sought an alliance or understanding with those European states whose interests appeared to run parallel with their own."

Professor Pribram's Second Lecture

Professor Pribram took for the subject of his second lecture "Diplomacy of Austria and Germany during the War," which he divided into two questions: First, Was the European balance of power menaced by Germany before the outbreak of the World War; and What effect had the issue of the results of the war upon the system of European alliances and upon the continuance of the European balance of power.

He described the strength of Germany in army, fleet and commerce, backed up by the boastful utterances of Kaiser William and the German politicians and writers. He also showed the feverish attempts of the Central Powers to win over Italy, Bulgaria, Roumania, and the other small states to their side. He concluded with the statement that no European nation will be able to establish its supremacy over all other European nations.

In the course of his lecture he referred to documents in the secret archives of the Austrian government to which he has had access since the war and which he used in backing up his statements.

Prof. Alfred F. Pribram

"Diplomacy of Austria and Germany During the War"

Professor Pribram's topic for the second lecture was a continuation of the first and had to do with Diplomacy of Austria and Germany during the War. This was the more interesting to the audience because much of what he said has never been published and is known to only a few. Professor Pribram, having become cognizant of it through his permission to the Austrian archives, a privilege which is extended to few men.

Professor Pribram said that it was impossible to determine the cause of the war, and it would remain a mystery until the archives of all the countries engaged in it were thrown open to public view, and that would not be for some time. Previous to the war the Austrian policy of government was not of the people, but was conducted by the statesmen, and the people had no active part in foreign policy. The question to determine was, Was the European Balance of Power Menaced by Germany Before the War?

Germany's strength had increased, she possessed the strongest army in the world, commercially she was second to England—in fact if measured by the standard of blood and iron she was the strongest of all nations. She was so powerful that she occasioned alarm to other nations, which led to the formation of the Triple Entente. But there was no real fear of Germany's declaring war because circumstances rendered it impossible for her to attack any of the countries. She was not pitted against any one nation, but it was a case of the Triple Alliance against the Triple Entente, and neither was stronger than the other. Italy, one of Germany's allies in the Alliance, could not be depended upon, and Japan was known to be England's ally, while the United States, although neutral was also favoring England.

The Central Powers were not certain of their allies, and they attempted to make sure of them but failed. This being certain, they tried to get new

The Quill.

A few weeks ago mention was made in the Orient of a new system of circulation to be used by the Bowdoin Publishing Company, which would combine the Orient and Quill for purposes of circulation. The plan has now gone into effect, since the last issue of the Quill, that for April, enjoyed a circulation more than double its former mark. There has as yet been very little general discussion of the question heard on the campus, but it seems wholly advisable at this time that a complete explanation of the circumstances leading to the adoption of the scheme be made.

The Quill, after having presented a rather deplorable picture of decadence for the past several years, is at last renaissance. The quality of the publication has been for months of a very excellent character, so much so, in fact, that the doubts of those who feared for the continuation of this magazine have been largely stilled. From the standpoint of literary excellence, then, the future of the Quill is more than usually bright. Unfortunately, however, that is not the only standpoint from which the possibilities of the magazine must be viewed.

The nature of the college literary publication is traditionally such that its sole source of income is its subscriptions, paid either personally or through the general A.S.B.C. fund appropriation. There is, or at least has been, very little opportunity for adding to the income of the Quill by opening one or two pages to advertisers. This, of itself would augment the treasury but little, but two pages of advertising would be a considerable help in relieving the burden of heavy printing costs. If this plan is approved, it will be brought into use in the near future, to come to the assistance of the income from the subscription list. And it is the subscription list which is just now of greater interest.

During most of its history, the expenses of the Quill, in excess of its income, have been paid from the Publishing Company's funds. This policy has proved very expensive, and has accomplished little in adding the Quill to the independent financial basis toward which it should be trending. The present plan was suggested as a means of extending the subscription lists of both papers, with a view both to the present and to the future. The plan for the present is to adequately finance the publications, that for the future is to so successfully introduce the literary magazine that may eventually by its own appeal extend its circulation. There is no desire on the part of the management to foist either publication upon an unwilling subscriber. In many instances, subscribers to the Quill have been for a long time subscribers also to the Orient, and vice versa, but this is not by any means true in all cases. The change in the subscription price is such that it will be of direct benefit financially to those who have always subscribed to both, while it is not so excessive an increase as to make a great difference to those who have long subscribed to only one of the magazines. For that reason, the management feel assured that the change will be favorably received by our subscribers, and that it will be of great benefit to the publications.

The manager of the Publishing Company will be very glad to arrange rates with any subscribers who may be unwilling to accept one of the publications. It is hoped, however, that such cases may be very few, and that both the Orient and the Quill may enjoy a period of greater success.

allies, and this led to a treaty between Turkey and Germany, which was against Russia. The Turkish army was in bad condition, however, and had to be reorganized. Germany also tried to make an ally of Bulgaria but failed. Austria-Hungary also tried to get Bulgaria to join the Alliance by offering territorial gains, and Rumania, whose king was then ill, Germany tried to threaten the people out of their neutrality, but failed here also. Meanwhile Italy, who could never be relied on by her allies, the Central Powers, had entered an alliance with Bucharest, against Austria-Hungary, her ally, caused much damage which was only averted at the last moment. Italy at the outbreak of the war refused to join her allies, Germany, Austria-Hungary, and remained neutral, wishing to get certain concessions from Austria-Hungary before she would consent to join. Germany persuaded Austria-Hungary to make concessions, but Italy asked for far too much, which was denied. This kept on back and forth for some time, and finally Italy, thinking that she could gain more by going with the Entente joined with England and France in the war, and declared war on Austria-Hungary.

Rumania, who also had remained neutral up to this time, now showed signs of joining with Italy against the Alliance. There was only one thing which would stop her, and this was a decided victory by the Alliance. This took place just in time, when the Germans won a large battle from the Russians, and Rumania remained neutral. The Central Powers had also tried to win Bulgaria over to their side, and with secret treaties succeeded in this plan, with the result that Serbia was taken in 1915. In 1916 Rumania decided in favor of the Entente, and went to their side.

In the last years of the war both sides tried to induce neutral countries to enter the war but failed. United States was the last Nation to enter, and her entrance decided the war. This was the inclusive step. This came about because Germany driven to desperation had decided in favor of unlimited submarine warfare, which her ally Austria, at first frowned on. But she was finally persuaded to consent and unrestricted submarine warfare was started, without doing half the damage that Germany thought that it would, and being fatal to Germany, by being the cause of United States entering the war. The Austrian nation was ready for peace from the start, and in 1916, Germany also was ready for compromise. But the Entente would not hear of any compromise, and the efforts of President Wilson who offered to be the neutral party through whom the negotiations could come, failed. And so the war continued until the Central Powers were forced to surrender.

In considering the future Professor Pribram said that the course of history had shown that when any European nation attempted to be supreme it always failed because of the impulse in self-conscious peoples, of whom Europe is composed, to attain their ends will defeat any nation which attempts to take away the individuality and soul of any of these nations. And so looking forward into the dim future Professor Pribram predicted that no European nation could establish a rule over others, or subjugate others to its will or prevent Germany tried to threaten the people powers in any nation. This was the lesson taught by a study of the history of Europe and it has been found true in this last war.

Nationalism in the Near East

Professor William L. Westermann of Cornell in his first lecture, April 19, said:

If we sum up the Nationalist movements of the Near East thus far considered, the following impressions must appear:

1. They are realities, in the sense that they enlisted the support of the peoples of the Near East.

2. They do not appear to be religious in their motivation. In other words they do not represent a movement of Islam against Christianity, as yet; and the probabilities are that they will not so develop. Nationalism is at present stronger than Mohammedanism.

3. The aims and methods of western politics and politicians have created a profound distrust and dislike of Occidentalism throughout the Near East.

4. Near Eastern Nationalism has become anti-western in its spirit, in the sense that the peoples involved claim their right to accept the advantages of western material culture while preserving their freedom from western political domination.

5. The movement has had great success in Egypt and Persia.

6. In the Arab sector conflicting ambitions of France and England have rendered it ineffective. The hold which France and the British Empire have over the Arabs may reasonably be expected to remain into the near or distant future. Whether this will be to the good or to the harm of the Arab peoples depends upon the intelligent liberalism of the two powers in their administration of the vitiated mandates which they hold.

We live in a period of disillusion. Among those things which characterize our post war mood, is a mistrust of the diplomacy which permitted the Great War to arise and has been unable to minister successfully to the new economic and political ailments which the war left behind in various vital parts of the world's anatomy.

One must, in fairness to the diplomats, recognize that their task of readjustment after the war was much too heavy for their powers. The war, and the promises which war diplomacy has bred, had aroused a hundred diverse desires of freedom among peoples big and peoples little. Conflicting within themselves, many of these must of necessity be repressed. Some of them could be, and were, satisfied, and some partially satisfied. In Europe itself the boundary and territory decisions which have resulted from the Peace Conference and its Commissions have shown a permanency which is on the whole astonishing. Regarding the economic readjustment much less can be said. Diplomacy and economic experts have not availed much here. The world heals, indeed. But it heals itself. Diplomats do not heal it. The boundary decisions made in 1919 may be deceptive in their appearance of permanency. The exhaustion of forces, of human and economic energy, has on the whole made impossible any effective protest against the fiat of the Paris and later conferences regarding boundaries—except in the case of Turkey. Why Turkey, judged to be the weakest of all sick children, could first, and with complete success, flout all the decisions of the diplomats of the Great Powers is to be a principal topic of my addresses here. One obvious reason is that the decisions made for Turkey, and the Near East in general, were by far the worst that were made. They were predetermined in the early years of the war, and predetermined along the lines of traditional diplomacy, based upon a type of international avarice and bad faith which could only be sanctioned by a

Business Building

THE selling of commodities is fundamental in every business, and selling life insurance affords the maximum of satisfaction and remuneration. For the life insurance salesman is a business builder and finds innumerable ways to serve the community and make himself indispensable in the conduct of modern affairs.

The life insurance salesman is not only a business builder but he is in business for himself, creating a competence permanent and continuous. It is the best paid work for those who are ambitious and willing to work, and who have the character and stamina necessary to stamp their individuality upon the business and on their community.

The traditions and practices of the JOHN HANCOCK are such that the college graduate can take a peculiar pride in representing this company. brute force able to enforce such decisions. After the war the powers concerned had not the requisite internal strength to carry out their plans.

The post-war of the Allies is one reason for the complete break down of the Treaty with Turkey, called the Treaty of Sevres, and signed upon August 10, 1920. It has never received the sanction of the Turkish Parliament, a necessary step in its ratification. This has expressed itself in the Tashkikat Milli, or Nationalist Organization. The guiding hand and the guiding mind of this organization has been one Mustapha Kemal Pasha. The Turkish Nationalist movement is only a manifestation of a number of symptoms. In as much, therefore, it has never been a treaty. The second reason lies in the unsuspected strength which the Turks have found in a new feeling, the feeling that they were a free movement in the Near East, the last to appear and the most successful. It is in this setting alone that it may be fully understood.

Almost any person who writes or speaks with authority upon the problems of the Near East will approach these from a definite angle and with certain preconceptions. The outstanding points of approach are four:

The first is that approach which justifies Western imperialism on the plea that we of the West are the most highly civilized peoples of the world of today and have, in our Western Christian culture, goods of civilization which warrant us in ruling the peoples of the Near East, and making them accept these good things. In return for these boons, Western peoples take the raw-products of the countries which are being civilized—at the lowest prices which it can get them for. This is the "commercial-imperialist" attitude.

The second angle of approach is highly idealistic. Its foundations lie in the same theory of the superiority of western culture. It has, in actual practice, necessarily been associated with the commercial-imperialistic attitude just described. It may be called the religious-educational approach. The work of its agents has been characterized by a high devotion to duty. And it produced, in Dr. Rowland Bliss, former head of the Christian-Syrian College at Beirut, who died at Saranac Lake in May, 1921, one of the great Americans of the past generation.

The third attitude is one of Convinced Anti-imperialism on moral grounds and grounds of general advantage. This view is the one held by the Socialist parties of Europe and, I judge, theoretically by the Labor Party in the British Isles and dominions.

The fourth and last attitude is one which approaches the problem from the standpoint of the victims of expansionist Western civilization. It accepts the essential fact that western culture, right or wrong, will surely get the raw products necessary to its extreme demands of material comfort. It concedes that there is no change to be foreseen which will eliminate this factor of Western expansion so long as our present industrial theories and forms maintain themselves, unless that change comes from within the spirit of Westernism. This attitude is incompatible in spirit with the "White Man's Burden" and with Doctrinaire Socialism. It is in no sense incompatible with the spirit of the western educational-missionary activity, so long as such missionary activity leaves the right of rejection with the peoples involved, as it undoubtedly would agree to do.

It was in the period of the Paris Conference that British diplomacy missed its great opportunity from the point of view of practical politics as well as of the furtherance of ideas inherent in the mandate principle and in the League of Nations. Had British diplomacy had the courage to throw into the conference boldly and unequivocally, the question of Egypt and of Persia, this action would have given a clear soul to the mandate principle and have shown the world that the greatest power in international affairs intended to make its ideals of the war become the actualities of peace. Had this been done only as a beautiful gesture of political opportunism, it would nevertheless have had the value of a beau geste and must have been rated as exceedingly intelligent opportunism. And British prestige would have been far stronger in the Near East today than it is. Instead of being distrusted, as well as defeated, British policy would have been honored even in diplomatic defeat.

The net result of the Egyptian Nationalist movement has been the declaration of Egyptian independence on Feb. 28, 1922. The Egyptians again have a native king, for the first time in 2200 years. The British Government has kept its word in Egypt, but in a manner which has deprived its real generosity of all the force of the new international ideals and given to an actual victory of British liberalism the aspect of a great diplomatic defeat. The victory of Egyptian Nationalism seems to lie in these three causes: in the reality and strength of the new nationalist movement in the Near East; in the hazardous economic situation of Britain which checks the expensive luxury of imperial expansion; and in the strength of the more liberal elements in British governmental circles, as represented in men like Lord Robert Cecil and General Allenby.

The Nationalist Movement in Persia takes on a different color from that among the Arabs of Syria, Mesopotamia and desert Arabia, because Persia has had a long tradition of independence as a unified country broken only by three periods of subjection to foreign dynasties. The Nationalist Party in Persia took its stand upon a platform of hostility to foreign domination, though not to foreign help.

At the Peace Conference a Persian delegation appeared at Paris, officially accredited from the Persian government and strongly Nationalistic in its temper. Despite the expressed desire of the American government that they be permitted to present their case, they really did not have a look in. Negotiations were at the same time going on with the British government at London which resulted in the Anglo-Persian treaty of August 9, 1919. It bears the name of Lord Curzon and the imprint of his ideals. It reiterated the British intention to respect the integrity and independence of Persia.

But the British Government agreed to supply expert advisers for the several departments of Persian administration and such officers, munitions and equipment to the Persian army as is needed. It should be clear to anyone what this agreement meant. It meant that the British Foreign Office could, and would, control Persia. But the Persians absolutely refused to accept it.

In September, 1921, the last of the British advisers left Persia and the South Persian Rifles with their British Officers, were disbanded. If ever a government and a politician suffered deserved ignominy for weasel work that government was the British and that man Lord Curzon in the Anglo-Persian relations of 1919.

Mr. K. P. Tsolainos

Greece and the Near East

Mr. K. P. Tsolainos of New York addressed the Institute of Modern History last Saturday afternoon on the Greek policy during the last 100 years, and also on the policy of Turkification. Extracts from Mr. Tsolainos' lecture follow:

In speaking on the subject of Greece and the Near East within the limits of one hour, one meets with a very difficult problem, i.e., to select in anticipation the points and present the phases about which the audience may desire special information. In order to understand the part played by Greece in the Near Eastern question for the last 100 years, certain cardinal facts should be borne in mind:

In 1830, after a protracted and sanguinary War of Independence and as a result of the intervention of Great Britain, France and Russia, a small part of Greece was set free. It comprised about 30,000 sq. miles and had a population of 651,233 inhabitants. But the Greek nation numbered about 8 millions of which more than 6 million lived in more or less geographically compact groups, in Turkey. In other words in deference to Metternich's absolutist policy, which made it trying for subjects to revolt against their foreign rulers, only one-tenth of the Greek nation was freed from Turkish rule.

The territory thus far set free was so poor as to be very far from economically self-sufficient; it could not certainly support its fast increasing population. By 1870, with only 4,000 sq. km. added to the Greek Kingdom, (Ionian Islands), the population had increased to 1,457,894. In 1897 the area of Greece had increased to 67,000 sq. km., (Thessaly having been annexed to it in 1880), but its population had increased to 2,800,000. This economic insufficiency, owing to the rocky soil and to the comparative lack of arable land, forced Greece to import a large percentage of its food-stuffs, thus establishing an adverse balance of trade offset only by the splendid activity of the Greek merchant marine. One will easily understand then the appalling large emigration of Greeks to Egypt, the United States and other countries.

The above two cardinal facts form the basis of the Greek policy during the last 100 years; they are the essence of Greek Irredentism. The first and paramount was the desire for national rehabilitation, for national unification, a desire to extend the limits of the Greek State to include, so far as geographically possible, territories under Turkish rule, where lived compact Greek populations. The second fact was an economic necessity, the need for acquisition of fertile lands, inhabited largely by Greeks and historically pertaining to Greece, so as to make the country economically self-sufficient.

The process of national rehabilitation has been much slower and more painful in the case of Greece, than in that of any other Balkan nation. From 1830 to 1912, the Ionian Islands (ceded by Great Britain) and Thessaly were the only acquisitions of Greece. On the other hand, Serbia, Rumania and Bulgaria almost at a stroke achieved independence for very large portions of their national heritage. The reasons for the slowness of the emancipation of Greek territories from Turkish rule are chiefly the following two: (a) The Greek territorial expansion conflicted more than any other with the intentions of the European Powers, especially with their policy of exploiting Turkey. (b) Owing to her geographical position, Greece was most amenable to the easiest and, hence, the most favorite form of diplomatic pressure: naval blockade. On two notable occasions, namely: the Crimean War (1853), and the Russo-Turkish War (1877), the threat of naval blockade prevented Greece from moving against Turkey and in 1886, she was actually blockaded by the Western Powers, and was brought to terms on the question of Crete.

The desire of Greek Irredentism to unite with the State of Greece, received a severe check in the disastrous war of 1897, and a policy of fair treatment and conciliation on Turkey's part would have weakened it even more at that psychological moment. The Turks had a chance then of winning the permanent loyalty of their intellectually, morally, and commercially superior Greek subjects, were they capable, or at least willing, to change their system or government from a negation of God to a machinery of decent administration. But the Young Turkish Revolution of 1908 made this an impossibility.

The Young Turk Revolution of 1908 set about to change completely this state of affairs. To the Young Turks, many of them recent converts to Islamism, who had imbibed, but not quite assimilated Western ideas in France, the cultural autonomy and the economic prosperity of the non-Turkish communities was gall and wormwood. To their doctrinaire minds these communities were so many imperia in imperio, to be ruthlessly suppressed in the name of national sovereignty, one and indivisible, and of a rigid administrative uniformity, after the pattern of France. Their reforming ardor blinded them to the fact that France had been a nation long before the French Revolution gave her the boons which they were attempting to transplant on the unpropitious soil of the Ottoman Empire. Hence what was to be a miraculous merging together of the various races and creeds into a single Ottoman nation, very rapidly resolved itself into a violent and vicious policy of Turkification.

The Union and Progress Congress held in Salonika in October, 1911, formulated the policy of Turkification as follows:

Turkey for the Turks; absolute predominance of Turkish element.

Reconstruction of Turkey on purely Moslem principles.

Purging of Turkey of all non-Turkish elements or conversion of these to Mohammedanism.

The subsequent history of Turkey has been dominated by the efforts of successive Turkish governments to carry out this program, i.e., to impose the alien and semi-barbarous civilization of conquerors on conquered races, which taken together constituted the majority of the population. Hence the strenuous opposition of the non-Turkish races was only natural. In the case of the Greeks under Turkish rule, this vicious policy of Turkification was all the more unacceptable and revolting, in as much as the territories which they lived were their own homeland, the land of their fathers and forefathers, in which civilization flourished centuries before it reached its apogee in Athens. Dr. Karl Dietrich, Professor in Medieval and Modern Greek Literature in the university of Leipzig, who at the beginning of the Great War went to Asia Minor on a mission from the German Government and who cannot possibly be accused of pro-Hellenism, in his essay "Hellenism in Asia Minor," summarizes his remarks as follows: "Hellenism..... though apparently defeated by the Turkish conqueror, it has after 500 years of relaxation again regained its vigor and strength in order to fulfill its old historical mission, which consists not in forcing its way on with the wild alarm of weapons but through the peaceful weapons put in its power by nature, i.e., by material and spiritual civilizing agencies that do their work quietly." And indeed through the peaceful weapons mentioned by Dr. Dietrich, Hellenism in the Ottoman Empire, became the controlling factor in the financial, manufacturing and commercial life of Asia Minor and of Turkey-in-Europe. In Asia Minor alone, Hellenism, possessed 22 Arch-Bishoprics, 1988 Churches, with 2533 ministers of the gospel and priests, 1804 Schools for Boys and Girls, with an attendance of 179,465 pupils and a teaching staff of 4352. And these institutions were maintained by the Greek communities, since the Turkish government only intervened to impede this progress or to collect taxes from the Greeks in order to maintain its own Turkish schools. The annual budget of these Greek communities in Asia Minor for the maintenance of their institutions was estimated at 15,000,000 dollars.

The great war was regarded by the Turkish leaders as a unique opportunity for consummating their double policy of nationalism and imperialism, a policy that aimed at making the Turkish minority supreme in Turkey, and Turkey the preponderant power in Southeastern Europe and Western and Central Asia. That these war aims of the Turkish leaders were also those of the Turkish people, not even the most fervent apologists of Turkey, would now dare to question. Those who lived in Turkey during these four fateful years and had an opportunity to observe the sentiments and temper of the Turkish people, will readily subscribe to the statement that none of the war governments in any of the belligerent countries enjoyed more faithful, unanimous and consistent popular support throughout the war than the government of Talaat and Enver. A few voices of mild and veiled dissent that were heard at rare intervals were prompted by misgivings as to the outcome of the struggle, rather than by disapproval of the government's war aims and methods. Hence, when the catastrophic end of the war for the Central Powers and their Allies came, there was not a Turk but believed that the hour of reckoning and retribution had struck. This conviction, which permeated Turkish public opinion at the time of the conclusion of the Armistice, was strengthened by the consciousness that the moral case of Turkey, bad as it was when the war started, had been rendered infinitely worse by their inhuman method of extermination of their Christian subjects with such thoroughness and efficiency, that they were able to attain the first of their war aims, nationalism—in spite of defeat.

Greek public opinion, however, would never sanction the abandonment of a million and a half Christians, Caccasians and others, to the tender mercies of the Kemalists, especially after these people had compromised themselves. This terrible state of suspense, coupled with incompetent leadership and the constant tampering with the Greek High Command, and in addition the economic exhaustion of a little country fighting the battle of all against the common enemy, but abandoned by all, brought discouragement in the rank and file and hence the defeat of last fall. The consequences are too well known: Turkey is back in Europe; practically, no Christian settlements exist in Turkey today; Nationalism and xenophobia are rampant; Western business interests almost destroyed; European and American cultural influences hampered, if not forever gone; a million and a half, of destitute, almost naked, hungry and despaired human beings, as refugees in Greece, a country of five million people, exhausted from their almost continuous eleven year struggle for national unification. As a result of the Greek defeat, the Turks are now dictating peace, not so much to Greece, but to the Allies.

To use the words of Professor, the Hon. William Pember Reeves, again: "Kemal's executioners, when not making way with the bodies of their victims in some slovenly fashion, leave their skeletons to lie where they will. There they whiten, witnesses that the long struggle for Asia Minor, which Greek and Turk began, when the Seljuks burst into Armenia nearly nine centuries ago, is over at last. Christianity and Hellenism have passed away in Asia Minor; anything worth calling civilization has gone with them. Greek, spoken in Ionia since the age of Homer, became a dead language there this autumn, and the last of the Seven Churches of Asia has perished in fire and blood. Such is the fruit of two hundred years of policy, not always evil, but often bad enough to make the history of European Diplomacy in the Near East a dark story of the miseries of the weak and baseness of the strong. Thus it has gone on: thus it will go on, perhaps, until the Balkan nations, tired of being used as puppets, unite to keep a check on themselves and on exploitation by Great Powers.

Prof. Wm. L. Westermann

The Treaty of Sevres to the Lausanne Conference

Professor Westermann in his second and final lecture last Saturday evening explained the Turkish Nationalist movement, and how the wily Turks, though defeated in the war, had played off England against France, thus accomplishing their ends in the Lausanne Conference. There follows a series of extracts from Professor Westermann's lecture.

The principles of Nationalism which motivate all the present demands of the new Turkish state are to be found in the Nationalist Pact. The American newspapers still remain dominated by the Venizelist enthusiasm engendered in this country by that most astute propagandist since the Balkan wars of 1912-1913. This pact has, therefore, been widely ridiculed as buncombe, emanating from a group of bumptious barbarians. Actually it is the expression of the will of a unified people. If the Turkish Nationalist movement goes forward to success it will rank as a twentieth century Declaration of Independence—against Western domination, by a people which desires to be free. To the Turks it is a creed, founded upon a thoroughly respectable western formula—that of self-determination. Among the Turks of today it is a more potent force than the Moslem religion. The last of its six brief articles deserves quotation: "To the end of assuring our national and economic development and with the purpose of giving our country an orderly and more modern administration, the signatories of the present Pact consider the enjoyment of total independence and a complete liberty of action as a condition sine qua non of national existence."

Specifically the Turkish Nationalists have interpreted it to mean: 1. That the capitulations have been, and shall remain, totally abolished. 2. That the control of Turkish economic life by the Interallied Debt Commission and by railway and other concessions granted by the old Turkish regime must be modified to the point that the Turkish national state shall be free in its economic life.

Financial and economic control of the old Turkish government by the western powers was an undeniable fact. Its basis lay chiefly in the Ottoman Public Debt and its administration, and in the railway concessions granted to western enterprise, in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. At the outbreak of the war this debt amounted to about $650,000,000. About 70 per cent of the bonds of this debt were held by French citizens. To French diplomacy in dealing with Turkish affairs the protection of these bondholders was an outstanding consideration.

After long negotiations a treaty was made in October, 1921, between the French government and the Angora National Assembly, which is called the Franklin-Bouillon or the Angora Treaty. By the fact of making this treaty the French Government acknowledged the Angora Government as the de facto ruling power in Turkey. It ceded to this Angora Turkish government a large slice of territory out of that held under the French mandate of Syria. This action belied every concept of a mandate or entrusted territory. It proved the contention of many suspicious persons, that the mandates of the Near East were spoiled goods from the outset.

Political circles in England were bitterly angry. The French had out-trumped them in the Near East. The British contention was somewhat to the effect that the French diplomacy had pulled cards from up its sleeves. France was too hole in the Near East. But not for long.

To the Angora rebel government this was a diplomatic victory, based upon actual military successes of the deepest and widest significance. The Tashkilat Milli was recognized by one of the two greatest powers of Europe. It had a guaranteed position. It had obtained the specific right to transport munitions through the French mandated area of Syria. As British politicians immediately knew, and as actually happened during the following winter and spring, it meant that the French government would permit the Angora Turkish Assembly to buy munitions in France and would not hinder, at least, the establishing of the necessary financial credits in France for such purposes. This treaty wrote "Doomed" against the Turkish government of the Sultan at Constantinople. It wrote "Doomed" upon the great aspirations for Greece formulated by its Premier Venizelos. This Venizelist dream of a Greater Greece never had a chance of permanent success. It was a vision of a delirious people intoxicated by the deadly drink of Greek imperialism which Venizelos had brewed. The dead King Constantine is not to blame for it. His people were intoxicated with Venizelism when Constantine returned from exile in December 1920 and resumed his throne.

Now the test of their real freedom, freedom from western interference, was to come. It is in this spirit that Ismet Pasha and Riza Nur Bey entered into conference at Lausanne which opened upon November 20. The orders which they received from the "320 little Sultans" of the Anatolian peasants assembled at Angora were that they were to stand upon the Turkish Nationalist Pact. This they did. But not to the complete satisfaction of the 320 little Sultans. For despite the labors of almost three months at Lausanne the Angora government refused, on March 4, to accept the treaty presented to them. It has asked for a renewal of the Conference. This new conference will soon begin and there is every reason for a successful arrangement of the differences still outstanding.

It is commonly believed that the long discussion of the first Lausanne Conference resulted in a failure. This is a great mistake. Many questions were settled, to the point that only three major problems are left. These are: the question of the complete abolition of the capitulations, as opposed to a compromise; recognition by the Allies that the control of the Ottoman Public Debt is an internal affair of the new Turkish Nationalist state; and the question of sovereignty over the territory about Mosul, that is the Turkish boundary abutting upon the Kingdom of Irak. It is unfortunate, from the Turkish point of view, that the Mosul area contains oil lands. Otherwise they would certainly have had it ere now. To the Turkish Nationalists the questions still remaining are vital. In their solution lies the complete rejection or the continuance of Allied control over their fate and the polluting effects upon the Allied commercial intrigue unless they themselves hold the reins.

Out of the long dull arguments of the Lausanne Conference, the pitiful diplomatic pettifoggery, the many stereotyped appeals by Lord Curzon to the weary conscience of the civilized world, and all the other bludgeoning points emerge as of major international interest. The first is that the French government exactly reversed its Turkish policy as it had been established in the Angora Treaty of 1921. Instead of standing with the Nationalist Turks, they gave a free hand to British diplomacy. Lord Curzon was the outstanding figure of the Conference upon the Allied side. The consequence has been that the French have lost ground amazingly with the Turkish rulers of today. The Nationalists feel that the French have knifed them. They are not far wrong.

The second point is that the Turkish Nationalists do not want Russian control any more than the domination of western powers. This policy is the traditional Turkish idea of fear of Russia. It is wise. It became apparent in the Conference when Ismet Pasha, leader of the Turkish delegation, refused to follow the formula for the opening of the Straits proposed by the Bolshevik delegate Tchitcherin.

The third point is that the official policy of the United States with respect to Turkish affairs is determined by two factors, the commercial as well as the educational-missionary. Our government, and several private American organizations represented at Lausanne, showed an unusual interest in the economic problems there discussed.

The fourth point is that the Turkish Nationalists have determined that the permanent seat of the Turkish government is to be at Angora. This decision seems to have aroused but little comment among the politically minded. Yet it occurs to me that it is one of the cleverest plays made at the Lausanne Conference and that it is of far-reaching import, at least from the point of view of Turkish Nationalism. It arose after a long and heated argument upon the question of keeping the Straits open in time of war as well as in times of peace. The Turkish contention was that they should have the right to close the straits to all vessels on declaration of any war which would affect them. They accepted a defeat upon this point. But the next day they made the announcement that the seat of the Turkish government would henceforth be at Angora. No one can object to this. But it removes the Turkish government from under the guns of the Allied fleet, once and for all. The Nationalists have broken with the shady past of the old, Constantinople government, with its thousand humiliating memories and its thousand rotten intrigues.

The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company

TRADITIONS AND IDEALS

Mutual Benefit agents are men who have been drawn to the Company because of its traditions and ideals. For seventy-seven years the idea conveyed by the words "Mutual Benefit"—the good of the whole applied to the affairs of each one—has been the guiding principle in treatment of policyholders of this Company.

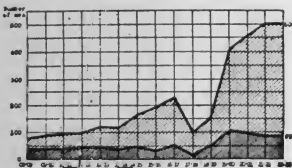

The appeal of the Mutual Benefit is to those who want pure life insurance, with the most liberal features and at the lowest cost.

HARVARD Graduate School of Business

A two-year course in business, open to college graduates, leading to the degree of Master in Business Administration

Points of interest regarding the Harvard Business School:

1. The above graph shows the growth in enrollment and the large number of students coming from institutions other than Harvard. During the present year 158 colleges are represented.
2. The case method is used. Actual problems obtained from business are used as the basis of instruction. A staff of investigators is constantly at work gathering problems.
3. Business is regarded and studied as a profession.
4. What the students in the School think of the training which they receive is indicated by the high percentage of eligible first year men who return to complete the course—84 per cent. the present year.
5. The training in the School materially shortens the apprentice period in business. A prominent business man recently said: "On the basis of our experience with your graduates, I estimate that you are saving them five years net. Six months after they come to us, your men are as well fitted to assume responsibility and to make decisions as the typical college man at thirty."

The enrollment is limited in first year courses.

Tell your physics prof. that this cap defies gravity

SHAVING cream caps have an uncanny habit of chumming with gravity. That's why the Williams' Hinged Cap shown here is so remarkable. You can't persuade it to roll down a drain pipe. It refuses to go near the bathroom floor. In brief, it defies all previous laws governing the behavior of shaving cream caps.

Williams' Shaving Cream, in the same way, upsets all traditions about shaving. First of all, it exceeds every known speed limit for softening the beard. You can get your face ready for shaving in less time with Williams' than with any shaving cream you ever used.

In the second place, Williams' has a positive effect for good on the skin. Your face, with the wholesome care which Williams' gives, is kept in better condition and made more comfortable.

Test out these advantages which Williams' offers. Start with Williams' to-morrow and see what a time saver it is and how it helps make shaving more enjoyable.

boundaries of Poland in his Sunday evening lecture.

Among the new states produced by the World War, Poland is the largest, the most populous, potentially the strongest, in many respects the most important. With 27 1/2 million inhabitants and 150,000 square miles of territory—the Polish Republic now ranks as the sixth state of Europe both in area and in population. On the other hand, Poland occupies the most exposed and dangerous position in Europe, wedged in between a hostile Germany and a hostile Russia. She has a large number of subjects of alien race, who are none too well contented with their present situation; her domestic politics have been pretty stormy; and the political capacity of the Poles has sometimes been called in question. Hence doubts are often expressed as to whether this new republic can last. It is the keystone of the arch in the new political system which the Allies have built up in Eastern Europe since 1918; if it crumbles, the whole political structure of the Paris Peace Conference is likely to collapse.

After some discussion of the national character and history of the Poles, the speaker remarked that scarcely any other of the new states has presented such difficult boundary problems. Poland, lying in a vast, unbroken plain, has scarcely any natural frontiers. The Polish speaking population is widely scattered and often inextricably intermixed with other races. Finally in the contest territories Poles, Russians, Germans, and Lithuanians alike advanced historical, economic or military arguments that helped to confuse the situation. Hence it has cost five "Wars," great or small, since the Armistice, and four years of continuous diplomatic struggles to get the frontiers of Poland settled; and they were definitely fixed only by the decision of the Council of Ambassadors at Paris a few weeks ago.

The speaker singled out four territorial questions in particular which it had been most difficult to solve and which may lead to new troubles in the future.

First, there is the famous Polish "corridor" to the Baltic through the former German province of West Prussia. The granting of this territory to Poland by the Versailles Treaty is often criticized on the ground that it separates the German province of East Prussia from the rest of Germany, and thus creates an unnatural situation which Germany in the long run will never put up with. The arguments in favor of the "corridor" are military; that the population there is predominantly Polish; that the "Fourteen Points" had promised Poland "free and secure access to the sea"; and that it was a question of balancing the interest of 2 or 3 million Germans in East Prussia in having a land connection with Germany proper against the interest of 27 million people in Poland in having assured communications with the Baltic and the outside world.

While defending the "corridor" the speaker was not so convinced of the justice of the decision as to Upper Silesia made by the Council of the League of Nations in 1921. While Poland had secured only 40 per cent of the total votes cast in the plebiscite, she received by far the most valuable part of this disputed district—perhaps the richest territorial prize awarded since 1918. She obtained three-fourths of the coal production, nearly all the lead and zinc mines, the larger part of the industrial district. The principle adopted by the Council of the League—that of "balancing minorities", leaving about as many Germans under Poland as Poles under Germany—is a principle which here worked to Germany's detriment, while, if it had been applied by the Versailles Treaty to the regions far north, Germany would have gained a much better frontier.

On the southeastern side of Poland lies another danger-zone, Eastern Galicia. Out of the 5 1/2 million people here, the "Ruthenians" or Ukrainians make up about 60 per cent, the remainder being Poles and Polishized Jews. The Polish claim to this rich territory is partly historical—Eastern Galicia has belonged to Poland since the 14th century—and partly it is based on the fact that the Poles not only make up the majority in the cities and in many of the rural districts, but also furnish nearly all the intellectual, political, and business leadership that this region possesses. At all events, the Ruthenians have numbers on their side. The Allied Powers long hesitated over this problem. If they finally decided to leave the territory to Poland, one may presume that it was largely because there seemed to be no other practicable solution. The only alternatives were to set up Eastern Galicia as an independent state—which would have meant civil war permanently inaugurated; or to hand over the territory to the Bolsheviks, which might not have seemed the sure means to make it happy and prosperous. It remains to be seen whether Poland can win the loyalty of the Ukrainian majority in Eastern Galicia, and thus justify her possession of the province.

A fourth hotly disputed region has been the Vilna Territory. While the racial situation here is extraordinarily confused and difficult to unravel, it does appear probable, on the basis of recent censuses and of nearly all the elections that have ever been held here, that the bulk of the population feels itself to be Polish and prefers to go with Poland. It is true that Vilna was in past centuries the capital of Lithuania, and it may be that the native population in this region was originally Lithuanian stock; but if the question is to be settled on the basis, not of historical or anthropological claims, but of present conditions and of the present speech and sympathies of the populations, the Poles appear to have the better of the argument. Since 1920 they have also been in possession of the Vilna territory, and last year, the constituent assembly of that territory voted its incorporation in Poland.

To sum up, the western boundaries of Poland were fixed by the Versailles Treaty and by the award of 1921 in Upper Silesia; the eastern boundary, including both Vilna and Eastern Galicia in Poland, was originally fixed by the Treaty of Riga with Soviet Russia in 1921, and finally sanctioned by the Allied Powers through the Council of Ambassadors on March 15, 1923.

Hon. Henry Morgenthau

Turkey and European Diplomacy Since the War

The Hon. Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, in his lecture Monday evening gave much important information concerning the numerous Turkish factions and leaders, and their policies during the World War. The following is an extract from his lecture.

I am pleased to be at one of the propagating stations of future American leaders and to commune with you and come his slaves and to produce for his comfort. It is not necessary to go into details; the condition of the Turkish people today sufficiently portrays the Turkish conception of life and the state. The Ottoman masses themselves are sunk in ignorance and squalor.

The last conference of the world witnessing the performances of Turkey in 1914-1915, seemed unanimous on this one point; never again! What there should come an end to what John Bright described as "That terrible oppression, that multitudinous crime, which we call the Ottoman Empire." With the signing of the armistice, this became more than an aspiration; it seemed to have become a reality. Never was a country so completely beaten as Turkey. Someone once said that the Ottoman empire rested on four pegs—the cities of Constantinople, Bagdad, Jerusalem, and Damascus; all four, at the time of the armistice were in the hands of the enemy. The Turkish army had been reduced to a position of utter impotence. The whole empire lay at the mercy of the allies; at last the most enlightened nations of Europe had a free hand in solving the Turkish problem. That the empires of Germany, Austria, and Russia had disappeared was everywhere hailed as a triumph for progress; an even greater triumph was the fact that the Turkish empire which had been a reproach to Christian Europe for five hundred years, was at last to entrap the human conscience no longer.

The Treaty signed at Sevres, seemed to have accomplished this great result. It was somewhat unfortunate that the exactions of the European situation caused a delay of two years in drawing up the document for the Turkish leaders as subsequently appeared, put the interval to excellent use. But this settlement, as finally promulgated apparently ushered in a new world era. It created a Republic of Armenia, leaving it to the American president to determine the boundaries. It detached from the Turkish empire Mesopotamia, Palestine, Egypt, Syria, and gave them to Great Britain and France; it deprived the Sultan of the sovereignty of Arabia, making a new Arab kingdom. It particularly gave Cilicia with the city of Alexandretta to France, and Adalia and the hinterland to Italy. It awarded Thrace and Smyrna with adjoining territory to Greece. It left the Sultan the nominal authority over Constantinople with the real power in the hands of an allied commission. All that remained to Turkey was the region somewhat indefinitely known as Anatolia, with the three cities of Brusa, Konia, and Angora. There was no historic injustice in thus circumscribing the Turk. Though this area contains representations of other races, in the main its population is Turkish, of the five million Turks in the world, four million live in Anatolia. The important seat, it is true, was taken from the Turks, but this was not so serious a matter for them, as they are not seafaring people and not likely to become such. This Anatolian region could support its Turkish population in comfort, olives, figs, tobacco, and other valuable products grow there freely. It only requires some additional irrigation to create cotton fields. In many parts of the country there are great mineral deposits which are only awaiting some efficient people and security to develop them. There is not the slightest doubt that the Turkish peasant has been entirely content with his lot. He is not ambitious; left to himself he is not chauvinistic; unless his religious fanaticism is inflamed by his leaders, he can even live in terms of amiability with his non-Moslem neighbors. But certain malevolent forces now begin to gain headway. These forces were manifest both in the Turkish government itself, and in the allies' powers. Not much is known in this country of the group of politicians which has really governed Turkey in the last fifteen years. It is an absolutely close corporation which calls itself the Union and Progress Party. All this time, though the Sultan had nominally exercised the ruling power, this committee, under the domination of Talat, Enver, and Djemal, which made the alliance with Germany, and which, at the critical moment, closed the Dardanelles, and forced Turkey into the war on Germany's side. It was this same committee which engineered the massacre of more than a million Armenians and more than half a million Greeks. Most people imagine that the authority of this committee fell with the collapse of the Turkish power in 1918. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Two of its leaders, Talat and Djemal have been assassinated; the third one Enver is reported killed while engaged in miscellaneous military and political adventures beyond the Caucasus, but hardly had these personalities vanished from the scene when another chieftain seized control. This was the man whose name has recently figured so conspicuously in print, Mustafa Kemal Pasha.

I caught a few glimpses of Kemal during my sojourn in Constantinople. He was known as an energetic and able soldier; so rapidly was he forging to the front, indeed, that Enver was jealous of him and refused to sign his commission as a general in the Turkish army. Kemal now succeeded to the outward leadership of the Union and Progress Committee, because he possessed the same talents that had pushed Aaalat and Enver to the front. He was brave, audacious, clever, and unscrupulous. Under his inspiration the Union and Progress Committee transformed into the Nationalist Party, now undertook a new task. This was to destroy the Treaty of Sevres and attempted to restore Turkey to the position it had held in 1914. Probably, the imagination of Kemal and his associates reaches far beyond this. In a hundred years Turkey had lost by several stages the great European empire which the conquerors of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries had added to the crown of Osman. First, Greece, then Serbia, then Rumania, then Bulgaria had succeeded in regaining their independence. Kemal's ultimate ambition was to reverse all this inglorious history, to extend the crescent again over the lost territories, to rejuvenate the old Turkish empire. In this extensive programme the undoing of the surrender at Sevres was necessarily the first step; how bitterly the Kemalists regarded this document is evident from their recent act in punishing the Turks who had signed it. Kemal was not the nominal ruler in Turkey; the Sultan still sat upon his ancestral throne. Yet for fifteen years the Union and Progress Committee had demonstrated that it could rule Turkey and still maintain good terms with the Sultan. It is not generally known that there is such a body as a Turkish parliament, but there is, and the influence that controlled this parliament from Constantinople to Antell you something about one of the important and not yet solved world problems—the Turks.

Just as the proper study of mankind is man, so the proper study of the Turkish problem is the Turk. Those philosophers who trace the explanation of every national difficulty to national character find perhaps their most brilliant illustration in the descendants of Osman. If environment and opportunity can produce a highly gifted and prosperous people then the Turkish empire should have been one of the leaders in modern progress. The Turk possesses as his capital a city which for centuries was the headquarters of international commerce. In a commercial and in a strategic sense, Constantinople is one of, if not the most important city of the two great continents, Europe and Asia; its possession is the crux of the Near Eastern problem now as much as when Napoleon declared that the nation that possessed it could rule the world; the fact that the Germans, through their alliance with the Turks, controlled the city in 1914 enabled them to isolate Russia from her allies and thus prolong the war three years. Great areas of the land which made up the Turkish empire are natural garden spots of the world. Mesopotamia, because of its fertility and its natural riches shares with the Nile Valley—also technically part of Turkey—the glory of having been the cradle of modern civilization. Asia Minor is rich in minerals and in cultivable land and was the seat of great and prosperous kingdoms in ancient times. Into this rich territory, about five hundred years ago, came the Turk, and ruin has everywhere followed his wake. The great cities, such as Bagdad, lost their splendor and gradually receded into provincial towns; the agricultural areas with their splendid systems of irrigation no longer teemed with grain and other fruits for but a very small percentage of the land continued to be cultivated. Through all these five centuries the Turk has been nothing but a destructive force; he has been a killing frost to whatever he has touched. The underlying fact is that the Turk is not a nation, he is simply a nomadic tribe. In the days when warfare was chiefly a matter of individual combat and not a matter of machinery and chemistry the Turk was a capable and ferocious warrior; at times he was led by generals of genius; he was thus able to exercise the one talent with which nature had endowed him—that of making successful war, and overrunning other peoples. But in all the faculties that comprise modern civilization he was deficient. He had absolutely no conception of citizenship as we understand it. He understood only two classes; the conquerors and the conquered; the native populations which his scimitar had subdued were rated by him but little higher than the cattle of the field; their only function was to begora in Asia Minor. In this new region this parliament could function unobstructed by foreign interference. The secret Turkish-Italian treaty, signed at London, in March 1921, was the result. The terms are fairly well known. It is a pretty sordid affair. It brings back once more the discredited old diplomacy which was responsible for the world war. Italy agrees to withdraw her troops and not to fight any further against Turkey. Italy's grief at this mishap was undoubtedly softened by the fact that her retirement from Asia Minor would probably result in the expulsion of the Greeks. The new cooperation with Turkey for this purpose was perhaps her greatest gain by this treaty, but there were also arrangements for "concessions," for "exploitations," for joint operation between Italian and Turkish capital in developing certain resources of the Osman empire. The net outcome was that Italy withdrew her troops from Adalia, leaving the Christian minorities to the mercies of the Turks, and that Kemal disposed of one obstacle to the realization of his programme. Italy incidentally left behind considerable stores of ammunition, at that time a particularly welcome gift to the Kemalist army.

Having disposed of Italy, the Kemalists now directed their attention to a more formidable enemy, the French, who had an army stationed at Cilicia, the sphere of influence which had fallen to France under the treaty of Sevres. The position of the French was not unlike that of the Italians in a sense, indeed, it was even more precarious. The French knew that they could hold this position only by fighting; and France had little desire in 1921 for a Turkish war. She still had to watch Germany; her military resources were needed on the Rhine; France had no desire to diminish her energies by maintaining a large military force in Asia Minor. Like Italy, therefore, she was not deeply depressed when compelled to withdraw from this Turkish adventure in a way that would not endanger her prestige and that might indeed result in something like an advantage. The outcome was the Treaty of Angora, signed with the Kemalist government.

The greatest need in modern life is the introduction of this conception of decency, justice, and moral responsibility in the dealings between nations. We have had enough of secret treaties, land grabbing, of remorseless seeking of material advantage, of using nations as pawns in a game, of shifting peoples about in the interest of what is known as "foreign policy." That is what had brought the world to its present pass, and that is what will produce even greater calamities. Turkey is the most eloquent monument I know, to the absence of idealism in European politics. For that very reason it presents the greatest opportunity. I am often asked what is the solution. To that I reply that there is no solution unless there is first a change in fundamental purpose. So long as the European powers regard Turkey as a field for the exploitation of their own selfish purposes, Turkey will continue to be a scene of unending misery and injustice.

Though Great Britain prevented the Turks from crossing the Dardanelles and invading Greece, she could not stop the Turks from assuming the role of conquerors at Lausanne. What a pitiful spectacle the great powers made at that conference. They failed to present a united front and did not insist on applying the new standards of international law outlined in the Covenant of the League of Nations. The same old rivalries prevailed, the same greedy desire for concessions—and the wily Turks were again permitted to play the various powers against each other. The encouragement given by the various powers was only a question of degree. Even the observers of the United States gave as much or more attention to the division of the oil wells as Mosul and to the Chester project than to the protection of the Christian minorities in Turkey.

In the meantime the Turk completed his plan to expel the Greeks, Armenians, and other Christians and to Turkify Turkey so that today outside of Constantinople there are only three hundred thousand Christians in Turkey, while there are over one million shelterless, ragged, and starving refugees in Greece who have recently been notified by our State Department that after June 30th, 1921, that the American Red Cross would withdraw her support and leave them to shift for themselves and starve.

Bowdoin man, Pierce, did not gain the deciding hole in the allotted eighteen, and the match was carried on one hole before the decision was reached.

The results were as follows:
Fasso beat Abbot, 7 up, and 6 to go.
Smith beat Dingley, 3 up, and 1 to go.

Richards beat March, 2 up, and 1 to go.

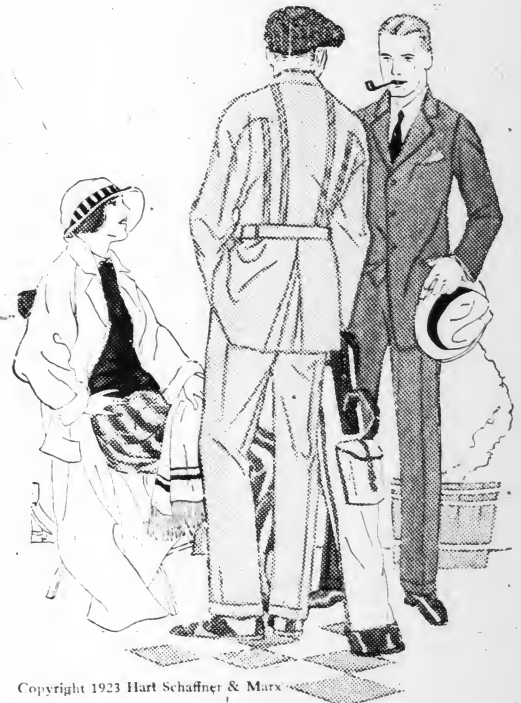

Pierce beat J. Hamm, 1 up in 19 holes.

Keaney beat Stevens, 2 up, and 1 to go.

Beals lost to Bonney, 1 up in 19 holes.

The next match on the schedule will take place this Saturday, when the Brunswick Country Club is met on the Brunswick links. The Country Club will undoubtedly put up a stiff fight, but if Bowdoin continues to play the way in which she did on Saturday, she should not fear the outcome. On the following day, the Augusta Country Club will come to Brunswick to meet the Bowdoin team, and this match, like the other, should prove unusually interesting. The college tournament, which opened on Monday, and which will conclude this evening, will, it is hoped, show up some men of ability who have not yet had any opportunity of showing what they can do. There are, without doubt, men in college who have prospects of making the team, and this tournament is being conducted with the purpose of finding out just what the college can produce in the way of golfers. If there are any men, therefore, who have not as yet played their matches in the tournament, they will be permitted to do so this afternoon. There will be an official stationed at the first tee throughout the afternoon, and all those wishing to play off their matches may pay their entrance fee of 25 cents to him and secure their official handicap upon turning in their scores.

President Sills attended a meeting in Portland April 21, of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He was a guest of the association at a luncheon held at the Falmouth Hotel.

TOOTELL BREAKS I. C. A. A. A. A. HAMMER RECORD AT PENN RELAYS

Record-Breaking Throw Less Than His Best—Bishop Barely Misses 12 Feet 6 Inches

Bowdoin has every reason to be proud of the athletes who represented her last Friday at the Penn Relay Carnival in Philadelphia. Although the college did not send a relay team, the three men who made the trip to the Quaker City did work of the most commendable sort. It is felt that had scholastic difficulties not interfered with the forming of a relay team, Bowdoin could have been represented by a team which would have spoken well for the college. As it is, the results of the performances of Capt. Tootell '23, Francis Bishop '24, and Malcolm Hardy '24, are sufficient to make the dopesters less dubious as to the outcome of the State meet at Orono, May 12.

Capt. Tootell became I.C.A.A.A.A. champion in the 16 pound hammer throw, before a battery of motion picture cameras. Impeded by a pair of trousers and a sweater, "Toots" heaved his hammer 174 ft. 5 inches, smashing the record which was previously held by John W. Merchant of the University of California who, last summer in the Harvard Stadium, threw the hammer 171 feet 2 inches. Through nervousness or stage fright the giant captain was not able to throw his customary distances, but it is rumored that while warping up he threw the hammer 193 feet. If this is true, Tootell has bettered the world's record established by Patrick J. Ryan on August 17, 1913 in New York; a heave of 189 feet 63 inches. As yet, nobody has fully substantiated the rumor, but it is hoped that in the near future the story will be backed by facts.

In the pole vault Francis Bishop went 12 feet. This vault betters the record which he made in his freshman year, by 4 inches. He vaulted 12 feet 6 inches but as he let go of his pole, his hand knocked the cross-bar from the standards. It is highly probable then, that he will break the state record at Orono. Such a performance as Bishop showed at Philadelphia deserves the highest praise, for it is only natural that the vaulter should be somewhat unstrung after having just finished a 450 mile train trip in addition to being forced to compete with so many cameras and eyes focused upon him.

In a heat the time of which was not once bettered during the meet, "Mal" Hardy placed fourth in the 120 yard high hurdles. The winner covered the distance in 15.2-5 seconds, 3-5 of a second better than the Maine Intercollegiate record. While Hardy may not break the state record on May 12, it is reasonably safe to assume that his work will not disappoint his fellow students.

Professor Bowman Meets With Government Club

Professor Bowman, lecturer in the Institute of Modern History, talked informally to members of the Government Club and several members of the faculty at a meeting held at the Sigma Nu house Thursday evening, April 19. During the course of the meeting he gave several interesting character sketches of Colonel House, former Secretary of State Lansing, and former President Wilson. He pointed out that Wilson's greatest mistake was his refusal to accept the League covenant with the reservations demanded by the Senate, for in so doing he kept the United States out of world politics. Professor Bowman stated that the Kaiser, contrary to all present-day beliefs, did not want a war, but that a certain militaristic clique in the German capital sought and brought about the war. He added that at the close of hostilities on November 11, 1918, Field-Marshal Haig stated that the British losses for the week preceding the signing of the armistice were greater than at any time during the war, and that the German army was not a beaten army, but an army which, although it was retreating, was making its sting felt by its enemies. While giving interesting examples of how the American delegation at the Peace Conference carried on its business, Professor Bowman characterized Colonel House as one of the greatest statesmen in this country.

Sunday Chapel

President Sills delivered the chapel address last Sunday afternoon. He said that too many people of today make the pursuit of luxury and happiness a main aim in their lives. James Marion Curry has said "Learn to shun the corpulent cigar." In this he means learn to avoid all that tends toward laxity and ease. Sometimes a senior in interviewing the president, says that he means to get an easy job when he leaves college, one where he will get big pay, and will not have to work hard. In desiring to do this he wishes to rob his life of the things that tend to make it most worthwhile. It is essential that all of us should learn to endure hardness. An easy life effects moral and spiritual questions as well. One must learn to develop a well-trained and perfectly controlled body. It is in this capacity that athletics serve so well.

It is not only prominent men who show strength of character in great

Golf Handicap Tournament Brings Out New Material

The college handicap meet which was completed last week was even more successful than was expected, both in view of the new material discovered and in the number of men competing. The scores of the contestants show that the handicaps were much too big in many cases. This can easily be remedied, however, as in future meets there will be an actual working basis from this year's score.

W. H. Gulliver '25, with a net score of 59, was the winner of the meet. His handicap was 39. McGary '25 and Nelson '26 tied for second, each turning in a net score of 63. Rablin '26, Varney '23, and N. Wood '25, were next in order. The work of Wood was especially commendable, for, although his handicap was comparatively small, he won fifth place having a gross score of 85.

The scores of the first five men in the net scoring are as follows:

W. H. Gulliver, gross score 98, net 59.
McGary, gross 108, net 63.
C. L. Nelson, gross 110, net 63.
Rablin, gross 96, net 64.
Varney, gross 94, net 66.
N. Wood, gross 85, net 67.

The high gross scores were turned in by Wood, 85; Fasso, 86; S. Richards, 90; P. A. Smith, 93; Varney, 94; H. H. Pierce, 96; Rablin, 96; J. Robinson, 96; W. Gulliver, 98.

The following schedule has been announced by Manager Keane for the remainder of the season:

May 5—Portland Country Club at Brunswick (tentative).
May 12—Augusta Country Club at Augusta.
May 19—Brown University at Boston (morning).
May 19—Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston (afternoon).
May 26—Harvard University at Boston (tentative).
May 30—Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.
June 7—Portland Country Club at Portland (pending).

Masque And Gown

The Masque and Gown presented A. E. Thomas's three act comedy "Her Husband's Wife" in Portland on Saturday evening, April 28, in Frye Hall, before a large and appreciative audience. The cast of characters was: Stuart Randolph, George H. Quimby '23; Richard Belden, F. Webster Browne '25; John Belden, Langlen A. Jewett '24; Irene Randolph, Clarence D. Rouillard '24; Emily Ladew, Ernest Joy '25; Jennings, John Watson '24.

INSTITUTE OF MODERN HISTORY SPEAKERS DISCUSS FOREIGN AND INTERNAL PROBLEMS

Lord, Bowman, Seymour, and Hudson Complete History Program—Institute Is a Great Success

Professor Robert H. Lord

"Poland Since the Versailles Conference"

Professor Lord in his final lecture Tuesday evening told of Poland's long uphill struggle for freedom, the final gaining of this freedom, and her present political and economic status.

Poland probably suffered more from the World War than any other part of Eastern Europe. It was the main theatre of the fighting during a large part of the struggle, and was mercilessly devastated, plundered, and stripped bare by both sides. When the invaders were finally cleared out at the end of 1918 and the Poles started to create a state of their own, it was in a half-ruined country—its once flourishing industries prostrated; its railways paralyzed; many towns and villages looking like the worst districts in Northern France; whole regions depopulated; and wide areas suffering from famine, typhus, and other epidemics. It is a wonder, perhaps, that the starved and impoverished population did not turn Bolshevik. Since then they have had several wars on their hands, especially the grueling struggle with the Bolsheviks. It was not until the Treaty of Riga in March, 1921, that—after seven years of war—Poland was at last at peace with all the world. This, coupled with the long uncertainty as to the frontiers, has kept Polish statesmen from concentrating their attention upon internal problems.

Still unmistakable and fairly steady progress has been made with building up the new state. The constitution, voted March 17, 1921, is of a very democratic sort. In general, it follows the French model, with a two-chamber Parliament elected by universal manhood and womanhood suffrage and proportional representation; a President, elected for seven years by the two houses of Parliament, and having the position of a French, rather than of an American, president; and a cabinet of ministers responsible to Parliament as in the French or English system. The passing of a fairly drastic agrarian reform—for splitting up the big estates; the opening of four new universities and a host of common schools; the creation of a uniform administration system; and the building up of an army, which now numbers about 250,000 men—such are some examples of the work that has been done in the political field.

Poland has some difficult "nationality questions." Only about two-thirds of the population is Polish in language. Alongside 18 million Poles, the Republic contains about 5 million Ukrainians and White Russians, 3 million Jews, and 1 million Ger-

The Balkans.

What are the Balkans worth? First, for what they contain; second, because of what they are; and third, for what they supply in the way of a balance of power. The commerce through and around them is of a specialized character of significance in Central-European trade. But these things are of no less immediate importance than the question of ententes, commercial treaties, and political alliances and trends that appear to furnish elements of security or uncertainty to this or that bordering state. Balkan commerce will be analyzed for the light it sheds upon the political tendencies and commercial rivalries of the Near East as these involve Balkan peoples and also the United States. The effect of new boundaries upon the resources of the Balkan states will be discussed along with questions of race and religion. There are still a number of unsettled belts and zones which remain to be cleared up by treaty if they are not to endanger the peace of the Balkans and through them the peace of Central Europe. In spite of the uncertainties of the pending treaty of peace with Turkey, there are now at work a number of agencies whose trends are distinctly hopeful. Their relations to the Near East Peace Conference at Lausanne and to its successor (the impending or expected conference with Turkey to establish peace in the Near East) have acquired fresh importance in view of the progressive disintegration of government and society through a wide belt of territory from the Arctic to the Indian Ocean and because of increasing tensiety of the international situation in Western Europe. Of special interest at this time is the recent definite declaration by the American government of its interest in a just settlement with Turkey and its firm opposition to secret treaties and discriminatory concessions and agreements respecting resources and trade.

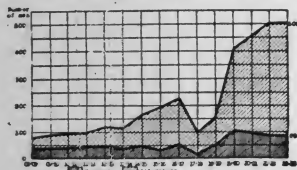

The Mohammedan World.

What may be called the Mohammedan Conquest has now endured for thirteen centuries and has had a fair opportunity to make itself felt over a wide area and among many different kinds of people. From this long history does there emerge any sign that it is a source of danger to western civilization as the world is now organized? To attempt to answer this question by giving more opinions has no value at all. To quote historical precedence is of very little value be-

A two-year course in business, open to college graduates, leading to the degree of Master in Business Administration

Points of interest regarding the Harvard Business School:

1. The above graph shows the growth in enrollment and the large number of students coming from institutions other than Harvard. During the present year 158 colleges are represented.
2. The case method is used. Actual problems obtained from business are used as the basis of instruction. A staff of investigators is constantly at work gathering problems.
3. Business is regarded and studied as a profession.
4. What the students in the School think of the training which they receive is indicated by the high percentage of eligible first year men who return to complete the course—84 per cent. the present year.
5. The training in the School materially shortens the apprentice period in business. A prominent business man recently said: "On the basis of our experience with your graduates, I estimate that you are saving them five years net. Six months after they come to us, your men are as well fitted to assume responsibility and to make decisions as the typical college man at thirty."

The enrollment is limited in first year courses.

Business Building

THE selling of commodities is fundamental in every business, and selling life insurance affords the maximum of satisfaction and remuneration. For the life insurance salesman is a business builder and finds innumerable ways to serve the community and make himself indispensable in the conduct of modern affairs.

The life insurance salesman is not only a business builder but he is in business for himself, creating a competence permanent and continuous. It is the best paid work for those who are ambitious and willing to work, and who have the character and stamina necessary to stamp their individuality upon the business and on their community.

The traditions and practices of the JOHN HANCOCK are such that the college graduate can take a peculiar pride in representing this company. You are liable to remain in the business you enter on leaving college. Before making a definite decision inquire into life insurance as a career. Write, "Agency Department."

A Splendid Success.

There is but one real criterion by which we may judge the success of such an undertaking as the Institute of Modern History. That is the sustained interest it arouses. After observing the tremendous interest which the lectures have aroused at Bowdoin and elsewhere, one can hardly question its complete success.

No more effectual means than those could have been offered the students as a test and a spur for the originality and mental alertness of the men. Sitting at the feet of some of the most eminent educators and public men of the day, they were furnished with material of so broad a nature and of such profundity and accuracy that they must have increased in mental stature if, indeed, there were possibilities of such growth. It is indeed a fortunate circumstance, though not an extraordinary one, that certain of the lecturers were unable to agree either as to conclusions or as to the fundamental facts from which they were drawn. No better stimulus could be offered to the active mind than that of such contradiction of authorities. Such a conflict of opinion is an indication that there must be two sides to the question, and the man who uses his mind will want to get at the right side.

That is the real advantage to the student. The modern American system of education has come perforce to be more of a "cramping" school than a place for developing originality and mental initiative. The particularly happy circumstances here at Bowdoin help to get us away from that atmosphere to some extent. But certain fixed curricula must be carried on and in his working hours, at least, the student is given very little mental leeway. With such an opportunity for individual work as was given by the Institute, the student who enters it wholeheartedly cannot fail to increase both the breadth of his vision and the extent of his mental power.

There is reason to believe that a large number of the students really found much value in the various lectures and discussion groups. There is good reason to hope that this may usher in a greater period of mental alertness, a period when the field of the student's mental activity may extend to the broad confines of the world, and not be limited to the petty provincialism that is, unfortunately, so characteristic of all too many in this country. We have heard and have talked with men who have been in the heart of affairs these last changing years. We have listened to the message they bring us of a great need for concerted action to secure the international weal. We have had pictured to us the sorry plight of our sister nations, struggling desperately under tremendous odds, and we surely have not remained unmoved.

America and the world will soon be in the care of just such young men as sat at the lectures and conferences of the recent institute. The problems which those men will have to face will be world problems rather than those of a merely local character, and the college must prepare the men to meet those problems confidently and fearlessly, if it is to perform its duty as a moulder of leaders. Bowdoin has again, from the standpoint of the student, taken a great and worthwhile step in the right direction.

College Tennis Courts.

There has long been a need on the campus for adequate provisions for the men who play tennis. It is a potent fact that the courts maintained by the several fraternities are quite inadequate for the real needs of the college. While these courts are for the most part ample for the members of the fraternities who provide them, they offer no sufficient facilities for the varsity tennis team, for the non-fraternity men, nor for the members of the Faculty. And most of all, they are entirely insufficient for use in intercollegiate or interscholastic tournaments.

It is no easy matter for the eight fraternities who have courts to keep them in proper condition, and it is indeed very seldom that any of the courts are in first-class condition. This is due partly to the lack of expert care, and more largely to the tremendous amount of playing that is done upon them, not only by the members of the groups who own the courts, but also by the tennis players among the hundred or more men who have no share whatever in them. Under present conditions the situation is unavoidable. What, then, is to be done about it?

The solution which immediately offers itself is this: let the college construct and maintain college courts, as it has constructed and maintained such other athletic facilities as the athletic field, the gymnasium, and the hockey rink. It would be a matter of comparatively small expense for the college to build several courts on land already belonging to the institution, and readily available. Members of the tennis team, after careful examination of possible sites, have expressed the unanimous opinion that the best site for such courts would be the space in the athletic field enclosure, west of the Hubbard grand stand. This plot of ground, hitherto used only once or twice a year as a parking space for automobiles, could easily accommodate three regulation doubles courts. The land has already been well graded, so that the only expense of that nature would be for the surfacing of the courts. Such an expense would certainly not be prohibitive.

Once made, the courts would, of course, require adequate care, but by enforcing certain essential rules for all users of the courts, they could be kept in excellent condition throughout the season, at little cost. They should, of course, be free and open to all members of the college at all times, except for certain hours in the afternoon, when they should be reserved for the use of members of the tennis team. An attendant at the grounds could be detailed to see that all necessary regulations should be enforced. Thus the college could provide for a great need in this field of activity.

Little need be said of the value of tennis as a sport, nor can there be much question as to the fact that Bowdoin's facilities for this sport are now far too limited. There is a just and insistent demand among the students and faculty members that such facilities should be greatly increased. In view of the demand and the evident ease with which that demand might be satisfied, it seems highly desirable that the college should take prompt steps toward the construction of real college tennis courts.

endurance. We have seen others who do so with us daily. "Happy is an unstained victor, but more blessed is he who comes covered with dust and bleeding." The test of a real man is to learn to overcome every difficulty, to do this he must learn to discipline himself in mind, body, and spirit.

Tonight Professor Mitchell and Mr. McCormick will represent the college at a dinner given by the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Providence, R. I., at Providence.

Prof. Charles Seymour

In opening his lecture on the Adriatic Problem, Professor Seymour discussed the peoples of the Adriatic region, the eastern Slovene Hinterland, the Italian regions of the north Adriatic, and the Italian municipalities of Dalmatia.

Taking up Italian aspirations, he spoke of the irredentist movement after 1870. The main objective was the Trentino, extended frequently to include the Aquilano coast and Trieste, an ancient Italian dream based upon the nationalistic factors. Economic factors were the desirability of controlling the trade of Trieste and Fiume. Strategic arguments favoring Italian control of Dalmatia and the Hinterland of Trieste were outlined, the invasions of the past, and the disadvantages of the Italian coast, the lack of harbors and the difficulty of repelling naval raids.

Italy after 1882, gradually entered into cordial relations with the Entente Powers; in 1914 the Central realized that they could not count upon Italian participation in a general war. In December, 1914, Sonnino began negotiations with Austria for "Compensations" in view of Austria's attack on Serbia and as a basis for Italy's continued neutrality. Urged by Germany, Austria offered the Trentino and slight concessions in Trieste. Sonnino, accepting better terms from the other side, negotiated with the Entente. As a result, the Treaty of London was signed April 26, 1916. Under its terms, Italy was to secure the Tyrol to the Brenner, Trieste and Istria, northern Dalmatia, and various islands. Fiume was left to Croatia.

As a result of the Treaty of London, the Jugo-Slavs were convinced that their interests were a matter of indifference to the Entente. The revolutionary movement was retarded and bitter hostility to Italy was aroused.

The Russian revolution and America's entrance into the war had marked effects. Professor Seymour next discussed the Italian Policy at the Armistice negotiations and the Peace Conference. The Italian victory over Austria in the fall of 1918 led to a revolution in favor of full control of the Adriatic. The question arose whether the Italians were bound by the Fourteen points in the Austrian settlement. As the Peace Conference demanded not merely the Treaty of London line but also Fiume, The Serb delegation insisted that the Torro Trumbic agreement hold good.

President Wilson's policy at the Peace Conference was next discussed. President Wilson agreed to Italy's demand for the Brenner frontier in the Tyrol. Otherwise he followed the advice of "the experts." President Wilson from April 14 to April 25 attempted compromises on the problem, refusing his assent to the Treaty of London and tracing lines which gave Italy Valona, Lissa, Pola, Trieste, but left Dalmatia to the Jugo-Slavs, and Fiume to be included in the Jugo-Slav union. Orlando and the Italian delegation seized the opportunity and left the Conference for Rome. On June 19th his government was defeated in the Italian parliament and he and Sonnino were succeeded by Nitti and Tittoni. Again attempts were made to compromise the Adriatic problem but in vain. Then came the seizure of Fiume by d'Annunzio, Sept. 12, 1919 and the consequent embarrassment of the Italian government. The fall of Nitti and the accession of Giolitti hindered negotiations. But early in November Jugo-Slav and the Italian delegates met. The Treaty of Rapallo was signed November 12, 1920. In conclusion Prof. Seymour discussed the terms of the Treaty, its ratification, the refusal of d'Annunzio to accept, and his expulsion from Fiume.

The Dismemberment of Austria-Hungary

Tracing the background, Professor Seymour showed the significance of Austria in history. Controlling the strategic paths, it assumed, after the break-up of the Carolingian Empire, a position of political importance. It served as a bulwark against aggression from the East. The extension and intensification of Hapsburg authority over different portions of the Empire during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries proved a tranquilizing factor, politically and economically. In the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, Austria must be regarded as an element of stability. Hence the phrase, "If Austria did not exist, it would be necessary to create her."

In the Hapsburg Empire there was a never-ending struggle between the factors of disintegration and union. The effect of the national movements of the nineteenth century was marked. The war against Serbia was desired by the Austrian government as a means of annihilating anti-Hapsburg movements outside of the Empire and thus of curbing elements of disunion within. The attitudes of France and Great Britain was not hostile primarily towards Austria. British and French statesmen recognized the political value of the Hapsburg Empire provided it maintained its independence from Germany. In the early days of the war, there was no definite plan for the dismemberment of Austria in case of an Entente victory; but it seemed necessary to secure the adhesion of Italy and Rumania in 1915 and 1916.

By September of 1918, the dismemberment of Austria was generally recognized as inevitable if the Entente secured complete victory. It followed that after the Armistice, when the Peace Conference met at Paris, there was no question as to whether the integrity of the Hapsburg Empire should be maintained. From September to December, 1918, the progress of the revolutionary movements had been rapid. The Hapsburg Empire had already been disintegrated, and separate provisional governments had been established, already representing mans. It is to be wished that Poland would adopt a more liberal, tolerant, and conciliatory attitude towards her non-Polish population.

Turning to the foreign relations of Poland since 1918, the speaker held that Polish governments had made a number of costly mistakes, mainly during the first two years, especially in pursuing a too ambitious policy towards Russia, and in abetting the Zeligowski coup at Vilna. In general, however, Poland has had marvelously good luck and has made steady progress towards the realization of her aims in foreign policy. In 1919 she obtained Posnania and West Prussia from Germany and the actual possession of Eastern Galicia. 1920 saw the crisis of the Bolshevik war, and after terrible setbacks a triumphal finale. In 1921 came the award in Upper Silesia, so extremely favorable to Poland, and the Treaty of Riga, which gave her a vast territory in the East, far beyond the line which the Allies originally proposed to assign to her. In 1922 the Vilna territory was formally annexed, despite the protests of Lithuania and England. And finally in March of this year the Allied Powers sanctioned Poland's gains in the East, which England had so long stood

Polish diplomacy has also been rather successful in building up useful connections with friendly powers. Poland now has treaties of alliance with France (1922) and with Roumania (1921); for the last two years she has acted in close harmony with the Little Entente (Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Roumania), and is likely soon to become formally a member of that group; and she has also built up around her a kind of Baltist Entente, including Finland, Latvia, and Estonia. In short, Poland has attained a kind of pivotal position in the new political system of Eastern Europe; and as one of the chief allies of France, she is an important factor in the new European equilibrium.

Poland has, of course, to face the permanent hostility of Germany and, presumably, of Russia, two nations inherently vastly stronger than herself. In this respect her position is not without grave dangers. It is possible that she may be attacked and stripped of some of her present territory. But it seems inconceivable that she should ever again lose her independence, that the world would permit Poland again to be erased from the map. And if fortune continues to favor her, her future may well be a splendid one. For the Poles, with all their defects, are an unusually gifted race; their country has magnificent natural resources of almost every sort; their population increases so rapidly that it may within a few decades equal that of France or Italy—in short, this new Republic, if it can consolidate itself and make the most of its opportunities, may become one of the great Powers of Europe.

cause civilizations change from age to age as the material bases of power change. There is a scientific approach to the answer. What sources of material power are now in the hands of the Mohammedans? When the horseman was the chief instrument of empire the nomadic folk who inhabited the grasslands made wide inroads upon European territory. When the modern battleship, the railroad, heavy artillery, and above all technical skill, became of chief importance in the development of imperial plans the whole situation changed. When the Mohammedan stays within his traditional physical setting he has a powerful ally in the desert, but when he leaves his arid domain to invade densely settled communities he leaves his chief ally behind him.

A series of maps will show the distribution of the chief resources of the Mohammedan world, the distribution and density of population, the length and location of the railway lines, the foci of commerce, the extent of country embraced within the 10-inch line of rainfall, and also the extent of territory marked by interior-basin drainage where there are no river connections with the sea, and other handicaps imposed by the physical geography. The materials upon which modern warfare is based are then surveyed and the extent is shown of those contained within the limits of dominant Mohammedan population. The unity of the Mohammedan world is a striking feature of the map only if the imagination is given free rein! The divisive influences that have manifested themselves throughout the history of the Mohammedan movement will be traced, and they will be described especially in their present-day relations. The Mohammedan question bears upon vital problems of empire that interest western Europe and that impinge upon the Near East with ever-growing intensity, no longer because of the religious element alone but because they are involved in a new orientation of society in Russia as well as Turkey.

DAVY EXPERIMENTING WITH

GARNETT IN THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

The First Electrochemist

NITROUS oxide, according to the science of a century ago, was "the principle of contagion when respired by animals in the minutest quantities." Mere say-so.

Imaginative yet skeptical Humphrey Davy, who believed in experiment rather than in opinion, "respired" it and lived.

It was this restless desire to test beliefs that made him one of the founders of modern science. Electricity was a new force a century ago. Davy used it to decompose potash, soda, and lime into potassium, sodium, and calcium, thus laying the foundations of electrochemistry. With a battery of two thousand plates he produced the first electric arc—harbinger of modern electric illumination and of the electric furnace.

Czar Alexander I and Napoleon met on a raft to sign the Treaty of Tilsit while Davy was revealing the effects of electricity on matter. "What is Europe?" said Alexander. "We are Europe."

The treaty was at that time an important political event, framed by two selfish monarchs for the sole purpose of furthering their personal interests. Contrast with it the unselfish efforts of Sir Humphrey Davy. His brilliant work has resulted in scores of practical applications of electrolysis in industry and a wealth of chemical knowledge that benefit not himself but the entire world.

In the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company, for instance, much has been done to improve the electric furnace (a development of Davy's arc) and new compounds have been electrochemically produced, which make it easier to cast high-conductivity copper, to manufacture special tool steels, and to produce carbides for better arc lamps.

On April 22 the College received, through the great generosity of Mr. Charles A. Coffin of New York, a group of examples of linear art, carefully selected from the stock of Messrs. Frederick Keppel and Company, made up of the following works: Van Dyck, Portrait of de Wael; A. van Ostade, Dance in the Inn; Claude Lorrain, Dance by the Waterside; Turner, Woman with Tambourine; Millet, Man with Wheelbarrow; Corot, Soldier in d'Italie; Lalanne, The Canal; Manet, The Guitar Player; Appian, A Pond; Bracquemond, Flock of Teal; Pissarro, Sous Bois a l'Hermitage; Jacquemart, Crystal Vase; Zorn, The Old Soldier, and the Portrait of the Artist's Mother; McBey, The Somme Front; Kerr Eby, Dawn; The 75's Follow up, and Constant; Benson, Nascapue Indian; Pennell, St. Paul's, London; Childre Hassam, Tobey's, Cos Cob, and the Home of John Howard Payne; Piranesi, Exterior of the Colosseum, and Interior of the Colosseum.

These twenty-three prints (all etchings except the Turner, which is a mezzotint, and the McBey, which is a dry point) constitute a portion only of Mr. Coffin's munificent gift; the remainder is already on the way to the College, and the announcement of its arrival may be expected shortly.

Although print collections are nowadays frequently very extensive, yet an assemblage of even twenty-three examples, when chosen as carefully as these, may serve no less effectively than a vast array—and less bewilderingly—to disclose the simple fact upon which rests and with which begins appreciation of the etcher's art—the fact, namely, that a linear medium is as expressive of the artist's vision, as subtly or as saliently individual, as is a color medium. Van Dyck is not more himself in any oil portrait that he did than he is in his etched portrait of de Wael; Childre Hassam is nowhere in his painting more fully revealed than in these etchings of his. It is, of course, one of primary delights our new treasures afford that, by comparing and contrasting them, the student may range through a fascinating diversity, not only of schools and periods, but of artistic individualities. Here he will find the dignity of Van Dyck, the Dutch boisterousness of Van Ostade, the romantic spell of Claude; here he may enjoy the delicacy, matching Japanese delicacy, of Bracquemond's touch, or the robust execution of Zorn; here he may dream of Italy with Corot, or watch the flicker of shadows with Childre Hassam. Here, best of all, await him discoveries and revelations personal to himself, such as contact with genuine art offers always to the genuine seeker after the rich rewards of art.

the new Successor States. The general responsibility laid upon the Peace Conference for the dismemberment of Austria-Hungary is thus not justified by facts—for that dismemberment resulted not only from any decision of the Conference itself, but from the force of preceding events. It was left to the Peace Conference merely to decide differences of opinion between competing claims of nationalities.

These problems were so complex and numerous that they could not be considered in detail by the leading statesmen. Hence, with the exception of the claims of Italy, they were handed over to special expert commissions, who should present recommendations to the Peace Conference. In the majority of cases, the recommendations of the commissions were accepted. The National principle applied to a large extent in the case of each state, but with notable exceptions. Thus in each case of the new States there is a dissident minority which creates one of the greatest dangers of the future. The nationalist rivalries of the new States form an element of danger. The strength of national feeling excited by war has not been weakened, and where as before they directed their nationalistic hatred against the Hapsburgs, now they direct it against each other.

In conclusion Professor Seymour said that the problem of co-ordination is rightly recognized as that of supreme importance. He discussed the role of the League of Nations in tranquilizing and stabilizing the Danubian area, the possibilities of the development of the Little Entente, and of a Danubian League of the future.

Prof. Manley O. HudsonThe United States and World Politics of Today

The United States has not yet drawn together the loose threads of the war. We have not yet determined how we are going to utilize the lessons and the momentum of the war in the conduct of our foreign policy. The isolationists, who had such an inning for a short period after the war, have now been thoroughly routed. The question of the League of Nations was confused with a great many other questions, and in the confusion there was no clear decision whatever.

Now, the situation today has greatly changed. We can now approach the question of the League freed of some confusions. In another respect, also, the situation has changed. In 1919 and 1920, we were talking about a wholly untried experiment. Today, a record has been made, extending over a period of more than three years, which we can now take as the basis of judgment. What has the League done in three years?

In the first place, we must take into account the kind of world into which the League was launched on January 10, 1920. Most of the world was still at war. Second, a machinery for mitigating the rigors of the peace that was made and adapting it to the needs of a warless world in the future. But if it has been thus circumscribed in its functions by the circumstances of its creation, the field nevertheless has been a large one in which for three years now the League has functioned with great success. Perhaps the greatest of its achievements has been the establishment of the Permanent Court of International Justice—which is now sitting at the Hague, which has already handed down four opinions, and which represents the fulfillment of hopes and efforts which for thirty years before the League was established had proved successful.

The second greatest achievement of the League might be said to be the financial salvation of Austria. The third achievement of the League of which I would speak is its organization of the peacetime contacts of the peoples of the world about the codification of international law. The establishment of the Court and its jurisprudence, has begun a new edifice of international law to which each succeeding generation may add its contributions. But more important still is the advance through the League toward a conventional international law in each of the more important fields of international contacts. But legislation in these fields through international treaties is not more important than efficient administration, and in this respect, the work of the League has been significant.

But these achievements, important as they are, do not so directly prove the League's adequacy for dealing with the world's major problem, the prevention of war. Fortunately we do not lack material for judgment there, too. Four major disputes have come before the League Council. Sweden and Finland have now accepted the League's solution of the Aaland Island question. Albania and Yugoslavia have settled their boundary dispute through the League's intervention. It is true that Poland and Lithuania have not settled the Vilna case, but they have at least until very recently been kept from open hostilities. The fourth major dispute, that between Germany and Poland with reference to Upper Silesia is now calming down.

In all these cases the power of the

Mutual Benefit agents are men who have been drawn to the Company because of its traditions and ideals. For seventy-seven years the idea conveyed by the words "Mutual Benefit"—the good of the whole applied to the affairs of each one—has been the guiding principle in treatment of policyholders of this Company.

The appeal of the Mutual Benefit is to those who want pure life insurance, with the most liberal features and at the lowest cost.

TRACK MEET, BASEBALL GAME, GLEE CLUB CONCERT, INFORMAL DANCE MAKE FIELD DAY SUCCESS

Holy Cross Defeated 86-40; Maine Defeated 5-0. Concert Best of Year; Dance Great Success

An overwhelming victory over Holy Cross on the track, a decisive victory over Maine on the diamond, a most successful Musical Clubs concert, and a delightful informal dance in the gym all went to make Bowdoin's first field day a grand success. To begin with, the weather man was as kind as possible and made a day perfect in every respect. The track team, although handicapped by the loss of several stars, overcame all difficulties and swamped Holy Cross in their dual meet. The baseball team which had not won a game so far this year staged a comeback and trounced Maine who was the favorite. In Memorial Hall, in the evening, the Musical Clubs outdid themselves and gave one of the best concerts of the year. An informal dance in the gym gave the final touch to one of the most enjoyable and successful days that Bowdoin has had for some time. The idea of a field day is indeed novel and the success which has attended the first attempt should encourage further steps in the same direction.

HOLY CROSS TRACK MEET

Despite a severe handicap due to the inability of a large number of dependable track men on account of deficiency in studies, Bowdoin experienced but little difficulty in walking away from Holy Cross in their dual track meet at Whittier Field last Saturday afternoon by the score of 86-40. With one-sided victories in the distance runs, and equally one-sided victories in the hurdles and the field events, Bowdoin quickly piled up a score which kept her well beyond danger during the entire meet. True to form Captain Tootell carried off honors as high point man with 15 points; first in the 16 pound hammer, the discus throw and the 16 pound shot put contributing to the grand total, while Mal Hardy took second honors with 10 points gained by first in the 120 yard high hurdles and the 220 low hurdles. Had it not been for the fact that Hardy was unfortunate enough to have knocked over two of the hurdles in the 120 yard event, he would have established a new State record, inasmuch as he covered the distance in 15.2-5 seconds. One State record did go by the board, however, when Tierney, the Holy Cross runner, finished the 440 yard dash in 50.4-5 seconds after a hard race with Don Mason. Charlie Philbrook succeeded in bringing down a Whittier field record when he cleared the bar at 5 feet 83 inches on his last effort in the running high jump.

Bowdoin experienced her chief difficulty in the sprints, being forced to content herself with second or third positions in each of these events. The 440 yard dash found Holy Cross occupying both first and third places, Tierney crossing the tape in 50.4-5 seconds for the new State record, with Don Mason following a close second. This race proved to be one of the most thrilling of the sprints, with Don Mason, after getting off to a poor start, fighting it out neck and neck with Tierney only to lose by a few feet at the tape.

In the 220 yard dash, although Bowdoin was unable to nose out a first, she made up to some extent by grabbing off both second and third places. Butler and Mason finishing in these positions respectively, while Fitzsimmons of Holy Cross took first in 22.2-5 seconds. The 100 yard dash resulted in Holy Cross men gaining first and second places, Carroll winning the sprint in 10.1-5 seconds with Fitzsimmons and Butler following in order.

Mal Hardy, as usual, had things all his own way in the hurdles. Besides making such unusual time in the 120 yard high hurdles, Hardy finished the 220 event in the fast time of 25.1-5 seconds. It was unfortunate that in the former event Hardy should have tipped over one of the hurdles, as the time in which he finished was well under the state record. Lovell, who finished second, ran an extremely fine race and finished but a few feet behind Hardy. In the 120 yard event, Clark, who came second, deserves much credit. Both of these men ran such good races that they should be counted upon to give good accounts of themselves at Orono on Saturday.

The half mile proved to be an unusually interesting race. Webster, after running well back in the field during the first quarter, easily pulled to the fore and outdistanced all his competitors save Mulvehill, who gave the Bowdoin man a hard fight up to the last sixty yards. Here Webster called upon the store of reserve power which has stood him in good stead in so many races, and broke the tape several yards in advance of the Holy Cross runner. The time was 2 minutes, 24.5 seconds. Johnson, of Bowdoin, finished in third place, after running a very plucky race.

The longer runs went to Bowdoin in runaway fashion. In the mile event, Foster experienced but little trouble in leading the field to the tape, with Kickham, Holy Cross, second, and Barker, the Bowdoin Freshman runner, finishing a game third. The two mile run proved to be nothing but Bowdoin from start to finish, Charlie Hildreth crossing the line in first position, with Howes and Kroll taking second and third, respectively. Holy Cross failed to push a runner across the line, the last entry dropping out before the mile and one-half point had been reached.

In the pole vault, the two Bishop boys ran true to form, Francis Bishop taking first place with 11 feet and his brother, Harvey, second. The high jump also went to Bowdoin, Charlie Philbrook clearing the bar at 5 feet 83 inches for first place and a new Whittier Field record. Tierney of Holy Cross, who did such good work in the sprints earlier in the afternoon, gained second place in the high jump with 5 feet, 7 inches, while H. Hildreth and Massman, the latter of Holy Cross, tied for third. In the broad distance event of Holy Cross outdistanced Bates' best try by a little less than a foot, covering 21 feet, 33 inches. Westcott of Bowdoin took third with 20 feet, 3 inches.

As had been expected, Captain Tootell carried off firsts in all of the weight events, hurling the 16 pound hammer for 173 feet, 6 inches; the discus for 120 feet, 15 inches; and the 16 pound shot for 37 feet, 104 inches. In the 16 pound hammer throw, Jeff Mason, not going true to his usual form, managed to win second place with a heave of 100 feet, 8 inches, while Dohig of Holy Cross took third with 96 feet, 6 inches. In the discus throw, Gross and Weymouth added to Bowdoin's grand total by following Tootell's example and grabbing off second and third positions. Second place in the shot put went to a Holy Cross man, Dohig, while Gonya and Kirkpatrick, both of Bowdoin, tied for third.

Summary:

Rally

A Track rally for the State Meet will be held in Memorial Hall tomorrow evening at 7.00. Last year's rally was not as successful as it might have been, so this year everybody must turn out and give the team a rousing send-off to its fifth straight victory. Jack Magee will speak and enthusiasm will run high.

Sunday Chapel

One of the most interesting instincts which we can find in man, said President Sills in beginning his Chapel address last Sunday evening, is the instinct of creation. It is this instinct which distinguishes the man from the animal, it is this instinct to create which draws a line between the two which can never be crossed. Although we cannot discredit the fact that animals are capable of doing wonderful things, we must still see that man alone has been given this power of intellectual creation.

This power, however, continued the President can be regarded as a two-handed engine, for it includes both the power to build up by creation, and the power to destroy by the same means. It is obvious that the use of this power as a means of building up has been sadly neglected. We may certainly believe that one of the means by which we can best learn to use this power is through our colleges, and we must just as certainly admit that in fulfilling this object our colleges have been sadly deficient. Whereas our American colleges should fairly teem with ideas, and experiments in the promotion of art, music, and culture in every line, we find that there is in reality an utter lack of expression of originality and of the creative instinct. In college we should vie with one another in an expression of this instinct, and yet it would seem that all desire for creation is almost suppressed. Where the fault lies is not so difficult to discover. It is evident to the most casual observer that we have so many other things to occupy our time that we simply do not have time to devote to the original and creative activities. The evil coming from this neglect can be readily perceived. We have only to look over the lists of our graduates to see how few among them are contributing anything to the artistic, musical, or literary life of the world. Within the last twenty years there have not graduated from Bowdoin more than six or seven men who can be mentioned as having made any such contributions.

What can we do to encourage the creative instinct? There are two suggestions which may prove to be of help. In the first place, if we have any such creative ability, we should by no means attempt to suppress it,—it is a God-given gift. We should not fear the ridicule of our fellows,—our first attempts may be crude, but never laughable. An athlete is not laughed at if he does not win his first race; so it should be with the writer. There is a feeling prevailing in many colleges that a student lays himself open to ridicule if he busies himself with writing poetry or music instead of playing football. And so, because he fears the laughter,—ill-suited though it may be,—of his fellows,—he must avoid doing the things for which he has real ability and turn to pursuits for which he has no liking and less ability.

We may find the answer to the second suggestion, said the President, if we ask ourselves just what the purpose of college is. May we not safely say that it is to develop leaders and to develop the power to follow leaders properly. If we should devote ourselves to our work with this in view, we might bring our God-given creative instinct more readily to the fore. The college should be dynamic, not static. It should be responsive to all original ideas. Our chief trouble is that we are all too busy,—busy with the wrong sort of thing. College student activities are in that sense almost a curse. It has been so in the outside world as well,—the constant increasing of our social activities has clogged, not speeded the wheels of progress.

Each of us has in some measure the power to create. It is our duty to develop that power to the best of our ability. If we go on submerging and suppressing these God-given powers we shall only become one of that vast throng of earth creeping peoples who live as the animals live. Let us not be afraid to exercise our creative gift, but let us develop it to the utmost.

The Stanley Plummer Prize Speaking Contest, postponed on account of the Institute of History, will be held on May 21. Trials for the contest will be held Tuesday, May 15. Competition is open to Juniors.

Dr. A. H. Grey Lectures Under Auspices Y.M.C.A.

Dr. A. Herbert Grey of Glasgow, Scotland, delivered two talks before groups of interested undergraduates in Hubbard Hall on Thursday and Friday evenings, May 3 and 4, under the auspices of the Bowdoin Y.M.C.A. Dr. Grey was introduced by Harvey Bishop '23, Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and the meetings were followed by lively informal discussions on various religious subjects.

On the first evening the lecturer spoke on the "Kingdom of God" and stated that before there is a world peace, the world powers must realize that there is a greater power above and that Christian principles must be applied on earth. Speaking on Friday evening, on "The Power of Religion," Dr. Greysaid that in order to carry out the Christian principles men must have a power from above and that outside of Christianity there is no code of ethics strong enough to carry out these principles.

Dr. Grey is passionately interested in applying the Christian gospel to economic and social problems. He began his preaching career in a congregation of working class people in Manchester. Later he was called to the College Church in Glasgow where his ministry was most successful. He left this church however, in order to spread the gospel among the poorer class people. During the war he spoke in English camps, combating the problems of drinking and immorality. Since the close of the war, he has been prominent in lecture work among college students and his talks at Bowdoin were as interesting and instructive as his lectures in other colleges have been.

Tennis Team Downs Bates

Wins Every Match Played; Losing Only Two Sets

Winning every match, the tennis team pounded its way to an overwhelming victory over Bates last Friday at Lewiston. Several of the sets went beyond the regulation length, but the ability of the Bowdoin players was too much for the boys in garnet and the latter were forced to content themselves with winning only two sets in the entire tournament.

Lord of Bowdoin had little difficulty in beating Roberts of Bates two straight sets, 6-4, 6-3. Cushman could not get his stride at first and was defeated by Stanley of Bates, 6-4. He came back in the next set, however, and won, 6-2. In the rubber set, he found it rather easy to win, 6-4. Bishop, winning his first set 6-2, had an easy time of it, but his opponent tightened up in the next set and Bishop was forced to play a deuce set which he finally won 8-6. Following Cushman's example, Tolman lost his first set to Fairbanks 6-4. He walked away with his second set 6-1, but was forced to play a deuce set in order to win 7-5.

In the doubles, Lord and Bishop had no trouble in winning two straight sets, 6-4 and 6-2, from Roberts and Purinton. Cushman and Tolman encountered much difficulty in their first set, but finally won from Stanley and Fairbanks 11-9. Their last set was a walkaway, 6-1.

The summary:

SINGLES

Lord, Bowdoin, beat Roberts, Bates, 6-4, 6-3.

Cushman, Bowdoin, beat Stanley, Bates, 7-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Bishop, Bowdoin, beat Purinton, Bates, 6-2, 8-6.

Golf Team Easily Defeats Dewitt Clinton 7-4

The Bowdoin golf team won its second victory of the season when it defeated the team from the Dewitt Clinton school by the score of three matches to one last Saturday afternoon on the Brunswick links. The method of scoring used in the match was the "three point Nassau" type,—one point for the leader in each of the four matches at the end of the first nine holes, one point for winner of the second nine, and one point for winner of the match. Scoring on this basis, Bowdoin won the contest by a 7-4 score.

As in the first match with Martinville, the playing of T. Fasso '25 was one of the features of the day. Although Fasso's opponent, P. Sadler, was a golfer of no mean ability, the Bowdoin man succeeded in winning all three of the points involved in his match, thus contributing largely to

Bowdoin Loses First Game of State Series

Colby Victorious, 8-5, in Loosely Played Game Wednesday

It was a sorry exhibition of baseball that the Black and White put up against Colby in the opening game of the state series at Whittier Field last Wednesday afternoon. The Bowdoin infield made seven errors and gave Freddie Walker poor support throughout, thus enabling Colby to win 8 to 5. Walker twirled for Bowdoin a brand of ball that with support would have enabled the White to win the decision.

Through the entire game the outcome was in doubt. Twice did Bowdoin have a chance to even the score. In the seventh one run was squeezed in, but with two runners still on the rally was stopped. The scoring commenced in the first when a single coupled with the errors and three bases on balls netted Colby three runs. Bowdoin immediately proceeded to attempt to cut down Colby's lead and Capt. Joe Smith with one down cracked out a single, stretched it to second on one error, stole third and brot in Bowdoin's first score on Needelman's fly. The second inning passed uneventfully but the third told a different story. After Colby had crossed the plate twice in her half Bowdoin came within one run of tying the score when two bases on balls, one error and one hit gave the White three runs.

Again in the fourth there was no scoring. The score was now 5 to 4 Colby. The Blue and Gray, however, as it turned out, soon sewed up the game by driving in two more runs in the fifth on two hits, a sacrifice and an error. Along came the seventh when Bowdoin staged a rally that started in to win the game. With none out the Housertes filled the bases. Asa Small, the next man up, struck out as did Davis who followed Aldred. Aldred who batted after Small drove in one run with a long fly to center. With the exception of a Colby tally in the ninth thus ended the scoring.

Both teams showed a decided weakness on the right side of the infield. Colby did not by any means play a good game, her brand of baseball was ragged and not worthy of victory but contrary to expectation the Bowdoin team was as poor and, apparently could not get the breaks of the game as easily as Colby.

Debating Team to Meet Bates Tomorrow

Tomorrow evening in Lewiston City Hall the Bowdoin Debating Team will meet Bates on the question, "Resolved, that the proposal of President Harding that the United States should join the World Court merits the approval of this assembly." Bowdoin will uphold the negative side of the question. The members of the Bowdoin team are Roy M. Fitzmorris '23, Theodore W. Cousins '23, Athern P. Daggett '25 and Richard H. Lee '24, alternate.

Special notices have been sent to all Bowdoin alumni in the vicinity of Lewiston and a big representation is counted upon. Undergraduates should, if possible, go up to Lewiston and help the team towards a victory over Bates. The admission charge is 50 cents.

Professor Johnson has been appointed by the selectmen as auditor for the Brunswick and Topsham Water District to fill the position formerly held by Adelbert J. Hutchinson.

The Athletic Situation.

The gratifying successes of four of the Bowdoin athletic teams last weekend, coupled with the fact that athletics are occupying a very prominent position in the Maine college world this week, makes a survey of the situation seem advisable. Such a survey can, at best, be hardly more than a summary of the facts already ascertained through competitive exhibitions of the several teams. But, fortunately for the Bowdoin morale, the exhibitions thus far presented have furnished such an inspiring view of the several teams that their supporters seem fully justified in hoping for great things from them during the remainder of the season.

Throughout the season the track and baseball teams have been hampered by the disability of certain of their members to compete, on scholastic reasons. Whether or not this difficulty is more marked than in former years is rather hard to say with any degree of precision, but it is certain that the difficulty is more marked at Bowdoin than at any of the three other colleges with whose teams she competes for state championship honors. The extreme rigidity of the eligibility rulings here seems the only explanation of this phenomenon. The question of keeping athletes, particularly within the required limits of scholastic attainment is both universal and perennial in its application. The scholastic of the faculty ruling on eligibility makes its mark, but the broadness of that mark at Bowdoin this year makes necessary some inquiry into the causes of such ineligibility as is present. These causes will be looked into at a later time, for the present, only the effects are clearly visible, and it is to those that we must confine ourselves in discussing the situation as it exists.

The faculty cut was keenly felt by the baseball team when several candidates, one of them a man of exceptional ability and promise in an infield position, were declared unqualified to represent the college in any extracurricular activity. Not until last Saturday did the team begin to show that it is of a championship caliber, regardless of difficulties. The victory over Maine, the first victory of the season, is extremely gratifying, and gives ground for hope that the Bowdoin team may now continue to be victorious for the remainder of the season.

In no other field of activity has the eligibility played so disastrous a part as in the track team. Five men who were practically sure of winning points in the State meet have been removed from the squad. In spite of this depletion in the ranks, Bowdoin found little difficulty in defeating Holy Cross in decisive fashion in the meet last Saturday. This fact cannot be considered as of tremendous consequence, however, as in most departments Holy Cross proved inferior to the men against whom Bowdoin will compete this Saturday. The track team has shown remarkable development and a splendid spirit in fighting ahead regardless of all obstacles. There is the spirit that will make Bowdoin again victorious over her rivals in the competition at the last of the week.

In tennis and golf, the Bowdoin representatives have again scored remarkable victories. The performance of the tennis team in defeating both Bates and Colby, who are considered their strongest rivals for the state championship, are most laudable, while the exhibitions of the newly-formed golf team have been quite satisfactory.

With her representatives showing so well in all departments, Bowdoin cannot but feel confident that victories will crown their efforts. The men have worked long and faithfully, with no other end in view than the glory of the college. Let members of the college show their appreciation by giving them their hearty support.

An Unfortunate Misconception.

There appeared in several newspapers of the state and of Boston, during the first part of the week, a statement of a speech made by President Clifton D. Gray of Bates College, in regard to the debate which is to be held between the teams from Bates and Bowdoin, at Lewiston tomorrow evening. The statement, as published by the Boston Transcript, is as follows: "President Clifton D. Gray, speaking in Chapel, mentioned the fact that it was the first time that Bates had ever met Bowdoin in forensics, and startled the students by expressing the hope that it would be the last. He asserted that the entire Bowdoin faculty was assisting the Bowdoin representatives in the preparation of their briefs. The president expressed great confidence in the outcome of the contest."

When interviewed by the editor of the "Orient" Tuesday morning, President Gray did not deny making the statement alleged by the papers, but gave to the Bowdoin newspaper a statement which he had prepared in explanation of his Chapel speech. In the interests of the truth, and in order that no misapprehension may injure the relations existing between the two colleges, the "Orient" is very glad to publish the statement at this time. The statement follows: "Last week I was asked by the president of the Bates Debating Council to emphasize the importance of the Bowdoin debate which is to come off next Tuesday evening in Lewiston City Hall. My remarks were of a jocular nature intended to stir up student interest and enthusiasm. I did not suppose they needed to be diagrammed, or that who ever sent them to a Boston newspaper ought to have a major surgical operation to restore his sense of humor."

"The spirit of what I said was entirely friendly toward Bowdoin. We realize that they are working very hard to win this debate. This is the kind of competition we like to have."

"Josiah Royce once said that a liar is one who deliberately misplaces his ontological predicates. Anyone who intimates that we at Bates think for a moment that our Bowdoin friends have not fully kept the spirit and the letter of their contract in this debate has deliberately mis-placed his ontological predicates. I hope that this misplacement is not chronic."

"We are going to have a great debate Thursday night. The best team will win. The public will get fifty dollars worth of intellectual stimulus and excitement for fifty cents."

This statement explains with some clarity President Gray's position in the matter, and it is to be sincerely hoped that it will be given as great prominence as was the misleading statement published in the newspapers. Bowdoin men have no idea that the Bates president would deliberately express a doubt as to the honesty of any Bowdoin team in its preparation for any contest, but it is felt that the undue publicity given this jocular statement was, to say the least, unwise. Unfortunately, many people cannot see the humor of such a statement, and to such people its publication will not be beneficial to the reputation for fairness of either Bowdoin or Bates. There are more desirable means of publicity.

College Songs

The students of Bowdoin College recently took a poll on the proposition to discard time-honored Bowdoin Beata as the representative song of the college and substitute for it a more modern composition. The Bowdoin boys voted the proposal down, thereby not only evincing a loyalty to the old time melody but showing good judgment as well.

Since Bowdoin decided to stand by Bowdoin Beata steps have been taken for the adoption of a new representative song by Yale. Bright College Days, which Yale men have sung for generations, is set to the German national air, The Watch on the Rhine, and for that reason fell into disfavor during and after the war.

A poll recently taken of the Yale Club in New York showed that Yale men are in favor of abandoning the song altogether. Following this poll the Yale advisory board announced the offer of an anonymous prize of a thousand dollars for a song which should take the place of the one that is to be discarded.

It is almost the invariable rule that college songs as children are named, but come into favor by a process of evolution. A song is written that for some reason appeals to alumni and undergraduates, and its adoption is more commonly a matter of inspiration than of deliberation.

The situation at Yale differs from that which existed at Bowdoin, for the objection to Bright College Years grew out of the animosity to all things German that was created by the war. The result of the New York Club poll would indicate that this feeling is still strong enough to make the old song objectionable. But we still have our doubts as to whether a new song can be found to replace it, by legislation or by action of any committee or board—Portland Evening Express.

MAINE GAME

In a game featured by excellent fielding, consistent hitting and superb pitching, Bowdoin defeated Maine in the second game of the state championship series on Whittier Field last Saturday afternoon. "Rupe" Johnson pitching the game of his baseball career at Bowdoin, allowed but four hits and whitewashed the Maine men, while the Houserites connected with ten safe hits, netting five runs.

The scoring began in the first inning when "Mal" Morrell, the first man up, drove out a two-bagger. Asa Small brought him in a few moments later. Maine was unable to connect with the ball in the first five innings, but Bowdoin, not contented with one tally, went after more in the fourth. With two out Davis reached first on an error and MacLaughlin advanced him to third and landed on second himself. "Red" Jones then knocked out a single that scored both Davis and MacLaughlin.

Bowdoin's defensive work was another feature of the game. Two double plays in the early part of the game stand out. "Joe" Smith in the first inning, robbed Dunham of a hit when he caught his line smash and Joe then doubled Stearns off second. George Davis in the third stopped a hot grounder and threw to MacLaughlin on second who immediately pegged to Aldred catching Repscha on first. Several other catches brightened up the afternoon's playing; MacLaughlin, Morrell and Joe Smith all turned in spectacular catches.

Maine threatened but once during the entire game. This rally occurred in the eighth and for a time the final outcome of the game seemed in doubt. Taking advantage of a momentary weakness on Johnson's part, Maine gathered in three safe singles that filled the bases, with two out. Here, however, "Rupe" tightened and pitched his famous brand of ball making Stearns ground out to Davis who threw to Aldred.

In the same frame Bowdoin by constant hitting and one Maine error annexed two more runs bringing the total up to 5. Small, MacLaughlin and Jones knocked out singles; Aldred and Davis turned in sacrifices and Johnson crashed out a two-bagger. Admitted all this hitting Maine contributed one error and Bowdoin came home with the last two runs of the game. In every way the improvement of the team was noticeable and such an improvement, in both team work and hitting, brightens the championship outlook considerably.

GLEE CLUBS CONCERT

On Saturday evening, following the track meet and the baseball game, the Musical Clubs gave their first home concert of the year in Memorial Hall. Although the ranks of the Clubs were rather heavily depleted due to the scholastic difficulties of seven or eight of the members, the concert did not apparently suffer to any great extent. The program, though it was composed of numbers which were sung on the various trips this season, was shortened in order to permit the Instrumental Club to play at the dance held in the Hyle Gymnasium directly after the singing was concluded. All the selections were heartily received by an appreciative audience, the solos by Tuigson and Black, which were so successful on the Boston and New York trips, being unusually good.

It has been announced that the concert last Saturday evening would be the last of the season, but it has since been decided to conduct one or more in Bath during the last part of the month as the conclusion to one of the most successful seasons experienced by the Musical Clubs.

The program as presented in Memorial Hall follows:

1. Bowdoin Songs:

 - (b) "We'll Sing to Old Bowdoin," Fogg '02
2. Glee and Instrumental Clubs

Alexander Prize Speaking Trials On May 16

Trials for the Alexander Prize Speaking Contest will be held on May 16. Two prizes of twenty dollars and ten dollars are awarded for excellence in select declamation and the competition is open to Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors. The President has appointed a committee, consisting of Professors Stanwood, Means and Colby to pick the candidates for the contest which will be held June 18.

Sigma Nu Holds District Convention Here

For the first time since Delta Psi Chapter of the Sigma Nu Fraternity was established, in 1918, a convention of the New England chapters was held here May 4 and 5. Delegates were present from the collegiate chapters at the University of Vermont, Dartmouth, Brown, University of Maine, Trinity, Wesleyan, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and from the Boston and Portland Alumni chapters. On Friday evening a dance was given at the chapter house for the delegates and members of the active chapter. The patronesses for the affair were: Mrs. Ray C. Dyer, Mrs. Orren C. Hornell, Mrs. Paul Laidley, Mrs. Harold E. Tienvorgy, Mrs. Charles Locke, and Mrs. Clyde E. Stevens.

A business meeting occupied the entire morning of May 5, and after a buffet luncheon, the guests witnessed the Bowdoin-Holy Cross track meet and the Bowdoin-Maine baseball game at Whittier Field. In the evening a banquet was held at the Eagle Hotel. At this banquet an official welcome was given the delegates by Elvin R. Latty '23. Following a reply given to this welcome by W. C. Ridge, from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Professor Orren C. Hornell gave an extremely interesting talk on the relation of Bowdoin fraternities to the faculty. Malcolm E. Morrell '24, the next speaker, was followed by Charles Locke who represented the Boston Alumni Chapter. The next speaker on the program was Raymond H. Segur, the inspector of the New England collegiate chapters of the fraternity. Toastmaster Leslie E. Norwood '21 then called upon Lawrence Hart '16 and Harold G. Littlefield '26 for impromptu speeches.

The convention was a success in every way and much of this is due to the efforts of Clifford O. Small '23, commander of Delta Psi chapter. In as much as the chapter is still in its infancy, the members feel that it is a great honor to be the hosts of the delegates from the other New England chapters.

To Be Established

The college has received from the Hon. Sumner I. Kimball, of Washington, D. C., of the class of 1855, the sum of $3500, for the establishment of two prize funds: one fund of $2500 is for the purpose of awarding a prize to that member of the Senior class who, during his college course, has shown the most ability and originality in the field of natural science; the other prize fund of $1000, is in memory of Horace Lord Piper, of the class of 1863. This prize is to be awarded to that member of the Sophomore class who shall submit an original paper best calculated to promote the attainment and maintenance of peace throughout the world, or on some other subject devoted to the welfare of humanity, to be chosen by the Faculty. These prizes will be awarded for the first time in the next academic year, 1923-24.

Mr. Kimball, who is a resident of Washington, was for very many years a General Superintendent of the Life Saving Service of the United States. In college he was a classmate of the Hon. William L. Putnam.

the victory of his team. The match between Richards and Downey was the most closely contested of the lot, the first nine holes finding the players all even and the second nine finding Richards two up. Keane, playing number three on the Bowdoin team, after finishing the first nine holes one down, staged a come back which won for him the second nine holes and the match. Tewkesbury, of Dewitt Clinton, defeated Aspinwall in all three points.

Today, Bowdoin will again meet the Martindale Country Club at Brunswick. When these two teams met several weeks ago, Bowdoin had but little difficulty in winning five out of the six matches played, but this week, with several players out due to scholastic deficiencies, the result will probably be much closer. With the men representing Bowdoin playing up to form, however, the team should experience but little trouble in winning a majority of the matches.

The Masque And Gown To Present Original Revue

At the Ivy festivities this June, the Masque and Gown plans to make a decided innovation in the variety of entertainment annually offered by them on Thursday evening of the Ivy week. Hitherto the performance has always been in the form of a play, which has also been presented in the various towns included in the road company's itinerary. The show this year is to be in the nature of a revue, including numerous clever acts by members of the college, with musical and dancing numbers supported by a farcical one-act play, and several original humorous skits.

Every effort is being made by the committee in charge of arrangements to make this a really worth-while event in the history of the Masque and Gown, and a performance of real merit and interest for the members of the college and their guests who attend. In view of this fact, and in the general interest of the welfare of this progressive campus organization, there should be thorough support of the revue with all, at least, who are attending the Ivy party in attendance. To facilitate this, it is strongly urged that the respective committees at the several houses so arrange their plans as to provide for the fraternity men with their guests to attend en masse.

Campus Notes

Work is actively underway on the new memorial gateway which is being erected at the northwest entrance to the campus. The foundation work seems to indicate that this gate will be one of extreme beauty.

On May 3rd a group of Portland players presented "Billeted" a three-act drama of love and war under the auspices of the Brunswick Dramatic Club. The play was greatly appreciated by the large audience that filled the Cumberland theatre.

The annual Chapman concert was given in Memorial Hall April 30. The artists were Miss Lottie Howell, soprano and Kola Levenne, cellist. William R. Chapman accompanied his artists. The audience that attended the recital enjoyed every appearance of the famous artists.

On May 1st the Senior class appeared in chapel in their caps and gowns, and wore them to all morning classes.

The class will wear these caps and gowns for the rest of the college year. This is the first time in the history of the college that anything like this has been attempted and it is hoped that it will become a custom. A picture of the class was taken in front of the chapel after the exercises last Thursday morning.

TRACK TEAM TRIUMPHS IN FIFTH CONSECUTIVE VICTORY

Bowdoin 63, Maine 37, Bates 23, Colby 3; Hardy, Butler, Tootell, Mason, Bishop, Bates Star For Bowdoin—Tootell Breaks Record

The results of the 27th annual Maine Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet, Bowdoin 63, Maine 37, Bates 23, Colby 3, tell but half the story of Bowdoin's fifth straight track championship victory which was won at Orono last Saturday. The victory was indeed a sweet one, for with several of the squad's sure-point winners ineligible, Bowdoin's chances for a victory looked exceedingly slim. Those who saw the meet will never forget the wonderful bursts of speed which carried Don Mason to victory over Archibald, of Bates, in the 440 yard dash, which brought Cy Webster from fourth place to second on the home stretch of the 880 yard run, and which gave Glenn Butler his hair's-breadth win over Thomas, of Maine, in the 100 yard dash. The way in which Mal Hardy walked away with the 120 yard high hurdles and the 220 yard low hurdles will remain in the memory of every spectator for some time to come. Apparently the wet, heavy track, covered with about two inches of soft, slippery mud, did not bother him in the least. By doing such creditable work, Hardy was the high point winner of the meet, winning 10 points. The only event in which Bowdoin did not win points was the two mile run which was won by Capt. McGinley, of Bates. The magnificent run of this powerful runner deserves the highest commendation. The poor condition of the track was undoubtedly the cause of the Bowdoin entrants' failure to place. As was expected, Capt. Tootell broke the Maine Intercollegiate 16 pound hammer throw record. Although the heave was not as great as those which the giant captain has been in the habit of throwing, it was sufficiently long to break by a little more than six feet the record established eight years ago by Perry Bailey, of Maine. Contrary to all expectations, however, "Toots" did not place in the discus throw, but the honor of winning second place in that event went to "Bill" Parsons who threw a distance of 110 feet 5 inches just a foot and a half short of the winning throw made by Horsemann, of Maine.

The trials for the 440 and the 220 yard dashes and for the 120 yard high and 220 yard low hurdles as well as those of the shot put, the broad jump, the hammer throw, the high jump, the discus throw and the pole vault took place in the morning. In the forenoon the track was in fairly good condition, but because of the steady downpour which began about noon, it was nothing more than a mud-puddle by the time that the afternoon events began. Consequently the times in the running events were not as short as they would have been had the track been in good condition.

In the trials of the 100 yard dash, the first event of the afternoon, Bates received a severe shock when Landers, the colored sprinter, failed to qualify. At about fifteen yards from the tape he was leading the other men in his heat, but at that point Thomas and Lawry, both of Maine, passed him. Glenn Butler had no difficulty in winning his heat in this event, crossing the tape a good four yards ahead of Cahill, of Maine, the runner-up. From the gun, the final heat of this event was a battle between Butler and Thomas. The Bowdoin sprinter won by little more than a hair's breadth after making a supreme effort about two yards from the tape.

Bob Foster was unable to beat Sargent, of Bates, in the mile run. His plucky race, however, gave him second place and he deserves the greatest praise for crossing the tape about three yards behind one of the fastest milers Bates has ever produced. The time, 4 minutes, 37 seconds, was exceptionally good, considering the bad condition of the track.

Don Mason's performance in the 440 yard dash was one of the most spectacular examples of Bowdoin fighting spirit displayed in the entire meet. Archibald, the best quarter-miler that Bates has had for years, was picked to win the race easily. From the firing of the gun, he had every reason to think that dopesters are not infallible. When the race was about half over he forged ahead of his competitors and swung into the home stretch well in advance of every other runner. To the amazement of everybody, Mason, who was in fourth position at the last turn, started a sprint so powerful that he passed all of the three men who were ahead of him. His unexpected victory on such a track places him in line for more honors at the New England championship races next Saturday, provided Coach Magee decides to enter him in these games.

According to expectation, Mal Hardy had little trouble in winning the 120 yard high hurdles. Before the first hurdle had been jumped he was in the lead, and stayed there during the whole race. Fenderson, of Maine, and Burrill, of Bates, upon whom their respective colleges pinned their hopes, could do little more than fight for second position, which was ultimately won by the Maine hurdler.

The 880 yard run was won by a narrow margin by Corey, of Bates. The majority of the dopesters picked Cy Webster to win this race, but owing, perhaps, to the poor condition of the track, he was unable to do so. At the 660 yard mark he was apparently beaten. Following the splendid example set by Mason, however, he ended the race with one of his characteristically powerful sprints and finished a close second after passing two fast men on the home stretch. Webster is another of Bowdoin's mainstays for the New England Meet next week.

All predictions were upset in the final heat of the 220 yard dash, the next event on the program. Here again Bates received another jolt, for Landers, the streak of color who was expected by many to win failed even to place. The event was won by Thomas, of Maine, the king of the Orono sprinters. Butler, who won the event in the state meet last year, placed second, nosing out Cahill, of Maine. Apparently the mud had little effect upon the runners for the race was won in the comparatively fast time of 23.35 seconds.

Ploughing through the soft mud, Capt. McGinley, of Bates, won the two mile run in 10 minutes 25.25 seconds. It was in this event alone, the most gruelling of all the runs, that Bowdoin failed to place a man. The Bowdoin entrants stuck manfully to their work and gave their all, and deserve only the highest of commendation.

In the 220 yard low hurdles Bowdoin men won all three places. Burrill, the Bates prize hurdler who was expected by his followers to crash through with a victory, was eliminated in the trial heats by Clark, of Bowdoin. Hardy won the final heat in 27.15 seconds, with little difficulty. Lovell nosed out Clark for second place. The hurdling of this trio of Bowdoin men was one of the prettiest sights of the meet.

The high jump was won by Ackley, of Maine, at the extremely low height of 5 feet, 5 inches. The poor condition of the take-off was without doubt the cause of the failure of the contestants to jump higher. Philbrook and Small, both of whom are capable of doing far better, were tied for second place at 5 feet, 4 inches.

Bates Team Victorious Over Bowdoin Debaters

Question Of World Court Decided In Favor Of Affirmative

Upholding the negative side of the question "Resolved, that the proposal of President Harding that the United States join the world court merits the approval of this assembly" the Bowdoin debating team lost to Bates in the Lewiston City Hall last Thursday evening, May 10. The judges, who unanimously decided in favor of Bates, were Professor Curtis H. Page of Dartmouth, Professor William T. Hastings of Brown, and Professor R. Walter Brown of Carleton. The Bowdoin team was composed of Cousins, Daggett, Fitzmorris, and Lee, alternates. The Bates team was made up of Edward H. Canham, Theodore H. Pickney, and William E. Young. Mayor Brann of Auburn presided at the debate.

The Bates team argued that the aim of the world court is to substitute international law for international violence, and further that entrance into this court would be entirely consistent with the American policy of broad internationalism. They claimed that the court means peace through justice.

In upholding the negative of the question, the Bowdoin debaters claimed that it is entirely inconsistent to join a body the chief function of which is to advise a body to which we are opposed. The court is supported by the League of Nations, members elected through the League, and its decisions are merely advisory, not compulsory. The Bowdoin men said that the fundamental idea of a world court of arbitration was all right, but that this court was wrong in its constitution and connections. Daggett pointed out that if the question as to whether the United States should join a world court the negative would have no case at all, but the question was whether the United States should join this particular court.

Golf Tournament With Augusta C.C. Results In Tie

Despite the rainy weather prevailing last Saturday, the Bowdoin golf team played off its match with the Augusta Country Club at Augusta as scheduled, and though both the number one and two men of the college team dropped their matches to their opponents, numbers three and four managed to finish on top, leaving the total score tied at two matches each. The condition of the course, due to the heavy rains, slowed up the matches to a large extent, and made it impossible for the golfers to make the round of 18 holes in any remarkable score, but several of the cards turned in were nevertheless very good. Fasso, playing number one for Bowdoin, put up his usual good game, but found a hard opponent in Doctor Tyson, several times amateur State champion. The final result found Tyson the victor by the score of 2 up and 1 to go, but this gives no true idea of the closeness of the match. The fact that Tyson turned in a score of 85 and Fasso a score of 87 should indicate how closely matched the two men were.

One of the feature matches of the afternoon was that between Williams '25 and Hill. After finishing the first nine holes one down, Williams dropped further and further behind his opponent until, when he came up to the 15th tee he was four down and four to go. Apparently the match was lost beyond all hope of recovery, but Williams, with the traditional Bowdoin fight, proceeded to win the next four holes, tying the match on the last and winning it on the extra hole.

Keaney brought the second match to Bowdoin's credit when he defeated McArthur by the score of two and one. Richards, playing number two, after an uphill fight dropped his match to Williamson by the count of one up.

This week will find Bowdoin engaging in her first intercollegiate golf match, for on Friday and Saturday the golf team will travel to Boston to meet Brown and Tech on the Meadowbrook and the Brae-Burn links respectively. The team is hoping to make the opposing colleges work for every point they get, and though Bowdoin may not take her opponents into camp, she will at least give them a stiff fight. Bowdoin has some excellent golfers on her team, and more than one of the individual matches in these contests should prove very interesting. The golf season will close with matches with Harvard and Dartmouth later on in the spring.

Lord Wins Intercollegiate State Singles Tennis Title

Cushman and Tolman Runners-Up In Doubles Tournament

Through the brilliant playing of Lord in the singles matches of the State tournament last Thursday and Friday Bowdoin broke even with the veteran Colby combination of Gow and Sackett. By defeating Captain Sackett of Colby in the finals of the singles Lord won the Maine Intercollegiate Singles Tennis Championship and brought Bowdoin another state championship. The Bowdoin doubles team, composed of Tolman and Cushman, were defeated in the finals by the last year's champions, Gow and Sackett of Colby. Thus Bowdoin was runner up in the doubles championship.

It was clear from the very start of the tournament that the meet would boil down to a match between Bowdoin and Colby for the State honors. After the first round of play the entire Bates team had been eliminated and but one Maine doubles team remained for the second round. This team was easily defeated in the second round by Tolman and Cushman. Every Bowdoin team won its match and but one Colby team was eliminated in the first round.

By far the most interesting and closely contested match of the preliminaries was the defeat of Captain Roberts of Bates by Lord. It was nip-and-tuck the whole way with both men playing practically the same type of tennis. Lord's condition was poor and in many places threatened to prove fatal, for Roberts reached match point several times, but was unable to come through in the pinches. Roberts won the first set 7-5, but was defeated 6-3 and 8-6 in the next two, thus being eliminated in the first round.

In the other preliminary matches Captain Bishop easily defeated Webster of Maine, winning straight matches 6-2, 6-4. Captain Sackett of Colby after a hard fight to win the first set from Harrington of Bates, easily won the second set 6-1. Gow defeated Curtiss of Maine 6-0, 6-0. In the doubles matches both Bowdoin teams were victorious over their opponents. Gow and Sackett won for Colby, while Davenport and Smith of Maine were successful in defeating Smith and Barnes of Colby.

In the second round of play Lord's victory over Gow of Colby was by far the most interesting event, for by so doing Lord accomplished what had been considered the impossible and at the same time removed the greatest obstacle in the way of his final victory. In this match Lord's playing

Baseball Team Wins Only Two Games Played On New England Trip

Wesleyan And Middlebury Defeated; Harvard, Vermont, Tufts Games Cancelled On Account Of Rain

Only two of the five games scheduled on the baseball team's trip last week were played, the matches with Harvard, Vermont, and Tufts, being called off on account of rain. By nosing out wins in the other two meetings, Bowdoin therefore finished the week's trip with a one hundred per cent record. The first game which could be played was the one scheduled with Wesleyan for last Tuesday. It proved to be a thriller. For nine innings the two teams fought it out neck and neck, but in the first half of the tenth, Johnson, who had been pitching superb ball for Bowdoin, stepped up to the plate and pounded out a home run which brought a well-earned victory to his team's record. But his home run was not the only bright feature of Johnson's playing, for in the fifth inning he managed to extricate his team from a position which looked well-nigh hopeless. Southwick, who had been pitching a good game, allowing only two hits in four innings, weakened badly in the fifth, and after two men had reached first on errors, he walked the next two men. With the bases full and no outs, Johnson was sent in an effort to save the game, and he succeeded beyond the wildest hopes, retiring the next batters in one, two, three order. In the remaining innings, Johnson allowed but two hits to be gained from his pitching.

Johnson's home run was not the only one of the game, however. In the fourth, after Capt. "Joe" Smith had hammered out a triple with only one out, Dave Needelman stepped up to the plate in an effort to score his teammate, only to be thrown out at first. With two men gone, and the first run of the game on third base, waiting to be brought in, Asa Small allowed two strikes to be called upon him and then poled out a long home run to deep center, pushing two runs across the plate.

In her half of the fourth, Wesleyan managed to secure her first run when Taylor reached first on an error, was advanced to second on a sacrifice by Mansfield, and scored on a second error. It was in the fifth, when Southwick weakened, that Wesleyan evened the count, and it was not until Johnson's homer in the tenth that the deadlock was broken.

The defeat was the first which Wesleyan has experienced on her home grounds this season.

In the second and only other game of the trip that could be played Bowdoin triumphed over Middlebury by the close score of 5 to 4. Middlebury led until the seventh inning when the score was 3 to 1. In this inning, however, the Bowdoin team broke through the strong defense of the home team and scored three runs, taking the lead by a score of 4 to 3. Middlebury tied it up in the eighth and the White pushed across the winning run in the beginning of the ninth.

The Glee Club.

At this time, only a few days after the final concert of the Musical Clubs, it seems fitting that a few words should be said of the progress of the organization during the past season. A mere eulogy of the performances of the director, leaders, manager, and members would appear utterly futile. The splendid accomplishment of all who had a part in the work of the society is sufficient in itself to prove that the clubs this year have certainly been equalled by few in the history of the college, and have been surpassed by none.

This season the management was successful for the first time in carrying out a program of long trips. Two extended trips were taken, one in New England, the other to New York and Philadelphia. Everywhere the program met with hearty approval, and urgent requests to come again next year rewarded the efforts of the singers and players. The financial question has long been the most urgent factor in deciding whether or not the musicians could appear in distant cities. It is not a small undertaking to provide for the transportation and entertainment of a company of thirty-five or forty men travelling hundreds of miles to appear before audiences of only two or three hundred, at best, in each place. But for the loyal support of the alumni who are always willing to underwrite the performances, such trips would be impossible. The alumni and interested friends in every city visited have supported the concerts loyally, with the result that the season has proved to be a financial, as well as a musical, success.

A great and important change was made this year in the policy of the Glee Club. Believing that it exists as an organization for the furthering of interest in good music, the club has abandoned the old nondescript type of program, and has successfully introduced a program, consisting completely of the better class of music. The college songs have been retained, of course, and have been received generally with the usual enthusiasm. They are worthy representative of the college, giving as they do the final touch of distinction to a program of high artistic merit. The new program afforded an excellent opportunity to display the ability of the club in the chorus work. Many of the selections were sung without accompaniment, and in these the perfectly balanced tone of the men showed to greatest advantage. With remarkable facility the chorus showed its ability to change rapidly from the swift, dainty selections requiring the utmost in precision of tone, to the solemn, ponderous tread of mighty anthems and the powerful throb of triumphant choruses. It is a far cry from the old trifling songs that have so long monopolized the programs of college clubs, and still are the rule in most instances, but it has proved to be not only a worthwhile change, but a popular one as well.

The Glee Club has made real progress this year. It has blazed the path for an era in which the college will be represented in music as it is in scholarships and in athletics, by the very best. The college stands for refinement, for dignity of purpose, and for culture. As long as its authorized representatives fail to present those qualities in whatever field they may enter, they are not worthy of bearing the name of the college. The Glee Club has this year taken its stand for the best in music. Let us hope that such progress is indicative of a healthy future.

Caps and Gowns.

The comments upon the revival of the custom of wearing caps and gowns during the morning periods of the last part of the senior year have been numerous, and for the most part commendatory. It is a custom of considerable value to the college both for the atmosphere it creates and for the touch of distinction it gives to the men who are nearing their academic goal, the bachelor's degree. An atmosphere of scholasticism such as this simple change to uniformity of garb gives is highly desirable. The American college in general, as well as Bowdoin in particular, has failed to take advantage of too many such salutary customs as this to be able to afford to continue the all too common practice. If the renewal of the custom by the class of 1923 is to mean anything, we should have a renaissance of a splendid tradition—a tradition that will mean much to the increasing of the dignity of campus life, and that will be cherished by every alumnus from this time forth.

In regard to the notice made in the Orient last week about the appearance of the scholastic vestments at chapel, the following letter has been received from an interested alumnus, Winthrop S. Greene '13. Writing from the Army and Navy Club at Washington, Mr. Greene says: "An entirely erroneous statement occurred in your issue of Wednesday, May 9, 1923. This is almost ridiculous when it is considered how recently the opposite of statement has been true."

"Under 'Campus Notes,' page 4, the last item with respect to the appearance of the Senior Class in caps and gowns states in part 'This is the first time in the history of the college that anything like this (the wearing of the caps and gowns daily) has been attempted and it is hoped that it will become a custom.'"

"I was an undergraduate from the fall of 1909 to 1913. During that time the classes of 1910, 1911, 1912, and 1913 at the last of the year wore the caps and gowns every morning for weeks and as I recall it in the earlier classes the entire second semester. It may be that since then it has not been the custom but the 'history of the college' extends healthily prior to 1913!"

Very truly,

WINTHROP STEPHENS GREENE,
Bowdoin 1913.

Alumni Notes

1920—Leland H. Moses has recently changed his address to 640 West 57th Street, New York City.

1920—Louis Burton Dennett united with the Westminister Presbyterian Church of Buffalo, N. Y., on Easter Sunday.

Medic-1863—Dr. George Lincoln Goodale, Professor of Natural History and Director of the Botanic Gardens at Harvard University for many years until his retirement in 1909, died on April 12. He was born at Saco, Maine, in 1839, and was graduated from Amherst in 1860 and from the medical department of Bowdoin three years later. After teaching at Bowdoin several years he went to Harvard in 1872, where he remained until his retirement in 1909.

1866—Rev. Francis Storer Thacher, A.M., a clergyman of the Unitarian denomination, died recently in Cambridge, Mass. For the last fourteen years he had been librarian of the Child Memorial Library which is housed in the Widener Library on the grounds of Harvard University. He was born in Machias, graduated from Bowdoin in '66, receiving his A.M. degree in 1882. He graduated from the Harvard Divinity School in 1873 and was ordained to the ministry of the Unitarian Church in 1875. He has held several parishes in Maine and other states.

Communication

Dear President Sills:

Today I visited the American cemetery near Belleau Wood where lies the body of Forbes Rickard, Jr. With uncovered head I spoke these words: "Lieutenant Forbes Rickard in the name of your Alma Mater I place these white flowers on your grave, emblematic of the Bowdoin color."

The field of honor on which he fell was radiant with the warm spring sunshine. Peace, a profound peace, brooded over the land. A peasant on a neighboring hillside was sowing his seed in the full assurance that no engine of war would destroy his crops. The songs of birds and the voices of children at play reached my ears.

But standing there I could see another scene—the Bowdoin campus in June, 1917. I could hear again the inspired words, read out of the heart of the young poet, and true to the high tradition of his college: "We too may give our all."

"Henceforth those dead

No more are ours alone.

They are the heritage of all the ages.

Of all far quests and high desires know

To yearning of dangers, poets, sages—

Not yours the right to bring them back,

'Twas they that chose the track—

Those more than dead.

Leave them in peace,

Break not their last, long post

Where in the dark before the Paris portal

They stemmed the tide and broke the Teuton boast,

Or where their blood will leap immortal

In poppy flame in Flanders' fields,

And valiant striving yields

To dreamless peace."

"The End Of The Hunt"

Lent For Paris Exhibition

At the request of the Copley Society of Boston, the College has lent to the exhibition of Winslow Homer, Sargent, and Dodge MacKnight water colors arranged by the Copley Society to take place this spring at Paris, its very fine water color by Homer, "The End of the Hunt." The exhibition opened on May 14; it was held in the galleries of the Rue de la Ville-Eveque, and the proceeds are to go to the well-known war charity, "Oeuvre des mutilés de la race", to which the Ingres exposition held last year in the same galleries contributed about 130,000 francs. Other institutions which have lent works to this exhibition are the Imperial War Museum, London, the Art Museums of New York, Boston, Brooklyn, Chicago, Worcester, Cincinnati, and Brookline, the Fogg Art Museum, and the Rhode Island School of Design.

Sunday Chapel

"Thou hypocrite, first cast the beam out of thine own eye; then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thine brother's eye." With this as a text, President Sills began his regular address in Chapel last Sunday afternoon. We are all in some way hypocrites, said the President. We all try not to do many things that we know we should not, and we profess that we do not do these things, but there often come times when we act entirely contrary to all our protestations. We must admit, too, that it is just as much hypocrisy to stand idly by and watch things take place of which we do not approve, without in the slightest way attempting to prevent them, as it is to take an active part in them ourselves. We should all observe our own actions very closely before we attempt to criticize others, for in all probability we are as guilty as they.

Such considerations cannot fail to bring us to the question of charity toward our neighbors. Falsely and unjustly criticizing others inevitably leads us to look down upon those whom we criticize, and this in turn leads to self-glorification, pride, and hence uncharitableness. We must have consideration for others and for their shortcomings, for if we look ever so slightly into ourselves we shall find those same faults mirrored there. We must take the courage and strength to look into our own hearts and to see there our own shortcomings before we can even think of finding fault with others.

We can certainly apply these teachings to any group of human beings as well as to ourselves—the individual. We can and should apply this idea to the college community, and we should, in a larger sense, apply it to the whole nation. We would do well to take care not to look down from our high position, insured by superior size, wealth, and power, upon the other nations of the world, and we would do well to apply the teachings of the Bible to our dealings. We must all, from the individual to the nation, realize our own shortcomings before we search for the shortcomings of those about us, and in our dealings with others we should bring into play the charity which knowledge of our own faults should create.

Student Council Passes Training Camps Measure

It will be remembered that some weeks ago Brigadier General Mark S. Hersey addressed the student body of the College assembled in Chapel upon the subject of the Citizen's Military Training Camps, and in an interesting lecture told the students of the unusually good work which was being done by these Camps and explained the benefits to be derived therefrom. It will be unnecessary here to go into the details stressed by the General, as the enthusiasm evinced by the student body in general is proof that the points presented at that time were well digested. Subsequent to the General's address, Lieutenant Richard T. Schlosberg, of the Class of '18, visited Bowdoin with the object of further spreading information concerning the Citizen's Military Training Camps. Literature and application blanks have since been passed out and considerable interest has been shown in the proposition by the College. The fact that so many of the students are enrolled in the local coast artillery unit of the National Guard would seem to indicate that they are not uninterested in military activities, and that many would welcome the chance to spend part of the summer in a Training Camp. The preparation which the students already enrolled in the militia have received would aid them materially in entering one of the advanced Training Camp courses, all of which are carefully outlined in the bulletins which have been distributed on the Campus.

The enthusiasm which has been manifested by the student body in regard to this proposition has come to the notice of the Student Council, with the result that this body has made the following resolution and turned it over to the "Orient" for publication:—

"Resolved: Inasmuch as we believe that attendance at the Citizen's Military Training Camps makes for better citizenship, improves the individual mentally, physically, and morally; makes for a better understanding of civic responsibility and strengthens the potential defensive strength of the United States,

That the Student Council of Bowdoin College believes that undergraduates who can do so should take advantage of the opportunity offered for development at a Citizen's Military Training Camp."

With a heave of 40 feet, 11 inches, Jackson, of Maine, won the 16 pound shot put. Capt. Tootell came second with 37 feet, 9 inches, while Schneek of Colby unexpectedly placed third with 36 feet, 8 inches.

The finals of the running broad jump gave Bates, of Bowdoin, first place with a leap of 20.20 feet. Corey, of Bates, won second place from Small, of Bowdoin.

As might have been expected, Capt. Tootell broke the state hammer throwing record when he heaved his comet-like hammer a distance of 168 feet, 8 inches. The condition of the circle was so bad that it was almost impossible for the contestants to keep their footing. Had the weather conditions not been so unfavorable it is practically certain that the giant captain would have set the state record at an even higher mark than he did. Mason, although throwing several feet under his customary distance, placed second with a throw of 123 feet, 2 1/2 inches. Barrows, of Maine, came a close third, throwing a distance of 122 feet, 11 inches.

The absence of Tootell in the discus throw was glaringly apparent. He found it almost impossible to keep his footing in the slippery circle and so could not throw his customary distance. The event was won by Horseman, of Maine, with a heave of 111 feet, 11 inches. Parsons placed second with 110 feet, 5 inches. Barrows came third with 108 feet, 6 1/2 inches.

The Bishop brothers contributed six points to Bowdoin's grand total by winning first and third places in the pole vault. Francis, the state champion, had only to vault 10 feet, 6 inches in order to beat Stearns, of Maine, who vaulted 10 feet, 3 inches. Harvey Bishop captured third place by crossing the bar at 10 feet.

Bowdoin Swimming Team Defeats Auburn Y.M.C.A.

The Bowdoin swimming team won its second victory over the Auburn Y. M. C. A. team at Auburn on May 7. The score was 35 to 25, and shows none too well the superiority of the White swimmers over their opponents. Of the seven events, Bowdoin won five, including the relay. McLean was the high point winner of the meet scoring two firsts, a second, and swimming on the winning relay. Gulick also displayed both speed in the dashes and fine form in the fancy diving. Gulick won the 160-yard swim and the fancy diving, placed third in the 40 yard breast stroke, also swam on the winning relay team.

In view of the fact that the Bowdoin team has had no facilities whatever for practice, the victory is even more brilliant and the Bowdoin team deserves the highest of praise.

The summary:

160 Yard Swim
First, Gulick, Bowdoin; second, Webber, Auburn; third, Eastman, Auburn. Time, 2 minutes, 22.2-5 seconds.

40 Yard Swim
First, McLean, Bowdoin; second, Priest, Bowdoin; third, tie between Hayden and Pierce of Auburn. Time, 24.3-5 seconds.

100 Yard Swim
First, McLean, Bowdoin; second, Cutter, Bowdoin; third, Tonkin, Auburn. Time, 1 minute, 15.1-5 seconds.

Plunge for Distance
First, Moffit, Auburn, distance 46 feet; second, McLean, Bowdoin, 39 feet; third, Tonkin, Auburn, 37 feet.

Breast Stroke (40 Yards)
First, Pierce of Auburn; second, Webber, Auburn; third, Gulick, Bowdoin.

Relay
Bowdoin (Gulick, Cutter, Priest, and McLean)—defeated Auburn (Pierce, Webber, Hayden, and Tonkin).

Fancy Diving
First, Gulick, Bowdoin; second, Capt. Hayden, Auburn; third, Gaitley, Auburn.

Second Team Ties With Coburn Classical

Coburn Classical Institute surprised the second team last Thursday when it fought for ten innings to a 9 to 9 tie on Whittier Field. The second team should have found no difficulty in defeating the boys from Waterville, for the latter were able to make only one run in seven innings. In the eighth, however, they pounded Robinson hard and the heavy hitting, coupled with costly errors on the part of the Bowdoin team, netted five runs. Two more runs in the next-inning tied the score. Both teams pushed across one run in the tenth, and the game was then called on account of darkness.

The hitting of Towne, who knocked out two two-base hits and one three-bagger, was the only redeeming feature of the Bowdoin playing. The fielding of the second team has plenty of room for improvement, for if it were not for the fact that Robinson was not properly backed, Bowdoin could have won the decision with ease.

was superb, in fact so much better than any playing that he had previously shown that it astonished everyone present. In the first set of the match, which took place on Friday morning, Lord was easily victorious by the score of 6-2. It must be said that Gow was very apparently not up to his usual form in this set, and this undoubtedly accounts for the easy victory of the Bowdoin player. However, in the next set, Gow's playing improved greatly, but not without an equally great strengthening of Lord's playing. The score of 6-3 does not do complete justice to the playing of Gow. The victory of Lord over the last year's champion may be due to the radical difference in the playing of the two men. Gow is a speedy slashing player whose strokes are lightning-like in speed, just clearing the net. He shows a wonderful technique of the game. To return his serve would be an impossibility for the average player. Lord's game is almost the opposite. His play is all placement playing combined with a conservatism that is characteristic. It was undoubtedly the combination of these two points with his unusual skill that solved the problem of Gow's playing. Gow plays an easy, graceful game, while Lord, on the other hand, plays a hard, tiring, fighting game, trying for every return no matter how impossible it looks. He puts his whole body into every shot and often appears exhausted long before the match is finished.

By his victory in this set Lord puts himself into a position for the finals, which were played in the afternoon. Captain Sackett of Colby easily defeated Captain Bishop, who was way off his form throughout the whole day, 6-0, 6-0. Thus the championship in the singles rested between Lord of Bowdoin and Sackett of Colby. Sackett's playing is almost identical with that of Lord. His placement is wonderful at many times threatening to end the match unfavorably. The only explanation of Lord's victory is his hard fighting game. Lord jumped into his stride in the first set and defeated Sackett 6-3. But in the next set Sackett came back and with superb placement won by the score of 7-5. The next set went to Lord again with the score 6-4, while Sackett playing for all he was worth managed to take the next set by the score of 9-7. In the fifth and last set Lord gave his all, and fighting for every point, was victorious by the score of 6-3.

In the doubles, Colby was more successful, for, having eliminated Bishop and Lord in the semi-finals, they found a hard-fighting but less experienced team in Tolman and Cushman. In the first set of the final match, Cushman and Tolman were victorious by the score of 6-2. In the next three matches, however, the Colby combination got down to business and won all three. The fight that the inexperienced White players put up against the last year's doubles champions was remarkable, and the two men deserve the highest of praise.

The summary:

SINGLES

Preliminaries

Bishop of Bowdoin defeated Webber of Maine 6-2, 6-1.

Gow of Colby defeated Curtis of Maine 6-0, 6-0.

Brunswick Choral Society Presents "The Holy City"

Last evening in Memorial Hall the Brunswick Choral Society presented its fourth concert of the year, under the direction of Professor Edward Hames Wass, of the department of music. The cantata, "The Holy City", by A. R. Gaul, was beautifully rendered by a chorus of sixty-five, assisted by an orchestra of thirty members. Twenty-two men from the faculty and college Glee Club were included in the chorus and orchestra. This final concert of the season was greatly appreciated by a good-sized audience.

Of the cantata itself, the program gives the following outline sketch: "The first part of 'The Holy City' was suggested by the passages of scripture, 'Here have we no continuing city, 'Thy kingdom come,' and sets forth the desire for a higher life, as expressed in the words, 'My soul is athirst for God,' which desire is followed by other passages expressive of the perfection of the higher life, such as 'Eye hath not seen.'

"The second part was suggested by the words, 'I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away, thus realizing the desire and promises contained in the first part. With the exception of two hymns, a verse from Milton, and three verses from the Te Deum, the words are entirely scriptural."

The program follows:

Introduction (Instrumental)
Chorus No shadows yonder
Air (Tenor) My soul is athirst for God
Chorus They that sow in tears
Air (Alto) Eye hath not seen
Chorus For thee, O dear, dear country
Chorus Thine is the kingdom
Intermezzo (Instrumental)
Air (Bass) A new heaven and a new earth
Chorus Sanctus Holy, holy, holy Chorus for double choir. Let the heavens rejoice
Air (Soprano). These are they which came out of great tribulation Duet (Soprano and Alto). They shall hunger no more

Tennis Team Victorious
Over Colby By 4 To 2

Bowdoin, on May 7, defeated Colby in a dual tennis tournament at Waterville four matches to two. Bowdoin won in the single matches, taking three out of four, and lost to Gow, Maine intercollegiate champion, who was the only Colby man to take a match. In the doubles Bowdoin won one and Colby one match.

The tournament was opened with the doubles matches. Gow and Sackett of Colby were forced to work hard for a win over Lord and H. Bishop of Bowdoin, while Smith and Barnes were easy prey for Cushman and Tolman. In the singles Gow defeated Lord, the first set going to him 6-0 and the next set 12-10. H. Bishop won over his opponent as did Cushman and Tolman.

The summary:

DOUBLES

Gow and Sackett of Colby, defeated Lord and H. Bishop of Bowdoin, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.
Cushman and Tolman of Bowdoin, defeated Smith and Barnes of Colby, 6-3, 6-2.

SINGLES

Gow of Colby defeated Lord of Bowdoin, 6-0, 12-10.

H. Bishop of Bowdoin, defeated Sackett of Colby, 7-5, 5-7, 7-5.

Cushman of Bowdoin, defeated Smith of Colby, 6-4, 6-2.

Tolman of Bowdoin, defeated Barnes of Colby, 6-4, 6-1.

Frederick Eaton Simpson

The death of George Eaton Simpson '95 occurred July 9th, 1922, at his home at Howard, Rhode Island.

He was born in Charlestown, Massachusetts but at six years of age removed with his parents on Newcastle, Maine, where he received his early education. He fitted for college at Lincoln Academy and was graduated from Bowdoin in 1895. He was made a member of Phi Beta Kappa and belonged to the Zeta Psi fraternity. Later on he entered Bowdoin Medical School and received his doctor's degree in 1899. After graduating from the medical school he spent his internship at the Rhode Island State Institutions and later located in Providence, R. I., having been appointed Pathologist to the Rhode Island State Prison and County Jail.

In 1906 he was made Assistant Superintendent of the State Hospital for Mental Diseases at Howard, Rhode Island, which position he held with great credit until January, 1922, when he was obliged to resign on account of ill health.

He was a member of the American Medical Association, the Rhode Island Medical Association, the American Medico-Psychological Society, the New England Society of Psychiatry, the Rhode Island Medico Legal Society and the Providence Medical Society. He was also associated with the local lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

In 1902 he was married to Minerva H. Maloon of East Machias, Maine, who lives in Howard with her three daughters, Dorothy, Elizabeth, and Katherine.

He leaves a sister, Mrs. Fred E. Hilton of Augusta, also a brother Edgar M. Simpson, Esq., of Bangor, Maine.

Dr. Simpson had a host of friends and was greatly beloved by the poor unfortunates to whom he ministered. His death at fifty-two was a great sorrow to all who knew him. He was a life of service and he asked, no greater thing but "to live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to man."

BOWDOIN WINS THE NEW ENGLAND INTERCOLLEGIATES

Baseball Team Breaks Even In Week's Contests

Decisively Defeats Maine and Loses Hard Battle to Bates.

Bowdoin walked away with Maine in the final game of the State Series between Bowdoin and Maine played last Wednesday afternoon at Orono. At the close of the game after Dave Needleman and the rest had stopped hitting scoring Bowdoin had gathered in 11 runs while poor old Maine, Jewett-less after the fifth, could only get one man across the plate. Duke Johnson worked for the White Sox, pitching an excellent game and keeping the Maine hits well scattered.

The first four innings of the game resembled the Maine game played recently on Whittier Field. Bowdoin scored once in the first and twice in the third due to the constant hitting and steady fielding of the Whites. In the third Needleman smashed out a long hit to left that would have been a home run if Dave had been able to run. This was the first game that Dave had played in since he hurt his ankle in the Wesleyan game.

It was in the fifth that it all happened. Bowdoin in scoring 8 runs batted around once and drove Maine's pitching ace Jack Jewett off the mound. When Jewett left the mound Maine's morale dropped considerably and even the spectators felt uneasy. Maine's run came in the seventh. She managed to fill the bases, squeezed in one run and then by faulty base-running was retired.

Outing Club Elects Officers

Approve M. I. W. S. A. Constitution

At a meeting of the Outing Club in the Debating Room of Hubbard Hall last Tuesday afternoon, the election of officers for the coming year took place. The results of the balloting were as follows: President, R. E. Cole, '25; Vice-President, R. J. Lavin, '24; Secretary, F. P. Perkins, '25; and Auditor, Professor Means.

Following the elections, the Constitution of the Maine Intercollegiate Winter Sports Association, drawn up by delegates from the four Maine colleges at Waterville at Easter time with the purpose of regulating and promoting winter sports was presented to the Club and passed by unanimous vote. A committee was also appointed at this time to conduct an investigation into the possibility of a trip into the White Mountains some time next fall. P. Palmer '26 and A. C. Andrews '26 were chosen for this committee.

It was also announced that two new canoes had been purchased by the Outing Club for the use of its members, and these are now ready for use.

Intercollegiate Glee Club Holds Meeting

Bowdoin Represented at New York Banquet to Discuss Plans for Competition

Last Saturday evening representatives from about fourteen eastern colleges and universities met to discuss plans for the annual Intercollegiate Glee Club Contest to be held in New York next year on March first. A number of matters of importance were taken up and talked over at length. Bowdoin was represented by F. K. Turgeon '23, leader of the Glee Club, and J. A. Black '23, manager.

The meeting was arranged by the Intercollegiate Musical Corporation, an organization that has for its purpose the betterment of collegiate music and that has conducted competitions in New York for a number of years. It will be remembered that the Bowdoin Club was entered in the competition this year, but because of financial stress at the time was unable to compete. This corporation has also organized contests for the Middle West at Chicago, and for the West at San Francisco, and on last Saturday organized a new branch for Northern New York, to include the colleges around and in Syracuse, Buffalo, etc. It is planned eventually to have the entire country divided into districts in each of which contests will be held, and then to have one national competition to pick the best club in the United States.

At this meeting there were about thirty men present representing about fourteen colleges and universities. Among them were Professor Davidson of Harvard, Professor Russell of Princeton, and Professor Wood of Dartmouth. Faculty and undergraduate representatives were present from Wesleyan, Pennsylvania State, U. of Vermont, Williams, U. of Pennsylvania, Columbia, Bowdoin and several others. Yale and Amherst were the only members of the competition who were not represented. Reginald Wertenrath, the famous concert singer.

Tennis Team Bows To Wesleyan, 6-0

Bowdoin Puts Up Hard Fight But Fails to Win a Match

When the tennis team went to Middletown last Wednesday, it found the Wesleyan team an opponent too strong to conquer. The game played by the Wesleyan men was far too powerful for the Bowdoin players and the latter went down to a 6 to 0 defeat. All of the players put up plucky fights, however, and it was through no lack of effort on the part of the Bowdoin men that they lost every match in both the singles and doubles. Schweiker, of Wesleyan, eliminated Lord by defeating him two straight sets, 6-4, 6-4. Hatfield, playing an extremely fast and sure game, put Bishop out of the running when he defeated him 6-1, 6-0. Cushman bowed before the racquet of Leland, of Wesleyan, to the tune of 6-3, 6-3. Wesleyan won her last point in the singles when Heidel beat Tolman, 6-4, 6-1.

In the doubles it looked as though Lord and Bishop would give Bowdoin at least one point, for these two players defeated Schweiker and Leland, 6-3. The latter staged a come-back, however, and won the next set 7-5. Apparently they had got into their stride by that time and the Bowdoin men were unable to stop their onslaught and lost the rubber set, 6-3. Cushman and Tolman could not hold Hatfield and Heidel and were defeated, 6-2, 6-4.

The summary:

Singles
Schweiker of Wesleyan, defeated Lord of Bowdoin, 6-4, 6-4.

Hatfield of Wesleyan, defeated Bishop of Bowdoin, 6-1, 6-0.

Leland of Wesleyan, defeated Cushman of Bowdoin, 6-3, 6-3.

Heidel of Wesleyan, defeated Tolman of Bowdoin, 6-4, 6-1.

Doubles
Schweiker and Leland of Wesleyan, defeated Lord and Bishop of Bowdoin, 3-6, 6-4.

Hatfield and Heidel of Wesleyan, defeated Cushman and Tolman of Bowdoin, 6-2, 6-4.

Golf Team Ties Brown And Loses To Tech

Bowdoin played her first two intercollegiate golf matches last Saturday, meeting Brown in the morning, and Massachusetts Tech in the afternoon at the Meadowbrook Golf Course. The results, considering the fact that it was Bowdoin's debut in the intercollegiate golf world, were far from discouraging, for the match with Brown ended in a tie and the match with Tech, although all four of the Bowdoin men lost, proved to be a closely fought battle for individual honors.

In the match of the morning with Brown, Fasso lived up to all expectations and defeated Leland, the opposing captain, by the score of three up and two to play. Fasso's score of 82 for the round of eighteen holes is remarkable for the first time he has ever played on the course. Richards, also playing good golf for a total score of 86, defeated him man by the count of 2 and one, but Keaney and Smith, although they put up a good fight, lost their matches four and two, and one up respectively, allowing Brown to even the score. An even break with Brown is certainly not to be sneered at, when all the facts are taken into consideration, and when it is known that Brown has just succeeded in defeating Columbia by a decisive score, Bowdoin's showing was very creditable.

In the Tech match in the afternoon Bowdoin was not so fortunate, dropping all four matches to the technical school team. Such a defeat was no disgrace, however, for the men against whom the Bowdoin players were matched were golfers of high ability. Fasso's opponent, Ballard, has just won the first state open tourney of the season held at the Charles River Country Club. After a hard fight, Fasso lost his match on the 17th green, three and two, after dropping the final hole when he missed a long put for a win by inches. It may be interesting to note at this time that Sadler, whom Fasso defeated several weeks ago at Brunswick in the DeWitt Clinton match, was runner-up to Ballard in the recent state tourney mentioned above. The remaining matches were all close, and the Tech players were forced to play real golf to nose out wins in each instance. The Boston team has been playing together for three years, and consequently have been able to work up to a high point. The fact that Bowdoin lost her match with this team is nothing to be ashamed of, and now that the White golf team has had the experience of actually going into an intercollegiate golf match she will feel able to go against Harvard and Dartmouth with more determination than ever.

Y. M. C. A. Elections Held

Recently a meeting and election of officers for next year was held by the Y.M.C.A. The officers chosen at this time were:

President: Charles Hildreth '25.
Vice-President: Lawrence S. Cockburn '25.

Representative to the Maine Intercollegiate Student Council: Richard H. Lee '24.

For the first time since 1899 a Bowdoin track team carried away first honors in the annual New England Intercollegiate Track Meet when last week end the athletes from Brunswick walked away with five first places, one second, one fourth, and one tie for fourth for a total of 29 1-3 points, outdistancing Massachusetts Tech by 51-3 points, and leading the sixteen other colleges contending for the championship by a wide margin. Bowdoin has a right to be proud of the men whom she sent down to Boston last week, and especially should she be proud of Frederic Tootell, her giant captain, who carried off unaided thirteen of the counters which went to make up the grand total for the Whites. Taking firsts in the hammer throw, and the discus, and a second in the shot put, "Toots" was easily the high-point man of the meet. But it must not be imagined for a moment that Bowdoin sent a one-man team down to carry off the New England championship, for "Mal" Hardy's victory in the 120-yard high hurdles, Foster's stirring win in the half mile, and Francis Bishop's well-earned first place in the pole vault, all contributed to the final decisive result.

True to expectations, Captain Tootell ran away with his favorite event, the hammer throw, without the slightest difficulty, his winning heave of 168 feet, 11 inches, outdistancing the best attempt of his nearest opponent by over 34 feet. Unfortunately Tootell's longest throw, a clean fling of 174 feet, 9 inches, could not be officially recorded.

Results Of Alexander Prize Speaking Trials

The trials for the selection of speakers in the Alexander Prize Speaking Contest which will take place on Monday, June 18, during Commencement Week, were held last Wednesday in Hubbard Hall. Out of a large field of aspirants, the following men were chosen on the basis of the work which they did in the trials: Barakat '26, Fasso '25, Gay '26, Hill '24, Lagro '26, Leighton '25, McIntire '25, Mitchell '25, Roberts '25. As alternates the following were selected: Hodgman '25, Johnson '26, Rowe '24.

Stage Set For Big Interscholastic Track Meet

Entries From Seventeen Schools Will Compete at Whittier Field

The annual Bowdoin Interscholastic Outdoor Track Meet will be held this year on Saturday, May 26, at Whittier Field. The meet, as at present planned, will open in the morning at 10.00 o'clock, and will continue until noon, when activities will be suspended till 2.00 o'clock, after which the events will be carried to their conclusions. Present indications all point towards one of the most successful meets that has yet been staged at the Bowdoin Field. The entry list will include seventeen different high and prep schools, exactly the same number as appeared in the meet last year. Of this number three will be found to be out of State institutions, Amherst High School, Phillips Exeter, and Dean Academy being the ones in question. Amherst High is the only entry which has not previously taken part in a Bowdoin Interscholastic Meet.

The complete list of entries follows:

Abbott High School, Amherst, Mass.
Bangor High School, Bangor, Me.
Coburn Classical Institute, Cony High School, Dean Academy, Franklin, Mass.
Deering High School, Edward Little High School, Phillips Exeter, Exeter, N. H.
Gorham High School, Hebron Academy, Portland High School, Fryeburg Academy, Farmington High School, Jewett Institute, Morse High School, Maine Central Institute.

ed, for the Bowdoin man fouled when he barely stepped outside the seven foot ring. In the discus, Tootell also fulfilled the highest hopes of his backers, hurling the weight for 119 feet, 2 inches. Clark, of Amherst, who took second, failed to equal the winning mark by the safe margin of seven feet. By taking a second in the shot put in addition to his firsts in hammer and discus, "Toots" proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that he was the foremost all-round weight man at the meet. It is interesting to note that Tootell failed to take a first in the shot put by the very narrow margin of 8 inches.

Mal Hardy brought joy to the hearts of the Bowdoin followers when he dashed down the track to a thrilling victory in the 120 yard high hurdles, in the unusually fast time of 15.4-5 seconds. The race proved to be one of the best of the day, with the Bowdoin man snatching victory from what looked like a sure defeat when he pulled ahead in the last few yards and beat Blodgett of Tech cleanly to the tape by a good stride. Hardy's failure to place in the 220 low hurdles after the marvelous race which he ran in the 120 event was only to be expected, for the gruelling finish in the latter was sufficient to take the stamina out of any runner in the world. The events were run in quick succession, and the Bowdoin man, who was the only athlete to run in both hurdle

Jordan and Gorham High Schools Win In Tennis Meet

Bowdoin Interscholastic Meet Big Success.

Out of a field of eleven preparatory and high schools from all parts of the State, Jordan High School won the scholastic tennis singles championship and Gorham High School the doubles in the big meet held at Bowdoin on Friday and Saturday of last week. Purington of Jordan had but little difficulty in carrying away the singles honors for his school, defeating Russel of Gorham by the score of 6-2, 6-0. Although the singles finals proved to be rather one-sided, the last match in the doubles proved to be hotly contested. Russel and Farlin of Gorham, playing against Davis and Neal of Thornton Academy, had their hands full in disposing of the Academy boys. After winning the first set in rather easy fashion, 6-2, the Gorham High players were forced to extend themselves to win the second 7-5. The next two sets proved to be hard fought affairs, with the High School boys on the losing end, 4-6, 6-8. In the rubber set, however, Gorham was out for blood, and after a hard fought match, took the final by a 6-4 count. The doubles finals were undoubtedly the most exciting of the matches played during the entire meet, and the results proved to be an upset to the early "dope" for either Thornton Academy or Edward Little High of Auburn had been picked by many as the probable winner.

Plans For War Memorial Are Now Under Way

Will Exhibit Model at Commencement

This Commencement the model of the rostrum, the memorial proposed by the War Memorial Committee, will be on exhibition. Mr. W. M. Kendall, the senior member of McKim, Mead and White, the college architects who have prepared the plans, was on the campus last Friday in conference with the college authorities on the site of the War Memorial. No definite decision was reached.

The War Memorial will be constructed of granite and will contain an appropriate inscription for all those men of Bowdoin who served in the World War as well as for those who fell. It is probable that plans will be made at Commencement for raising funds for this memorial.

A Wonderful Victory

Saturday afternoon at Cambridge, six Bowdoin track men gave an exhibition of pluck and determination which was nothing short of epochal for our Alma Mater. Competing against institutions many times our size, with scores of athletes to draw from, our track men, going through their events in perfect form, displayed an unquestionable superiority. When the report was sent, on Friday evening that the Bowdoin team had succeeded in placing eleven men in the final events, it seemed probable that our representatives would easily take second place in the meet. But when on the following evening those of us who had been unable to get to Boston for the event heard that Bowdoin was the winner of the meet by more than five points, it seemed almost impossible.

It had been twenty-five years since a Bowdoin team had won the championship in the New England games, and that one occasion, back in the last century had been the single instance in which a team from the State of Maine had ever finished with first honors. Thus, it is certainly not a small thing that these Bowdoin athletes have accomplished. For the first time in nearly a quarter of a century they have put to shame Bowdoin at the head of pack athletics in New England. Not only have they shown their ability to crush their traditional rivals for the State Championship, but they have gone on to greater honors, in both the New England and national games.

It is a splendid thing that this championship should come to Bowdoin, for more than one reason. Of course, the obvious one is that it demonstrates the athletic superiority of our fellow-students over the other students of New England. But that is the smallest point in the victory. The victory shows that the men of a small college, given a steady determination to win, and a will to put their best efforts into training for such victories, can emerge victors in contests with the teams of universities far larger than theirs, who have facilities far greater than any Bowdoin can expect to have. It shows that Bowdoin, cleaving straight and true to its scholastic requirements for athletes, as well as for musicians or debaters, can still produce teams which are able to excel in whatever field they may enter. It is a real triumph for the Bowdoin system of scholarship when it can produce such a team, handicapped, apparently, by drastic regulations as to scholarship, which have already removed from their number a half dozen almost certain point winners.

As it is a triumph for the Bowdoin system of scholarship, it is no less a triumph in a really great way for the Bowdoin system of track athletics. We have heard much said in the last few years of the men who make the coaching of athletic teams their life work. And a great part of what we have heard has been far from complimentary to the men. A very small amount of investigation will show that the team which last Saturday won the championship of New England in track is made up largely of men who have received their whole training in their branch of sport from the man who has trained Bowdoin track athletes for the past ten years. The man who, unless our expectations and beliefs are sadly unfounded, will become before long the greatest hammer-thrower the world has ever known, owes whatever he may have acquired of ability and skill in his chosen event to his entire co-operation with a coach who knows his business. As is the case with many splendid athletes who have made good in their track department in recent years, he came to Bowdoin with possibilities, assuredly, but with little else. For four years he has worked faithfully, following to the letter the instructions he has received from his coach, and he has won national recognition. There is nothing of the miraculous about the feat. It is simply the result of the conscientious training of a well-formed body, directed by a coach who bends his every effort for the honor of the college.

That is the way that Bowdoin has won her victories. And that is the way that Bowdoin will continue to win victories. As long as the men of Bowdoin are willing to put their best efforts into winning they will win. All honor to the track team and to their coach!

The Ivy Revue.

During the Ivy festivities next week, the Masque and Gown plans to present for the first time an original entertainment, in the form of a revue. There has been for some time considerable difficulty in making the annual performance of the dramatic club here in Brunswick a truly Bowdoin affair, breathing the atmosphere of the college life, and presenting an appearance of live originality. Hitherto the regular play presented by the road company has been used as a matter of course. This is generally a light comedy which has been successfully performed several seasons past. Owing to excessive royalties it has always been impossible for the college Thespians to present new plays, and this fact has done much to increase the difficulty of presenting a bright, interesting performance.

For some time it has been thought advisable that a change should take place. It was first suggested, that the new performance should be in the form of a musical comedy, using popular songs or an original libretto devised by members of the college. This form of entertainment has attained great popularity in several of the large universities, where a new comedy is prepared by members of the student body each season. At the University of Pennsylvania, in particular, this plan has been eminently successful. Here at Bowdoin, however, the numbers of available performers are so limited that such an effort would have little hope of success. The men who have the program in charge have decided to provide for a revue, which, while lacking the continuity of the musical comedy, yet offers originality and real interest throughout. With one exception, the numerous skits which make up the program have been prepared entirely by the men themselves, without outside assistance. The college contains considerable talent, and most of it is to be used in this performance. The committee in charge of arrangements have put a great deal of time and effort into making the affair a success, and their efforts deserve the best support of the student body.

The Masque and Gown is proving itself a progressive organization. It is putting real originality and interest into its performance this year. In consideration of this fact, it is only fitting that the college should give its full support. Representatives of nearly every fraternity group on the campus have already pledged the support of their members. Others are strongly urged to make every possible effort to see that both students and guests are present at the performance on Thursday evening.

er, was also present and entered into the discussion.

President A. F. Pickernell of the Corporation opened the discussion with some remarks concerning the method of selecting the songs for the contests. A motion was finally passed that the executive committee should compile a list of songs that it thought suitable, and send it to the colleges. By December first, the colleges must register their choice of a song which may be from the list, or may not, provided it is of equal quality. The sentiment of those present was that all the clubs should sing their songs unaccompanied, and such a motion was passed. This applies even to the college Alma Mater song. There was considerable discussion about improving of judging the work of the clubs, but the matter was finally left to the discretion of the executive committee.

Oxford International Assembly Described

The following communication describing the Oxford International Assembly has been received by the "Orient" from Edgar C. Taylor, a Bowdoin Alumnus of the Class of 1920, now at Trinity College, Oxford. The detailed account is very clearly given, and will need no additional explanation besides what it contains in itself.

"The cosmopolitan character of the student body of Oxford has always been one of the attractive features of the university life. Situated as it is in the center of the educational world between the east and the west and enjoying a unique tradition and prestige, Oxford has always been a shrine of the student world. But not until now have the foreign students been brought together in one organization where the various national points of view could be publicly presented to the undergraduate body of Oxford. The Oxford International Assembly, modeled as it is on the League of Nations in form and procedure, is now one of the most unique movements of Oxford history. Organized a year ago, it has drawn into its ranks representatives of forty-two nationalities. Its first meeting was under the presidency of Professor Gilbert Murray whose practical experience at Geneva was a great source of help to the organizers of the Assembly. His first successor was Magbool Mahmood, of India, who is already well known in American universities.

Though modeled on the League at Geneva, the Assembly is not bound in its organization by the limitations of the League, as the admittance of delegates from Turkey, Russia, the Irish Free State and the United States plainly shows. Delegates from the United States are elected in the Oxford American Club after heated debates between Democrats and Republicans and they have played a conspicuous part in the proceedings of the Assembly. Ralph Carson, Rhodes Scholar from Michigan, was the first American to be president of the Assembly. W. Y. Elliott, Rhodes Scholar from Tennessee, and E. S. Griffith, Rhodes Scholar from New York, have also served as president and the former rendered valuable service to the cause of the Assembly by aiding in the formation of similar bodies in French universities. Other Americans have served on the Secretariat, conspicuous among them being S. W. Washington, Rhodes Scholar from West Virginia, who is now General Secretary.

The questions which have been dealt with by the Assembly are to a large extent those which are considered by the League of Nations. Principal among them have been the various questions of the Far East, the Epirus dispute, the question of Egyptian independence, the dispute between Turkey and Greece, the question of the union of Austria and Germany, reparations, disarmament and minorities. The discussions, which are held in the Union debating hall, have thrown upon the screen of Oxford opinion a clear silhouette of the various nationalistic point of view. No where is seen more clearly the difference between the East and the West, the Latin and the Saxon, the Continental and the American. It is not extravagant to say that the Oxford Assembly presents in a small scale a cross-section of world opinion.

Steps are being taken to organize similar Assemblies in other large and cosmopolitan universities of the world and to unite these organizations in order to obtain student opinion throughout the world. Exchange visits and inter-changes of reports and decisions on international problems will be arranged between the various Assemblies, and it is especially hoped that the plan will be adopted in many of the large American universities, as indeed has already been done at Columbia and Wisconsin. The cosmopolitan character of many American universities make them like Oxford peculiarly fitted for such organizations, and where it is impossible to secure delegates of every nationality, expert delegates may be substituted to represent some nations. Physical suggestions and help of any kind will be gladly given upon inquiry to the General Secretary of the Oxford International Assembly."

Hawthorne Prize

Story Contest Opens

As it is known by all the students on the campus, a prize of forty dollars, given by Mrs. George C. Riggs, Litt.D. (Kate Douglas Wiggin), of New York, is awarded each year to the author of the best short story written by a member of the student body. The competition is open to members of the Freshman, Sophomore and Junior classes. The stories offered in this competition should not be less than 1500 words in length, they should be typewritten, signed with fictitious names, and left at the desk in the Library not later than Wednesday, June 6.

Alumni Notes

The marriage of Miss Mary L. Baxter, daughter of Hon. and Mrs. Rupert H. Baxter of Bath, to Bruce H. M. White '22, of Skowhegan, was solemnized last Saturday in Grace Church, Bath. A great many out of town guests were present, including a large family party from Bath, a member of which was Gov. Baxter, the uncle of the bride.

LAW STUDENTS

THE BOSTON UNIVERSITY LAW SCHOOL

Trains students in principles of the law and the technique of the profession and prepares them for active practice wherever the English system of law prevails. Course for LL.B. requires three school years.

Beginning in the Autumn of 1925, one year in college will be required for admission. In 1925, the requirement will probably be two years in college.

Intercollegiate Meet

Intercollegiate races, was not given the necessary time to rest after winning the 120 event. Lovell's fourth place in the 220 low hurdles was commendable in the fast field against which he was running, and the point which he brought in boosted the final score.

Perhaps the prettiest race of the day in which a Bowdoin man finished was the half mile. Foster, who heretofore has been running only the mile, in which event it will be remembered he ran such a game race in the Maine Intercollegiate two weeks ago, entered the race as a dark horse, but remained to lead the whole field to the tape in fast time. The race developed into a battle between Foster, Richmond of Williams, Mahoney of Boston, and Snow of Tech, the fast pace putting all the other entries out of the running for honors before the half way mark was reached. But Mahoney of Boston College, who was entered as the favorite, found in that half mile that he was running against a man who did not know when he was licked, and though the Boston man extended himself to the limit, Foster's well-known grit carried him to the tape a stride in advance of his opponent for a clean-cut victory in one of the most thrilling races of the day.

It remained to Francis Bishop, however, to gather in the points which brought the final victory to Bowdoin. When this concluding event of the meet was reached, Bowdoin, Tech, and Williams were in a deadlock for first honors, with the outcome of the pole vault as the deciding factor which would swing the victory to one of the three. But the Bowdoin man spurred on by the great responsibility resting on his shoulders, gave everything that was in him, with the result that he sailed cleanly over the bar at 11 feet, 3 inches for first place, carrying with him a well-earned victory for the Bowdoin track team in the New England Intercollegiate.

Bowdoin's 1-3 of a point was due to the efforts of Charlie Philbrook, who jumped himself into 4th place for fourth place in the running high jump. This victory in the New England Intercollegiate track meet comes as a climax to one of the most successful track seasons in the history of Bowdoin College. All credit should be given to the athletes who have made clean sweeps in all the meets that they have entered this year, who carried off a decisive victory in the Maine

Intercollegiate and who have now gone down to Boston and marched away with the track championship of New England, and while we are praising the athletes themselves we must not forget "Jack" Magee, the track coach who helped to make such victories possible. All hail to the Bowdoin track team and to Coach Magee.

Whatever your "Choice of a Career," college training has increased your economic value, and whatever business or profession you enter, adequate life insurance is a proper self-appraisal of your powers in that direction.

The traditions, practices, and financial strength of the JOHN HANCOCK Mutual Life Insurance Company are such that the college man can take peculiar pride in having a John Hancock policy on his life. It is a distinct asset from the start. It will pay you to buy it; and later on, should you think of joining this company, it will also pay you to sell it. Our representatives will tell you just how, and can assist you in selecting both your career and your insurance.

Tootell Easily Breaks I. C. 4-A Record With 181 Foot 6 1/2 Inch Throw Nearest Competitor 32 Feet Under Bowdoin Man's Heave

For the third consecutive time the University of California won the National Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet last Saturday at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. Although only thirteen men made up the California team, these athletes amassed a total of 39 1/2 points, enough to beat Princeton, who scored 33 points, by a safe margin. Yale, who with Princeton upheld the hopes of the East, failed to come through with the expected wins, but captured third place with 33 points. Pennsylvania needed but a point to tie with Yale. Cornell, aided by the victories of Kirby in the mile and Lovejoy in the 220 yard dash took fifth place. With 13 points to their credit Penn State and Syracuse tied for sixth place. Johns Hopkins landed eighth with 12 points and Dartmouth took ninth, winning 10.

It is interesting to note that although California won the meet, she failed to place a man in any event but the 120 yard high hurdles. In this event, Becker took third place. The field men, however, headed by Neufeldt, the individual point winner of the meet who alone topped 11 points, were unbeatable.

Not one of California's star weight heavies was able to better or even equal the distance attained by Tootell in the 16 lb. hammer throw. The giant captain smashed the intercollegiate record, as he was expected to do, by throwing the weight 181 feet, 6 1/2 inches. After the meet, the hammer which he threw was found to be one inch short of the regulation length and two ounces heavier than the regulation weight. Had the hammer been of the proper length and weight, it is more than probable that Tootell would have attained a greater distance. According to the opinion of the Boston Herald sporting reporter, the proper dimensions of the hammer would have allowed Tootell to add several feet to his throw. Whether this is so or not, it is undeniably true that Tootell has no peer in college circles and probably beyond those circles, for his nearest competitor was able only to throw 149 feet, 6 inches 32 feet, 1 inch shorter than the throw made by the captain of Bowdoin's New England championship track team.

The results of events in which Bowdoin men participated are as follows:

Half Mile Run
Won by Helfrich, Penn State; second, Enck, Penn State; third, Marston, Georgetown; fourth, Conger, Princeton; fifth, Campbell, Yale. Time, 1:55 8-10.

120 Yard High Hurdles
Final, won by Thompson, Princeton; second, Kaufman, Penn State; third, Baker, California; fourth, Busby, Dartmouth; fifth, Myers, Syracuse. Time, 1:55-10.

220 Yard Low Hurdles
Final, won by Taylor, Princeton; second, Scattergood, Princeton; third, Myers, Rutgers; fourth, Bowman, Syracuse; fifth, Sullivan, Boston College. Time, 23 5-10.

Pole Vault
Norris, California and Owen, Penna. tied for first at 12 feet, 9 inches; third, Scholth, Yale, 12 feet, 9 inches; Graydon, Cornell, Robusch, Pittsburgh, and Gering, Cornell, tied for fourth at 11 feet.

16 Pound Hammer Throw
Won by Tootell, Bowdoin, 181 feet, 6 1/2 inches; second, Hills, Princeton, 149 feet, 6 inches.

JUNIORS HOLD IVY EXERCISES

"First Annual Outburst" Presented By Ivy Revue Committee Great Success

Before a large and appreciative audience the Ivy Revue Committee presented "The First Annual Outburst" under the auspices and direction of the Masque and Gown last evening at the Cumberland Theater. It is the first attempt ever undertaken in the college along these lines as may be seen from the name, and it is safe to say the audience hopes that it will not be the last. From start to finish the whole show was an exhibition of talent plus work. Possibly the most notable thing about the entire performance was the scenic and lighting effects, which are entirely new to Brunswick, together with the panels and batik work.

The program of the performance was published as a special section of the Bear Skin which appeared just before the performance. Mr. Abbott and his assistants deserve much praise for their work in charge of the scenery, and Mrs. A. H. McCormick and Mrs. W. H. Davis whose efforts made possible the scenic effects. The Ivy Revue Committee, in charge of the production, was chosen some time ago by the Masque and Gown, and is composed of the following members: Jewett '24, chairman and general stage manager; Mr. Abbott, in charge of scenery work; Wilder '23 in charge of preparing program; Adams '25 in charge of lighting. A large corps of workers assisted in the production and it was only through their united efforts that the results were obtained. Notable among those whose aid was indispensable were Keniston '24, who, in addition to writing a large part of the music, took part in most of the musical numbers; R. B. Pike '25, who, until incapacitated by a sprained ankle, aided Mr. Abbott in the preparation of the scenery and batik work. The assistant managers are Nutter '26 and J. Jones '26.

Among the musical numbers worthy of note was the singing of the chorus composed of men otherwise engaged in the production, and which was

House Dances, Ball Game, Ivy Revue, Last Chapel, Gym Dance, Make Week Eng Big Success

The annual Ivy festivities were begun in many of the houses on last Wednesday evening with the house dance. At many of the fraternities, however, the house parties did not start until last night. Many of the houses went away for their dances, while others are planning trips tonight and tomorrow. Among the many festivities that have or will be carried out are the "First Annual Outburst" presented by the Ivy Revue Committee under the auspices of the Masque and Gown, which was given last night at the Cumberland Theater; the ball game with Bates this morning at Whittier Field; and the Ivy Hop tonight in the gymnasium.

Ivy Day Exercises

This afternoon the Junior Class held its Ivy Day exercises. The program was opened by the prayer offered by Richard H. Lee. The oration by George E. Hill was next in order, then the poem by John Watson, which was followed by the presentations by Francis P. Bishop, vice-president, who took charge of the ceremonies in the absence of Brooks E. Savage, president. The Ivy was then planted, accompanied by the singing of the class ode, written by Rouillard.

The wooden spoon was presented to Arthur J. Miguel, popular man. A bell was given to William Rowe, the class bell boy, while P. Dennison Smith, the class charmer, accepted with characteristic poise the snake. The class "plugger," Forest C. Butler, was bestowed with an oil can. Malcolm E. Hardy, our librarian, received a book, while Alfred Beals, the class lazy man, was given the ideal gift of a bed.

The officers of the Junior Class are Brooks E. Savage, president; Francis P. Bishop, vice-president; secretary and treasurer, Sylvio T. Gonya; marshal, Robert J. Kirkpatrick, Jr. The committee in charge of the arrangements for Ivy Day was composed of David D. Needelman (chairman), Irvine W. Jardine, Frank A. Pike, Joseph T. Small, and P. Dennison Smith, Jr.

Ivy Hop

Tonight the Ivy Hop will be held in the gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

The patronesses will be: Mrs. Kenneth C. M. Sills, Mrs. Charles H. Hutchins, Mrs. Frank E. Woodruff, Mrs. Rosemary Ham, Mrs. Charles T. Burnett, Mrs. Manton Copeland, Mrs. William H. Davis, Mrs. George R. Elliott, Mrs. Edward H. Wass, Mrs. Austin H. McCormick, Mrs. Glenn R. Johnson, Mrs. Edward S. Hammond, Mrs. Morgan B. Cushing. Music will be furnished by Morey Pearl's Orchestra.

Exeter Walks Away With Interscholastic Track Meet

Winner's Total 67 1/2 Points; Portland Second With 21; Four Records Broken

With seven firsts, eight seconds, two thirds, and two fourths Exeter painted the 25th Annual Track Meet red and gray at Whittier Field last Saturday. Her total of 67 1/2 points as against the 21 scored by Portland, her nearest rival, tells the story of the meet. Three of the track records which have stood for years were smashed by the athletes from New Hampshire. Elliott, the Exeter hurdler sent the records in the 120 yard high hurdles and 220 yard low hurdles sky-rocketing when he raced through the former event in the remarkable time of 15 3-5 seconds and the latter event in 25 3-5 seconds. His teammate O'Neil walked away from the whole field in the 880 yard run and crossed the tape 2 minutes and 3-5 of a second after the starting gun had been fired. Exeter was unable, however, to produce a 440 yard dash man who could beat Higgins, of Abbott School. This speedy boy smashed the record in his event, winning in the very good time of 51 4-5 seconds. The high point winner of the meet was Farrington, of Cony High School, who won 10 1/2 of his school's 123 points. This all-round athlete topped first place in the shot put, thirds in the discus throw and 220 yard dash, fourth in the 100 yard dash, and tied for fourth in the running broad jump. A varied performance such as this deserves the highest commendation. The order in which the different schools finished is as follows: Exeter 67 1/2; Portland 21; Coburn Classical Institute 13 1/2; Cony High 12 1/2; Gardiner High 7 1/2; Abbott School, Edward Little High, and Farmington 5 each; Deering High and Hebron 3 each; Dean Academy, Fryeburg Academy, Gorham High, Leavitt Institute, and Morse High failed to place.

The summary of events are:

Trial Heats—220 Yard Dash
First semi-final, won by McCready; second, Farrington; third, Mittelsdorf. Time, 23 1-5 seconds.

Second semi-final, won by O'Neil; second, Higgins; third, Merrill. Time, 23 2-5 seconds.

Final heat, won by O'Neil, Exeter; second, McCready, Exeter; third, Farrington, Cony High; fourth, Mittelsdorf, Coburn Classical. Time, 22 3-5 seconds.

120-Yard Hurdles—Trial Heats

First semi-final, won by Villas, Exeter; second, Torrey Deering. Time, 16 2-5 seconds.

Baseball Team Swamps Colby In Series Game

One Bad Inning, Netting Six Runs,
Loses Game To Tufts, 9-5

By defeating Colby at Waterville last Wednesday afternoon in the second game of the season between the two teams, Bowdoin pulled out of the tie for second position with Bates in the State baseball series, and on Saturday went into first place when Colby was again defeated by Maine. The 10-5 count by which Bowdoin defeated the Waterville outfit offered some measure of revenge for the loss of the first game earlier in the season. Although the affair at Waterville proved to be a far better exhibition of baseball than that which had been put up at Brunswick between the same teams, the playing was rather loose, a total of no less than 10 errors being recorded. The game was featured by heavy hitting, Bowdoin pounding out nine safe hits and Colby eleven. Although hit rather hard, Johnson pitched a good game for the White, working effectively in the pinches and striking out five of the opposing batsmen. Callaghan, who had previously pitched his team to a victory over Bowdoin, took the mound in the hope of repeating his performance, but he was sadly disappointed.

The very first inning saw four runs cross the plate to Bowdoin's credit. Callaghan walked the first two men to face him, and the third, Needelman, singled. Morrill failed to get across the plate in safety when Small hit Callaghan, but errors committed by Cutler at second base and by Callaghan enabled the White to bring in four runs. In her half of the first, Colby made a good attempt to even matters, when Royal hammered out a home run with one man on base. Bowdoin came back strong in the second, however, poking out four clean hits, one of which was a double. These accompanied by a walk and a hit batsman Smith, brought in four more runs to Bowdoin's credit. At this point O'Neil took Callaghan's place in the box, and during the next inning succeeded in holding his opponents scoreless. In Colby's half of the second, loose playing by the Bowdoin nine accounted for two more of Colby's runs before the side could be retired. Neither team could score in the third, but in the fourth Bowdoin

Bowdoin Golf Team Ties Augusta C.C. Second Time

Playing a return match with the Bowdoin golf team at Brunswick last Thursday afternoon, the Augusta Country Club succeeded in tying the college team for the second time this season. The last meeting took place at Augusta on May 12, at which time the two teams played through the rain to a 2-2 decision. The match last Thursday afternoon proved to be a repetition of the affair at Augusta. The Bowdoin team was the same as that which went against Augusta in the first match, but the Country Club team showed two new faces in its lineup in an attempt to secure a decisive victory at this second meeting. Viles and Pishon taking the places formerly occupied by McCardle and Hill. The change appeared to make no difference in the final result however, for the end of the match found the teams again deadlocked.

Fasso, according to predictions, had but little trouble in disposing of his man by the count of 5 and 4. Tyson, former State champion, against whom Fasso played, it will be remembered, succeeded in defeating the Bowdoin man by the score of 2 and 1 at Augusta during the first match. For Fasso to turn the tables on a man of Dr. Tyson's ability at their next meeting is no mean feat, and the 5 and 4 score is evidence enough of Fasso's decisive victory. Fasso played almost super-golf in defeating his opponent, turning in a score of 36 on the way in.

Richards, the Bowdoin captain, succeeded in defeating his opponent, Williamson, in a close match by the score of one up. In the last match with Augusta, Richards, like Fasso, dropped his match to his opponent. On Thursday afternoon, however, he followed his teammate's example and turned the tables on his former conqueror.

Augusta's two new additions to the team, who took the places at three and four formerly occupied by Hill and McCardle, succeeded in taking into camp the Bowdoin men who had defeated their teammates the week before. Viles, playing number three for Augusta, disposed of Keaney after a hard fight by the score of 3 and 2, while Pishon took his match from Williams with a count of 9 and 7.

There is some talk of scheduling a third match to play off a rubber between these two teams who have succeeded in tying each other twice, but it is rather doubtful if the deciding match can be arranged at this time. Bowdoin still has one more match on her schedule, playing Portland Country Club in Portland this Saturday, and after that match the season will probably be called to a close due to the ensuing final examinations. Whether or not the rubber match can be played with Augusta is therefore a cause for some doubt.

Tennis Team Easily Defeats Tufts 6-0

In the first game of the New England Trip the Bowdoin Tennis Team won from Tufts on May 18. Bowdoin did not allow Tufts to win a single match winning by the score of 6-0. The summary:

Doubles—Lord and Bishop defeated D'Arcy and Crowell, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Tolman and Cushman defeated Rantch and Doleman 6-2, 7-5.

Singles—Lord defeated Doleman, 6-2, 8-6.

Bishop defeated D'Arcy, 6-0, 3-6, 6-2.

Cushman defeated Crowell, 1-6, 6-4, 8-6.

Tolman defeated Rantch, 4-6, 9-7, 6-1.

Golf Team Defeated By Brunswick C. C. 6-4

The Bowdoin golf team experienced its second defeat of the season when it went down before the Brunswick Country Club team on the Brunswick links by the count of 6-4. The Nassau system of scoring was used. Fasso was the only Bowdoin player to take all three points involved from his player, trimming Sadler 6 and 5 with a card of 79. Richards managed to gain one point from his opponent, taking the first nine holes but finally losing the match 2 up. Keaney, at number three, dropped all three points to his man, Nash, ending with the score 4 and 3. Aspinwall also lost three points to Baxter, who defeated the Bowdoin player 3 and 2.

On Saturday, the Bowdoin golf team will travel to Portland to meet the Country Club team of that city on their home links. Portland will place a strong team against Bowdoin, and just what the outcome will be is uncertain. This will in all probability close the Bowdoin season, although it is barely possible that one or two more matches may be arranged.

Dr. F. C. Tyson of Augusta, 5 and 4.
S. F. Richards of Bowdoin, defeated W. B. Williamson of Augusta one up.
W. P. Viles of Augusta, defeated H. M. Keaney of Bowdoin, 3 and 2.
H. L. Pishon of Augusta, defeated S. H. Williams of Bowdoin 9 and 7.

PORTRAIT OF

SIR ISAAC NEWTON

James II is Dead— NEWTON Lives

IT has always been known that free bodies fall. The earth has a strange attraction. How far does it extend? No one knew before Newton, sitting in his garden, one day in 1665, began to speculate.

"Why should not the attraction of gravitation reach as far as the moon?" he asked himself. "And if so, perhaps she is retained in her orbit thereby." He began the calculation, but overwhelmed by the stupendous result that he foresaw, he had to beg a friend to complete it.

In Newton's Principia were laid down his famous laws of motion—the basis of all modern engineering. The universe was proved to be a huge mechanism, the parts of which are held together in accordance with the great law of gravitation.

James II was reigning when the Principia appeared in 1687. He is remembered for the Bloody Assizes of Jeffreys, for his complete disregard of constitutional liberties, for his secret compacts with Louis XIV and the huge bribes that he took from that monarch, and for the revolution that cost him his crown; Newton is remembered because he created a new world of thought, because he enabled scientists and engineers who came after him to grapple more effectively with the forces of nature.

When, for instance, the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company determine the stresses set up in a steam turbine by the enormous centrifugal forces generated as the rotor spins, they practically apply Newton's laws in reaching conclusions that are of the utmost value to the designing engineer.

Stanley Plummer Speaking
Contest Won By Hill '24

George E. Hill '24 was awarded the Stanley Plummer Prize at the annual Prize Speaking Contest held May 21 in Hubbard. This prize, consisting of the annual income of a fund of $1,000 and first awarded in 1921, is given for excellence in original and spoken composition in the English language on the part of the members of the Junior class. Professor Davis presided and the judges were President Sills, Superintendent John A. Cone, and Rev. G. F. Rouillard.

Besides Hill the speakers were Francis P. Bishop, John H. Gulick, Richard H. Lee, George W. Rowe, and Raymond J. Saunders.

"The Cancellation of the Allied Debts" was Hill's subject. In arguing for the cancellation of the debts he put forward two reasons: one, that it would be to our best economic advantage, and second, that it is our moral duty. If the United States is to prosper we must regard the other nations. If industry is to flourish European markets must be encouraged. Both these things can be brought about by the cancellation of the allied debts. Hill stated that legally the United States can collect the money owed us by European nations, but can it morally? Decidedly not for the eleven billion debt will not come anywhere near reaching the number of lives European nations lost in the war.

The first speaker of the evening, Francis Bishop, argued for A Playground for Brunswick. Playgrounds have been tried and found successful in other places the size of Brunswick. Mr. Bishop explained the need of a playground in Brunswick, stating that such an organization would be of great value, both mentally and physically to the boys and girls of this town. A third point in the speech was that Brunswick was able to support a definite, well-organized playground system.

Through the argument that a change of calendar to a calendar of thirteen months would save time, money, and much trouble, John H. Gulick explained a calendar of thirteen months, each month having twenty-eight days. He exhorted his audience to imagine the time saved in looking up dates as we have to do now; the trouble saved by business men in figuring statistics, and the money saved in printing calendars. One great objection, said Gulick, to this new calendar is that all historical dates would have to be revised for the last 172 years. But this of course would be a simple matter.

Richard H. Lee spoke on "The United States and the World Court." By all means the United States should join the World Court urged Lee, who claimed that the United States by adopting President Harding's proposal for a World Court can entirely safeguard its rights and can help from becoming in League of Nations matters. If we are to trust international peace at all the World Court is a necessity. It would not be right for the United States to accept the services of the Court if it does not assume the responsibility. Finally, by joining the Court the United States would lend it prestige.

William Rowe, in speaking of class finances, upbraided the present system in being insufficient and inefficient. The responsibility is not upon the individual but upon the system. Every year less than twenty in the college handle $6,000. There is no accounting or auditing required or considered customary. Rowe declared that the students should know their financial system and know where their money goes and that the college should know what it is doing to men handling class finances, whether or not they are being made responsible citizens. Rowe urged that we make this little world of ours the sort of world we would live in outside.

Raymond J. Saunders, the concluding speaker of the evening explained the Minimum Wage Decision. This decision handed down by the Supreme Court is the worst blow to business in years. It lends encouragement to those who are trying to make unconstitutional all minimum wage laws of the states and to make it impossible for any further legislation of labor. If the Supreme Court continues to render opposite decisions such as this one the power of the court will be curtailed, declared Saunders.

Bowdoin Chess Team
Defeats Alumni

On Tuesday evening, May 8, the Bowdoin Chess team, which was selected during the course of the year by means of intramural contests, defeated a team composed of three of the alumni by the score of 7-2. The Bowdoin players were Philbrick '23, Dunlaevy '23, and Walsh '25, while the alumni team was composed of Sayward '16, Philbrick '17, and Leatherbarrow. The match was played at the Portland Athletic Club, where both teams were the guests of Mr. Sayward.

The individual results were as follows:

Dunlaevy defeated Philbrick '17.
Walsh defeated Sayward.
Leatherbarrow defeated Philbrick '23.
Dunlaevy defeated Leatherbarrow.
Walsh defeated Philbrick '17.
Sayward defeated Philbrick '23.

Bowdoin Second Defeats
Bates Second In Baseball

The Bowdoin Second team last week on Wednesday afternoon defeated the Bates Second team in baseball at Lewiston by the score of 6 to 2. Stalford, pitching for the Bowdoin team, showed a wonderful control and effectiveness, retiring fourteen batters by the strikeout route. He was the outstanding feature of the White crew. Although seven hits were made off his delivery they came at times when they were least effective and had little effect on the score.

Tarbell, the Garnet pitcher, did some good work for that team until the seventh inning, when the Bowdoin team started things its own way and rushed four runs across the plate, forcing Tarbell to retreat. He was then replaced by Fellows who struck out four men in the next two innings, but was unable to overcome the lead already obtained by the Bowdoin crew. The White team played a much closer game than their opponents who made nine errors in comparison to the two made by Bowdoin.

The first scoring was done in the third inning after Berry had been passed by Tarbell. Stalford flied to Tarbell on an attempt sacrifice, while Bowker was thrown out at first. Berry reached second on a wild throw to first and scored on a single by Spear through shortstop.

No more scores were tallied until the seventh when the Bates team went up in the air and Bowdoin scored four runs. Tarbell hit Berry, Stalford was retired by a strikeout. Bowker, the next man in order, reached second on a passed ball and scored on a double made by Spear. From then until the end of the inning Bowdoin had everything her own way and scored three more runs making their total five and Bates nothing.

Bates succeeded in scoring two runs in the eighth. Addition singled and reached second on an error. Fellows singled just over second which scored addition thereby adding one run to the Bates score. The other run was obtained after Fellows had stolen second and scored on a long single to deep center by Lamprinakos.

Bowdoin got another in their half of the eighth on a base on balls, a hit, and an error. Fellows prevented further errors by his teammates by fanning four men in the two innings on the slab.

Spear and Sibley got all the hits for the White, each man getting three. Spear's double was the only two base hit of the day. Milderberger saved Tarbell a lot of trouble by pulling down three hard line drives in left field. Addition led the Bates team with the stick, but had a bad day in the field.

Stalford mowed down three successive batters in the second and fourth innings. In the second, third and fourth innings only ten men faced the Bowdoin pitcher, eight of these going out by the strikeout route, his work was the feature of the game.

Fasso Wins From Pierce In President Cup Tourney

The President's Cup, offered to the winner of the College golf tourney, goes this year to T. N. Fasso '25, who earned his right to the trophy by defeating H. H. Pierce in the final round held last week. The match proved to be one of the closest of the tourney, Fasso only taking the victory on the last hole by the count of one up. During the early part of the match, indications seemed to point to a decisive victory for Pierce, for on the sixth hole he stood three up. Fasso pulled himself together, however, and by playing careful golf turned seeming defeat into a well-earned victory.

Both players went through a hard group of players in reaching the finals, Fasso defeating Wood, Robinson, and Richards on his way up, while Pierce took into camp Aspinwall, Smith, and Vose. In the semi-finals, Fasso found himself matched against Richards, captain of the golf team. Although the match looked like a hard one, Fasso was in fine trim and defeated his man 7 and 6. In Pierce's bracket of the semi-finals, Vose loomed up as an opponent, but the Freshman golfer went down to a close defeat by the count of 2 up.

The calibre of golf exhibited throughout the tourney was, in general, of a high calibre. The finals proved to be an especially fine exhibition of playing, Fasso turning in a medal score of 83 and Pierce an 84. The closeness of the medal scores gives some idea of how evenly matched the two finalists were.

Captain-Elect of Football

Phi Chi In Her Ancient Glory Half Century Ago

Gory Days of Late Sixties.

There is before me, somewhat faded in photographic tone but still vivid in psychic expression and potent in the memories it starts a-going, a likeness of the Class of '71, taken at Yarmouth on the day of our Sophomore hay-wagon ride in the autumn of 1889. A similar representation of the Phi Chi members of '73, now due at Brunswick for semi-centennial responsibilities, appears in Mr. John Clair Minot's and Mr. Donald Francis Snow's "Tales of Bowdoin." In the latter group I recognize, with discernment that seems quite contemporary, the already portly figure of the late Andrew Peters Wiswell, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Maine. Wiswell is cuddling up to a human skeleton of most disreputable visage, crowned with the shocking relic of a tall hat and seated jauntily upon the Phi Chi bass drum. Next to the rature Chief Justice is young Frank Hatch of Portsmouth, who died only the other day in Honolulu after having served the Hawaiian Government as Minister of Foreign Affairs and as Minister to the United States in the year preceding annexation, and afterwards as Justice of the Insular Supreme Court. Hatch clutches a stick and wears upon his countenance a look of extreme truculence. There, too, are Billy Blake of Bangor and Albert Joel Boardman, the youngest of a notable sequence of three brothers who in turn jumped the St. Croix river, as Kenneth Sills did a quarter of a century later, to blend the vigor of the Maritime Provinces with the enduring graces of the Bowdoin spirit. The middle Boardman, Fred of '69—if it is my privilege to meander a bit—was the only pursuivant of the higher education, in my memory of the ancients, who could pull his chin up to the gymnasium bar half a dozen (or was it a dozen?) times in succession by the little finger of one hand.

The foregoing relates mostly to '73, the class just at present in the focus of celebrity. The corresponding earlier picture of '71 at Yarmouth displays certain Sophomores of hoodum aspect fit to engage the attention of the police anywhere, yet embodying, as usual in such cases, the potentialities of eminence in the learned professions, sacred and secular. The deplorable gang includes men about to win distinction in their several fields of honest effort. Alas! of those in this Sophomore group who were graduated after the mutilation of the class in consequence of the events now to be narrated there remain but two. One is the esteemed Rev. Dr. Everett S. Stackpole, who has done much good in the world both in the pulpit at home and abroad as the President and Professor of Systematic Theology in the School of Theology in Florence, Italy, now cultivating his Sabine farm in West Bath. The other and his worthy survivor is shown in the photograph banging pandemonium out of the ponderous gawgaw or hewgaw, still remembered in college tradition. It may be proper to explain here, once for all, that this classic instrument of horror, which some philologists both in the Bowdoin Faculty and out of it have persisted in styling a "gawgaw" and which mistaken collectors of academic antiques have imagined to be a large tin horn, or something that it really was not, consisted in fact of a circular saw of considerable diameter and uncommonly vibrant and resonant quality. When struck with sufficient force by an adequate hammer it was almost capable of awakening Tut-anh-amen.

I hope it may not be considered frivolous thus to approach the assigned subject on its seamy side. The essentials of college life are substantially changeless from one generation to another. The accidents of college life, the customs, the fashions, the moral

CLASS OF 1898 AS JUNIORS

Class of 1898 Opened Bowdoin's Second Century

Well-Known Alumni Headed Student Activities

The class of 1898 entered college at the beginning of Bowdoin's second century. The great centennial celebration at which Chief Justice Fuller was the orator had occurred the preceding June. The Seares Scientific Building was dedicated soon after the opening of the fall term: the Walker Art Building had been completed but a short time before. There were no fraternity houses, but each of the Greek-letter societies controlled an "end" of one of the dormitories. "Gym" work was conducted in the old Sargent Gymnasium (peace to its ashes!), and the library was housed in a wing of the chapel. Till our junior year all athletic contests were held on the delta adjoining the Medical School. It was there that the Dartmouth eleven played Bowdoin in the fall of '94.

There were no street cars in town, and it was a long, long way to Bath. Indeed, it was something of an event when the Bowdoin Republican Club on September 26, 1896, journeyed there to hear William Jennings Bryan, candidate for President, address a democratic rally. On that night Governor Baxter began his public career by a contest with the Bath police—a contest which ended the following February with a jury verdict in the Governor's favor for one cent! During the remainder of his undergraduate days the Governor wore the penny as a watch charm. A unique feature of the trial was the Bowdoin yell given with the court's permission by a select coterie of students to illustrate the high lights of a typical college gathering.

Until our senior year the Varsity football team had never been defeated by a Maine college. October 2, 1897, Bates won from Bowdoin for the first time by a score of 10 to 6. One of the most important athletic events of our day was a tie game with Dartmouth at Portland, October 5, 1895. Both touchdowns for Bowdoin were scored by Donald B. MacMillan. If I remember correctly, "Bowdoin Beata," written by Henry H. Pierce, '96, and published in the "Orient" October 2, 1895, under the title "Loyal Till Death," was first sung at the games that season.

The annual field meet of the Maine colleges was inaugurated in our freshman year. In all these contests Bow-doin was an easy victor. The captain of the athletic team chosen from our class was Clarence F. Kendall, the present Commissioner of Health for the state of Maine. Dr. Kendall was an exceedingly versatile athlete and held a remarkable record as individual point winner.

The tennis champions of the class of '98 were John F. Dana, now a prominent Portland attorney, and Howard R. Ives, whose untimely death has been deeply felt both by the class and the college.

In the spring of '98 the baseball team began the season by winning six consecutive victories, defeating Brown, University of Maine, Colby, Boston College, Amherst, and Tufts. The team was under the captaincy of Ralph M. Greenlaw, '99, now a distinguished lawyer of Providence. R. I. The pitchers were Willard T. Libby '99, present superintendent of one of the Brown Company's paper mills, and the late Harry O. Bacon, 1900. The catcher was Jacob E. Wignot, '99, now superintendent of schools at Dover, N. H.

When the class of '98 entered college, the editor-in-chief of the "Orient" was John Clair Minot, '96, whose book reviews to-day delight thousands of readers. The "Quill" made its initial appearance January 15, 1897, with Percival P. Baxter, '98, as chairman. It was modeled after the Yale "Courant" in the days when Gouverneur Morris was one of its editors. The original cover design represented a student in cap and gown holding a huge quill. A year later the present design exhibiting the silhouette of Longfellow when a student was substituted. Both designs were the work of William W. Lawrence '98, now Professor of English in Columbia University.

The present editors of the "Quill" may be interested to know that contemporary comment on the "Quill's" debut was not unanimously flattering. James Branch Cabell, then exchange editor of the William and Mary "Lit," deigned to say: "The Bowdoin 'Quill' is a daintily gotten-up, periodical, published by the students of Bowdoin College, at Brunswick, Maine. The January issue may not exhibit any deep thought or startling research, but the type is very pretty (especially the e's and the i's), and the number contains several readable advertisements. For the rest, it is an evident attempt at rivalry with our new 'freak' magazines; papers relying for popularity upon such innocent devices as printing an entire issue upon wrapping paper and illustrating it

Reunion Classes Plan For Lively Commencement

Competition For Snow Trophy Will Be Keen

All signs at present indicate that competition for the Snow Reunion Trophy will be even more keen than usual this year. All the reunion classes are making special efforts to get their members on the list of those present and plans are being made for the usual and some unusual reunion activities.

1873

The Fifty Year Class will have its headquarters at 8 Potter Street and its twelve members will be well represented. David W. Snow, Esq., is in charge of the arrangements. The members of the class are Rev. Hervey W. Chapman of Stirling City, Cal., Nathan D. A. Clarke, Esq., of Lynn, Mass., Augustus L. Crocker of Minneapolis, Isaac L. Elder, Esq., Augustus F. Moulton, Esq., and David W. Snow, Esq., of Portland, John F. Eliot of Hyde Park, Mass., Frank A. Floyd of Brewer, Hon. Addison E. Herrick of Bethel, Dr. William G. Reed of Southbridge, Mass., Dr. Daniel A. Robinson of Bangor, and Rev. Frederick A. Wilson of Andover, Mass.

1893

The plans for '93's Thirtieth Reunion are in charge of H. C. Fabry, secretary of the class. Their headquarters will be at 86 Federal Street and it is expected that quite a number of the 22 members of the class will return for Commencement. Seven members live in Maine, eight in Massachusetts, two in New York, two in New Hampshire, and one each in Washington, D. C., Ohio, and Utah.

The Class of 1898 would have been short-handed for its Twenty-fifth Reunion if Donald MacMillan, a convert to that class from '97, had adhered to his plan to head the "Bowdoin" North on June 16. He will be with them, however, having delayed the date of sailing until June 23, and the class will go down to Wiscasset on Thursday afternoon to see the "Bowdoin" with her improved fittings and equipment and to wish Mac bon voyage.

Ninety-Eight's headquarters will be in Hyde Hall, where accommodations for the men and their families will be available. This is the first time that the College has ever given a reunion class the use of one of the dormitories as headquarters. The class will assemble there on Tuesday in time for Class Day exercises.

On Tuesday evening there will be an informal dinner at the Gurnet House. Automobiles will leave Hyde Hall at 5:30 p. m. On Wednesday evening the Class Dinner, for members and their ladies, will be held at the Portland Country Club at 6:30 o'clock. After the dinner several members of the class will speak, including the following: Governor Baxter, Dr. MacMillan, Prof. W. W. Lawrence, Judge Thomas L. Marble, and Hon. Guy H. Sturgis.

Automobiles will take the class to Wiscasset after the Commencement Dinner on Thursday and the reunion activities will close with a supper there. The Reunion Committee consists of John F. Dana, Chairman, Wendell P. McKown, Charles S. Pettengill, Guy H. Sturgis, Frank H. Swan, and Alfred B. White.

Plans for 1903's Twentieth will make Commencement a regular Old Home Week for that class. Their headquarters will be officially at Jack Magee's house, 10 Page street, but the real base of operations will be at the "Auburn Colony" at South Harpswell. Through the courtesy of Luther Dana and Farrington Abbott, cottages for the members of their class and their wives will be available at the Colony, and here they will live and lure the elusive clam from his lair. On Wednesday evening there will be a monster clam bake at South Harpswell.

The festivities will begin with a class dance on Monday evening, when the class will be the guests of Prof. and Mrs. Charles T. Burnett, at the "Playhouse," connected with their residence on Maine and Page streets.

Already about forty members and former members have signified their intention of returning for Commencement and the reunion, in most cases accompanied by their wives.

Arrangements for the reunion are in charge of a committee consisting of the class president, Leon V. Walker, chairman, Donald E. McCormick, class secretary and treasurer, E. Farrington Abbott, Thomas C. White, Luther Dana, and Samuel B. Gray. The class is particularly interested in the dedication of the Robinson Memorial Gateway, of which a member,

MEMORIAL PLANNED TO EDWIN U. CURTIS '82

A committee of Boston citizens have been for some time raising the sum of $40,000 to erect a memorial to the late Edwin U. Curtis '82, police commissioner of Boston. An effort is being made to make the memorial as representative as possible by encouraging many small subscriptions. A large part of the sum has been raised, contributions having been received from persons prominent in public life and from those in the humblest circumstances.

The sketch herewith was made by Guy Lowell, the architect of the Charles River basin in Boston. The proposed memorial is to be placed on the Charles River basin esplanade at Clarendon Street. Simply, symbolic of a noble career, will be the dominating note. The memorial will be essentially a monumental gateway, expressed by two simply moulded and simply decorated pedestals, each surmounted by a marble urn of imposing scale and graceful design. Appropriate inscriptions will decorate the approach faces of the pedestal. The visible superstructure will be of hand-wrought light pink marble, resting on base courses of New England coast granite, while the steps and paving will be of similar material.

Of Mr. Curtis's memorable work during the Boston police strike, Vice-President Coolidge said, two years ago, "If it had not been for the clear insight of Edwin U. Curtis, the question that came to me never would have come." It was because he decided that question right in the first instance that I had the opportunity of supporting him in the second instance."

This issue of the Orient is published by and for the Alumni Fund. It is impossible in this issue to do justice to the general alumni news or to the large amount of campus news in which alumni would be especially interested. It is hoped that during the next year it will be possible to publish one Alumni Orient or more.

(The Editor)

A Message to the Alumni.

Bowdoin is not a rich college. We have adequate grounds and very lovely buildings. We have generous scholarship funds and other restricted funds that would indicate to the person who is casually interested in colleges that we were wealthy; but we have a very expensive plant to maintain, and our income from the students is not even enough to pay the cost of instruction. Moreover, these last two years when the alumni fund is being capitalized and pledges are coming in, we are losing the income from the alumni that was so satisfactory a feature of the financial year 1920-21. There are a great many things that really ought to be done to make the college a first rate institution in every way, and all of these things require money. For example, we are not spending as much for books for the library as we ought to expend. We are not spending as much looking after the health of the students as we ought to expend. Many other colleges have a better ratio of percentage of teachers to students than we have. The college often would like to publish articles of interest by members of the faculty; but we have no publication fund.

Then again, the whole athletic program presents some grave financial difficulties. Last year, owing to a very favorable football season, the different departments of athletics were able to meet their obligations; but this year many of them are running far behind. The track which used to be the best in Maine is now probably the worst. We need very much indeed additional tennis courts. We need a swimming pool. We need a fund to carry on outdoor winter sports.

Some day we hope to be able to have an athletic system whereby the coaches will be all paid by the college and responsible to the college. In this way we can get rid of some of the evils when athletics necessarily depend upon gate receipts. It may interest the alumni to know that the coach of the track team has been paid by the college in full for the last two or three years; that his duties are assigned to him by the President of the college after consultation with the Athletic Council. What is possible in track may be possible in the other sports. But the college cannot take on any additional financial obligations at the present time.

If the alumni would rally to the support of the alumni fund and give annually in addition to their contributions to the endowment, an income of $15,000 or $20,000 would be available and we could do a great many things that we have been going to do for many years.

The greatest burden that rests upon the administration of the college at the present time is financial. We have a loyal alumni body, a splendid and hard-working faculty, and as fine a group of undergraduates as may be found in the country. But each year the cost of up-keep increases, and although the funds grow gradually larger they never seem to catch up with the necessary expenditures. And so Bowdoin College is a constant challenge to the loyalty of her sons.

sentiment among the students of the three upper classes. Inasmuch as the mighty power of the Federal Government was insufficient for years to suppress similar ebullitions at West Point and Annapolis, what wonder that the excellent and unworried theologians of the old fashioned Faculty had a grave problem on their hands? And long ago, when an ancient servitor of Christ Church showed me with academic glee the fountain basin in the Quadrangle wherein Lewis Carroll, the author of "Alice in Wonderland," otherwise the eminent mathematician, Professor Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, was accustomed in his spirited youth to assist at the immersion of newcomer Oxonians of unapproved demeanor I concluded that Phi Chi was not a local issue.

This society performed its self-determined function with vigor undiminished for more than ten years. Its performances were governed by a code flagrant non-ethical but rigid as the laws of the Medes and Persians. The code of uncomform law and the accumulating traditions of practice were handed down annually from class to class by initiations held in lonely deserted saw mills, in abandoned ship sheds on the sea coast, and sometimes, with reckless impudence, in such sanctuaries of the normal as the cucumber and patchwork-quilt headquarters at the Topsham Fair Grounds and the City Hall at Bath. Torquemada himself would have been interested in the elaborate machinery of torment invented for some of these occasions and ruthlessly employed as a test of Phi Chi worthiness, though at the risk of life or limb, not to speak of mental sanity. The annual Phi Chi song was written for several years by George Madison Bodge of '68, then a young veteran of the Civil War and afterwards a clergyman who distinguished heard in that gloomy chamber of injustice.

The sentence pronounced was punctuated by a single stroke on the big bass drum and a wailing cry of "Recorded" by the spectators in unison, followed by the weird ululation of half a hundred long tin horns, an instrument with which some of the Sophomores of that time became by diligent practice amazingly expert. The unfortunate was then blindfolded again and led or carried forth to undergo the punishment prescribed according to the gravity of his alleged offence: perhaps dousing for so many minutes under one of the very willing pumps that stood in a line behind the row of halls, and from which we were accustomed to carry water for more innocent purposes daily in wooden pails up to our rooms. Perhaps it was the rare by razor or scissors of a prized capillary possession; for Freshmen then not infrequently brought to college magnificent moustaches and even full beards. Perhaps, I am sorry to say, it was to be bound fast with ropes to a tombstone or monument in the neighboring cemetery, there to remain solus till daylight brought release. These and dozens of similar inflictions of suffering or mortification devised by the ingenuity of cussedness resulted from the sessions of the Sodom County Court. The significant fact is that it did not seem childish or outrageous; it all seemed sweet reasonable.

It brings us back, by a wide roundabout, to the memorable event of October, 1869, when '71 and '73 came forcibly into conjunction, to the sad depletion of the former class. Probably the battle in Appleton marked the culmination of ferocity in such encounters under the old hazing system. Sophomore '72 was small in numbers and even smaller proportionately in Phi Chi membership. It was considerably overtopped by '73, which entered, as Freshmen with an unusual contingent of independence, pluck and fighting muscle. For a time it appeared before the mast and was physically one of the toughest bundles of strength, agility and grit known to ancient or modern history. It was Coggan who distinguished himself a year or two later by slipping on the frosty leads of the Maine Hall ridgepole while pursuing the roof route between the south and north ends, rolling to and over the gutter and horizontally plunging down four stories to the hard frozen ground. Bystanders rushed afrighted to pick up the remains, but Marcellus Coggan, declining assistance, hobbled a little on his way across the old baseball field to President Harris' study with the view of using the incident to obtain a coveted two days' leave of absence from town.

The rest is soon told. Coggan's axe crashed through the upper third of the defiant door. In ten seconds Coggan, without his axe, had scrambled up over the jagged splinters and the tall stout bureau breastwork and was within the stronghold. In two seconds more he was knocked temporarily out of his senses. Another and another Sophomore escalated likewise and likewise fell. Then a Junior Phi Chi who saw his Sophomore roommate stretched unconscious and bleeding under the hickory hail waived all notions of class dignity and precipitated himself into the fray. Juniors and Sophomores piled in after each other, without the slightest attention to the rules of precedence. Soon the number of invaders nearly matched that of the defending force. For five minutes or so the room and its adjacent bedroom were congested with a wriggling interlacement of candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Clubs were wrested away and turned thwacking on the skulls of the original possessors. Deals were broken and scars left to last a lifetime. The exact statistics of casualty were never officially announced, partly because when the Faculty investigation began next day a torn scalp or a sprained wrist or twisted ankle was not regarded as an object for ostenta-sistance caused by the sudden return of the Freshman's habitual awe of the Phi Chi System. However this may be, and while a dozen or more of expulsions and long term suspensions came later to emphasize the System's victory, the immediate result was that before midnight Hughes and Hawthorne were conducted in correct form, and with the honors due to a well-fought defence, to the inevitable pump.

In dwelling thus on the main characteristic of that period, namely, the conditions that prevailed throughout the mask and horn era of Bowdoin's social history—conditions, it should be said, that did not wholly disappear till the advent of President Hyde and the modern Faculty type with a more humanly tolerant policy in the treatment of youthful transgressions; again, till the age when the better organization of manly sports opened another way to expend surplus energies—I have left no space for the more gracious memories that crowd when one begins to recollect. And if I seem to have written rather sympathetically of things now properly abhorred it is simply because no matter how many years intervene the eternal boy insists on coming back to you when an overhauling of the past gives him the chance.

Such was not all of Bowdoin life from 1866 to 1876. The other side is told in the record of the subsequent careers of the hundreds of ministers of the Gospel, college presidents and professors, jurists, lawyers and physicians of note, philanthropists, philosophers and men of large affairs who, under impulse of the prevailing college sentiment, participated with enthusiasm in this sort of devilry and tomfoolery.

Younger Alumni
Win Distinction

1907—A volume of verse, "Maine Coast," by Wilbert Snow (C. W. Snow '07) has been published by Harcourt, Brace & Co., and is much praised for its dramatic realism in the depicting of a Maine fishing village. Mr. Snow is professor of English at Wesleyan.

1913 and 1915—The Oxford Press has just issued the important book for prospective Rhodes Scholars, "The Oxford of To-day," by Lawrence A. Crosby '13 and President Aydelotte of Swarthmore. A large part of the work is Mr. Crosby's, who is now a member of a law firm in Havana. Another Bowdoin Rhodes scholar, Robert P. Coffin '15 (professor at Wells College and author of much magazine verse) contributes the chapter on "Social Life at Oxford," which Christopher Morley, the essayist and a Rhodes man, commends highly.

1916—Donald S. White has been appointed Special Immigration Agent in the U. S. Consular service at Vienna, Austria.

1917—Erik Achorn has received a renewal of his Traveling Fellowship from Harvard and will study another year in Paris on the military history of France after the Empire.

1919—Bateman Edwards has been granted a Procter Fellowship, with large stipend, from Princeton, and leave for half of next year's graduate study in France. A research article of his on early French passion plays is soon to be published.

1920—Maurice W. Avery has been appointed Instructor in Classics at Williams for next year. Robert D. Leigh '14 joined the Williams Faculty last year.

DID YOU HAVE A FAMOUS ROOM?

The room in which Henry W. Longfellow spent the last two years of his college course is marked, but the many other famous rooms, including the one two floors below in which Hawthorne roomed during his sophomore year, are not marked. Through the energy of Hazen Nutter '26 the following list of famous rooms has been compiled from old College Catalogues. Winthrop, Maine and Appleton Halls are designated by W. H., M. H., and A. H. When the rooming place was off the campus the name of the residence is given.

himself by his explorations in Pilgrim and Puritan history. Bodge's hymns were stirring incitements to nocturnal activity; it is a pity they have not been preserved more fully. There was spunk in them and imagination and at times real poetic feeling, and their singing quality was exceptional; as, for instance, this stanza which has lingered in memory for fifty-five years and is now quoted without the original text:

When the bonny moon is seen,
Glinting down on Bowdoin green,
And the little stars are twinkling in the sky;
When the shadows lengthening fall
Round the north of Winthrop Hall
We will muster Sixty-eight to do or die.

The north end of Winthrop, then unoccupied as a dormitory on account of the numerical paucity of the college, was known as Sodom. The inner fourth story room on the eastern side, held by contemporary tradition to have been Longfellow's habitation early in his course, was the seat of the Sodom County Court, the once dreaded tribunal of Phi Chi. The accused was ushered blindfold into the court room in the midnight hours. Sometimes he was borne thither in a certain coffin that yielded a cheerful continuing income to a Brunswick undertaker who reserved it for rental to the students for such occasions and for initiations. The bandage being removed from the Freshman's eyes, he found himself in an apartment painted dead black as to walls and ceiling, illumined only by a single lantern and by horrifying emblems and inscriptions marked on the black in phosphorus. He was in the presence of a throng of unidentifiable court personages in masks and robes. If confined, the prison was allowed to sit up in his grim receptacle while the trial went on. The examination of his case was conducted ostensibly according to judicial procedure, but the plea of his masked counsel was always merely for a mitigation of penalty rather than for acquittal; and it is not recalled that a verdict of Not Guilty was ever ed as if the honored principles of subordination were to go by the board.

The test came when two members of '73, namely, that versatile genius the late "Bunny" Hawthorne of Bath, and the late George Hughes, afterwards Bath's respected mayor, invited discipline by some now unremembered breach of etiquette or lack of respect for the irregular authorities and the unwritten law. It became known that on a certain night they were to be taken out to be agreeably moistened. Their classmates thereupon undertook to protect them at any cost. Guarding the two proteges, the huskier Freshmen barricaded themselves in the southwest corner room on the third floor of the south end of Appleton. Against the door, on the inner side, they planted a stout bureau or chest of drawers and braced it with heavy joists that reached to the opposite wall. Behind this fortification stood a half circle of their strongest men, "Taffy" Ladd, Boardman, Crocker, Eliot, Deering, Waterhouse, I think, and others of similar defensive fibre, armed with oak or hickory clubs cut to suit from the woodpile. There was talk afterwards of revolvers in evidence. If that were so, happily such artillery did not come into action. To the rear of the arch were deployed the rest of the Freshmen, prepared to tackle or slug any invader who might succeed in breaking through the first line. With this disposition of forces the place was deemed impregnable.

The Sophomores gathered in the hall outside the locked door and formally demanded admission in the name of Phi Chi. The demand was answered from within by a contemptuous challenge. With the Sophomores were present as observers most of the Phi Chis of '71, then Juniors and therefore technically allies of the Freshmen, but in this instance in accord with the assailants on account of the disparity of the two lower classes. The attacking party was led by Marcellus Coggan, whose destiny was to become in after years a jurisconsult of fame in Boston and the Chief Magistrate of Malden. He had been a sailitious display. I have always considered that the fight's decision was determined less by superior prowess on the part of the Sophomores and Juniors than by a sort of paralysis of re-

Orients vs. Obituaries

If a Bowdoin alumnus who does not live in your immediate vicinity does something to distinguish himself, you probably don't hear of it until you read his obituary. If one of your class-mates becomes a husband or father or a member of the firm or something else important you don't know anything about it until you come back from your tenth. Why not learn all these things through the Orient?

When you talk about Bowdoin to your friend or your boy or the neighbor's boy, are you talking about a college you knew twenty years ago, or one that you know today as well? Do you know what happens on the campus today? Can you tell your boy about the Bowdoin he is to go to, or are you trying to make an Umpty-eight man of him?

There is plenty of campus news in the Orient every week. Beginning next Fall the Alumni Secretary will take charge of the alumni news and will try to furnish real news regularly.

Why not keep in touch with Bowdoin? The Orient management is making a special offer to new subscribers of $2.50 for the rest of Vol. 53 (to April, 1924) which includes six issues of the Quill, now combined with the Orient. Checks should be made to the Bowdoin Publishing Co.

The purpose of the Bowdoin Alumni Fund is to develop a system of sustained giving of annual sums by a large number of alumni.

The Alumni Fund is the most important factor in the growth of the College.

It will eventually do away with "drives" for special needs of the College, such as the new Bowdoin Union and a swimming pool.

A SERIES OF QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON THE ALUMNI FUND

- Q. What is the Bowdoin Alumni Fund?
- A. 1. A Fund, planned and controlled by alumni, to which Bowdoin men may give any amount at any time as an expression of their loyalty to the College, their recognition of its service to them and their desire that the College may keep pace with the years.
2. A Bowdoin Club to which every alumnus can pay whatever annual dues he pleases.
3. A Fund that has already performed three big services to the College:
- (a) Secured enough contributions to Income to cover temporarily the increase made in 1920 in salaries of the Faculty.
- (b) Increased the Endowment of the College by $658,731.73 to provide permanently for the above increases.
- (c) Brought closer to the College alumni who have contributed to the Fund, as well as honorary graduates, non-graduates, a large number of contributors through the Society of Bowdoin Women, and several hundred other friends of the College.
- Q. What is its purpose?
- A. 1. To increase the endowment of the College by means other than bequests.
2. To increase the income of the College by getting every alumnus to contribute something every year towards the current expenses of the College. Five dollars annually to Income is the equivalent of a gift of $100 to Endowment.
3. To increase the interest and strengthen the loyalty of the alumni. This is invariably the result of a contribution.
4. To strengthen class spirit. Individual contributions are credited to Class Funds, and class organization is stressed.
5. To make every alumnus a sharer in Bowdoin's present and future.
- Q. What is its organization?
- A. It was begun by a special committee of the Alumni Council. There is now a Board of Directors, consisting of alumni nominated by the Alumni Council and elected by the alumni. Three members are elected each year. Each class has a Class Agent and there are Regional Committees for various districts. The Alumni Secretary acts as executive secretary of the Fund.
- Q. What is done with the money?
- A. Contributions to Endowment become part of the permanent invested funds of the College. Contributions to Income, unless a special purpose is designated by the donor, are generally used for the current expenses of the College.
- Q. Why is it called the "Yale Plan"?
- A. It is not so-called any longer. It is now the Bowdoin Plan. In Alumni Fund literature heretofore it has been referred to as the "Yale Plan," in order that the alumni might realize that the Fund idea is based on a reality, not on a theory. Yale has had an Alumni Fund since 1890. Since that time subscriptions to the Fund have added $2,183,807.28 to Endowment or Principal, and $2,575,788.65 to Income. It is the most important single factor in Yale's financial policy. The Bowdoin Plan is patterned on the Yale Plan.
- Q. Why should I contribute to the Alumni Fund?
- A. 1. I am proud to be a Bowdoin man. That pride is based on Bowdoin's standing and her achievements. I wish to help maintain that standing and continue those achievements.

2. Somebody's gifts to the College in the past made it possible for me to get a Bowdoin education at 1-3 or 1-4 the cost to the College. My gift will help give the same privilege to future Bowdoin men.
3. Being a Bowdoin man means more to me than being a member of any other organization to which I belong. The other organizations exact dues; my dues to Bowdoin shall be my free-will offerings.
4. I know that other colleges of Bowdoin's size and standing have raised in the last few years five dollars for every one that Bowdoin has raised. I am not content to have my college unable to meet modern educational demands as others do.
5. I do not care for drives. I would rather contribute a certain amount every year than give to sporadic drives. For that reason the Alumni Fund appeals to me.
6. I am not wealthy and probably shall never be able to give or leave to the College any large sum, but I can give the interest on a fair-sized sum every year. The Alumni Fund makes this gift effective.
7. The Bowdoin way of doing things is to get everybody's shoulder under the load. My little bit isn't much, but 2,000 other little bits will make mine count.
- Q. What are some sample contributions or pledges?
- A. 1. "I will contribute $1,000 to Endowment in annual installments of $200. In the meantime I will contribute to Income the interest at 5% on the unpaid part of my pledge of $1,000, that is: $50 the first year, $40 the second, and so on."
2. "I am old, sick, and poor but will gladly give $1.00 a year to Income. I can afford no more than this but would not have Bowdoin undertake anything without my mite."
3. "Fifty dollars a year forever."
4. "$3,000 as a Memorial to my father; $1,000 payable before Sept. 30, 1923, the balance at will."
5. I have just graduated and have barely gone to work. I will, however, pledge $5 a year to Income until I can increase it."
6. "Let me know what I received in scholarships during my College course and I will subscribe that amount with full interest."
- Q. What are "Memorial Funds"?
- A. Many gifts to Endowment have been in the form of memorials to Bowdoin alumni who were relatives of the donors. In some cases the memorials are in the name of other relatives, such as the mother of the donor. These memorials, with the names of the donors, are published annually in the College Catalogue, just as scholarships are. One donor of a Memorial Fund said, "My grandfather, of the class of — would have wanted to do his share in the Alumni Fund. I am therefore establishing a memorial to his name."
- Q. Can contributions be made for special purposes?
- A. Yes. One alumnus contributed to Income with the stipulation that the money be devoted to the upkeep of a hockey rink. Most gifts, however, are unrestricted.
- Q. How can the Alumni Fund eliminate "drives"?
- A. Given thorough support by the alumni, the Fund can pile up sufficient money in the Endowment or Principal to underwrite projects for which "drives" might be conducted. Other colleges have done this. In another way this can be made possible. Contributions to Income can reach a point where the College, receiving sufficient amounts for current expenses, can itself underwrite projects for which "drives" might otherwise be necessary.

Standing of Classes

By Decades

The following table shows the relative standing of classes in the same decade according to the percentage of living members of the classes who have contributed to the Alumni Fund. As in the tabulation statement given elsewhere on this page, figures are given as of June 1, 1923.

Days of Reckoning

Every Alumni Fund has two slogans: "Pledge" and "Pay." Of the total amount, $508,531.73, subscribed to the Endowment Fund by alumni and friends of the College, 51%, or $261,327.39 has been paid in as this goes to press.

Every year on June 30, the Alumni Fund has a day of reckoning with the General Education Board. On that day every year until the total amount is paid in on Sept. 30, 1925, the Board makes payment on its pledge of $150,000 in proportion to the amount paid in of the $450,000 pledged by alumni and friends. It is, therefore, important that as many pledges as possible be paid before June 30.

There are many pledges now overdue. These overdue pledges mean that the College loses the use of the money involved for a long or short period. They also mean labor and expense in sending out notices and follow-up letters.

with drawings of purple cows or ultramarine zebras."

There was no dramatic club at Bowdoin a quarter of a century ago, but in the spring of '96 the students gave a highly successful performance of the comic opera "La Mascotte" in the town hall. The glee club, under the leadership of Frederick E. Drake '98, and the mandolin and guitar club, led by Alfred B. White '98, were flourishing institutions.

The most daring achievement of our freshman year was the climbing of one of the chapel spikes by Charles D. Moulton '98, who is now a practicing physician in East Orange, N. J. The freshman flag waved for a time from the top of the spire, but was removed later by Donald B. MacMillan, who was then a member of the class of '97.

The war with Spain gave a martial touch to the last few weeks of our life in Brunswick. For a while all Bowdoin became an awkward squad, drilling on the old delta. Enthusiasm waned, however, when immediate enlistment was denied.

Life in those days was somewhat primitive, but I do not envy the boys who have never had coal fires to tend, nor enjoyed the felicitous thrill that came from making flinching wood of old Appleton's attic floor. Our lack of aesthetic background was deplored by at least one faculty member, who was instrumental in adorning South Appleton with window-boxes of red geraniums. It was said that a cynical colleague characterized this effort as casting pearls before swine.

But though our material surroundings left something to be desired, we were abundantly blessed with the quality of our instruction. Hyde, Chapman, Robinson, Lee, Houghton, Johnson, Little, Woodruff, and Files, gone to the life beyond; Moody, Hutchins, MacDonald, Emery, Whittier and Mitchell still living—I doubt if any college has had a finer corps of teachers. Masters of their subjects, vigorous and energetic, competent, kindly, and human, they gave us themselves. No words can adequately express our debt to them.

I have tried thus briefly to comply with the alumni secretary's request for a short reminiscent sketch. It is at best a bare recital of some of the facts which have left an imprint on my memory. If the recital is of any interest to the present generation of students, its purpose is served.

MacMillan Will Sail After Commencement

The "Bowdoin" is fast being made ready for her next trip North, and Dr. Macmillan now plans to sail from Wiscasset on June 23rd. Substantial changes have been made in the "Bowdoin" with the view to making the crew's quarters more comfortable.

A most important addition has been made to the equipment in the form of a radio set of great power. This was given by a radio corporation which will send a skilled operator with the expedition. There is little question that MacMillan will not only be able to receive messages from all over the United States and parts of Europe, but that he will also be able to broadcast with his sending set.

Among the objects of the present expedition is that of erecting a large bronze tablet on the site of the old Greeley starvation camp, where eighteen men died of starvation and exposure. The tablet is furnished by the National Geographic Society.

During the summer the "Bowdoin" will cruise along the shore of Greenland while the members of the expedition continue their work in terrestrial magnetism. Then they will go north to Etah, North Greenland, where Peary made his headquarters for the successful North Pole expedition, and where MacMillan spent several years. From there he will go to Ellesmere Land and hopes to put the "Bowdoin" into a safe harbor near Cape Sabine. How long the "Bowdoin" will remain there is a question. It may be until the fall of 1924, or possibly the fall of 1925, depending on the success of the explorations which MacMillan will undertake.

If statistics from the present student body are any indication, an additional verse will have to be written to "Bowdoin Beata" to bring in the line

"We'll send our brothers to Bowdoin in the Fall." For of 101 men in College today who are relatives of Bowdoin alumni, 37 are brothers, 33 are sons and 31 claim other relationships. Some of the sons are also brothers of Bowdoin men. In that case, however, they are counted as sons.

College Loses Two Trustees And Two Overseers

Death Takes Many Alumni In The Past Year

During the past year the College has lost by death two members of the Board of Trustees, and two members of the Board of Overseers. Each of these four alumni was prominent in his chosen profession and was devoted to the interests of the College. The pictures of three of these gentlemen are published herewith. It is regretted that a photograph of Judge Powers is not published also. The editor counted on receiving it from a source from which it was not forthcoming, and was unable to make other arrangements in time for publication. Judge Frederick A. Powers '75, for several years a member of the Board of Overseers and later of the Board of Trustees, died on February 13, 1923 at St. Petersburg, Florida. Judge Powers had been a prominent figure in the State of Maine for many years, having been an Associate Justice of the Maine Supreme Court, and Attorney General of the State. He had also served in both branches of the Legislature. He was at all times prominent in the Republican party, taking part in its local and national activities. He was an Overseer of the College from 1908 to 1921 and since that date had served on the Board of Trustees. He received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Bowdoin in 1906.

William Gerrish Beale '77, a member of the Board of Overseers from 1912 to 1918 and since 1918 a Trustee of the College, died in Chicago on March 3, 1922. He was a prominent lawyer of that city, and represented such large interests as the Pullman Company, the Commonwealth Edison Company, many railroad interests, and the late Marshall Field. Among other things he drew Mr. Field's complicated and much discussed will which has successfully withstood question and attack. He served the city of Chicago as member and president of the Board of Education, and as corporation counsel for the city. He was one of three trustees holding a majority of the stock in the Chicago Tribune under the will of its former editor, Joseph Medill. He was a director and trustee of other large interests.

Judge Charles U. Bell '63, a member of the Board of Overseers, died on Nov. 11, 1922, at his home in Andover, Mass. Judge Bell had been honored with the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Laws by Bowdoin, and had been since 1888 a member of the Board of Overseers. During the Civil war he served as private in the forty-second Massachusetts.

He was admitted to the bar at Exeter, N. H., in 1866. In 1898 he was named a judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, and at the time of his death was the oldest Superior Court Judge of that state. While a citizen of Lawrence, Mass., Judge Bell held various city offices, and in 1898 served as presidential elector.

Dr. Ernest B. Young '92, since 1909 a member of the Board of Overseers, died from pneumonia on January 17, 1923 at his home in Boston. He was born in Brunswick fifty-three years ago, the son of Stephen Jewett Young, for many years professor of modern languages at Bowdoin. He graduated from the Harvard Medical School in 1896. Since that date he had practiced medicine in Boston, being connected with the Massachusetts General Hospital, the Free Hospital for Women, the Boston City Hospital, and the Massachusetts Women's Hospital. Since 1896 he had been instructor in the Harvard Medical School. He was a contributor to many medical journals in America, and a member of many learned societies. During the World War he served as an officer in the Army Medical Corps.

Among the other alumni who have died during the past year, two men have rendered particularly conspicuous service in the fields of education and social service in the State of Maine. These two men were Principal Sargent of Hebron, and Alexander McDonald, the Sea-Coast Missionary of Maine.

Dr. William E. Sargent '78, for thirty-six years Principal of Hebron Academy, died at the Academy on October 7, 1922. When Dr. Sargent became Principal of Hebron Academy in 1885, the school was small and limited in equipment. It had only one building, less than one hundred students, and a small corps of teachers. Under his guidance it grew until at the time of his retirement in 1921 it had a dozen modern buildings, twelve or more teachers, and a student body of over two hundred and fifty. The endowment had increased in proportion. Dr. Sargent was known and loved by hundreds of men in all colleges who had come under his influence at Hebron.

With the sudden death of Alexander P. McDonald '91, on December 4th, 1922, a unique life of Christian service came to an end. For more than twenty years Mr. McDonald had served the people of outlying islands and remote points along the coast of Maine as Superintendent of the Maine Coast Mission. In all weather and at all seasons his boat, the Sunbeam, had cruised along the coast rendering every form of service which the islanders might need. In 1921-22 the Sunbeam covered over 5,000 miles of water. The "Outlook" after his death paid a deserved tribute to Mr. MacDonald and to his life of devotion.

One of the best known figures in the educational world, Dr. James Roscoe Day '74, Chancellor Emeritus of Syracuse University, died on March 13, 1923. Chancellor Day for many years held pastorates in the Methodist Episcopal ministry. In 1894 he became Chancellor of Syracuse University, and the phenomenal growth of that institution is largely attributed to his administration.

Seldom has a high school teacher received greater tributes at his death than did Dennis M. Cole '88, who died on March 9, 1923 in Westfield, Mass. For thirty-one years he had charge of the science department of the Westfield, Massachusetts High School and had been the moving force of the athletic life of this school. Resolutions passed by various associations and by the pupils of the school testify to the high regard in which Mr. Cole was held. Bowdoin men will remember that Mr. Cole was the companion of Austin Cary '87 in 1891 on the expedition which discovered the Great Falls of Labrador.

The alumni were particularly shocked by the sudden and tragic death of Arthur L. Robinson '08, who was killed by a train in Augusta, Maine, on March 8, 1923. He was the son of Professor Franklin C. Robinson, and a member of a famous Bowdoin family. During the World War he saw service in France in command of an Anti-Aircraft unit. He was married in 1921 and is survived by his wife and one child.

Younger alumni heard with especial regret of the deaths of Sumner L. Mountfort '14, Paul L. White '14, and Charles C. MacDonald '16. Mountfort, was principal of the Littleton High School, Littleton, N. H., at the time of his death. White, after receiving an A.M. in history from Pennsylvania in 1916, was teaching history at Yale at the time of his death. A brilliant future was predicted for him. A work which he was about to publish will be brought out by his colleagues on the Yale Faculty. MacDonald was pastor of the First Congregational Church in Fort Fairfield, Maine, at the time of his death. A native of Scotland, he had served in the British Army with the Gordon Highlanders and with the King's Royal Rifles in South Africa and India.

A complete list of the alumni who have died during the past year follows:

The time old struggle of youth vs. experience in a baseball game between the classes of 1913 and 1918 celebrating their tenth and fifth reunions respectively, will be one of the features of the coming Commencement Week.

In addition to the diamond struggle, the 1913 committee have outlined a strenuous program of activities. Headquarters will be in the rooms owned by the College on the corner of Maine and Cleveland streets, opened the Sunday of Commencement week. By Wednesday morning hospitality will be raining from the hands of a caterer who will be in charge of the quarters. The annual dinner at the Gurnet house will take place Wednesday afternoon.

Thursday will mark the "formal" spectacle of class antics with burlesque satire and a parade that promises to revive the memories of ancient Egypt.

Early reports indicate an abnormally large attendance, some of the class members having given assurance of their presence even though it will necessitate a trip of a thousand miles or more.

The 1913 Reunion is being handled by a committee of which Lawrence W. Smith is chairman. A. P. Cushman is in charge of the finances, Paul C. Savage in charge of entertainment and Walter F. Eberhardt in charge of publicity.

The five year class will go into intensive training immediately on arrival in Brunswick for their baseball game with 1913 on Wednesday morning. Their line-up is being kept secret and they are determined that Youth shall triumph over Age and Craftiness in this bitter struggle. The 1918 reunion committee, consisting of Joe Clark, Red Gray and Heck Savage, state that the report that Babe Ruth is a Bowdoin 1913 man is grossly exaggerated.

The class headquarters will be at Mrs. George E. Cobb's, 6 Cleveland Street. The class will march there on Tuesday afternoon and officially declare the latch string out. That evening they will have a class dinner at 6:30 at the Hotel Eagle. Costumes of which white flannel trousers (they can't be Egyptian, anyway) will form the base have been prepared.

The 1918 reunion committee is responsible for the idea of special cars for Bowdoin men from Boston and vicinity. These cars will be on trains leaving Boston at 12:50 p. m., June 19, and Brunswick at 6:09 p. m., June 21 (both Daylight Saving Time). Checks for parlor car seats ($1.15 each way) should be sent before June 15 to J. F. Clark, Brown Bros., 60 State Street, Boston, or to Alden F. Head, Temple Tours, 65 Franklin Street, Boston.

Oldest Alumnus Cannot Be At Commencement

Rev. William C. Pond '48 Absent From 75th Commencement

All Bowdoin men will hear with regret that the oldest living graduate, Rev. William C. Pond '48 of San Francisco, will not be able to take the long journey back to the College for his Seventy-fifth Commencement. Mr. Pond is now 93 years of age. He was present at Commencement two years ago, but has recently suffered from an attack of pneumonia and cannot journey across the continent this year. His health is not the only reason, however. His religious work so occupies his mind that he writes, "I would have felt, in all the days of my absence, that my duty was here."

With indomitable spirit he continues:

"But I will lay all my plans so as to have leisure for the journey at Commencement time in 1925, and if 75 would be good, why may not 77 be even better? Of course one cannot know what two years may bring forth, but I seem to feel sure that God will grant my prayers and that I will be with you, in better physical vigor than I now have—the debility which usually follows an attack of pneumonia will, I trust, exist with me no longer."

1924 Baseball and Track Captains Are Chosen

The Track and Baseball teams recently selected their leaders for next season. Francis Bishop '24, holder of the State and College Pole Vault Records, was elected captain of the 1923-24 Track Team. He has been a consistent worker for the White and deserves the honor bestowed upon him by the team.

Bowdoin's star twirler Rupert Johnson will lead the 1924 baseball aggregation. Rupe pitched air-tight ball in every state series game that he started and it is partly to him that we owe a tie in this year's state championship.

Tootell Breaks Record At Chicago Meet

Throws Hammer 175 Feet Establishing a New Mark

Fred D. Tootell, Bowdoin's weight champ smashed another record last Saturday. This new record that Tootell holds is the N.C.A.A. record. He threw the hammer 175 feet, 1 inch, which is 13 feet, 9 inches farther than the previous record made last year by Merchant of California.

This meet, the third annual National Collegiate Athletic Association's track and field championships, was won by Michigan with a total of 30.2 points which is the greatest total in the existence of the games. Bowdoin with five points won thirteenth place. Besides the record that Tootell broke five others were smashed during the meet.

Gateway and Bulletin Board Dedicated

Tablet to President Hyde Unveiled Wednesday

On Wednesday afternoon the new Robinson Memorial Gateway was dedicated. Dr. Daniel A. Robinson '73, of Bangor, made the address which follows:

Fifty years ago next Autumn, a young man, who had recently graduated from college, was at his home waiting for an opportunity to begin his life's work. While he was thus hopefully waiting a telegram came from President Chamberlain appointing him Instructor in Chemistry at the College. Thus began Franklin C. Robinson's connection with the faculty of Bowdoin College, which continued for more than a third of a century and was terminated only by his death. He had what is called in New England an "inventive genius." During the few months that elapsed between his graduation from college and his appointment as Instructor he was at work upon the model of a rotary steam engine which he had invented. He made all the castings himself, put them together and demonstrated that his engine would work. A caveat had just been obtained from the Patent Office at Washington when the appointment to the college arrived. As the latter was more in the line of his desires for a life's work, he put the model of the engine upon the shelf and began to prepare for his college duties. I have no doubt but that, financially speaking,

118th COMMENCEMENT WEEK EXERCISES END TODAY

CLASS OF 1923 RECEIVES DEGREES THIS MORNING; CLASS DAY AND HOP TUESDAY; PLAY AND BALL GAME WEDNESDAY

Busy and Lively Week With Many Alumni Back

Starting with President Sills' Baccalaureate Address in the Congregational Church, Sunday afternoon, the one hundred and eighteenth Commencement week came to an end with the Commencement Exercises in the College Church this morning. The past week at the college has been eventful and successful from every view point. This Commencement has been perhaps the best that the college has enjoyed for many years.

The Alexander Prize Speaking Contest came on Monday evening in Memorial Hall. As in the past, the speaking was excellent and well worthy of high praise.

1923, the graduating class, held its Class Day exercises under the Thorndike Oak at 3 p. m., Tuesday and it further made merry and rejoiced over its college career at the Commencement Hop held in the gymnasium in the evening. Furthermore Tuesday was the day when the Trustees and the Overseers of the College met.

Wednesday, the busiest day of all, commenced at 9:30 with a meeting of the Alumni Council. Later on in the forenoon the annual meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, Alpha of Maine was held in the Library. The annual Commencement Week baseball game between the Alumni and the Varsity came also in the forenoon. The annual meeting of the Alumni Association was held at 1:30 in Memorial Hall, presided by a buffet lunch. The new Robinson Memorial Gateway was dedicated, the Class of 1898 Bulletin Board was presented to the college and the Tablet to President Hyde in Hyde Hall was unveiled during the earlier part of the afternoon. Immediately following the presentation of the Bulletin Board there was a band concert on the campus and later on came the Reception by President and Mrs. Sills on the Art Building Terrace. In the evening the Masque and Gown presented the 1923 Commencement Play, "Merry Wives of Windsor" on the Art Building Terrace.

The Commencement Exercises are being held today in the First Parish Church. About eighty-six members of the Class of 1923 receive their degrees this morning. The Commencement parts are given by George H. Quinby, Gunnar Bergenstrahle, Frederick King Turgeon and Theodore W. Cousins. Following the exercises the Commencement Dinner will be served in the gymnasium. At the same time of the Commencement Dinner a buffet lunch for ladies will be served in Memorial Hall under the auspices of the Society of Bowdoin Women.

The classes that are holding reunions this year are 1873, 1893, 1898, 1903, 1913, 1918.

Class Day Exercises

The Class Day exercises were held Tuesday afternoon under the Thorndike Oak. Here the class gathered to celebrate their college career and to smoke the pipe of peace. The Class Day Committee consisted of Norman F. Miller, chairman, James A. Black, Per Otto Gunnar Bergenstrahle, Francis B. Hill and Elliott B. Perkins. The class officers are Geoffrey T. Mason, president; William B. Jacob, vice-president; Robert D. Hanscom, secretary and treasurer. The other Class Day speakers were:

Marshal: Donald J. Eames.
Chaplain: Harvey P. Bishop.
Opening Address: Walter R. Whitney.
Orator: Richard I. Small.
Historian: Emerson W. Hunt.
Closing Address: George H. Quinby.
Poet: Frederick K. Turgeon.
Odist: Roy M. Fitzmorris.

Commencement Hop

Tuesday evening the gymnasium was the scene of the Commencement Hop. The patronesses were wives of the members of the faculty. The Class Day committee was in charge of the affair. Music was furnished by the College orchestra. There was a large attendance made up of the graduating class and their friends and many alumni.

Commencement Play To Large Audience

Wilder and the Merry Wives Score Success

The 1923 Commencement Play, "Merry Wives of Windsor," was presented Wednesday evening on the Art Building Terrace at 8 p. m. The play, exceptionally well-done by the cast, was coached by George H. Quinby '23. To him is the success of the show due. The leading part was taken by Philip S. Wilder '23 and MacIntire '25 and Rouillard '24 as the wives of Windsor also pleased the audience. The cast of characters of the performance was:

Sir John Falstaff Philip S. Wilder '23
Fenton F. Webster Browne '25
Shallow Athern P. Daggett '25
Slender J. Stewart Bigelow '26
Ford Carl K. Hersey '26

the returns would have been larger from the sale of his patent, than was the salary offered by the college, but, we are told that "The life of a man consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth for the things which are seen are temporal, it is the things that are not seen that are eternal."

Sic Transit Gloria Mundi

To the occasional visitor, Bowdoin College appears to consist of a number of buildings of various ages and styles of architecture, somewhat irregularly grouped about the sides of a rectangular field. The purpose of some of the buildings is obvious even to such casual observer, as the Chapel for religious exercises, the library to contain books, the art gallery for the exhibition of sculpture, paintings and other works of art; but to the alumnus Bowdoin College means something more than buildings and grounds and equipment.

To him there comes the memory of four years passed in pleasant companionship.

After Commencement What?

Tomorrow the final exercises of Commencement Week will terminate the undergraduate career of the one hundred and twenty-eighth class to take degrees from our Alma Mater. The class of 1923, during the four years its members have spent upon this campus has shown itself to be composed of men who are representative of the best that the college turns out. A class which is extremely well balanced, with leaders in all branches of collegiate activity, now reaches the final moments of an extremely successful undergraduate career, as its members look forward to contact with the world outside as members of the great alumni body of Bowdoin. To every man now comes the question of choosing a career to which he shall devote the time and energy of his life. For some few men this question has already been settled, not always by the man himself, but, at any rate, with a fair degree of finality. To such men this editorial can not greatly apply. There are doubtless other men to be found whose minds are set on the success which is measured by the bank balance. These also will find little of interest or value in the few words THE ORIENT says in lieu of farewell.

We are concerned, rather, with the great number of men who, after a long period of comparatively carefree shelter and seclusion from the rough contacts of the world, are now cast forth from the quiet of these academic halls to choose for themselves the path they shall tread. Granted, they have ambition of one sort or another. Granted also, that the ambition of almost every man leaving this college is a fairly high one. The question now comes: What part shall that high ambition play in the choice of a career? There is little doubt that every man in the class will find good employment in some branch of activity, whether in business or in one of the professions. Surely the job is not the thing to be sought. The job itself can be nothing but a means to an end. The great end for which every educated man should strive is the betterment of the world. That certainly does not mean that college men should shun the ordinary walks of life to join the ranks of canting reformers. Quite the contrary. The place of the college man in the life of today is not a detached position, looking on at a struggling world and offering advice. It is in the thick of the battle, fighting, working, striving shoulder to shoulder with the rank and file for the common weal.

The class of 1923 has a mighty heritage. To the men who graduate this week is given the digested wisdom of the ages, gleaned from the experience of the peoples of the world. Equipped with the finest mental training the land affords, the members of 1923 go forth, and to what? Let us who believe that the college man can attain to a position of real and vital leadership in the world hope that they are going to pave the way for a greater era of happiness, for an era in which the watchword shall be, not "The greatest gain for myself," but "The greatest good for the greatest number."

We expect no Utopia, no golden era of universal prosperity and happiness, but if from the class of 1923 there arise men who believe that they can add to the general good of the world, and have the courage and the will to live true to that belief, the class of 1923 will be worthy of undying praise. To these potential uplifters of society, then, THE ORIENT bids Godspeed. May success crown their efforts.

Baccalaureate Address

(President K. C. M. Sills, LL.D.)

Ever since human society has been organized, the relation of the individual to society has been one of perplexity and some confusion. Society has been gradually taking over many of those functions which at one time or another the individual exercised for himself. In primitive times every man protected his own life and property as best he could, punished crime, educated his children, traded and bartered on his own, and did scarcely many other things that today the state does for him. Conversely society has taken from the individual many privileges and not a few rights which he once exercised in peace. In the manifest complexity of modern life few questions are fraught with more difficulty and difference of opinion than that of the proper adjustment of the individual to his environment. It is as clear as daylight that no man may do exactly as he likes. No man liveth to himself. The extreme individualist is an outlaw in modern society. On the other hand, there are certain fundamental instincts or rights appertaining to the individual which in every civilized community must respect, and when such rights are flouted, tyranny ensues. Between these two regions there is a twilight zone which no man can clearly define, on whose limits no two men would absolutely agree. Sometimes the zone bordering on the individual is extended; sometimes the zone nearer to society is enlarged. Today it seems to many thoughtful observers that society is more and more encroaching upon the precincts of the individual and that it is high time to cry "Halt!"

There have been indeed long periods in history when the individual apparently counted for little. Although many of the attributes of human nature have been constant, in certain periods like the Middle Ages, the importance of the individual at least in the sight of man was consciously minimized. Therefore it is not surprising to find so much of the art and literature of that epoch anonymous. Just as clearly in the Renaissance the individual came almost blatantly into his own. What ever man could do that man had the right to do. In religious thought the movement later developed Protestantism, "Gold moving me, I can do no otherwise,"—the immortal cry of Luther, was the revolt of the individual from ecclesiastical control. Along other lines the spirit of the Renaissance led to Romanticism—and Rousseau expressed the complete emergence of the individual in the phrase: "I may be no better, no worse than any one else; but thank God I am other." These two forces, the social and the individualistic, are constantly warring one against the other. There are many examples today of individualism run amuck,—the new art, free verse, defiance of the law, lack of respect for parents and elders. But these tendencies often carry within themselves the seeds of their own redemption; they are the growing pains of character. More subtle and hence more dangerous are those movements, which tend to submerge the individual by laying over much emphasis on social obligation.

In education we all give hearty assent to the Mark Hopkins Garfield theory of the student and the log. Nearly every educational expert in the land cries out against mass education. Yet in practice our classes are as large as ever; more and more children go more and more mechanically through school and in great hordes troop to college. Many a modern university is forced to keep card catalogues not only of its library or of its students but even of its instructors in one course. Quantity production is too often the key note. Even in a college as small as Bowdoin, as one of the Commencement speakers Thursday will point out, the individual is too often lost sight of. This is to be sure nothing new. Years ago at Oxford Walter Pater expressed himself on education as follows: "I do not know what your object is. At present the undergraduate is a child of nature; he grows up like a wild rose in a country lane; you want to turn him into a turnip, to rob him of all grace and plant him out in rows." With all our boasted advance in education, it is not improbable that a hundred years ago, the average student whether in academy or college got more attention and was treated much more generally as an individual than is the case today. Men and brethren, such things ought not to be. We need not return to the method, but we ought to go back to the principles of the early England college which based character building on the development of sturdy individualism. What has been done can be done. Every device that leads to intellectual initiative and intellectual freedom is good, for along those paths lies also the road of individual responsibility.

There are also certain tendencies in modern thought and in modern philosophy that hamper and thwart, if indeed they do not actually destroy individual initiative and responsibility. Socialism and socialistic devices, however much they may be justified as protests against the sins of capitalism, are based on a conception of life where the individual is not to be allowed more than a very restricted self expression. All doctrines based primarily not on reason but on force have the same chilling and repressive effect. There is much of such violence abroad in the land today. The Ku Klux Klan is one silly manifestation of intolerance and repression of free speech are mass attacks on the individual. "Remember," writes William Allen White in a splendid editorial, "reason never has failed men. Only force and repression have made the wrecks in the world." Organized minorities relying on passion and propaganda, instilling fear into the hearts of weak legislators, are a great menace to the safety and peace of this nation. More dangerous still is the teaching of a purely materialistic philosophy. The denial of the persistence of the individual, of the immortality of the soul, leads too often to cynicism and to the repudiation of individual responsibility. For those who hold that the individual can live without in any way rendering account to God are acting on the pagan principle: "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die."

You cannot have a society that is strong and helpful unless the individual is assured of his chance for development and self expression. Conversely "no life that is true in its purpose and strong in its strife but all life is true and stronger thereby." It is this principle that makes it imperative in education, philosophy and religion to allow the individual to develop freely with as few restraints as possible. Only the man who is really free can make proper contribution to the progress of society. Herein enters the perfect law of liberty, to do a thing because one wants to do it, not because one is compelled to do so. And this love of lawful liberty brings in its train a willingness to accept individual responsibility. From such responsibility too many men are escaping. We are all too prone to place the blame for our sins and failures on heredity, on environment, on society, on anything but the weakness and frailty of our own characters. We excuse the criminal because we are told that modern social conditions are not all they should be. We forget that investigation proves that the majority of inmates in our jails are not

"morons" but above the normal in so-called intelligence. We condone low moral standards because in certain circles they are fashionable. We accept too often third rate service from third rate public servants on the ground that you can expect nothing better. Your college graduates wash their hands of politics and of civic responsibilities forgetting that he who is not for the cause of righteousness is against it. Nothing would do more to elevate the tone of our national life today than a return to the old theory of personal responsibility.

If there were such a return, we should as a nation be less content than we are with our present position in the world. A strong and free people blessed beyond measure by God, we should not hesitate to use our influence in the great family of nations. Opportunity, despite the proverb, sometimes knocks twice at the same door. Within the next few months we can, if we will, regain very much of the moral leadership we have very largely lost. Whatever this nation may do without loss of independence or of individuality to help a distracted world will make us all prouder of being Americans. President Harding in urging us to join the World Court has suggested one way of showing our willingness to co-operate. If we had the courage to assume responsibilities that most of us acknowledge belong to us, we could make our influence again potent in the council of the nations. Any day another clear call to duty may come. The problem of the Ruhr, the situation in the Near East, the crisis in China, all challenge us.

Members of the graduating class:

I have taken for my theme this afternoon the development and the responsibility of the individual, not only because it presents problems that should be of general interest but because it is particularly pertinent in a review of college life and as a challenge to college graduates. For four years in a unique community you have been learning day by day how to adjust yourselves to the changing lesson in class room, on the campus and in the field, of subordinating some of your own interests for the common good. You have also studied in literature, in history, in art and in science the precious worth of the individual. Bowdoin has tried to teach you not the low, noisy individualism of the petty man who is bent on having everything his own way, or of the blatant bruiser who selfishly forgets the rights and privileges of others, but the quiet, confident individuality which asserts that each man must face the Sphinx for himself and try to solve the riddle. There is one sentence in the letter of one of our war heroes which I wish you would frequently recall. Shortly before his death on the field of battle, Forbes Hiebard wrote to his mother: "It really makes no difference whether I come marching home some bright sunny morning, or whether I shall keep my own soul." In the turmoil and stress of life with its failures and victories and defeats there is no more important thing for any of us to do than in the sight of God and of his own conscience to guard his own individuality, his own personality, his own life, and to dedicate himself to self service. And the College in its final benediction can wish for you nothing higher than for you to be able to say at the end of your life, "I have kept my own soul."

A HUMAN DOCUMENT

The "Decameron" of Giovanni Boccaccio is a work that is considered completely impersonal, and which is studied almost entirely on account of its historical influence. But it is my purpose to try to show, not its great historical importance, nor its interesting sources and offspring, nor in the main its too seldom appreciated artistic beauty, but rather its value as the expression of the personality of one of the most interesting of the great authors of the Italian fourteenth century.

Boccaccio's father was a Florentine merchant of the lower classes and the boy was born in the year 1313. He tried business and the study of canon law at his father's compulsion, but could be happy at neither, for he felt an overpowering desire to devote himself to literature. As a young man he fell violently in love. He moved about Italy for a few years working on the "Decameron" and then returned to Florence when that city was just recovering from its worst plague. Here he began his public life and for sixteen years was employed by the commonwealth on various missions, the most important of which from the standpoint of his development was the one to Petrarch.

Probably his most characteristic trait, and the one that colors all the "Decameron," is his intense sympathy for his fellow-beings. Next, he is the scholar and artist. And last, he is a man, enjoying to the utmost the sensual joys that fall our lot, appreciating the beauties of nature and the pleasures of the senses.

Boccaccio is a humanist in the most literal sense of the word for he knows and shows all mankind. If there is one outstanding feature of so diverse a work as the "Decameron" it is its intense humanity. The "Decameron" tells of ten young men and maidens whose relatives have all been cut off by the plague. They resolve to flee from the dreadful scenes of death and desolation in Florence to a beautiful country villa.

It is his human quality that has made many a man say he would choose the "Decameron" as one of those he would always have by him, and with Edward Hutton we can say: "Well, after all, we are our fathers' sons, and (God be thanked) there are still winter evenings in which, while the others are occupied with Burton's frolics and jests, dancing and card-play, we, in some cosy place, may still turn the immortal pages."

FREDERICK KING TURGEON.

EFFICIENCY AND INDIVIDUALITY

Efficiency is the watchword of the present day. Civilized mankind desires above all else to progress, and efficiency has been seized upon as the best procedure toward progression. How does this affect the college undergraduate?

It apparently struck the founders of the present American college system that standard production is the most efficient production. Place the raw material in the culture factory, subject it to a certain number of lecture processes and testings by examination, and behold—the college graduate. But does such a system work out well? Unfortunately for the efficiency of the standard product, we have individuals to deal with instead of machines. Give the men an opportunity to express themselves in their courses and grade them on individual work, and a surprising interest will be shown. Individuality is not the only thing lost by the present system, however. We find many men slipping through college with little or no intensified mental discipline.

By allowing Seniors in good standing a certain freedom from lecture requirements, the college would set the best-developed minds of the student body free for individual endeavor. We have no assistants for such work, and I therefore suggest the informal discussion group among the Seniors. This informal discussion is one of the principal features of the Oxford system. Let us consider such a group. As is natural in this environment, the first topic of general interest is the college itself; its organization, its activities, its personnel. But very soon, whether prearranged or not, the topic becomes involved in some broader phase of life—some new movement in the world of politics, of literature, or of science. To make such gatherings obligatory would spoil their effectiveness. The earnestness and unrestrained which sets them off from any regular conference group, no matter how interesting, would be lost. A sentiment in favor of such gatherings may be aided by the college authorities, but not too evidently.

The English system is coming in by slow degrees. We are learning that the older nation is able to teach us something of efficiency as far as cultural advancement is concerned. Oxford with its less direct methods is turning out cultured individuals rather than instructed machines. Its undergraduates are doing original, unrequired thinking. Let us have a little more Oxford, and so obtain efficiency through individuality.

GEORGE H. QUINBY.

THE DELUSION OF NATIONAL ENTITY

What is the error in human thought that may be more or less obvious to outsiders but is seldom or never so to those whose opinions it aims to affect? Is it not the very conception of a nation as an absolute entity for any other purposes than the mere practical necessities of government. In other words it is not a deception to identify our conception of a people with our conception of its government? And is it not a deception, furthermore, to conceive of a government even as a continuous entity.

But it is more in relation to our own nation and to its historic international relations that the question is of importance. We are continually being reminded by propagandists of one type or another of the alleged historic friendship or enmity of some foreign power. And it seems to be assumed that the care is proved if it can be shown that the power in question did actually manifest friendly or hostile feeling toward us upon a given occasion. This assumption of course, is based on the idea of continuous entity of nations and government. A rapid survey of our history will show how little this assumption possesses.

Many situations throughout our entire history bear out the statement that there is no real connection between the action of America at any one of the different stages of her history and its policy at the present time. This also has been proved true in English and French history. From one period to another radical changes in the forms of government, have occurred and constitutions have been altered. The aristocratic governments of yesterday do not find continuity in the democracies of today. Is it not clear that the nation as it manifests itself under the leadership of one party or individual is in no complete sense the continuation of the nation as it appears under the leadership or party or individual of opposite opinions?

The idea of historic entity of foreign states as a basis for foreign national policy is, then, a delusion. Ideas govern national policy and in the modern world a few decades render the most firmly entrenched political ideas obsolete. Swift governmental changes often efface this in much shorter time. The ruler of today is not responsible for the ruler of yesterday. Nor should the ruler of tomorrow be held responsible for him. Let us lay aside all prejudices for or against any nation and allow our judgments to be solely governed by existing truth.

THEODORE W. COUSENS.

A FOREIGNER'S VIEW OF AMERICA

We read in the newspapers how the passenger steamers set new records across the sea, how the broadcasted news reaches farther and farther and how international conferences meet again and again. We are apt to think about a foreign country as a political unit, either a friend or an enemy.

We had in Sweden formed a rather definite conception of the U. S. Our picture was largely made up by the American moving pictures, by hasty newspaper articles and tales of the emigrants. We used to say that money rules everything over in America, that business is a reckless struggle to destroy the weak. In the political attitude of the U. S. we superficially read provincialism and felt a natural resentment against the wealthy country who could help.

But not long after landing the foreigner will find his conception altered. He detects a middleclass, like the one in his own country, deeply cultured and free from superficiality.

In Sweden we try to develop scholars and rely entirely upon the individual's interest in American colleges the aim is less the specialized scholar than the good citizen. We feel a difference in the theories; learning for its own sake or for developing of the character. But more than anything else the Swede appreciates the vastness and variety of American life.

But there are other differences. The waste is apparent, the waste of land and forests and more than that, the waste of beauty. It is not the ardent desire for beauty of the few that is lacking. It is more the general interest for beauty even in everyday life. This different attitude is naturally dependent upon the fact that America is so young and developing so rapidly. No one has time to meditate:—from school to old age the days are taken by activities:—the most American word there is! It appears as if the American was afraid to be alone with himself. This difference has been called the quantitative spirit as opposed to the qualitative. That spirit is quantitative that reckons progress in numbers as material wealth. It is the spirit of restless development, of external culture, of money worship. Happiness depends upon the qualitative spirit: the spirit of contentment, harmony, self-control. It is the spirit of the greatest thinkers and artists of the world.

It is hard to avoid the impression that America is quantitative in its rapid development.

ionship with hundreds of other young men of like age and ambitions as himself; of friendships there formed that had an effect upon and lasted through his life; of the almost family intimacy among those rooming on the same floor or in the same "End" with himself; of the meetings of congenial spirits in the fraternity houses; of the hours of reading and study in the quiet of his own room; of taking part in the various college activities, social, religious, athletic; of attendance of the mass meetings where the esprit du college, so important in modern academic life, is aroused and strengthened; above all of the daily meetings in the class rooms with the heads of the various college departments. Who can measure the influence upon young, and open and plastic minds, of a man of high personal character, of agreeable personality, a great teacher, thoroughly equipped for the work of his department, anxious to find out the difficulties of each one of his pupils and ready to help them over the hard places; eager to lead their footsteps into the paths of knowledge that he has trod and to open their eyes to the visions of truth that he enjoys?

That such a man and such a teacher was Professor Franklin C. Robinson is well known to all who were intimately acquainted with him and with his work. If further proof were needed it might be adduced from the fact that so many hundreds of young men who were in his classes are ready even to rise up and bless him name for the influence he had upon their lives. These are the things that are unseen but are eternal. And in all but a few of the first years of his work in the college he enjoyed the loving companionship, the hearty co-operation, the devoted helpfulness of his wife, the mother of those sons who in filial love and reverence have inscribed her name beside his upon this memorial tablet.

"May honor, and reverence and the good repute"
"That follows faithful service as its fruit"

Be unto them whose memory by this Memorial Gateway we would perpetuate.

Now Mr. President and members of the governing boards, it becomes my pleasant duty in behalf of the sons of Professor and Mrs. Robinson to present to you and through you to Bowdoin College this Gateway, hoping and believing that it will be received in the same spirit in which it is given, and that it will be carefully preserved and respectfully cherished as a memorial of these two faithful servants who gave the larger part of the best years of their lives to the service of Bowdoin College.

In accepting the Franklin C. Robinson Memorial Gateway, President Sills said in part:

"It has frequently been remarked that one of the real advantages of the small college is the fact that it still preserves something of the intimacy and friendliness that is associated with the word family. Since the College was founded over 9000 students have been in residence here; and yet since they have come and gone in relatively small groups, Bowdoin men have always been able to take a personal interest in one another. Professor Robinson had brothers, sons and nephews all graduates of the College. One of his nephews is among our gallant few who in the World War gave his all for his country. One of his sons whose tragic and untimely death the whole state mourned, was a splendid soldier, a clear-headed lawyer, and a most public spirited and popular citizen of Maine. Another son has served most acceptably on our Faculty as a lecturer in law and now holds a most important civic post. A third son, a graduate of the class of 1907, has an important position on the Pacific Coast. His brother, Dr. Robinson, is the senior member of our Board of Overseers. It is therefore altogether fitting that the College should welcome with unusual warmth this beautiful gate, the gift that continues filial piety and devotion to Alma Mater."

It is not too much to say that Professor Robinson was one of Maine's great citizens. He was recognized not only as an eminent chemist, an inspiring teacher, and a master in his own particular field of knowledge; but as a devoted public servant, always ready to place his talents at the service of association, town, community or state.

This gateway is also and appropriately a memorial to Mrs. Robinson. The alumni and friends of the College do not always realize that in a college community much of the burden and heat of the day is borne by the wives of the professors. Many a graduate has cause to recall acts of friendliness and hospitality from those who have always been beyond all other friends of the student.

I have chosen these few characteristics, both of Professor and Mrs. Robinson, not that many others might not have as well been emphasized; but because they may help to make us all realize how appropriate and significant is this Gateway. It marks the path that led from home to laboratory; it looks toward the town that both loved so deeply; it stands as an entrance to the College which both served for very many years. Designed by a Bowdoin architect, built by Brunswick men, given by the three loyal Bowdoin sons in memory of a Bowdoin father and mother, dedicated by a Bowdoin brother, this Gateway is now formally accepted by Bowdoin. And one can see with the mind's eye our fair and radiant Alma Mater, smiling amid here tears, with tender gratitude receiving this gift that adds another beautiful corner to her serene and lovely grounds."

On the same afternoon the Tablet to President Hyde was unveiled in Hyde Hall. Dr. Burnett made the address saying in part:

Bowdoin is today doing a thing unusual in its history. Not by gift of loyal sons but with her own official finger she is writing an honored name upon the walls of this building. William DeWitt Hyde Hall, this name will henceforth have a meaning for each latest matriculate of the college who goes into residence within its comfortable confines. But not the meaning it has for most of us gathered here today. Six years have nearly gone since that day, just after the Commencement of 1917, when the grievous news spread so quickly that "The President" had died. And now to Bowdoin students that face, so familiar to most of us, is of a stranger. Tablets may recite deeds and honors; they do not evoke a presence.

And who of that later day, be he inquiring freshman or another, can get that full impact upon contemporary life of a nature self-evident and dignified, generous in mind and purse, stiff for principle, patient with others but abrupt with himself, eager for clear and helpful vision, at once social and shy, strong in action yet self-critical to the point of self-distrust, taking the measure of youth's deepest desires to make youth, in turn, reflectively intelligent; seeking the order at the heart of life's seeming confusions and picturing that order in clear words and luminous examples; not desirous of insight merely but perspicuous report, as though at his elbow were always sitting some eager, needful, confused dillard, whose temporal salvation might depend upon the master's utterance.

Not knowledge but wisdom, knowledge set to work, was his continual pursuit. You, Mr. President, and you other graduates who sat at his side in Number 3, Memorial, or, in later years, in Banister Hall, know well what I say, as you recall the insistent ethical outcome of all his philosophy and the vision and revision of life to which it forthwith tended. He tried, did he not? to shake you out of your thoughtless comfort, to make you begin the difficult work of exploring your own mind about life, your choice of values, and the inner contradictions in character you harbored; urging you, too, out of the selfish, absorbing daily routine to consider and be moved by the grave social problems of the wider world.

Some of us have seen him at his desk. You know, perhaps, how carefully he guarded those precious morning hours of reflective thought. For years, after coming to Bowdoin, the afternoon was devoted to administrative duties, but the morning was the time for insight. He knew it mattered whether one set to be a leader of men, could maintain a vision, whether one's thoughts took hold on reality, and he strove for it at the time of day when his powers were at their fittest; and his life work shows his success. That great desk with the thoughtful figure seated before it within reach of a revolving book-case, is for some of us, perhaps, the most typical picture we recall of him.

As I muse over these memories and select one here and there, I know full well that it is not I, a friend of the last dozen years of his life, who can put together the many-sided image of that man. It is you who listen, some of you at least, and countless others who should be called to this speaker's place to say that word, each in his own way, which would, with all the others, set more adequately in our Bowdoin gallery of fame a lasting picture of a soul. If to some of you my phrases seem but trifling, my items badly chosen, extend them, obliterate them, do what you will to pass on the truer lineaments to the generations coming. Yet be it said that it is not he, in all good likelihood, who seeks a ghostly fame among the later generations. He felt his life as good to be lived within the compass of his own time. The circumference of that life was ample; and if he knew on occasion grief or bitterness, he must have had the joy of seeing the successful issue of his plans and hearing the voice of general approval. And these contemporaries are passing on with him, they and he to new and absorbing enterprises. Are they so much concerned about the earthly trail they may have left? Enough that they are a part of the secrets that the pines and elms, the lawns and stately buildings of this old campus have among themselves, as they wisely muse over the fitting generations of Bowdoin men.

But his own times have judged him. The men he labored with have said: "Well done." The official finger has recorded it on the wall within this building. In letters of bronze the judgment stands: A great president, William DeWitt Hyde.

At the unveiling of the Tablet to President Hyde, President Sills said in part:

"As President of the College and as the immediate successor of President Hyde, I count it a great privilege to take part in these simple exercises. When this dormitory was built, the governing boards unanimously voted to name it after the great President who had done so much for Bowdoin. Other presidents of the College have been men of parts and often men of distinction. President Hyde alone had that rare and intangible quality of greatness. And consequently for the inscription on this tablet the word "great" was chosen advisedly and chosen with care. When the final history of Bowdoin is written I venture to prophecy that his name will shine with clear effulgence when many others will be dimmed."

Dr. Burnett has given such a clear and suggestive review of Dr. Hyde's characteristics that there remains but very little for me to add. But as I happen to have a rather unique point of view of that great office which he adorned, it may not be in appropriate to refer briefly to the sound foundation he laid, to the wise tradition he built up, and to the liberal spirit which he engendered.

And the College owes him a debt that grows greater as the years pass by. He was the ideal President, the one by whom all others will be measured and found wanting. A great teacher, he inspired in the most listless undergraduate a desire for knowledge. A great writer, he made to liberal the "log" and to modern Christianity contributions of lasting value. He is the writer today who is in interpreting the Church as he interpreted it? A great executive he found the college brick and left it marble. In thought and policy he was not conservative nor radical, but liberal. He was courageous and he stood his ground like the man he was.

This dormitory in which for generations Bowdoin men will spend their happy undergraduate days, this tablet with its simple inscription, these monuments of brick and bronze are all very well. But William DeWitt Hyde was so great a man that he has no need of these things. Yet we need them. We need them to be reminded of those qualities which he exhibited; to have kept alive the spiritual debt which we owe him; above all we need them so that we may obtain a share of that liberal and life giving spirit which, breathed into the dust of formal education and necessary mental discipline, makes of the College a body throbbing with ever renewed vitality and inspiration, one of the greatest agencies on earth for promoting the Kingdom of Heaven."

The Bulletin Board was presented to the College by Professor W. W. Lawrence '98 of Columbia University in behalf of the Class of 1898. The Orient was unable to obtain his address before going to press.

Bowdoin Ties With Colby For Baseball Championship

Although Bowdoin by winning the final game of the State series, the Ivy game, from Bates by a score of 8 to 4 went into first place in the standing of the four colleges Colby managed to tie us for the State championship by defeating Maine and Bates. The Ivy game although rather loosely played, was interesting to watch and it gave to Bowdoin a well-deserved victory for the final game of the season. Rube Johnson pitched his same fine brand of ball keeping the Bates hits well scattered at all times.

Last year the baseball championship was tied between Maine and Bowdoin. As it was last year this year's tie was not played off. Dean Nixon announced before the deciding game with Colby and Bates that no play-off would be allowed owing to the start of finals and the lateness of the season.

Currier, Stewart and Waterman, octogenarians and Bean nonoctogenarian, the only living members, are all in comfortable health and retirement after long ministries. Future classes, in choice of profession take notice that the ministry is conducive to long, useful and satisfactory life, and that society was never in greater need of its ministrations.

The Class of '70 cannot contribute to the Orient's request for "live" alumni notes. Its ten surviving members, whose ages average 76, still reside where they have lived for over a quarter of a century. No divorces or marriages have occurred, and no one has changed his occupation, although several have retired from business. We were too old to invest in "oil," so all gave to the College Endowment Fund. The Volstead act does not interfere with our happiness; nor do bootleggers benefit by our existence. Though divided politically we love the old flag, believe in the American Republic, and have not yet disclosed our choice for President in 1924. We are a contented lot of old grads. Some of us smoke a pipe, but our wives still ban the cigarette. We boast of our College frolics, and sing "We won't go home until morning," but ten o'clock, standard time, usually finds us in bed.

The Class was represented in the last Maine legislature by Stetson H. Hussey, of Mars Hill, Me., who was a member of the Senate. At the last Fall election Hugh H. Hastings, of Fryeburg, Maine, was elected County Attorney for Oxford County. George W. Howe has been appointed a member of the City Planning Board of Lynn, Mass. W. C. Allen is now engaged in teaching science in Temple University and in the High School at Ardmore, Pa. F. H. Burns has removed from Boston, Mass., to New York City, where he has accepted a position as Eastern Advertising Manager of Forbes Magazine, 120 Fifth Avenue, New York City. W. T. Emerson is now employed in the editorial department of the William Feather Company, 615 Caxton Building, Cleveland, Ohio. F. W. Knight is now at Newtown, Conn., as Supervising Agent of the Schools in that place. S. W. Pierce has given up his position with the U. S. Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, and is now vice-president of W. E. Hedger Company, Inc., steamship agents and brokers, 25 Beaver street, New York City. A. S. Pope is studying at Tufts College Medical School, and at the same time acting as Assistant in Physiology. C. D. Robbins has established a banking and brokerage firm known as Charles D. The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company TRADITIONS AND IDEALS

Mutual Benefit agents are men who have been drawn to the Company because of its traditions and ideals. For seventy-seven years the idea conveyed by the words "Mutual Benefit"—the good of the whole applied to the affairs of each one—has been the guiding principle in treatment of policyholders of this Company.

The appeal of the Mutual Benefit is to those who want pure life insurance, with the most liberal features and at the lowest cost.

Co-operation.

Only a few days ago Bowdoin formally opened her one hundred and twenty-first year of existence. On this morning the college hastens to welcome the scores of newcomers who appear at the chapel exercises as new Bowdoin men. It is a joyous occasion, this opening of college, yet it is fraught with tremendous meaning.

There is little need to expatiate upon the requirements of college life to the initiated. To the freshman, however, a few words of friendly advice and admonition may not come amiss. Yearly the new groups come, eager, vital, full of a great ambition to make good. Yearly the same old influences of sloth and indifference work their ruinous effects upon a number of men, sending them out in disgrace from the halls whose walls should re-echo nothing of discredit to the name of a son of the college. It is to be expected that a certain reasonable percentage of each class will not graduate, but, under the conditions to which Bowdoin now adheres, there is no reason why that number can not be materially lessened. To that end let every member of the college strive, whether he is an upperclassman or a freshman.

It is often very difficult to impress upon the first year man the necessity for scholarship. Few indeed are the freshmen who cannot understand the need for them in extra-curricular activities, but the same men who appear to be the backbone of student activities are often lamentably far from leadership in the scholastic field. And the worst of it is that these leaders not only do not lead in the activities of the class room, but are all too frequently forced to abandon all the leadership that is justly theirs because the pressure of outside activities drives them to inferiority in their studies.

In a small college like Bowdoin the burden of campus functions falls of necessity on a few versatile men. This condition is not pernicious in itself but it does give rise to scholastic conditions which are unfortunate. There is no reason why the men who take the lead on the athletic field and in the many non-athletic activities should be so pressed for time that their scholastic performance suffers.

There is a remedy for the situation. A committee on limitation of activities was elected by the students of the college last spring. On this committee devolves the duty of seeing to it that no man is overburdened by outside activities. Freshmen especially will be required to restrict the time which they may put into student affairs.

For this reason, each entering man must carefully select the activities for which he is best fitted, and confine himself to striving for pre-eminence in those alone. With reasonable co-operation, every man should find opportunity to excel under this system, and the usual scholastic difficulties should be greatly lessened.

Let every man go out for some activity apart from his courses. Let him enjoy the broadening influence of working hard with other men for a single purpose. Let him know the pleasure of representing Bowdoin in a worthy manner, but, above all, let him work.

List of Freshman

Kate Douglas Wiggin

Dies at London in August

It was with a distinct shock that Bowdoin men received the news of Kate Douglas Wiggin's death in London last August after a short illness, and it is with deep sorrow that they mourn the loss of this wonderful woman who has meant so much to the College in years past. The passing of such a figure in the literary world is a cause for national concern, but to Bowdoin men, and to all those who have been concerned with the College, that feeling of concern holds a far more personal note. Kate Douglas Wiggin, or Mrs. Riggs, as she was known in private life was one of the three women upon whom the college has conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. In 1901 the degree was conferred upon Sarah Orne Jewett, in 1904 upon Mrs. Riggs, and in 1911 upon Annie Crosby Emery. Mrs. Riggs, moreover, held the office of President of the Association of Bowdoin Women.

There is no necessity of enumerating here all the activities and literary work of Kate Douglas Wiggin. Her life and books are too well-known to need further mention. Especially in the State of Maine she has become familiar to everyone, for while born in Philadelphia, she spent most of her life and did much of her writing in Maine. She was always interested in civic and philanthropic activities in the State and her part in the affairs of the people of Maine speedily won her a place in their hearts. It will be many years before another will arise who can fill that place which has been left vacant, and even though that place be some day filled, the people of Maine and Bowdoin College will still mourn the loss of a famous and wonderful woman as well as a sincere friend.

along the lines of our successful experiment in modern history last April; and the press has been cordial in reminding the public of the debt which American letters owe to Bowdoin. We proudly include in that list an adopted daughter of the college, Kate Douglas Wiggin, whose death in England last August was a great loss to American literature. She was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters in 1904; and ever since has been a most loyal and zealous supporter of the college. As President of the Association of Bowdoin Women she gave freely of her time and means and influence. Bowdoin is glad to share with the State of Maine in gratitude for her wholesome stories and for her own gracious personality. We mourn also the recent death of a younger writer of real promise, Charles Boardman Hawes, 1911, whose stories of adventure on the sea had already made him the rival of Sabatine and gave hope that he would prove the American heir of Stevenson. The establishment by the Atlantic Monthly Press of a prize in his memory is a very unusual tribute—and well deserved since few younger men had shown more literary power than in his all too brief career he had displayed. A college is judged not only by its daily work but by its product; and we are glad to have the measure of an education in the liberal arts at Bowdoin assessed by creative literary work of such promise.

In beginning the collegiate year the college can wish for you all nothing better than the ability to work hard and to get satisfaction from hard work. What we need in our colleges as in the country at large is a return to industry. The American is probably the busiest person in the world; but he does not know how to work. There is a great difference between being busy and working hard. In too many walks of life men are afraid of work, try to avoid work, wish to escape from the drudgery and persistence of work and take refuge in merely being busy. It is popularly supposed that the American business man works very hard indeed; but if you follow him through the routine of a day, you will find that he very seldom concentrates; he goes from one thing to another and expends a great deal of nervous energy and dissipates his time. The American laboring man too often tries to get out of doing hard work. No liberal minded person would object to high wages and short hours provided there is honest, thorough work. But of that all too little exists.

No one institution can do much to stem the tide by itself. But when a college sets reasonably high standards of accomplishment and tries to live up to them, it is performing a real national service. Our colleges are insisting today on better intellectual work, not from any narrow point of view, not because college teachers do not realize the complexity of modern life, but because we believe in the ethical as well as the mental value of hard work.

There are many satisfactions in college life; friendships, athletic rivalries, generous co-operation for common ends, varied loyalties, growth in body, mind and spirit. But a good many college men never experience the satisfaction of working hard. There ought to be periods of intellectual training as of physical training for athletic contests. "Work hard and behave" was the laconic and spartan message recently sent to a school by President Coolidge. It does not of course comprise all the duties of men. But hard work and appropriate moral behavior go a long way. In addition to that rather prudential advice we need also to remember the ideal and romantic side of college life. It is not only good to work hard; it is fun to know things. It is a great bore to be ignorant. The world is a pretty dull place to people who are ignorant and pretty flat and stale and unprofitable to the loafers.

Another advantage of working hard is that it gives you a right to express your own views about things, to take an individual stand, in a word to be more of an individual. If you attempt to work out your own theories without ever thinking hard or having them based on solid grounds, you are likely to be conceited, variable, fussy, insecure. If in popular parlance you know what you are talking about, you will have a better outlet for the expression of your own individuality. Like all other colleges Bowdoin expects you to learn how to think for yourself and also never to be afraid to take a stand on your convictions no matter how unpopular such a stand may make you. If in college you learn to work hard and to work for yourself, you will find out that your professors will not want you to believe anything because they say it is true but because you have found it to be true. In the same way you ought to hold your own opinions about college affairs and not accept current popular views unless they agree with your own convictions. Because men in college who are prominent as captains of teams, or popular men, or members of the student council say this or that is no reason for you to follow unless you yourself are convinced that their leadership is wise. If you let others impose their views on you in college, you will be less likely to be independent in after life; for the characteristics you show in college you will be pretty sure to exhibit later on. Properly considered, college is a training school for moral and intellectual courage, and of that rare virtue the world can never have too much."

Beginning with the Fall of 1923 the following regulations go into effect:

1. All courses listed in the catalogue as one semester courses which are in fact continuous courses throughout the year, shall be made year courses, the final standing of the student to be computed at the close of the academic year. Examinations and tentative grades will be given at mid-years as usual. On these grades scholarships will be assigned, and these grades will be sent home; but the final grades will not be entered until the courses are completed in June. In the final examination the student will be held responsible for the work of the whole course.

2. A senior who completes his requirements for the degree at the end of the first semester will be permitted to take half credit in year courses.

3. A student who has a grade of E in two or more courses at the end of either semester shall be liable to be dropped from the college whether previously warned or not.

4. A student who falls hopelessly behind in a single course may be required to drop it by action of the Recording Committee on the recommendation of the instructor. In the case of a student taking only four courses (a) the dropped course shall be recorded as a failure and none of the remaining courses in which he obtains a final grade lower than C shall count, (b) but if the course is a second year course in a required subject, he shall be demoted to an elementary course in the same subject, to be entered immediately, and to be completed with a passing grade without college credit.

Born at Albany, N. Y., where he became teacher of mathematics and physics in Albany Academy. Leading American physicist of his time. First director of the Smithsonian Institution.

When Henry rang the bell

If any bell was ever heard around the world, Joseph Henry rang it in his famous experiment at the Albany Academy. The amazing development of the electrical industry traces back to this schoolmaster's coil of insulated wire and his electro-magnet that lifted a ton of iron.

Four years later when Morse used Henry's electro-magnet to invent the telegraph, Henry congratulated him warmly and unselfishly.

The principle of Henry's coil of wire is utilized by the General Electric Company in motors and generators that light cities, drive railroad trains, do away with household drudgery and perform the work of millions of men.

The work that was begun by pioneers like Joseph Henry is being carried on by the scientists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company. They are constantly searching for fundamental principles in order that electricity may be of greater service to mankind.

Co-operation.

Only a few days ago Bowdoin formally opened her one hundred and twenty-first year of existence. On this morning the college hastens to welcome the scores of newcomers who appear at the chapel exercises as new Bowdoin men. It is a joyous occasion, this opening of college, yet it is fraught with tremendous meaning.

There is little need to expatiate upon the requirements of college life to the initiated. To the freshman, however, a few words of friendly advice and admonition may not come amiss. Yearly the new groups come, eager, vital, full of a great ambition to make good. Yearly the same old influences of sloth and indifference work their ruinous effects upon a number of men, sending them out in disgrace from the halls whose walls should re-echo nothing of discredit to the name of a son of the college. It is to be expected that a certain reasonable percentage of each class will not graduate, but, under the conditions to which Bowdoin now adheres, there is no reason why that number can not be materially lessened. To that end let every member of the college strive, whether he is an upperclassman or a freshman.

It is often very difficult to impress upon the first year man the necessity for scholarship. Few indeed are the freshmen who cannot understand the need for them in extra-curricular activities, but the same men who appear to be the backbone of student activities are often lamentably far from leadership in the scholastic field. And the worst of it is that these leaders not only do not lead in the activities of the class room, but are all too frequently forced to abandon all the leadership that is justly theirs because the pressure of outside activities drives them to inferiority in their studies.

In a small college like Bowdoin the burden of campus functions falls of necessity on a few versatile men. This condition is not pernicious in itself but it does give rise to scholastic conditions which are unfortunate. There is no reason why the men who take the lead on the athletic field and in the many non-athletic activities should be so pressed for time that their scholastic performance suffers.

There is a remedy for the situation. A committee on limitation of activities was elected by the students of the college last spring. On this committee devolves the duty of seeing to it that no man is overburdened by outside activities. Freshmen especially will be required to restrict the time which they may put into student affairs.

For this reason, each entering man must carefully select the activities for which he is best fitted, and confine himself to striving for pre-eminence in those alone. With reasonable co-operation, every man should find opportunity to excel under this system, and the usual scholastic difficulties should be greatly lessened.

Let every man go out for some activity apart from his courses. Let him enjoy the broadening influence of working hard with other men for a single purpose. Let him know the pleasure of representing Bowdoin in a worthy manner, but, above all, let him work.

In 1901 the degree was conferred upon Sarah Orne Jewett, in 1904 upon Mrs. Riggs, and in 1911 upon Annie Crosby Emery. Mrs. Riggs, moreover, held the office of President of the Association of Bowdoin Women.

There is no necessity of enumerating here all the activities and literary work of Kate Douglas Wiggin. Her life and books are too well-known to need further mention. Especially in the State of Maine she has become familiar to everyone, for while born in Philadelphia, she spent most of her life and did much of her writing in Maine. She was always interested in civic and philanthropic activities in the State and her part in the affairs of the people of Maine speedily won her a place in their hearts. It will be many years before another will arise who can fill that place which has been left vacant, and even though that place be some day filled, the people of Maine and Bowdoin College will still mourn the loss of a famous and wonderful woman as well as a sincere friend.

along the lines of our successful experiment in modern history last April; and the press has been cordial in reminding the public of the debt which American letters owe to Bowdoin. We proudly include in that list an adopted daughter of the college, Kate Douglas Wiggin, whose death in England last August was a great loss to American literature. She was given the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters in 1904; and ever since has been a most loyal and zealous supporter of the college. As President of the Association of Bowdoin Women she gave freely of her time and means and influence. Bowdoin is glad to share with the State of Maine in gratitude for her wholesome stories and for her own gracious personality. We mourn also the recent death of a younger writer of real promise, Charles Boardman Hawes, 1911, whose stories of adventure on the sea had already made him the rival of Sabatine and gave hope that he would prove the American heir of Stevenson. The establishment by the Atlantic Monthly Press of a prize in his memory is a very unusual tribute—and well deserved since few younger men had shown more literary power than in his all too brief career he had displayed. A college is judged not only by its daily work but by its product; and we are glad to have the measure of an education in the liberal arts at Bowdoin assessed by creative literary work of such promise.

In beginning the collegiate year the college can wish for you all nothing better than the ability to work hard and to get satisfaction from hard work. What we need in our colleges as in the country at large is a return to industry. The American is probably the busiest person in the world; but he does not know how to work. There is a great difference between being busy and working hard. In too many walks of life men are afraid of work, try to avoid work, wish to escape from the drudgery and persistence of work and take refuge in merely being busy. It is popularly supposed that the American business man works very hard indeed; but if you follow him through the routine of a day, you will find that he very seldom concentrates; he goes from one thing to another and expends a great deal of nervous energy and dissipates his time. The American laboring man too often tries to get out of doing hard work. No liberal minded person would object to high wages and short hours provided there is honest, thorough work. But of that all too little exists.

No one institution can do much to stem the tide by itself. But when a college sets reasonably high standards of accomplishment and tries to live up to them, it is performing a real national service. Our colleges are insisting today on better intellectual work, not from any narrow point of view, not because college teachers do not realize the complexity of modern life, but because we believe in the ethical as well as the mental value of hard work.

There are many satisfactions in college life; friendships, athletic rivalries, generous co-operation for common ends, varied loyalties, growth in body, mind and spirit. But a good many college men never experience the satisfaction of working hard. There ought to be periods of intellectual training as of physical training for athletic contests. "Work hard and behave" was the laconic and spartan message recently sent to a school by President Coolidge. It does not of course comprise all the duties of men. But hard work and appropriate moral behavior go a long way. In addition to that rather prudential advice we need also to remember the ideal and romantic side of college life. It is not only good to work hard; it is fun to know things. It is a great bore to be ignorant. The world is a pretty dull place to people who are ignorant and pretty flat and stale and unprofitable to the loafers.

Another advantage of working hard is that it gives you a right to express your own views about things, to take an individual stand, in a word to be more of an individual. If you attempt to work out your own theories without ever thinking hard or having them based on solid grounds, you are likely to be conceited, variable, fussy, insecure. If in popular parlance you know what you are talking about, you will have a better outlet for the expression of your own individuality. Like all other colleges Bowdoin expects you to learn how to think for yourself and also never to be afraid to take a stand on your convictions no matter how unpopular such a stand may make you. If in college you learn to work hard and to work for yourself, you will find out that your professors will not want you to believe anything because they say it is true but because you have found it to be true. In the same way you ought to hold your own opinions about college affairs and not accept current popular views unless they agree with your own convictions. Because men in college who are prominent as captains of teams, or popular men, or members of the student council say this or that is no reason for you to follow unless you yourself are convinced that their leadership is wise. If you let others impose their views on you in college, you will be less likely to be independent in after life; for the characteristics you show in college you will be pretty sure to exhibit later on. Properly considered, college is a training school for moral and intellectual courage, and of that rare virtue the world can never have too much."

Beginning with the Fall of 1923 the following regulations go into effect:

1. All courses listed in the catalogue as one semester courses which are in fact continuous courses throughout the year, shall be made year courses, the final standing of the student to be computed at the close of the academic year. Examinations and tentative grades will be given at mid-years as usual. On these grades scholarships will be assigned, and these grades will be sent home; but the final grades will not be entered until the courses are completed in June. In the final examination the student will be held responsible for the work of the whole course.

2. A senior who completes his requirements for the degree at the end of the first semester will be permitted to take half credit in year courses.

3. A student who has a grade of E in two or more courses at the end of either semester shall be liable to be dropped from the college whether previously warned or not.

4. A student who falls hopelessly behind in a single course may be required to drop it by action of the Recording Committee on the recommendation of the instructor. In the case of a student taking only four courses (a) the dropped course shall be recorded as a failure and none of the remaining courses in which he obtains a final grade lower than C shall count, (b) but if the course is a second year course in a required subject, he shall be demoted to an elementary course in the same subject, to be entered immediately, and to be completed with a passing grade without college credit.

When Henry rang the bell

If any bell was ever heard around the world, Joseph Henry rang it in his famous experiment at the Albany Academy. The amazing development of the electrical industry traces back to this schoolmaster's coil of insulated wire and his electro-magnet that lifted a ton of iron.

Four years later when Morse used Henry's electro-magnet to invent the telegraph, Henry congratulated him warmly and unselfishly.

The principle of Henry's coil of wire is utilized by the General Electric Company in motors and generators that light cities, drive railroad trains, do away with household drudgery and perform the work of millions of men.

The work that was begun by pioneers like Joseph Henry is being carried on by the scientists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company. They are constantly searching for fundamental principles in order that electricity may be of greater service to mankind.

Bowdoin's Opponents In Saturday's Games

Bates Wins, While Norwich, Colby, and Maine Lose

With all of Bowdoin's opponents for the coming football season engaged in more or less difficult games last Saturday, it is possible to draw several comparisons from scores as well as a little "dope" from their showings. Bates was the only Maine college to come out the victor of the day, by defeating Massachusetts Aggies through a lucky break of the game by the score of 7 to 6. Both Colby and Maine found more than their equals in their respective opponents. Colby struck a defense that was practically impregnable when she met Brown at Providence and was slaughtered by the lop-sided score of 33 to 0. On Dartmouth's home grounds Maine was defeated in a game that showed little impressive football. Norwich, the White's opponent for this Saturday, although defeated by the fast, heavy New Hampshire team by a score of 19 to 7, showed itself to be a formidable team and one that is well worthy of notice.

When Bowdoin opens her home season on Whittier Field next Saturday, the White supporters will have the opportunity of seeing a battle that should prove both close and interesting if past playing can in any way predict future playing. It will not be a pre-season game between two untried teams, but a mid-season game between two fighting, experienced teams that will be in the pink of condition for the fray. A week ago last Saturday Norwich held Dartmouth to a 14 to 0 score, which is the smallest score that the two colleges have run up in the last fourteen years of Norwich-Dartmouth games. This first game of the season showed the Vermont team superior to their average. In the second game of the season, with New Hampshire University, she had little hope of winning in face of the sweeping end runs and superb aerial attack of the New Hampshire team. It was a show of defensive work on the part of the lesers from the very start of the game. The resulting score was 19 to 7.

Bates scored a win over Massachusetts Aggies that was a piece of luck to say the least. The touchdown was made when Rowe picked up a punt fumbled on his opponents' 45-yard line and ran the whole distance to the goal unobstructed. Peterson successfully drop-kicked for the extra point. The whole game was a punting battle in which Bates had the edge. Fellows' punts averaging around fifty yards. The Bates line was poor, the only redeeming feature being the work of Captain Scott, Rowe, Daker. The showing in this game proved the Garnet to be almost helpless on off-tackle plays. The Massachusetts Aggies' only points came from hard line plunging. The Maine team only earned one first down, and the Bay Staters made twelve, showing the inferiority of the Garnet team to their opponents in consistent ground gaining.

Colby could give little resistance to the brilliant and crushing attack of the Brown backfield which piled up a score of 33 to 0. The most consistent ground gainer for the Waterville team was Tarpey, quarterback and acting captain. His off tackle and around the end plays proved good for ten or twelve yards time and again. Twice with only Eisenberg between him and the goal he was stopped by a clean tackle. Realizing that it was useless to plug at the Brown line, the Maine team resorted to an overhead attack.

Blanket Taxes

At a meeting of the Board of Managers last Monday evening it was found that of the 489 men enrolled in college only 279 had paid Blanket Taxes.

For the benefit of the 210 men owing taxes it has been decided to open the managers' room in the Gym from 1-2 p. m. today and Thursday, 1-4 on Friday and 9-12 Saturday morning.

On each Fraternity bulletin board Saturday evening will be posted the names of Brothers still owing taxes and on Sunday noon figures will be taken to compute Fraternity standings. In the issue of Oct. 24 the names of all delinquents will be published.

Last week was a period of intensified Freshman-Sophomore activities from start to finish. In every affair the Sophomore class showed its superiority over the Freshmen, in spite of the fact that the younger class outnumbered the upperclassmen by an overwhelming majority. Warning Night last Wednesday evening was an affair that caused considerable excitement for the members of both classes as well as for a few Juniors and Seniors, while Proclamation Night, Friday, was the quietest affair of its kind that has been witnessed in several years. The Freshman class seemed to offer no concerted or organized resistance of any kind on either of the occasions. The Flag Rush on Saturday after the baseball game was a distinct victory for the Sophomores, while the same class defeated the yearlings in baseball by a lop-sided score.

Warning Night

Warning Night last Wednesday gave the Freshmen their first taste of the paddle. The Sophomores made their customary visits to Freshman rooms in the ends and enjoyed the entertainment which the first-year men were only too glad to furnish. Impromptu dances on tables and lusty cheers for '26 were the main indignities forced upon the yearlings. A pajama parade downtown formed in front of the chapel where the freshmen were lined up in jail array, flanked on either side by sophomores wielding the mighty paddle. With the Freshmen loudly proclaiming their innate greenness in no uncertain terms, the parade started the march down town. The Sops had their hands full to prevent the yearlings from breaking ranks while the line was halted to allow a train to cross the street. Downtown was however reached without mishap and in front of Chandler's the Freshmen gave a pleasing exhibition of leap frog. On the way back upperclassmen tried to break up the freshman line and repeated sallies and constant to "break it up, Freshmen," but to no avail. In front of the chapel the yearlings were again compelled to cheer for '26 and then were sent to their rooms.

Proclamation Night Quiet

Friday night was Proclamation Night. The freshmen reported to the Athletic Building somewhat scantily attired in pajamas. The Sophomore make-up artists did their work thoroughly. Each yearling's back was well coated with molasses and a proc stuck on. Youthful heads were made as hoary as grandfather's by the application of lard and pillow feathers. Finishing touches in the shape of moustaches and Sophomore numerals were applied with pain and brush. After the make-up process the Freshmen, inspired by paddles, did six laps around the clay floor. Then huddled together on hands and knees, they were led out into the middle of the floor and in the most suppliant of poses gave a very realistic example of a cow in distress. After the mooring, the final crawl around the floor, stomachs down, began. The most humiliating indignity was the last, when the yearlings were made to swim through a sea of very wet and oozy clay just in front of the door which gave them their freedom. One or two Freshmen balked at going through the slimy area and were not content until they had dragged a few sophomores in with them. Proclamation Night proved on the whole an amusement for the upperclassmen, a relief for the Sophomores, and a humiliation for the Freshmen.

Baseball Game

The Sophomores defeated the Freshmen 10-4 in the first game of the series last Saturday morning on the Delta. The battery for the Sophomores was Sibley and De Bois, while Rannal and Gray upheld the honors of the first year team.

In the first three innings the upper classmen were blanked. However, in the fourth Willie knocked a two bagger with the bases full, bringing across three runs. The score remained the same until the sixth when the Sophomores won the game with three runs. They followed suit in the seventh and added two more in the eighth, while the Freshman's best effort was one in the seventh. Rannal (Continued on Page 3)

Student Body Backs Up Council In Elections

Votes to Raise Blanket Tax—Ivy Day Set for May 23—Adams '25 Track Manager

The date of Ivy Day at Bowdoin College, which for generations has fallen on the Friday nearest the first day of June, is to be set ahead one week, and next spring will take place on May 23d. This was definitely decided at a referendum held by the student body, Tuesday. For several years there has been an agitation to have the date of Ivy Day changed in order that more time might be allowed between the Ivy festivities and the final examinations, which have generally come the week following the social functions. Some favored having the Ivy exercises the week after the examinations, while others favored having the date earlier in the term. The governing boards of the college at their annual meeting in June voted to leave the question open to a referendum on the part of the student body.

The Student Council at a meeting Monday evening, expressed itself in favor of an earlier date, and that was urged upon the students at a mass meeting which was called after the council session.

The referendum, Tuesday, showed the students overwhelmingly in favor of the earlier date, which next spring falls on May 23. As a result of this change the Ivy day baseball game with Bates will no longer be the last game on the schedule. Instead Bowdoin and Tufts will play on the day after Ivy on Whittier Field, while Bowdoin and Bates will play their second game of the series in Lewiston the week following.

The students at the referendum also voted to increase the amount of the blanket tax from $15 to $20 in order to provide more funds for student activities.

Clayton C. Adams, '24 of Cambridge, Mass., was elected manager of the track team.

Musical Clubs Organize For Active Season

With the beginning of try-outs last Monday afternoon the Bowdoin Musical Clubs enter upon a season which holds prospects of being as successful as the unusually brilliant year through which they have just passed. It will be remembered that last year the Clubs undertook one of the most extensive programs in their history, giving a series of fifteen concerts, of which the greater majority were in cities far out of the state. Such trips as those to New York and Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston, where both the Glee and Instrumental Clubs were favorably received only served to show of what the Musical Clubs were capable. This year a schedule, which will be fully as extensive, is being planned, taking in, as before, journeys to the above mentioned cities, and in addition, possibly touching Washington, D. C. The visit to New York this season will be the fourth in the existence of the Clubs. Boston and Brooklyn had both been visited before last year, but Philadelphia appeared on the schedule for the first time.

One of the greatest steps forward which was taken by the Musical Clubs last season was in the nature of attempting a far higher grade of music than that used in the past. The program was composed of well-selected pieces of recognized merit, and the success which the Clubs attained in this step was attested by the cordial reception with which they met on all occasions. Never has a Bowdoin Musical Club played to audiences as large and appreciative as last year, and the brilliant way in which the long series of concerts was carried off gives rise to great hopes for the coming season.

During the past week, under the direction of Professor Wass the trials for the Musical Clubs have been going along smoothly, but the successful candidates have not as yet been announced. Trials are still being continued this week, in the hope that a few more men will test out their possibilities as Glee Club material. An unusually small number of Freshmen have put in an appearance at the trials this year, so that there still remain opportunities for men to gain places on the Clubs. The bass section is well filled by now, but there are still positions open for tenor voices. Any men desiring try-outs should telephone G. B. McMennamin, Manager of the Clubs, at the Beta House at once. Trials for the Instrumental Club will begin next week.

Second Team Triumphs Over Westbrook Seminary

Bowdoin's Line Plunging and Westbrook's Open Play Feature 14-6 Victory

Last Saturday, after having been repulsed by Colby varsity the week before, Westbrook Seminary invaded Whittier Field to meet the Bowdoin second team in what proved to be an exhibition of both good and bad football, with Bowdoin winning by the score of 14 to 6. It was a close, interesting game with the occasional bits of loose playing overshadowed by continual flashes of brilliancy from both teams.

At the start of the game the Bowdoin team was playing a brand of football far superior to that of the prep school boys. Twice during the first quarter the ball was carried to Westbrook's six yard line, only to be lost on downs. In the second quarter Small and Keaney took the ball from Westbrook's forty yard line to their ten, where the White team did not seem able to gain in three tries. On the last down Cronin threw a forward to Southwick, who succeeded in making the pass complete, and made a touchdown. Keaney kicked the goal. This ended the scoring for the first half.

In the third quarter neither team scored, although Westbrook was kept almost entirely on the defensive. In the final period both teams scored. When the whistle blew for the fourth period the ball was on the visiting team's six yard line. Westbrook was penalized half the distance to the goal for holding. Bill Reagan carried the ball over the goal-line for Bowdoin's second touchdown, and Harry Keaney again kicked the goal, making the score 14 to 0 in the Bowdoin second's favor. In the last part of the period Farrell, the Seminary's left tackle, blocked a punt, and fell on the ball. Phillips made Westbrook's lone score soon after, when he made a touchdown by means of a line plunge.

The first quarter Bowdoin looked unbeatable, but soon after she slowed up, and played only a mediocre game. However, a great improvement over the game of the previous Saturday against Hebron was shown. The men knew their signals much better, and more teamwork was shown. The whole backfield showed up well. Cronin ran the team in an excellent manner, showing good judgment, and calling his signals well. Keaney's line plunging was a feature of the game. Small gave conclusive proof that he has the makings of an excellent football player. He is unusually fast for a man of his size, but he exhibits a lack of experience. In the line Butler and Lancaster, a freshman, showed unusual ability; although at times the whole line worked together very well, opening up holes which might have been mistaken for golf links. For the seminary team Farrell, Phillips, and Clune showed the most ability.

The line-up:
Bowdoin (14) (6) Westbrook
Southwick, le re, McGuire

Last Saturday Bowdoin went to Middletown and suffered the first defeat of the season at the hands of the powerful Wesleyan eleven in a hard-fought game. From the first whistle it looked as if the White were going to win. Several times the Wesleyan goal was in imminent danger of being crossed and once the black-jerseyed men were stopped by a penalty on the one yard line. Throughout almost the entire first half, the Connecticut team was forced to remain in her own territory but was successful in keeping its goal line uncrossed though it did not have an easy task for the fighting representatives of Bowdoin were out to win. lent punting and also Garland's plunges and Farrington's runs were no small bother to the black and red. But late in the first half, after an exchange of punts, Wesleyan opened a dazzling series of forward passes and reached the Bowdoin five yard line from which Fricke managed to plough through the line for the initial score of the game and Scriggins sent the ball through the white posts for the extra point and the half ended. In the third period, after long end runs by Fricke and Adams respectively, Fricke carried the ball over for the last score. Scriggins' kick failed to count. From then on the game was all over the field, neither side seeming to be able to gain sufficient ground to count. There were a few good forward passes but fumbling was frequent and rather slowed up the game. But in the final quarter, Bowdoin made one last fight for a score but with time and Wesleyan arrayed against them it was in vain and the game ended with the White within twenty yards of her opponents' line.

Reserved Books.

Owing to the difficulties that have been encountered in former years in keeping reserved books in the library, where they belong, it seems fitting that the early part of the year should be the time for a word of admonition to Bowdoin men, both new and old. The subject is called very forcibly to the attention of members of the college in the frequent instances when they visit the library to find a certain book which has been reserved for the use of all members of a particular class, only to find that some unscrupulous classmate has been there before and removed the book to the seclusion of his own room or fraternity house.

This is a condition which can not be tolerated by men of fair minds and decent principles. The man who misappropriates a book from the reserved shelves does one of two things. He either deliberately and willfully steals the book or he carelessly forgets the rights of others to cater to his personal convenience.

There is little that we can say to the man in the first category. Words alone will not suffice to cure the man who persistently disregards the rights of others or who is a mere kleptomaniac. We believe that the men in that class are fortunately few at Bowdoin. But it is certain that the men in the latter class are at least have been, all too numerous. To these men, careless but fair-minded, a simple explanation of the present conditions should be sufficient.

Bowdoin offers fully and freely the vast resources of one of the finest college libraries in this country. Every member of the college is privileged to enjoy the unlimited use of all the facilities that the library commands. No effort has been spared, no task left undone to provide for the convenience of the men in procuring such works as they may require. Under an excellent system of superintendence, the personnel of the library is highly efficient—a staff of which the college may well be proud. They are ready and glad to assist the student in finding whatever information or literary entertainment he desires, but they cannot do everything.

The college goes the limit, through the medium of the library, in playing fair with the student. Everything is free and open, that the greatest good may come to the greatest number. Under such circumstances, the man who will take unfair advantage of his liberty is not a true Bowdoin man, and there is but one way of showing such a man that he is in the wrong. That is through the pressure of popular, or college opinion. When the students as a whole are willing to ostracize a member of the college who flagrantly violates his privileges, then, and not till then, will the nuisance be eliminated.

Deferred Initiations.

The whole question of deferred initiations has been widely discussed among the undergraduates of the college, with the result that three of the fraternities on the campus have definitely decided to adopt a change in their system of initiating new men into membership. The change is, in brief, a deferring of initiation until the first of the second semester, with the requirement that the neophyte must have attained a satisfactory scholastic standing before he is eligible to membership.

With the regular time for initiations fast approaching, now is the time for the various fraternities to decide whether or not they will follow along the old system, or adopt the new. The arguments have been well worked out pro and con, as well in the editorial columns of the Orient as in the classroom and in the inevitable informal argumentatively conversational groups.

Those who favor a system of deferred initiation claim that it will furnish a greater incentive to the candidate to excel in his class work, and that it will alleviate the difficulties occasioned by initiating unworthy men, men who flunk out before the year is half over, and go back to prep school, perhaps, wearing the insignia of a college fraternity. Opponents of the system maintain that such a change is inexpedient, and that it aims to remedy non-existent difficulties.

Regardless of who has the right of the matter, it is a question of vital present importance. Every fraternity on the campus should decide definitely, and at once, what action they will take.

News From MacMillan

October 1, 1923.
Editor, Bowdoin Orient,
Brunswick, Maine.

Dear Sir:
The following radiogram has been received from MacMillan:
"Schooner Bowdoin. Lat. 78.30 N., Long. 72.30 W., September 24, 1923. Bowdoin frozen in eleven and one-half from Pole. All well.

MacMILLAN."
The message was received at the station of the American Radio Relay League, Prince Rupert, British Columbia.

Very truly yours,
ALFRED B. WHITE.

Faculty Notes

President Sills spoke last Friday night at a dinner of the Bowdoin Club of Boston. While in Boston he attended a meeting of the Association of New England Colleges, of which he is president.

President Sills was the speaker at the meeting of the Bath Rotary Club, September 25. His subject was "The Message of Intolerance."

Doctor Whittier has been an expert witness during the past week in two important trials.

Professor Van Cleve, who has a leave of absence during the first semester, is in Paris where he is collecting material for a historical work which will be published later. Professor Livingston spent the summer in Paris. Other members of the faculty who were abroad are Professor Cram and Mr. Abbott. The latter after returning to this country will shortly return to Europe for study, probably in the Fine Arts.

The two new members of the faculty, Professor Dewing and Professor Crook, are living respectively in the Little House, 8 College street, and the Woodruff House, 260 Maine street. Professor Cushing has moved to 141 Maine street.

Two members of the faculty were married during the past summer, Professor Little to Miss Marguerite Tschale of Boston and Mr. Cobb to Miss Catherine Miller of Sutherland, Maryland.

A system of municipal accounting prepared by Professor Hormell, has been published by the State auditor and sent to all Maine cities and towns.

Art Building Accessions

At Commencement Honorable Henry B. Quinby '69, presented to the College, for its collections, an 18th century silver tankard, as a memorial of his son, Henry Cole Quinby, Bowdoin A.M., who was also a great-grandson of Moses Quinby, of Bowdoin's first class of 1806.

Through Commencement and during the summer the model of the proposed War Memorial, and the portrait of Professor Woodruff, by W. W. Gilchrist, Jr., have been on exhibition, respectively in the Sophia Walker Gallery and in the Sculpture Hall.

In June Dr. Norman Call '69, presented to the Art Building a bronze bas-relief of Antinous, by B. Boschetti, and a water color landscape by E. Roesler Franz.

In August Mr. Charles A. Coffin, of New York, added to the already rich collection which he so munificently gave the College in May three more etchings: "Desert Freight," a delightfully artistic performance by H. Kerr Eby; "Rue des Toiles, Bourges," an example of the masterly art of Meryon; and "Chemin des Roches," a characteristic work by the great etcher of trees, Theodore Rousseau.

The very interesting catalogue of the Collection which Mr. Coffin has prepared is now in the press.

The Winslow Homer water color, "The End of the Hunt," on its return from the Paris Sargent-Homer-MacKnight exhibition, was lent to the similar exhibition now being held in the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh.

The number of visitors at the Art Building through June and through the summer up to the time of the opening of the College was 4624.

Among the visitors in July were Vice-President and Mrs. Coolidge, Governor Baxter, and Governor Cox, of Massachusetts.

College Enrollment 189 Freshman List Revised

Freshman Class Numbers 151—Ten States, Mexico, and China Have Representatives

The latest figures on enrollment show the following distribution by classes:

Seniors	90
Juniors	121
Sophomores	127
Freshmen	151

Total 489

This is a much more even distribution than last year's, which was as follows:

Sophomores	143
Freshmen	175
Men who had lost class standing	15

Total 506

The geographical distribution of the Freshman class is as follows:

Maine	80
Massachusetts	48
New Hampshire	8
Connecticut	4
New York	3
Illinois	2
New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Florida, Mexico, and China	1 each

While students from Maine still predominate in the entering class and the Massachusetts men come second, the percentages have changed somewhat. Last year 61 per cent of the Freshman class were from Maine. This year the percentage has dropped to 53 per cent. In last year's Freshman class the percentage of Massachusetts men was 28 per cent. This year it is nearly 32 per cent.

These figures are even more interesting when compared with the percentages for the whole student body last year, which was 62 per cent from Maine and 22 per cent from Massachusetts. The Freshman figures for the last year and this year indicate the steady increase in the number of men from the Bay State.

Of the students from foreign countries in the Freshman class there are 2 from China, although one of these men is listed from Massachusetts.

Mexico is represented by one student and there was one student from Japan, Fumio Okada of Tokio. Okada left college soon after the opening of the term on receipt of news from his home that his mother had been injured in the Tokio disaster. He will return next year.

To bring the list of Freshmen published in last week's Orient up to date, the following names should be added:

Armstrong, Gordon E., Roslindale, Mass.
Bourget, Claude J., Augusta, Maine.
Briggs, Walter B., Jr., Cambridge, Mass.

Fall Tennis Tournament

Tennis showed its first signs of activity this fall with the beginning of the Fall Tennis Tournament last Thursday. About seventy men were registered in the preliminaries which were completed Monday night and on Tuesday the second round was started. In view of the fact that this is but the second meet of the kind that has ever been held in the college, the large number of entries was unusually gratifying and clearly shows the growing interest of the student body in the sport.

As early as the preliminaries many of the matches were both fast and interesting, and brought to light much new material. Among the men showing well in the tournament so far are Preble '25, Spear '25, Tolman '27, McGowan '27, and Whitcomb '25. Many of the men who have been rumored to be of championship ability won through default and were not able to show as yet their worth. From the start of things it looks as though the meet would not only be a success but also as though it would accomplish its primary object: to stimulate interest in the sport, and to bring to light any possible varsity material.

Lord '25 Tennis Captain

At a meeting of the varsity members of the tennis team last June, Phillips H. Lord '25 was elected to captain the team for the 1924 season. The election was entirely logical and to be expected in view of the fact that Lord is the only member of the team who has played two years with the varsity. Lord's brilliant victory over Gow and Sackett of Colby in the State Intercollegiate meet last May resulted in his capturing the State intercollegiate singles tennis championship, which had been held the two preceding years by Gow of Colby. Since that time Lord has captured the singles and doubles titles at the Meriden, Conn., city championships. It is understood that the new captain has changed his style of play radically since his victory in the State meet, when his game was almost entirely cutting and accurate placement.

With Captain Lord, Tolman, and Cushman as a nucleus for a team for the coming year the prospects are bright. It is understood that there are several men in the entering class who, with experience and time, should develop into varsity calibre.

William B. Clymper '22 visited the college last week.

Fumio Okada, a Japanese student who entered College this fall, left soon after College opened on receipt of the news that his mother was injured in the Tokyo disaster. He will return next year.

Golf Team Plans For Successful Season

Freshman Squads Show New Material
—Several Old Men Still in College

With plenty of material in College to form the nucleus of an excellent team, Bowdoin is already making plans for golf for the coming season. Having lost only two men who held a regular position last year, Captain Stewart Richards and Al Beals, and with good prospects in the incoming class, the team should have little difficulty in running through its schedule in pleasing style. Although last season marked Bowdoin's first appearance on the links, the new squad carried off its series of matches in fine style. Against the country club teams which occupied the majority of the dates on the schedule, Bowdoin showed up in fine style, while against Brown and M.I.T., the only two colleges appearing on the card, the White golfers put up an equally good game, tying the former and losing to the latter only after a hard fight. This year, Bowdoin hopes to place its team in the field against at least five college aggregations reserving only a small place on the schedule for country club matches. In this way the golf team should be better able to find its place in inter-collegiate circles. Plans are also being made to enter the team in the national inter-collegiate matches next spring.

Remaining in college from last year's team are the following men: Fasso '25, who played number one position, Keady '24, Williams '25, P. Smith, Aspinwall, Robinson, all '26, Captain Stewart Richards and Al Beals were both lost to the team by graduation, while Pierce, who unfortunately was lost to the team during the greater part of last season due to scholastic requirements has left College this year. To take the places of these men, however, are a number of good prospects in the Freshman class. Under the leadership of Fasso, the Freshman golf squad has been going around the links almost daily during the past week, and several men have shown up very well. Boynton, Kelly, and McGuire, are men who have shown ability to date.

Plans are already going forward on a schedule for the coming year. It is hoped to arrange matches with Amherst, Brown, Boston University, Massachusetts Tech, and possibly Dartmouth. Country Club matches will probably include Brunswick, Augusta, Portland and Martindale. The latter will, as now planned, be played at Brunswick, while all the intercollegiate matches will be played away. Although this may seem a rather pretentious schedule, those interested in the team are confident that it can play off its matches in creditable fashion, and only by breaking into collegiate ranks can Bowdoin place its golf team in a position where it will attain some prominence. Golf is a sport which has steadily been coming into prominence in the college world during the last few years. Year by year it is growing more popular. Many colleges now maintain golf teams which rank as a varsity sport, and there is no valid reason why Bowdoin should not produce a squad which can compete on the links as other wearers of the White compete in other fields of activity.

and Sibley both pitched well, but the former was given ragged support. The catching of De Bois was another feature of the contest.

The score by innings:

1926 0 1 1 0 2 4 2—10
1927 0 0 2 1 0 1—4

After the game followed the flag rush. At the report of Miguel's gun the two lover classes met and the grand free-for-all began. Some of the freshmen rushed at the defenders of the 1926 flag and a few started up the pole only to be rudely hauled down and thrown to the ground. In the meantime the Sophs were doing the same thing and presently a hilarious cry and increased resistance told the fresh that their flag had been taken by Cliff who leaped from the backs of his classmates, snatched the insignia and fell to the ground where the sophomores covered him. Not disheartened by this they attacked with a greater fury around the sophomore flag, only to be repulsed again and again. For fifteen minutes the battle raged and when the pistol sounded it was a disgruntled group of freshmen who watched a happily exhausted Sophomore class run to the chapel to ring the bell.

Alumni Notes

'77—On Oct. 1 Dr. Phineas H. Ingalls of Hartford, Conn., retired from active practice after more than forty years. He will continue as medical examiner for the Aetna Life Insurance Co. Dr. Ingalls is the only Connecticut member of the American Gynecological Society, membership in which is limited to 100. He is president of the Bowdoin Club of Hartford.

'81—The college lost a prominent alumnus on July 1, when Frederick C. Stevens '81, for eighteen years representative to Congress from Minnesota, died in St. Paul. In spite of the fact that he was threatened with blindness while studying law, he persisted and obtained his degree. Moving to St. Paul he entered on a long career of civic and national service. While a member of Congress he was an ardent advocate of progressive legislation, including that pertaining to conservation of natural resources, the legislation which made possible the building of the Panama Canal, and the Pure Food Act, of which he was one of the authors. His work on the Panama Canal issue, on which he was an authority, caused him to be mentioned for a Cabinet position and for the speakership of the House. He is survived by Mrs. Stevens and by one brother.

To Discuss Appropriations

At a meeting of the Board of Managers last week it was decided that for the present approximately the same percentage of the blanket tax funds would be appropriated to athletics, that is, slightly more than 80 per cent, and about 20 per cent to non-athletics. Any surplus that may remain after all appropriations have been made will be turned over for the payment of the notes held by the First National Bank of about $2900. The figures presented to the board for consideration were the estimate which Dr. Whittier and Mr. MacCormick had worked out after studying the budgets and financial statements of the various activities for the coming year and past years. The following appropriations were recommended: Track $2500, baseball $2100, football $1000, tennis $250, hockey $225, Outing Club $100, fencing $50; non-athletic activities: Bowdoin Publishing Company $550, band $287.50, Y.M.C.A. $237.50. It was decided to leave the final judgment on the debating appropriation of $500 until the next meeting as the plans of the Debating Council had not matured sufficiently to estimate accurately the exact appropriation that will be needed.

It is hoped that the students will respond promptly to the call for blanket tax payments as the football team needs immediate funds to defray its expenses. If the football management is able to come through the season with a surplus as large as that of last year, the financial condition and prospects of Bowdoin athletics and activities for the coming year should be greatly improved. The system that was in effect at the last of last year for the collection of blanket taxes will be used from the start this year and by this means it is hoped that the blanket tax problem, which as always been so difficult, will be solved.

The Outing Club, which is represented on the board this year for the first time as a result of the student body vote last June, received an appropriation of $100. It is hoped that with this aid and with the cooperation of the faculty and town officials that a ski jump can be built this year, which should help materially this year in stimulating interest in that sport in this vicinity.

Collett '25 was elected assistant treasurer for the coming year and will have charge of the collection of the blanket taxes. The entire board will cooperate in order to obtain as large an enrollment as possible.

Rally For Blanket Taxes

On Tuesday night a mass meeting was held in Memorial Hall by the Student Council for the purpose of putting before the students of the college the proposition of raising the Blanket Taxes from fifteen to twenty dollars and for discussing the question as to what was the best date to hold Ivy on this year. Miguel '23, president of the Student Council, presided over the meeting and briefly stated the question and its importance.

Mr. MacCormick then spoke as representative of the Athletic Council stating that he had a double interest in the proposition in that his position as Treasurer of the A.S.B.C. made it possible to realize the real significance of the deficiency and that as member of the Athletic Council it was possible for him to predict the result of a failure to pass the measure. Mr. MacCormick said that when the blanket tax was voted in 1912 the amount was the same, fifteen dollars, in spite of the fact that the athletic expenditures were but a small per centage of what they are at present. Everything has increased since that time, the size and calibre of the various contests are far greater, the costs of coaches and supplies have practically doubled, and the number of men taking part in the sports has greatly increased.

Last year baseball had a deficit of thirteen hundred dollars while track had a deficiency of fifteen hundred dollars. This was in spite of the fact that the college contributed four thousand dollars to athletics and the alumni twenty-seven hundred dollars. The blanket taxes last year netted about forty-nine hundred dollars. This year it is hoped and planned to carry on the same number of athletic contests, but it will be with difficulty even now the measure is passed. Since 1916, when the athletic expenditures were fourteen hundred dollars, the A.S.B.C. expenditures have increased to practically six thousand dollars. This is outside of the money furnished by the college and alumni. The increases have been in equipment, medals, medical supplies, and printing. The increases in medals and printing indicates an increase in the number of meets, both intermural and intercollegiate. The increase is certainly what has made it possible for the college and coaches to turn out such championship teams as it has done in the past few years. Increases in equipment and medical supplies show that the participation in athletics within the college has increased greatly, which is certainly one of the greatest advantages of collegiate athletics. So it is seen that Bowdoin athletics have developed from a limited activity of the few to their present status.

The result of not passing the measure would be scarcely imaginable. Trips would have to be cancelled, the faculty would have to take an active control in athletics, the Athletic Council would resign, and the whole system of athletics in Bowdoin would suffer a setback such as has not been experienced in the history of the college.

Alumni Notes

'91—The work of the well-known Seacoast Mission, which was inactive after the death of Rev. A. P. MacDonald, has been taken up by his brother and classmate, Rev. Angus M. MacDonald.

'11—"Harry" Berry of Philadelphia has a son Richard, born this summer. Neil Foggy's boy Donald, born last week in Rockland, will enter Bowdoin in the class with young Berry.

'11—Prof. Arthur H. Cole of Harvard wrote last spring for the quarterly bulletin of the National Association of Woolen Manufacturers an article which was quoted extensively in the dailies. Prof. Cole's inquiries into the history of the American wool industry and his work for the tariff commission have earned for him an enviable reputation as a careful and painstaking investigator.

'14—"Ken" Robinson has been elected a full professor of English at Dartmouth. He is by several years the youngest of that rank at the college. Last year he was acting head of the department.

BLAKE WILL BEQUEST OF $500,000 FORMALLY PRESENTED COLLEGE

Mr. Adams, Of Bangor, Participates In Chapel Ceremony
Last Thursday—Largest Gift in History Of College
Fittingly Observed

The College chapel was the scene of an impressive ceremony last Thursday morning when Mr. Frederick W. Adams of Bangor, as executor of the will of the late Edward H. Blake, presented President Sills with a check for $500,000, the amount of Mr. Blake's bequest to the College. This is the largest single gift in the history of the College. Mr. Blake, who was a former member of the class of 1877, Admiral Peary's class, provided in his will that the legacy should be invested and the income used in such a way as to perpetuate its memorial character. The bequest is a memorial to his father, William A. Blake, his mother, Frances A. Blake, his uncle, Samuel H. Blake of the Class of 1827, and his brother, William A. Blake, of the Class of 1873. Since Mr. Blake's death a contest over the will has prevented the College from receiving the amount of the gift. It is through the interest of Mr. Adams, himself a former member of the Class of 1849, that the amount is now given to the College months before it is legally due.

A special committee of the governing boards of the College is considering the best uses to which the income from the bequest can be used. The members of this committee are: from the Trustees, Franklin C. Payson, Esq., Judge Clarence Hale, and Alfred B. White, Esq.; from the Overseers, Judge John A. Peters, Mr. Clinton L. Baxter, Dr. Daniel A. Robinson, and Mr. George P. Davenport.

The presentation took place at the close of the usual chapel exercises. After President Sills and Mr. Adams had spoken the Doxology and the College hymn were sung.

Introducing Mr. Adams, President Sills spoke as follows:

"It is perfectly natural that as undergraduates, occupied by your own duties, you should not often remember that the College can do that it does because of the generosity of its benefactors. It is fitting that here this morning it should be impressed on you that your contributions in the form of college charges go only a very little way toward the support of the College."

"Some months ago we were all thrilled to hear that in the will of Mr. Edward H. Blake of Bangor the College had been remembered. Mr. Blake's legacy is in memory of his father, mother, uncle, and brother, the last two graduates of the College in the Classes of 1827 and 1873. By this gift a famous Bowdoin name is perpetuated as Mr. Blake's native city, Bangor, which has always been a stronghold of Bowdoin loyalty. Mr. Frederick Adams, as executor of the estate, has also shown his loyalty and devotion to the College by making it possible for us to receive this legacy months before it is legally due."

"This morning it is well for us to pause in remembrance of our many generous benefactors and to recognize the fact that it is only through them that we have what we possess today."

He then introduced Mr. Frederick W. Adams, who spoke to the students as follows:

"I should be sadly lacking in appreciation of my late friend and benefactor, who was also the friend and benefactor of the College, if I did not pay some tribute to him on this occasion. Words of praise and flattery would have been distasteful to him, and I shall use none. It is fitting, however, that I speak of his life."

"Mr. Blake was born in Bangor into a home of wealth and refinement. When he was still a boy he lost by death his father, mother, sister, and brother. He then turned to his uncle for guidance. His uncle, Samuel H. Blake, was a graduate of Bowdoin in the class of 1827."

"Mr. Edward Blake was a lawyer of marked ability and a wonderful business man. His father, uncle, and brother had all graduated from Bowdoin and it was only natural that he too should come here. After completing his course at the college, he graduated from the Albany Law School and then continued his studies for several years in Paris."

"Returning to Bangor he practiced law until his uncle's death in 1887, when he succeeded to the management of the large estate and of the Merchants National Bank of Bangor. This bank, founded by Mr. Blake's father in 1850, had only three presidents in 72 years: his father, his uncle, and himself. It has always had an excellent

Tennis Tournament

During the last week the second round of the Fall Championship tennis tournament has been completed and the third round nearly played off. The weather has been ideal for the most part in view of the season of the year. The greatest difficulty, however, has been experienced in obtaining courts for the men to play on. At the present time there are only about two or three courts available for use and these are in use a large part of the time by the freshmen who are taking required athletics. If two or three more courts had been available the tournament could have been played on much more rapidly than has been the case. At present there are fifteen men who have survived the first two rounds, and from now on the matches are almost entirely between experienced players, many of whom promise to make a good bid for a varsity position in the spring.

The two silver cups donated by Professor Cushing to be awarded to the winner and runner-up of the tournament have arrived and are on display at Bert's. The two men who make their way up through a field of between sixty and seventy men will well deserve and may rightly prize these symbols of college tennis honors. The interest that the student body has taken in this tournament points out vividly the active concern of the college in general in the sport, for more than an eighth of the entire undergraduate body took part in the first round of play.

The results of the second round matches are as follows:

Charles defeated Jones, 8-6, 6-2.
Pennock defeated Jackson, 10-8, 9-7.
Rablin defeated C. Cummings, 6-3, 6-4.
Farnham defeated Shurtleff, 6-3, 6-4.
Goodspeed drew a bye.
Whitcomb defeated Perkins, 6-4, 6-0.
Chamberlain defeated Cockburn, 6-2, 2-6, 8-6.
Peeble defeated Lovell, 10-8, 6-2.
Spear defeated Kenniston, 6-3, 6-0.
H. W. Wood defeated Rouillard, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.
Nichols defeated Pushee, 6-1, 5-7, 6-1.
Hill defeated Reed, 6-3, 6-1.
Cushman defeated Banell.
Withey defeated Palmer.

Student Council Meets To Set Initiation Date

Fall Initiation Oct. 27—Informal Dance After Colby Game—Gibbons Elected to Fill Vacancy

The Student Council met last Tuesday night at the Psi U House and arrived at three very important decisions, to say nothing of bringing to discussion another affair which is by no means trivial. In the first place, the initiation date for all but two of the fraternities was set at October twenty-seventh after the football game with Bates. The other two Greet Letter societies had previously decided to hold deferred initiations and they are to decide their own dates.

Another not unwelcome outcome of this meeting was the decision that an informal dance should be held on October twentieth after the Colby football game.

Ted Gibbons was elected to fill the vacancy in the Council caused by the withdrawal from College of Mal Hardy. Gibbons was captain-elect of football for this fall and was declared ineligible.

The subject which was brought up for discussion was that the cheer leaders receive some other reward than their notoriety for their services, and that some new and more distinctive cheers be sought out.

Bowdoin-Colby Scores

When Bowdoin meets Colby on Whittier field next Saturday in the first game of the State Championship Series, it will be with a determination to start the series in a way that will show the outcome to be inevitable. Bowdoin's previous record against the Waterville college may prove a source of both information and inspiration to followers of Bowdoin football. The following show the history of Bowdoin-Colby games:

1892—Bowdoin 56, Colby 0.
1893—Bowdoin 22, Colby 4.
1894—Bowdoin 12, Colby 4.

Bowdoin has won 18 of the 34 games, tied four, and lost twelve. Every Bowdoin man who saw the game with Colby two years ago recognized the likeness between that game and the Bowdoin-Norwich game last Saturday. The question that has arisen in the minds of the White supporters is "Can Bowdoin launch an attack that will swamp Colby as she did two years ago?" So with every Bowdoin man behind his team let's go into that game with the aim of Bowdoin 18, Colby 0.

Sunday Chapel

President Connaughey of Knox College Speaks

Sunday afternoon in chapel the college was honored by the presence of a former member of the faculty who, since his departure from here, has risen with bounds to the presidency of Knox College in Illinois and to the honor of being the youngest man ever appointed to such a position in any college. Dean Nixon introduced President Connaughey, who rose to address the college.

Pres. Connaughey took for his text a passage from the one hundred and sixth Psalm, "And He gave them their requests but sent leanness into their souls." This is taken from the parable of the Israelite who when God offered the honor of being his first followers, chose to be like other nations and have idols for their dieties, and who, when He gave them their lands to be governed by the sagaciousness of His Prophets, went to Samuel and demanded a king. President Connaughey said that the big difference between Christianity and other previous religions was that Christianity gave a man his choice as to what he must do to be a Christian. For example, he stated that a college must decide just what sort of educational institution it shall be. Bowdoin had in his opinion picked an unselfish aim as any college he knew because while many were overwhelmed by the desire to become large universities like their big brothers, Bowdoin decided to remain small because she could serve better in that way. It is the same with a college student. The man who comes to college as a versatile athlete or scholar and never seems to care about improving is not comparable to the man who sticks to his work and finally makes the varsity or Phi Beta Kappa. Think of the professors and coaches who have given their lives to the one purpose that their men should be real men. Every building, even every room in this college is a memorial to these man-making individuals. It is such a spirit as this that has made Bowdoin's ideal the teaching of men to help their less fortunate brothers.

In the first home game of the season, last Saturday, Bowdoin turned back Norwich to the tune of 14 to 0. The game was one of the best exhibitions of forward passing ever seen on Whittier Field and was witnessed by a large crowd of people. The game was much closer than the score indicates and several times the White defense was endangered by the Crimson-jailed players. The Crimson eleven was made up of large rangy men and its one consistent ground gainer was Rosenthal. This elusive back was Bowdoin's chief stumbling block. He was responsible for breaking up more than one otherwise brilliantly executed forward pass. He, O'Brien, and Bradley formed the nucleus of the visiting team's defense. The most important cogs in the White machine were Capt. Morrell, Jones, Farrington, and Garland. The men were largely responsible for breaking up the Crimson plays. In the second period the first touchdown was made, Garland carrying the ball over from the seven yard mark, where several well executed forward passes had left it. The second score came in the third quarter when Morrell threw a beautiful forward to Farrington who dodged the opposing backfield and ran 38 yards for a touchdown. Morrell dropped-kicked for the remaining point.

After twice calling the ball back, one for an offside by Bowdoin and once for an out-side, Garland sent the pigskin flying to the Red's twenty yard line from which Bradley ran it back fifteen yards. Then came a penalty which was followed by an exchange of punts separated by a few attempts at passes and line bucks, by each team. Soon afterwards Norwich made the initial first down of the game through a plunge by Rosenthal and an end run by Rosenthal, but when Blake blocked a pass and MacLean twice nailed Bradley for a total loss of thirteen yards, we again took the ball and the period soon ended with the black jerseys on their opponents' twenty yard line.

After we had come ten yards nearer the cadets' goal line their defense stiffened and held the home team for downs, only to lose the ball a minute later on a fumble to Jones, who was replaced by Phillips. Morrell then tossed a pass to Phillips who was stopped on the five yard line. Farrington added three more and then Joe Garland crashed through the worried Vermonters for a touchdown and Captain Mal kicked the goal. Norwich tried a short kick-off but Smith fell on it and it was the White's ball on the forty-two yard line. Bob Phillips made seven yards around right end but the ball went back fifteen on a penalty. A series of line bucks and intercepted passes failed to gain sufficient ground and Norwich took the ball but could not gain and Bradley punted out on the four yard line and the half soon ended with the score seven to nothing for Bowdoin and the ball in center field.

Morrell kicked off to Andrews who ran back to the forty yard line. Then Rosenthal made a beautiful end-run and netted twenty-five yards but Horace Hildreth intercepted a pass. Then Bowdoin opened an aerial attack which carried the ball to the second White line, but line bucks by Farrington and Garland fell short of the required distance and Norwich took the ball on the five yard line and punted to Morrell in mid-field. Once again the passing attack was adopted. One from Morrell to Jones made twenty yards, then there came a four yard set back followed by a pass from Morrell to Jones for twelve yards and from Mal to Farrington for twenty yards and the second touchdown and Morrell made the final point of the game. Morrell kicked off and the quarter ended with the ball on the forty-five yard line and Norwich on the offensive.

The final period was full of thrills. Long passes by both teams, end runs by Phillips and Rosenthal and smashing line attacks by Farrington made it very interesting but there were so many blocked and intercepted passes that neither team could get into a

An Inter-Fraternity Council.

The question of cementing and maintaining amity and concord in inter-fraternity relations has long been an urgent one. Various plans have been evolved, many, many suggestions have been offered, but friction still exists to a greater extent than is strictly unavoidable. There is a real need for an organization within the college to provide for the amical and effective settlement of all questions of interfraternity policy. So far as is known to the writer, no such organization has ever existed at Bowdoin.

A mere surface examination of the fraternity situation at Bowdoin shows the need of some regulative organization to settle once and for all the general policies of internal affairs, as well as those of great import to the college at large. Raising and initiation, with all the varied subjects that come under those two general heads, are plainly matters pertinent to the internal organization of the fraternity. But they are questions the solution of which must be as generally agreed upon as is the policy of condemning political agreements. A change of some sort must come. No college, however liberal, will forever tolerate a system under which a man may be pledged to a fraternity three years before he ever comes to college, nor will it long endure the system under which the neophyte is made a fraternity man almost entirely on trust, before he has had opportunity to show his real worth, and before he has earned the right to enjoy the privileges of full membership. Bowdoin men will eventually eradicate the evil features of our fraternity system, but it falls upon us of the present Bowdoin generation to do our share in bringing about the final solution.

At the present time the method used in negotiating upon affairs of general importance to the fraternities is that of including in the student council discussions of such topics a representative from each fraternity group on the campus, whether or not that group is actually represented in the council. General dissatisfaction in this method has invited the suggestion of new ones. Of these there are three.

The first is that the student council shall be elected on a strictly representative basis, allowing one representative to each fraternity group, and one to the men not affiliated with any fraternity. The system of election suggested is similar to that employed in the Junior elections to the Bugle board; that is, each group would nominate two men, of whom the A.S.B.C. would elect one, the officers to be elected under a separate head or by the council itself. This council would be empowered to the same degree that the present one is, and would have the additional power of final authority in all questions of interfraternity relations.

The second plan suggested is that of a strictly independent Pan-Hellenic council, which would be elected by the fraternities themselves, with one representative from each Chapter. This body would have sole power in matters pertaining strictly to the fraternities, and would act quite independently of the student council. Furthermore, being a fraternity body, it would not represent the non-fraternity group.

Still another plan has been proposed. This third offers a combination of the principles of the two preceding, but proceeds along lines which would hardly change the status of the existent student legislative body. The idea is to have an independent advisory committee of the fraternities elected by the fraternities to discuss all pertinent questions of fraternity welfare, and to give expert advice to the student council, which would retain its position as ultimate arbiter. This plan would afford an opportunity for equal representation of the fraternities, at the same time keeping the balance of power in the committee at large, elected to look out for the best interests of the whole college, and not for any particular group or groups within the whole.

It appears with a little inspection that the student council should be at once consistently general in the scope of its powers, and the supreme student authority. Under these principles, either of the first two plans suggested would be inadvisable. The first does away with the principle of election at large, a fundamental in a community of less than five hundred. The second removes from the student council its supreme power of veto. Only the third seems to completely fulfill the requirements.

An advisory council would, in actual practice, prove to be far more than the name implies. Instead of the spineless body suggested by the title it would be unquestionably become one of the strong factors in undergraduate organization. Being the one strictly representative body, its potential power would be limited only by the necessary bounds designated for the good of the whole undergraduate body. In questions relating only to the fraternities, and touching only incidentally the whole body, the committee would find the approval of the student council as readily obtainable as a rubber stamp. But in the event of a conflict between the interest of the fraternities per se and that of the larger body which supports them, the student council would be in position to provide for the greatest good of all.

Bowdoin needs some such organization, and needs it badly. The writer has no desire to obtain for himself the unsavory reputation of a "calamity howler," but he does wish to present to the attention of the men he represents the needs and the opportunities of the college. As long as the fraternities are run on a basis of what is colloquially known as throat cutting, so long will they fail to do all they well may for the college. Bowdoin has long prospered, and still prospers, Bowdoin will continue so to prosper, but if we who are Bowdoin's sons can find a way by which to make that prosperity greater than it ever has been before, let us not be lax in accepting it.

The cheering at Whit Field last Saturday was a revelation. Bowdoin's songs and cheers rolled out with a matchless volume and rhythm that augurs well for the appearance of the White supporters when we come up against our traditional rivals the next three Saturdays. Let's keep it up and make it still better!

We were glad to note the posting of the Dean's List Monday morning, even though our name did not appear. This new plan marks a notable advance in establishing the Bowdoin reputation for liberality in administration.

There will be an important meeting of the Debating Council in the library next Thursday evening at eight o'clock. At this meeting officers will be elected. A debate has been arranged with Tufts college which will probably take place at Medford. The date has not been settled as yet but it is rumored that this debate may be one of several to occur on the same trip. We shall again have an inter-sectional debate if the challenge of Carleton College of Minnesota is accepted. The debate to take place in Brunswick.

Football Number Of
Bear Skin Out Oct. 27

The Bear Skin will make its first appearance this year at the Bowdoin-Bates game when the Football Number will be placed on sale. It is understood that the new board has made an unusual effort to improve this issue of the Bear Skin in an attempt to give new life to the publication. The material which is to appear in this issue is on a far higher plane than that of previous numbers and contains many original articles which should add greatly to the reputation of the magazine. Among the outstanding articles is "Spike" McCormick's "Customs, Manners, and Dress." The editorials by Jack Watson should prove to be both humorous and interesting.

Men who have subscribed to the Bear Skin for the year will receive their issues on Friday night before the game, although positively no copies will be on sale that night. This is a much improved method over last year, when the magazine was not issued until the game. The board now plans to have subscribers' copies delivered several days before the game, thus giving subscribers an advantage over men without subscriptions.

Classical Club Initiation

The first meeting and initiation of the year of the Classical Club was held Monday, October 8, at the Sigma Nu House. Plans for the year were discussed. Those initiated were Edward E. Fox, Lewis P. Fickett, Charles S. Bradeen, Alfred C. Andrews, Milton B. Davis, George P. Reed, Edward H. Tevitz, John A. Aspinwall, Lawrence F. Shurtleff, Nathan A. Cobb, Philip M. Palmer, Richard G. Wignot, Leslie A. Clafl, Theodore Smith.

The next meeting will be held November 1 at Hubbard Hall. Professor Charles Clark will speak on Rome.

The nineteen twenty-seven delegation of the Kappa Sigma fraternity opened the college social season last Monday night with a smoker at the chapter house. Through cards and conversation the evening was made very successful because many of the fellows made acquaintances which will last throughout their college careers. Cider and sandwiches were served for refreshments, and clay pipes were distributed as favors. The following men were present. D. A. Brown and H. L. Fenderson, Beta Theta Pi; C. W. Cole and N. F. Crane, Psi U, W. F. Sewall and W. J. D. Hatchell, Chi Psi; A. W. Holmes and Roger Johnson, Delta Upsilon; Howard Hucker and Fred Jones, Phi Delta Psi; W. J. Edward Stanwood '61

Senior Member of Board of Trustees
Died October 11

The College lost one of its most devoted alumni on October 11, when Edward Stanwood '61 passed away at the age of eighty-two years at his home in Brookline, Mass. Mr. Stanwood, because of his long service to the College as an overseer for eighteen years and as a trustee through nineteen years, was known to all the alumni. Not less was he known for his personal charm and for his acquaintance with and devotion to the most diverse interests of the College.

Mr. Stanwood was born in Augusta Sept. 16, 1841. After his graduation from Bowdoin in 1861 he served as correspondent for Boston newspapers and during one winter was private secretary at Washington to James G. Blaine, who had married his cousin. In 1870 Mr. Stanwood married Eliza Maxwell Topliff, whose father was virtually the founder of the Associated Press.

From 1867 to 1882 he was assistant city editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser and editor in 1882-3. Soon after giving up the editorship he wrote the "History of Presidential Elections," which under its later title, "The History of the Presidency," is recognized as a standard work. He was also the author of a "Life of James G. Blaine," a "History of American Tariff Controversies," a history of the class of 1861, and was a frequent contributor to the Quarterly Review, the Edinburgh Review, and American magazines. For many years he was American editor of The Statesman's Year Book. He was an authority in many lines and was particularly well versed in political history. From 1887 to 1911 he was managing editor of the Youth's Companion, to which he contributed editorials until within a few days of his death.

Mr. Stanwood is survived by a brother, a sister, his son, Edward, Jr., of the class of 1898, a daughter, and several grandchildren. Professor Daniel C. Stanwood of the Bowdoin faculty is his nephew.

At Chapel Friday morning, President Sills spoke as follows:

"We received word yesterday of the death at his home in Brookline of Edward Stanwood of the class of 1861, in his eighty-third year. Mr. Stanwood was in years the Senior member of the Board of Trustees, serving from 1904 until his death. From 1886 to 1904 he was a member of the Board of Overseers. He had a most distinguished career as journalist, editor and historian. For many years he was the editor-in-chief of the journal that probably has had more influence on American boys and girls than any other, the Youth's Companion. He did historical work of great value, especially in the fields of American political history. His books on the presidential elections and on the history of the tariff and on James G. Blaine are standard works.

"He was a man of great integrity of character and of strong convictions. Like his contemporary, the late Lord Morley, he had an inflexible character that did not imply any lack of the human touch. Around Boston few men were more widely known or respected for the strength of their convictions. He was an intensely loyal man. He was devoted to his fraternity here, the Alpha Delta Phi, and rarely missed an initiation, thus keeping in touch throughout his long life with the coming generations. His devotion to the College was one of his chief characteristics. Everything connected with Bowdoin was to him of interest. On the Board of Trustees we shall long miss his wise counsel and his charming ways."

President Sills represented the College at the funeral of Mr. Stanwood at St. Paul's Church in Brookline, Sunday afternoon, and was one of the pall

Cross Country Prospects Show Good Season Ahead

Six Letter Men Form Nucleus of Team—Schedule Announced

With six letter men back, and much other fine material out, Bowdoin should have one of the best cross country teams in New England this fall. The schedule includes a triangular meet with Harvard and Tufts for October 19, the Maine State Intercollegiate cross-country meet at Waterville, Nov. 2, the New England Intercollegiate Nov. 17. The team will compete in the National Intercollegiate cross-country meet Nov. 24, if a good enough showing is made at the New England.

The veterans of last year's team who are out are Frank Plaisted, Bob Foster, Allen Howes, H. E. Kroll, Harold Eastman and George Miller. All of these men, with the exception of Plaisted, are members of the Junior class. Cy Webster, who did not return to college this fall, is the only one of last year's team who is lost to the college this fall. Other men who are pushing the veterans hard are Bob Lavigne, Joe Small, Charlie Berry, Lester Hayes, Jimmie Robinson, Spear, and Mushroe.

Friday afternoon Coach Johnny Magee put the men through a tough three mile time trial. Plaisted and Foster proved to be the best men on the squad, finishing almost side by side far ahead of the rest of the pack. Coach Magee expressed himself as being very much pleased by the result shown, as it is understood that the time made was fast. All those who witnessed the trial were of the conviction that Coach Magee is developing a very well balanced, and one of the fastest, if not the fastest, cross-country teams in the history of the college.

It is expected that the meet with Tufts and Harvard will be an exceedingly hard one. Harvard has a very fast veteran team. Soapy Waters, who won the two mile race at the Harvard-Yale-Cambridge-Oxford track meet last summer is a member of the team; and Tibbetts, the freshman miler, is also expected to show up well for the Cambridge boys. Tufts is not considered to have a very formidable team, although the Daugherty brothers will doubtless give some stiff competition. The meet will be held at Belmont park, over a five mile course. It is rather early to make any predictions in regard to the State meet, but it is safe to say that the boys who sport the Bowdoin B will give everyone else plenty of competition.

The annual interfraternity cross-country meet will be held Tuesday afternoon, October 23. Every house on the campus, with the exception of one, already has men out practicing daily. The competition this year will be stiff. Last year the Beta Theta Phi Fraternity won the shield, and they are out for it again this fall. However, they will have to put up a stiff fight to do so. The course will be two and three quarters miles long, going out past the Beta house, turning to the right, and thence to Pleasant street, out Pleasant street to the Cemetery and thence to the right to the foot of stand-pipe hill, and return.

Starting Monday, October 22, the fall handicap meet will be held at Whittier field.

An interesting coincidence in connection with Mr. Stanwood's death is the fact that he had often expressed a wish to live long enough to see the Blake bequest actually in the treasury of the College. After receiving the check from Mr. Adams in Chapel, President Sills sent a telegram to Mr. Stanwood and learned very shortly after that he had died that very morning and almost at the time of the Chapel service.

Blake Will Presented

lent reputation as a sound institution with conservative principles.

"Mr. Blake was a wonderful scholar. He studied all his life and even during his business life kept up his Latin and Greek. He was an accomplished linguist, speaking French, German, and Swedish and knowing also Spanish and Italian. He wrote graceful poems, many of which I am sure will live. He was a great lover of nature. When he acquired a large steam yacht he studied navigation and obtained an unlimited master's license for all tonages and all waters. It is typical of him that he should do so well what was for him only a diversion. He was a life-long lover of music. In this home was a pipe-organ on which he was an accomplished performer. His use of English was such that it was a constant delight to converse with him.

"In leaving the legacy to Bowdoin Mr. Blake wished the sum to be so invested and the income so used as to preserve the memorial character of the gift. Bowdoin had always been a classical college and he believed that it ought to stick to the old lines of the sound classical education. He did not wish to hamper the trustees in any way, however, and made this simply as a suggestion.

"Mr. Blake's ideas of Bowdoin, I think, are well expressed in a poem which he himself wrote."

Mr. Adams then quoted a part of the poem, and continued: "Bowdoin College is beginning to be ancient. Its roots are grounded in antiquity. Its graduates are scattered to the ends of the earth, there to spread the truth which the College has always tried to inculcate.

"Last Christmas I gave Mr. Blake a book called, 'The Soul of the Bible,' containing the choicest scriptural passages. After his death I found it on his desk with a bookmark and a marked passage. It was marked at a time when he knew that his end was near. The marked passage was that well known one beginning 'Now we that are strong ought to help them that are weak—Bear ye one another's burdens.'

"Boys, you are soon to enter the arena of life. Mr. Blake's message to you today would be, I am sure, not to seek your own self-interest and selfish advancement, but to bear the burdens of others. You may have the wisdom of Solomon and not win the respect of your fellow-men. You may have the power of the German Kaiser William and not merit, as he did not, the respect of your meanest subject. 'Bear ye one another's burdens' and then you may deserve the respect that men will surely pay you.

"As executor of Mr. Blake's will, it gives me the greatest pleasure to present to President Sills this check for $500,000. My hope, as it was Mr. Blake's hope, is that it may help the College to carry on in the future its splendid work of the past."

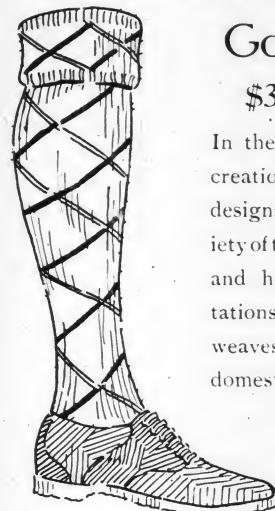

In accepting the gift, President Sills said:

"Speaking for the governing boards, I accept with great pleasure this check which represents the largest single gift in the history of the College. I can assure Mr. Adams that the College will live up to the trust imposed on it and that we shall hold both his name and that of our benefactor always in grateful remembrance."

Freshmen Interclass Golf

The Sophomores experienced but little difficulty in the first of the interclass golf matches last Tuesday afternoon in defeating the Freshmen team by a decisive score, winning three out of the four individual set-to's, and running up a score of 7-3. The three point Nassau system of scoring was used, the winner of the first nine holes in each individual match receiving one point, the winner of the second nine one point, and the winner of the total eighteen one point. The play resulted in several interesting contests, of which the one between Robinson '26, and Kelly '27 was perhaps the best. In the latter match, Kelley finished the first nine with a lead of two holes, taking one point, but in the second nine holes his Sophomore opponent hit his stride and quickly pulled down the lead, finishing the match three up and one to play. Smith '26, had but little difficulty in winning his match, while Vose, also of the Sophomore team defeated his opponent by a wide margin. McGuire was the only first year man to win his match, defeating Aspinwall in a close contest, two up, after the first nine holes had been halved.

The purpose of the interclass contests in golf, which are taking place for the first time this year, is to create as much interest as possible in the sport, and at the same time to secure a line on possible material for the team next spring. Several good prospects have been discovered in the Freshman class, and with this new material to fill up the vacancies in the team caused by graduation, the outlook is very optimistic. Aspinwall '26, at present acting-manager, is already at work on the schedule for this spring, and should be able to announce several definite dates in the near future.

The first review of the Freshman class comes Monday, Nov. 5. The mid-semester review of all classes will come on Monday, Nov. 26.

Victory again smiled on the Sophomores, and the Freshmen went down to defeat again. The upper classmen won by a score of 8-0 at the Delta, last Friday afternoon. With the exception of one or two instances, the game was entirely lacking in excitement. The game went scoreless until the first of the third when the Sophomores brought in three in succession, and one later which left the score four to nothing. Four more runs in the fourth, filled out the final score. The only spectacular hit was a three bagger by Williams. Harvard Defeats Bowdoin Cross Country Team 24-31

Tufts Withdraws From Meet At Last Moment—Foster Strong Second In Race With Cutcheon

Harvard defeated the Bowdoin cross-country team 24 to 31 last Friday at Cambridge over the Soldier's field course in what was to have been a triangular meet until Tufts withdrew at the last minute. The race, a battle to the very finish, narrowed down to a personal contest between Cutcheon, Harvard's crack two-miler, and Bob Foster. The Harvard man nosed out Foster by a bare 35 yards after the lead had changed hands several times. Allan Howes, finishing second for Bowdoin, placed fifth in the race. Captain Plaisted, who had cramps shortly after the start of the race, put up a game fight throughout. Purely through fight and nerve he finished sixth. Eastman and Kroll finished eighth and tenth respectively. The summary: first, Cutcheon Harvard, time 28.49 minutes; second, Foster, Bowdoin, time 28.53; third, Chapin, Harvard, time 29.05; fourth, Ryan, Harvard, time 29.18; fifth, Howes, Bowdoin, time 29.37; sixth, Plaisted, Bowdoin, time 29.38; seventh, Harrison, Harvard, time 29.39; eighth, Eastman, Bowdoin, time 29.54; ninth, Kobes, Harvard, time 30.08; tenth, Kroll, Bowdoin, 30.52.

Ibis Initiation

The initiation of the Ibis, the Senior honorary society, will take place at the Outing Club Cabin on Thursday evening, October twenty-fifth. It will be a very informal affair and a fire-place supper will be served. The presiding members of the Ibis are: President—Jack Watson. Secretary-Treasurer—Langdon A. Jewett. C. A. Rouillard, G. T. Davis, Alfred J. Westcott. The candidates for initiation are: Francis Bishop, Joseph M. Brisbois and G. William Rowe.

College Chimes Installed Left By W. M. Payson '74

The chimes which were provided for in the will of the late William Martin Payson of the class of 1874 have arrived and have been hung in the south tower of the chapel. They are eleven in number, and on the largest is the following inscription, "Given to Bowdoin College by Edward Payson Payson of the class of 1869 and William Martin Payson of the class of 1874 in memory of their Payson and Martin ancestors who were trustees or graduates of the college." The chimes are played from the console, which is located in the tower room, some thirty feet below the bells. The bells are tuned by International Pitch as follows: the eight bells of the octave in the key of G, namely G, A, B, C, D, E, F sharp, and G plus three extra bells—C sharp, the augmented fourth, F, the diminished seventh, and upper A or Re above upper Do. The addition of these three extra bells enables the playing of tunes not only in the key of G but many tunes also in the keys of C and D that otherwise could not be played. There are therefore thousands of tunes within the compass of this chime. The bells were manufactured by Menely and Company of Watervliet, N. Y.

Last Saturday afternoon the chimes were used for the first time. The concert which started at one o'clock could be clearly heard at Whittier Field, where the crowd was gathering for the Bowdoin-Colby game. The following programme was rendered: Whittier-Quarters, Changes on eight bells, Bowdoin, Beata, Coronation, Holy, Holy, Holy, Bless be the Tie that binds, Sweet and Low, Auld Lang Syne, College Hymn, Home, Sweet Home, America.

A delightful concert was also rendered Sunday afternoon at four o'clock.

Juniors Defeat Seniors Interclass Golf Tournament

As a result of the matches played last week, the Juniors now hold the inter-class golf championship of the College, by virtue of their recent defeat of the Seniors. The latter team won the right to meet the Juniors in the final match of the championship when it took over the Sophomore team, previously victorious over the Freshmen, by a 5 1/2 to 3 1/2 score last Monday afternoon. Although the Sophomores were handicapped to a considerable extent by the loss of several of their best players, they put up a good fight, with the result that the Seniors were forced to fight for every point they gained. Kirkpatrick, playing the number one position for his team, added three points to the Senior's score by defeating Vose, while Keaney, playing number two, accounted for two points, after dropping one on the first nine. The latter match proved to be one of the best of the day. Goodhue, Keaney's Sophomore opponent, opened the contest by winning the first five holes in par figures, and then proceeded to maintain a decisive lead to the end of the first nine for one point. In the second nine, however, the Senior staged an amazing comeback, winning the last five holes in a row and taking the match. The only Sophomore to win his match was Aspinwall, who defeated Jewett in a twenty hole contest, taking two points on the second nine and the match, after the first nine holes had been halved.

The final inter-class contest was staged on Friday between the Seniors and the Juniors. Fasso, playing number one for the Juniors, had little trouble in polishing off Kirkpatrick, this picking up three points. It may be interesting to note that Fasso's score for the 18 holes was a flat 73. In the other two matches, Nichols '25 defeated Keaney '24, and Williams '25 defeated Jewett '24.

Biology Club Initiation

The first meeting and initiation of the year of the Biology Club was held Monday, October 22, at the Sigma Nu House. Plans for the coming year were discussed. The club hopes to hold several open meetings during the year, when several eminent biologists will be heard. Several hikes and field trips were also planned. Those initiated were: Glen D. Chamberlain, Lawrence W. Herson, Ellsworth E. Barker, Hollis E. Clow, John W. Cronin, Francis W. Hanlon, Joseph M. Odiome, Arthur S. Springer, Philip H. Gregory. The officers for the present year are: President, Harvey B. Lovell; vice-president, Carl E. Dunham; secretary-treasurer, Irvine W. Jardine; sergeant at arms, Paul L. Phillips.

Blanket Taxes

In accordance with the decision of the Board of Managers to publish the names of the men who had neither paid nor applied for extension, a list of these men is printed below. Up to last Monday 85 per cent of the student body had paid their taxes, with a far too large percentage of unpaid extensions yet to be paid. Many of these extensions are now overdue and should be paid as soon as possible.

The men who have neither paid their taxes nor applied for extension are the following:

- H. L. Caldwell '24.
- John Morley '24.
- P. L. Phillips '24.
- Nathan Wood '25.

Bowdoin's Opponents In Saturday's Games

Maine Beats Bates By One Touchdown—Tufts Hands Defeat to Wesleyan

Maine 12, Bates 7. This score should indicate that we will face two teams of about the same calibre in the two coming football games. While Bates, our immediate rival, was the loser, it has by no means a weak team. Rutsky, a half-back and Charlie Ray, the dusky full back, will prove very dangerous while Kempton, the little substitute quarter, is a wizard at forward passing and Rowe flashing on the wing. If we can judge by statistics on paper, the White has something to think about in its next game.

The University of Maine, only winner in the State series, is undoubtedly a powerful team. With such a group of backs as Blair, who made a four yard run, Merritt, who made a gain of thirty-five yards through the whole Bates team, the slashing line plunger Gruhn and Captain Small, no team is weak. But more than this, the light blue has a veteran line which is heavy and powerful. All in all, last year's champions have no team to ignore.

Tufts beat Wesleyan fourteen to six. Although it entered the game on the short end of the betting, the Medford team opened an heretofore concealed attack and pushed the ball over for a touchdown very early in the game. Coach Eddie Casey has built up a team that is primed with football knowledge besides being strong and speedy. Van French, the left half who made a fifty-four yard run, and Chandonett with his ability to haul down passes and his powerful line plunges, and Perry the flashing quarterback, who showed both good generalship and accurate passing. These men form the nucleus of a well rounded team, a team which has a lot of fight.

Rev. Chester B. Emerson Lectures On Near East

Last Sunday night the Reverend Chester B. Emerson of Detroit, Michigan, spoke in Memorial Hall on the situation in the Near East.

He received an invitation from a New York society to be a "paid guest" on a tour of inspection in the Near East. He went with a party of about eighteen young people, many college graduates, to shores of the Adriatic. "I wouldn't give two cents for any part of the Mediterranean east of Italy," remarked the speaker. The boat which carried them across the Adriatic to Armenia had previously been used as a refugee-carrying steamer and was terribly infested with fleas. On the shores of Armenia over one hundred thousand people stood massed "waiting for them."

Every public building is being used to accommodate refugees. The dirt, filth and squalor is terrible. In one corner of the king's palace, now used to house refugees, a play, given in English, was shown for their benefit. Speaking of the refugee situation there, the speaker stated, "The problem of the world today is either the clenched fist or the open hand."

The boys and girls of Corinth are fed and drilled in perfect order. Each has a box to hold things which it can call its own. Corinth is filled to overflowing with refugees. Greece has a population of only five or six million natives, yet when the crisis came in Asia Minor, the Greeks took over one million Armenians into Greece to aid them. All Europe and even America refused to give them a home. To Greece belongs the glory. "America was going to make the world safe for democracy," observed the speaker in a sarcastic vein. "I have been abroad for three consecutive summers and traversed all England and talked with leaders of Europe and Near East and I feel more convinced each time that America made a colossal blunder in not joining the League of Nations."

The British are fast losing their hold on Palestine and India. Men from all over both countries expressed opinions that before many years England would be without an Eastern empire.

Bowdoin played Colby to a 6 to 6 tie last Saturday afternoon at Whittier Field. The gridiron was muddy as a result of two days' rain and the day itself was very unsettled. In the first period of the game neither team seemed to get underway and a continued exchange of punts to the distinct advantage of Captain Mal Morrill resulted. It was a see-saw quarter but Bowdoin did get near enough to give Mal a chance to try for a field goal. It was a close try but was declared out. In the next quarter there was plenty of excitement. Long passes from Farrington to Horace Hildreth brought the White to the ten yard line and when it was held for downs Mal tried a drop kick. This time the referee ruled it out but in the opinion of those who were in a direct line with the kicker and the goal posts it was in by two or three feet. Millett, the Colby star, then punted short and again the home team pushed the pigskin up to within scoring distance, only to be forced to try another field goal which failed. This was an expensive attack because Joe Garland was hurt. The procedure was again repeated and this time plunges by Morrill and Jones gave Farrington a chance to make the first score and he succeeded. In this onslaught the White lost Dick Jones through injuries. Mal's try at a goal failed. Soon after the kick off, Horace Hildreth recovered one of Mal's punts, on the Colby thirty-five yard line. A long pass from Morrill to Farrington and some brilliant broken field running by the latter put the ball over, but the referee claimed that Frank had stepped outside on the ten yard line. It was a bad decision in the eyes of most everybody because the White star did not come within two feet of the border-line. This time the heavier Colby aggregation held the black-jerseyed fighters for downs and the exciting period soon ended.

Throughout the first of the second half Colby took the offensive but Bowdoin held again and again. Finally, however, after a gallant stand on the five yard line, weight told and Millett managed to score but failed to get the extra point. It was a hard game to play and a harder game not to win but things went against us.

The First Period

Colby won the toss and chose to kick and defend the south goal. Garland fumbled the kick on the fifteen yard line and Farrington failed to gain through the line. Morrill sent a beautiful punt to Colby's forty-two yard line and Tarkey made a fair catch. Both Dunnack and Mathers failed to gain and Jones nailed Tarkey for a three yard loss. Millett kicked to the ten yard line and Mal ran it back to the thirty-five. Farrington failed to gain while Peacock stopped Jones short. Mal was forced to punt to the twenty-five yard line to Tarkey who was stopped at the forty mark. Millett made first two and then five yards on line plunges while Tarkey made two off tackle. Millett kicked offside at the twenty and Jones and Garland made six yards and Morrill again punted. Carson went in for Dunnack and Garland nailed him in his tracks. Colby was off side. Carson stumbled and failed to gain and Millett punted to the White's forty-eight yard mark. Morrill lost five yards but on the next play he tossed a long pass and a Colby man interfered with the catcher thirty-five yards down the field so it was our ball there. Two rushes by Jones netted four yards and a trick play by Garland made first down. McGary was substituted for Mathers on the Water-ville team. Garland failed to gain and after an offside Mal tried a drop kick which barely failed. McGary made two yards and Millett punted to mid-field. Garland and Farrington failed to gain and Carson recovered Mal's punt on his fifteen yard line. Jones nailed Carson for a loss and Colby punted to Captain Morrill on its forty line. Carson caught Morrill's pass on the thirty-five yard line and carried it four yards as the period ended.

The Second Period

Millett punted to Mal who was stopped on the thirty yard line. Two long passes from Farrington to H. Hildreth netted almost sixty-five yards. Jones lost three yards and Farrington failed to gain. Jones fumbled a bad pass for a five yard loss and Mal

The State Series.

A retrospect on the State Series up to this time gives us little in volume, but a great deal in quality as food for reflection. The two games already played were surprising, almost alarming in their results. Maine, generally considered our strongest opponent for the championship title, defeated Bates by only one touchdown in a game reported as being all Maine from start to finish. Either the desire to overwhelm the Lewiston players or the necessary driving power to fulfill that desire must have been lacking. In either case, there is every evidence that Bates is represented this year by a powerful team, a team which will fight inch for inch every gain made on Whittier Field next Saturday afternoon.

It is potent that the game with Colby last week was a keen disappointment to Bowdoin men—to none more so than to members of the team. Heavily outweighed, the Bowdoin men played wonderfully thoroughgoing football during the first half of the game—a type of playing that should have increased the score materially. The superb condition and fighting spirit of our eleven was never more evident than in those depressing moments when, after losing golden opportunities through the gross inefficiency of an official, the team drove on and on, fighting all the way a clean, hard battle for supremacy. Perhaps it was the loss of two of our most dependable backs, perhaps it was the inevitable disappointment at the loss of well-earned points that put Bowdoin on the defensive throughout the latter half of the game. At any rate, it was there that the Colby weight began to count, with the result that Bowdoin had to be satisfied with a tie score.

There is little gain to be had in expressing distaste at the evident unfairness of several official decisions. Bowdoin teams will take the "breaks of the game" now, as they always have, without a murmur of ineffectual complaint. The Athletic Council has done its part in asking for the disbarment of the offending official. The management has learned its lesson, and the offense will probably not be repeated. So much for the past. More weighty issues of the future demand our attention.

Next Saturday we meet Bates on our home ground. Bates is unquestionably a rival worthy of our steel. Throughout a fairly difficult season they have displayed considerable ability, and like the other two state rivals, they offer a team somewhat heavier than our own. There are but two ways of defeating matter en masse. The first is to present a more formidable mass. The Bowdoin that is out of the question. The second is to present a more formidable mind. There lies Bowdoin's opportunity.

With effective coaching the Bowdoin team has mastered a series of plays workable enough to defeat any opponent in our class. The team is a real fighting unit, an aggregation which will hold and fight on to the last ditch. But it is no going to be forced to that last ditch. Bowdoin men have every confidence in their team to win. We have watched the team surmount great obstacles before and we know that they can do it again. It is that great confidence that lends the hearty ring of sincerity to the songs and cheers that roar from the stands this year. Student support is stronger than ever, student confidence in our team is unlimited, and best of all, the team deserves it all. "Got get Bates!"

Communication

To the Editor of the "Orient."

Dear Sir—As a member of the Bowdoin student body I wish to protest against the publishing of a list of names of the men who have not paid their blanket taxes. Such an action is utterly out of accord with the Bowdoin tradition of fair play, with the American tradition of justice. It is Prussianism, pure and simple.

In the "Orient" of October 17th I find the statement that "in next week's 'Orient' the list of names of men who have not paid will be published." This list is published on the assumption that the men, whose blanket taxes are unpaid, are disloyal to the college. Here is displayed a wanton disregard of the motives and reasons of these men for not paying their blanket taxes. With no reservations whatsoever, disloyalty to the college is assigned to each and every one of them as the cause of the failure to pay. But what proof is there? Is their disloyalty so incontestable that the extreme measure of proclaiming it to the college at large is taken? Is there not one among them whose reason for his unpaid tax is that he cannot possibly afford to pay it? Some of them may deserve such arbitrary measures, but to those whose motives are other than pure disloyalty a rank injustice is done. The very act of making public such a list savors of blackmail. I cannot believe that it is representative of the student body. It is a blot upon the good name of the college. Surely the men who resolved on such a course could not have given it any but the most superficial consideration, for had they thought of it at all seriously they could not help but have seen that it was an action one might expect from a cad but never from a gentleman.

Very sincerely yours,

FRITZ KLEES.

Debating Council Meets To Formulate Spring Trip

New York Trip Planned—May Have National Debating Fraternity at Bowdoin

According to a decision reached by the executive committee of the Debating Council, Bowdoin debaters will make an extended trip as far south as New York sometime during the year, probably in the Easter vacation. Other debates will include Carleton College, University of Maine, and Middlebury. This will be the most important event in the debating schedule which includes the usual interscholastic and interclass debates as well as the Bradbury prize debating.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Debating Council held Monday noon at Professor Davis's home a trip to New York was discussed. This, if carried out, will probably take place during the Easter vacation and will include five or six debates with colleges in Southern New England and New York State. A tentative list of these colleges includes Cornell, Brown, Hamilton, Lafayette, Rutgers, Colgate and Syracuse.

The executive committee is composed of: Chairman, R. H. Lee '24; manager, Atherton P. Daggett '25; secretary, William Rowe '24; and Read and Hills.

At a recent meeting of the Debating Council officers were elected to fill the two vacancies from last year and a committee consisting of Lee '24, Welch '25, Daggett '25, and Professor Davis, was appointed to consider the advisability of petitioning for membership in one of the two national debating fraternities.

Trials for freshman and sophomore teams will be held soon. The regular debate between the two lower classes will take place in December and in all probability the best men on the two teams will be picked to meet Amherst in an underclass debate in January. In the two years that these underclass debates have been held Amherst has won once and Bowdoin once. This year the Bowdoin team journeys to Amherst.

Prospects for varsity debating are excellent. Five men, Hill '24, Lee '24, Daggett '25, H. Hildreth '25, and Welch '25, were on varsity teams last year. There is also good material from the Bradbury and interclass teams of last year. This year's appropriation of $468 from the A.S.B.C. is the largest ever made to the Debating Council.

The officers of the Council including those recently elected are: president, Lee '24; vice-president, Hill '24; manager, Daggett '25; secretary, Rowe '24, and assistant manager, Read '26.

Fall Tennis Tournament

The Fall Tennis Tournament has now progressed to the fourth round and the field is rapidly narrowing down to the pick of the college. From the calibre of the playing of several of the men in matches, which have already taken place, it looks as though there would be some stiff competition for the fourth position on the varsity next spring, which was left open by the graduation of Harvey Bishop last June. Other last year's letter men will also find it more than a hard race to keep their positions on the team.

Among the men who are showing well this fall and are likely to make a strong bid for the varsity next spring are Spear '25, Withey '25, Farnham '27, Hill '27, and Tolman '27.

The result of third round matches are as follows:

Tolman '27 defeated Charles '25, 6-3, 6-2.

Tennock '27 defeated Rablin '26, 6-2, 6-3.

Farnham '27 defeated Goodspeed '27, 6-1, 6-2.

Chamberlain '24 defeated Whitcomb '25, by default.

Spear '25 defeated Preble '25, 2-6, 8-6, 9-7.

Wood '27 had a bye.

Hill '27 defeated Nichols '25, by default.

Withey '25 defeated Cushman '27, 6-8, 6-1, 8-6.

Longfellow And Bowdoin

Sir: I agree to a large extent with the statement in The Conning Tower of Sept. 29 that "this thing of giving a college or a town credit . . . for a favorite son's literary achievement is overdone."

But it is recorded to the great credit of Bowdoin College that soon after Longfellow's graduation the college took a step that settled the question of his profession and opened the way to the career of his preference. When it was taken Longfellow was nominally a law student in his father's office, with his heart on literature. Desiring to establish a professorship of modern languages, the trustees offered the chair to the young graduate who had just completed a brilliant course, with the condition that he should prepare himself in Europe for the position. He accepted the offer and spent three years abroad.

Longfellow would have written poetry if he had never gone to England or taught at Bowdoin. But whether he would ever have been so tremendously influenced by European learning and German romance is open to doubt. These two factors colored the great part of his later writings and in that way have affected the substance of American literature.

Only three years before his death Longfellow said to the Secretary of the Boston Bowdoin Alumni Association that to Bowdoin College he owed all the preparation he ever had for literary work. This statement deserves consideration on the ground that it was made, not while he might have been swayed by the enthusiasm of his early success, but after he had attained the fullness of his power.

In the case of Hawthorne, at Bowdoin the future romance began a friendship of forty-three years with a classmate, Horatio Bridge, which was destined deeply to affect his literary career. Inclined to despair and self-distrust, Hawthorne received from Bridge in the plastic days of student life the sincere encouragement and stimulus he needed. They used to stand together on the old wooden bridge over the Androscoggin River, and Bridge delighted to listen to his classmate's writings, praised them heartily and prophesied the time when the whole land would be reading Hawthorne's works.

In later years after Hawthorne had failed in two volumes, Bridge secretly guaranteed the publisher Goodrich of Boston against financial loss and brought about the publication of "Twice-Told Tales." With the recognition accorded the book the cloud over Hawthorne's aspirations lifted and he never afterward wholly despaired of achieving success as a writer. Dana K. First State Series Game sent a beautiful drop kick through the bars but referee Sidley didn't see it and called it no-goal. Millett punted short to his own twenty-five yard line. Morrell's pass was blocked and Joe Garland made 8 yards. Garland was hurt and Phillips went in at right half while Farrington went to full. Jones made six yards and first down. Farrington and Jones added six more and Mal's drop kick failed. First down for Colby on ten yard line. Millett made five yards and punted to the twenty-five yard line again. Frank was thrown for no-gain and his pass was blocked. Morrell made nine through center and Dick Jones made first down. Sullivan went in for O'Donnell, made 10 yards on a mass play, and the White was on the three yard line. Jones was injured and Heworth went in. Farrington poughed through for the first score of the game but Mal's try for an extra point was blocked. Millett kicked off to Phillips who made eight yards. Farrington failed to gain. Mal punted to Carson who fumbled. Horace Hildreth recovered on the thirty-five yard line. A long pass from Morrell to Farrington was completed and after weaving his way through the Colby secondary defense, Frank carried the ball over. Mr. Sidley again came to the front by declaring that Farrington had stepped off-side five yards back. Both head-linesman and newspapermen who were closely watching the play declared that it was good. Farrington and Morrell made tight yards but Heworth just failed to score. Millett ploughed through the White line for first down and then added six more yards. He then kicked to Phillips who ran the punt back eight yards. The half ended with the ball on Bowdoin's thirty-eight yard line.

Second Half—Third Period

Cronin went in for Heworth while Coach Green replaced Weymouth and McPherson by McGary and Carson respectively. Bowdoin licked off to Tarpey who ran back to the Bowdoin forty yard line. Carson netted four yards on a cross buck and Millett made first down. Things began to look bad for Bowdoin as Carson and Millett added seven more. Then Charles Hildreth broke up a line plunge but Millett made first down on the thirteen yard line. Then the Blue fumbled and Charley recovered. Farrington made a yard but Morrell's punt was blocked on the ten yard line. In two plunges Carson managed to make a couple of yards. McGary was then substituted for Townsend and Tarpey made another yard. Then Horace Hildreth came to the front and by smearing an end run, gave Bowdoin the ball for the seven yard line. Farrington made about a yard and Morrell put it to Carson who was stopped on the ten yard line. On the next rush, however, he was stopped. Phillips then blocked a pass on the goal line and Farrington did the same thing over the line giving the White the ball on the twenty yard line. Cronin made five through center but Farrington was nailed for a short loss. Mal then got off a beautiful punt to center field and Tucker finally stopped Carson at the thirty-five mark. Carson made three and Millett nine yards for first down. Carson gained three yards on a line plunge and Horace Hildreth nailed Tarpey for an eight yard set back. A long forward over the goal line failed and again the home team took the pigskin. McGary of Colby broke up Farrington's pass and Cronin failed to gain and then made four yards. The quarter ended with the ball on our fifteen yard line.

The Last Period

Burnett replaced McGary and Mal punted to Tarpey who was stopped on the forty-five yard line. McGary failed gain and Carson made a beautiful fourteen yard end run. McGary made two yards and then six to which Millett added three and first down. Millett then piled through to the five yard line on a trick play. Carson failed to gain and Millett made three. Tarpey struck a stone wall and was stopped dead. Then came a mass play and the Bowdoin fighters hadn't a chance against their much heavier opponents; Millett made Colby's first and last score for he failed to kick the goal. No man could have kicked it against those determined Whites. Cronin ran back Millett's kick to the thirty yard line and Mal made 5 yards and then took the ball off side. His attempt at a pass then failed and he punted to Tarpey whom Charley Hildreth

RESOLUTION

Hall of Theta of Delta Kappa Epsilon:
We have learned with the deepest sorrow of our brother, George Ladd Thompson, which occurred on October 9, 1923.

Born in Newburyport, Massachusetts, April 15, 1855, he lived in Augusta prior to taking up his college career. He received his degree in 1877, studied medicine for one year at Boston University, and entered business in Brunswick where he became one of the town's most successful business men.

In 1889, Brother Thompson was appointed to the staff of Governor Burleigh and later served on the staff of Governor Powers with the rank of commissary general.

He was a man who could be relied upon to give the best there was in him and he held several public offices, among them that of postmaster of Brunswick, which he filled very capably for sixteen years.

Therefore, be it resolved, that Theta extends her heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved relatives and friends of the deceased.

dreth stopped dead on Colby's quarter field. Millett made three yards and Bob Phillips ran back his punt from the fifteen to the forty-five yard line. Farrington failed to gain and a completed pass from him to Phillips also was futile. Then Mal was stopped only to be thrown for a fifteen yard loss on the next play. McDonald went in for McGary. It was Colby's first down and Millett made a yard. Farrington then forced Carson off side for no gain and a pass failed. Millett punted to Phillips on the five yard line and the little fellow was stopped fifteen yards further up the field. Farrington made six yards and Phillips three and Mal's pass failed. Morrell then punted to McDonald who was tackled on the forty-five yard line after gaining twenty yards. McBay went in for Carson and made eight yards. Levee was substituted for Tarpey. A pass from Millett to McDonald netted fifteen yards and Levee made four more as the whistle blew on the twenty-five yard line.

Classical Club Plans To Present "Menaechmi"

Cast Announced—Latin Play To Be Staged Twice This Spring

The Classical Club is planning to put on the Latin play "Menaechmi," written by Plautus, and translated by Dear Nixon. The cast has been chosen, and rehearsals have already been held. The play committee is as follows, D. J. Robertson '24, chairman; F. W. Browne '25, N. E. Withey '25, N. B. Davis '26, L. F. Shurtleff '26. It is planned to give the play twice, once shortly after mid-years, as part of the sub-freshman entertainment; and the other time during the Easter vacation at Brunswick, during the annual meeting of the Classical Association, which will meet here at that time under the auspices of the Bowdoin College. This will be the second time in the history of Bowdoin that a classical play has ever been put on. The first time was two years ago. It was planned to make it an annual affair, but Professor Woodruff's death prevented it last year. The cast is as follows:

Prologus	N. A. Cobb '26
Menaechmus I	C. Hildreth '25
Menaechmus II	H. Hildreth '25
Peniculus	F. R. Hamilton '24
Messenio	F. W. Browne '25

	W. C. Mason '24

Freshmen who have not yet consulted their faculty adviser are urged to do so at the earliest possible moment. The whole purpose of the scheme of providing closer faculty supervision for Freshmen will be seriously interfered with if it is not put into prompt operation. Freshmen are requested to remember that they are supposed to look up their faculty adviser, and not vice versa.

The annual reception of President and Mrs. Sills to the new members of the faculty was held Friday evening, Oct. 12, at the President's home. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Curtis of New York City, and all the alumni and their wives from Brunswick and vicinity.

THRILLED?

YOU bet he is! He's making a tremendous hit! She has just told him that he has hair like Rudy Valentino's. But he doesn't know whether to pretend that it came that way or confess that he did it with his little bottle of "Vaseline" Hair Tonic.

He owes a lot of his manly beauty to that bottle. "Vaseline" Hair Tonic promotes the growth of the hair and keeps the scalp in the healthiest condition. At all drug stores and student barber shops.

E. S. BODWELL & SON
BRUNSWICK*Sunday Chapel*Dr. Emerson of Detroit Discusses Three Essentials Of SuccessSunday afternoon we were again fortunate in having another former Bowdoin man to deliver the chapel sermon. This time it was Dr. Emerson, pastor of a big church in Detroit.
Dr. Emerson took for his text the first Psalm which begins, "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly nor sitteth in the counsel of sinners." He showed us that we college men should take joy in the knowledge that the problems of the world are soon to rest upon our shoulders and that to be fully prepared to play our part successfully we need three things above all else.In the first place, the Doctor said that we must have intelligence. This, he pointed out, is not in the concern of most people. They are led on by prejudices and unwillingness to look at any other than the side of a question which will benefit them. This, if not remedied, is very likely to bring on a social chaos in this country. The truth has always existed but it is forman to find it. As an example, he mentioned how long it took man to discover why apples fell from a tree.
Then again he spoke of an old bookstore in Florence which thousands passed and but few noticed any of the books which gave Browning his idea for one of his best poems. "It takes," he said, "a prepared mind to be intelligent."Integrity was his second requisite to the successful man. This, he pointed out, gives a man the satisfaction of travelling the whole world round and of meeting anybody with a clear conscience. Just as the slip of a hand might cost a man so much in money that he could not repay and he would never dare enter the stock exchange again, so might a slip of the tongue cause a man so much shame that he might want to live in exclusion during the rest of his life.Courage is what a man needs mostly, according to Dr. Emerson. The men who are always playing safe, as do most people now-a-days, do not get very far. Too much stress is being laid on keeping on the safe side.
In his opinion, a person is not safe until he knows he can face anything unshudderingly and then he is courageous. "A fish," he said, "swims up stream. A piece of dead wood drifts down."Too many men of fifty fail to see, as they look back on life, just why they haven't made more of themselves. They have been always on the jump, yet now they are nothing. Dr.
Emerson compared them to a top which when spinning looks entirely red but when stopped is only partially so. Now they are stopped. In closing, Dr. Emerson said for one who was searching for a model to look to Jesus Christ.1913—Laurence A. Crosby, a

Sigma Nu Wins Inter-Fraternity Cross Country

Establishes New Low Record With Score of 60—Theta Delta Chi, Second, Score 66

Sigma Nu, with a score of 60, won the interfraternity cross country last Tuesday by a margin of six points over the T. D.'s. The Betas, winners in the two previous years that the race has been held, finished third. The score was the lowest that any fraternity has ever made in winning the event.

The first man in was Bob Foster, Beta captain and the New England half-mile champion. He was followed by Allan Howes of Psi U, while Miller of the T. D.'s finished in third position. Ham of Zeta Psi, a freshman, finished ahead of some of the varsity runners and took sixth place.

All of the men scoring for Sigma Nu came in within the first seventeen to finish. The Sigma Nu's score of sixty is the low record for the interfraternity race.

The first team prize is a shield, and the second a silver cup. The first individual prize is a gold medal; second a silver medal; third, a bronze medal; and ribbons with gold bars for the men finishing from fourth to tenth.

The score is as follows: Sigma Nu 60, Theta Delta Chi 66, Beta Theta Pi 90, Delta Upsilon 113, Alpha Delta Phi 122, Psi Upsilon 130, Kappa Sigma 153, and Chi Psi 162. Zeta Psi, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Phi Delta Psi failed to score. The first fifteen men in were: Foster, Beta; Howes, Psi U; Miller, T.D.; Small, A.D.; Eastman, T.D.; Ham, Zeta; Mushroe, Chi Psi; Berry, D.U.; Spear, Sigma Nu; Blanchard, Sigma Nu; Page, Sigma Nu; Fish, D.U.; Whiting, Sigma Nu; Robinson, Beta; and Hamilton, T. D.

Sigma Nu: Spear 9, Blanchard 10, Page 11, Whiting 13, Gay 17; total 60. Theta Delta Chi: Miller 8, Eastman 5, Hamilton 15, Raymond 21, Bishop 22; total 66.

Beta Theta Pi: Foster 1, Robinson 14, Keniston 18, Tarbell 24, Carl 33; total 90.

Delta Upsilon: Berry 8, Fish 22, A. Small 19, Collins 35, Simmons 39; total 113.

Alpha Delta Phi: Small 4, Sellev 16, Mason 30, Spinney 32, Couguy 40; total 122.

Psi Upsilon: Howes 2, Lavigne 20, Crane 34, F. Brown 36, Tolman 38; total 130.

Kappa Sigma: Stubbs 23, Fanning 28, Harriman 29, Goodwin 31, Fasso 42; total 153.

Chi Psi: Mushroe 7, Nevins 27, King 37, Hull 45, McIntire 46; total 162.

Bates Rally

A mass meeting was held last Friday night at quarter of seven in Memorial Hall. A good crowd showed up, though far from one hundred percent of the student body was there. The meeting was opened by some songs and cheers which were executed exceedingly well. Then Miguel gave a spirited talk urging us to give all that we had to back the team to the utmost. After Miguel's talk, "Foot Tootell" was introduced (to the freshmen). He talked with the viewpoint of a player on last year's team. Then came King Turgeon, whose eloquence and wit were decidedly to the point. At the end, apples were given out and Harry Keaney's new song was tried with the band.

Dr. Charles U. Clark To Lecture In Memorial Hall

Next Thursday evening Dr. Charles U. Clark, a former professor at Yale, will lecture in Hubbard Hall at eight o'clock. Dr. Clark is one of the most popular lecturers in the country, mainly because he knows about what he talks. He has travelled all over the world and met men in all countries who are in the center of present day politics, not only of their native lands but of the world at large. A few years ago, he gave up teaching at Yale to tour the country making lectures at almost all the preparatory schools, colleges, and universities. These lectures are based upon his personal observation and study throughout the world. Not only does he speak about economic situation, but he brings with him a complete appreciation of the arts and his lecture will be accompanied by slides on Rome. While he is in Brunswick, Dr. Clark will be the guest of Dr. Dewing who, with Professor Means, was one of the noted lecturers' pupils at Yale, and through whose efforts we have been able to obtain a man in such great demand as Dr. Clark. There may be moving pictures given after the lecture in Hubbard Hall.

Bowdoin's Opponents In Saturday's Games

Colby Beats Maine 7-0, While Tufts Noses Out Middlebury 6-3

Bowdoin's two remaining opponents, the University of Maine and Tufts, were both engaged in hard battles last Saturday which serve in a large measure to show the strength of their teams. The University of Maine was defeated at the hands of the Colby eleven at Waterville in one of the hardest fought and most spectacular battles that has ever been played in Waterville. Tufts has had a clean slate of victories for the whole season and added one more to the string by defeating Middlebury 6 to 3.

Maine's defeat came as a result of a Colby touchdown early in the first quarter. Colby, profiting from its lesson in the Bowdoin game opened up its full attack from the very start of the game, scored a touchdown in the first five minutes of play. This proved to be the only scoring of the entire game. Each team exhibited a versatile and at times spectacular attack. The flashy end runs of Small and Blair of Maine, the powerful line-plunging of Gruhn and Repscha, the brilliant forward passing and kicking of Small were the outstanding points in the attack of the Orono team. Colby's game from the start was opened, being filled with end-runs and forward passes. A short pass over the goal line from MacDonald to Tarpey brought the first six points of the score, while Soule was successful in the try for goal after touchdown. Maine tried several forward passes in its futile attempt to score but did not have the punch to put the ball over. The Orono team came close to scoring just before the close of the first period when a 30-yard pass from Small to Elliott was complete and which brought Maine to Colby's 10-yard line. Small made five yards around the end and Repscha added one more on a skin tackle play. Small then tried to duplicate Colby's performance of passing over the goal line but was unsuccessful.

In the last three minutes of play, with the score 3 to 0 against them, the Tufts team brought victory to their side by opening up a series of forward passing. With five minutes left in the second half, Perry went in at quarterback for the Medford team and immediately started an open game. After having advanced the ball once, only to lose it on a bad pass, the losing team started again at midfield and completed two successful passes. Van French received a forward pass on the Middlebury 35-yard line and dashed to a touchdown before the defense of the Vermont team could reach him. Perry missed the try for extra point by inches. This is Tufts' fifth victory of the year and enables her to meet Harvard this coming Saturday with a clean slate.

Baseball Schedule Approved By The Athletic Council

Since the vote of the student body to change Ivy Day to May 23, several tentative baseball dates have been agreed on. The full schedule, approved by the Athletic Council but not yet acted on by the Faculty, is as follows:

Southern trip during Easter vacation:
March 29—Annapolis at Annapolis.
March 31—Georgetown at Washington.
April 1—Columbia at New York.
April 2—Princeton at Princeton.
April 3—New York Athletic Club (pending).
April 5—West Point at West Point.
May 3—Colby at Waterville.
May 6—Wesleyan at Middletown.
May 7—Harvard at Cambridge.
May 8—Mass. Aggies at Amherst.
May 9—Brown at Providence.
May 10—Tufts at Medford.
May 14—Maine at Brunswick.
May 17—Bates at Lewiston.
May 23—Bates at Brunswick (Ivy Day).
May 24—Tufts at Brunswick.
May 28—Colby at Brunswick.
May 31—Maine at Orono.

Because of conflicts in schedules it was impossible to schedule games with Amherst and Williams. The usual exhibition games with one of the Maine colleges will be played during April.

Last year two of the State Series games were played in early May, before the New England trip. This year only one will come at this time.

Bowdoin-Maine Scores

Bowdoin will meet her old-time rival, University of Maine, next Saturday at Orono. The following are the results of the games played in the past:

1893—Bowdoin 12, Maine 10.
1896—Bowdoin 12, Maine 6.
1898—Bowdoin 29, Maine 8.
1899—Bowdoin 14, Maine 0.
1900—Bowdoin 38, Maine 0.
1901—Bowdoin 5, Maine 22.
1902—Bowdoin 0, Maine 10.
1902—Bowdoin 0, Maine 10.
1903—Bowdoin 0, Maine 16.
1904—Bowdoin 22, Maine 5.
1905—Bowdoin 0, Maine 18.
1906—Bowdoin 6, Maine 0.
1907—Bowdoin 34, Maine 5.
1908—Bowdoin 10, Maine 0.
1909—Bowdoin 22, Maine 0.
1910—Bowdoin 0, Maine 0.
1911—Bowdoin 0, Maine 15.
1912—Bowdoin 0, Maine 19.
1913—Bowdoin 0, Maine 9.
1914—Bowdoin 0, Maine 27.
1915—Bowdoin 13, Maine 23.
1916—Bowdoin 7, Maine 7.
1917—Bowdoin 7, Maine 0.
1918—Bowdoin ATC, Maine ATC.
1919—Bowdoin 0, Maine 18.
1920—Bowdoin 7, Maine 7.
1921—Bowdoin 14, Maine 7.
1922—Bowdoin 0, Maine 7.

In a total of 26 games, Bowdoin has been returned the victor in 12 and tied 3, Maine having won the remaining 11. The largest score Bowdoin ever succeeded in obtaining was in 1900, 38 to Maine's 0. In 1914 Maine forced Bowdoin to accept a 27-0 defeat.

Every Bowdoin man who saw the game on Whittier field last year cannot help but remember the turn of luck and chance which threw the game to Maine. In the last period of play, with only a few minutes remaining, Maine succeeded in coming up from the rear and scoring a touchdown. On the try for goal, Small tried a placement kick which resulted in a freak and a win for Maine. The ball was blocked by the White ends, but instead of ending its course there, bounced off a mass of players, glanced off the back of one of them, and over the bar. It was a hard break and snatched a well earned victory from the very arms of the Bowdoin team.

This year Bowdoin has been tied by Colby and defeated by Bates while Maine has won from Bates and lost to Colby. Comparative scores show Bowdoin to be the underdog, but upon looking into the playing of these games none can but come to the conclusion that Bowdoin's chances in the coming game are at least even. At any rate it will be a hard battle from start to finish as every Bowdoin-Maine game always has been and always will be.

BOWDOIN UNABLE TO STOP BATES OFFENSIVE DURING FIRST HALF

Bowdoin's Determined Comeback In the Second Half Threatens To Bring Victory—Garnet Outplays White In First Half And Wins 12 to 7

Sophomores Overwhelm Freshmen In Cross-Country

Spear '26 Easily Wins Race—Sellev '27, Fourth, Only Freshman In First Six to Finish—Score 17-43

The annual Freshman-Sophomore cross country race was held over the three-mile college course last Friday afternoon. Like all the other Freshman-Sophomore interclass contests so far this year, the upperclassmen were overwhelmingly victorious. Sellev was the only Freshman to score before the entire Sophomore team had finished. The 1926 team scored 17 as against the 43 of the yearlings. Spear, who won the race, had a run-away at the finish and was far in the lead when the race finished. Blanchard of the Sophomores finished, with Robinson '26 third. Sellev '27 was fourth.

The summary:
First, Spear '26; second, Blanchard '26; third, Robinson '26; fourth, Sellev '27; fifth, O. Small '26; sixth, Raymond '26; seventh, Tarbell '26; eighth, Whittier '27; ninth, Boynton '27; tenth, Goodwin '27; twelfth, Crane '27.

Keaney's Football Song Proves Great Success

Harry Keaney's football song, which the Orient prints this week for the benefit of those who have not been able to get a copy, has met with an enthusiastic response. The need for a fighting football song has long been felt and this one more than fills the bill. When the song was first sung at the Colby rally Dean Nixon expressed his opinion that it was something very much needed and complimented it highly. It has become popular with the students and is sure to go big when everyone learns it.

The words are as follows:
Fight on dear old Bowdoin
Put the ball across the line
Fight for dear old Bowdoin
Here it goes across this time
The good old White we're with you
And we're cheering for your men
For it's FIGHT FIGHT FIGHT dear old Bowdoin
Fight on again

Hurrah for dear old Bowdoin
We are loyal, staunch and true
Hail, hail, dear old Bowdoin
We would give our all for you
Victorious forever
The White will always be
For it's FIGHT FIGHT FIGHT dear old Bowdoin
To victory

The words and music were both written by Harry Keaney. The band version of the music was written by Don Lewis.

Fasso '25 Showing Well In Golf This Fall

Tommy Fasso, Bowdoin's golf captain, has been making an exceptional showing lately. Within the last week he has tied the amateur record of 75 at the Portland Country Club and has come within two strokes of the amateur and professional record at the Augusta Country Club.

This augurs well for the success of the golf team this year. Not only is Fasso an exceptional player himself but he is a good instructor and should be able to do a lot in building up an excellent team.

Last Saturday Bates outpointed Bowdoin 12-7 in an exceedingly close and interesting game. It was a bright, sunny day with a slight wind blowing cross-field towards the grandstands. The heavy Bates team jumped into the game and took a lead at the start. The flashing speed of the Maroon back-field, which opened a bag full of trick plays seemed to dazzle the White warriors, and it was not long before a twenty-five yard end run by the little colored halfback Ray, and an addition of fifteen more yards by Woodman put the ball on the Bowdoin three yard line. It took two more plays, however, before the fighting home team could be penetrated and Ray parried the ball across. The goal failed. In the second period almost the same thing happened and the Bowdoin team held on the two yard line only to have Mal Morrell's punt hit the goal posts and a long pass from Kempton to Woodman gave the Lewiston team its final score.

The second half, however, was a different story. A determined Bowdoin team went on to the field and after holding its opponents for downs several times, nailing the best Bates men in their tracks, it started a glorious march down the field, every member of the team contributing his share and every backfield man starring and finally Mal took the ball over and kicked the goal. In the last period, the same sort of a march was underway, only to be stopped short by a frightened Bates defense.

Throughout the game, Captain Morrell starred with his kicking and Farrington with his line plunging, while Kohler and Tucker played beautiful defensive games. The broken field running of Ray was, however, the feature of the game. It was a thrilling game to watch and a heart-breaker to lose.

Bates won the toss and chose to defend the south goal and Bowdoin kicked to Rutsky who was stopped on his forty yard line. After several vain attempts at line bucks, Rutsky kicked outside on our thirty yard line. Bowdoin could not gain so Mal punted out side on Bates forty-four marker. Once again Rutsky was forced to kick and after making one first down the White captain sent a spiral to the thirty-five yard line. Bates then advanced forty five yards towards our goal on end runs by Ray and Rutsky and line plunges by Woodman. Here Horace Hildreth came to our rescue and intercepted a pass on our twenty yard line. Frank Farrington made first down but Mal was forced to punt to the forty-five yard line. From here Ray raced through for twenty-five yards and Woodman brought the ball within our five yard line. It took the Lewiston team two rushes before Ray could register the first score of the game. Rutsky's goal failed. Bowdoin again kicked off and Ray ran it back twenty yards to the forty yard line. The Maroon failed to gain and Rutsky punted to Mal on the fifteen yard line. Farrington ripped off twenty-five yards through tackle. Phillips went in for Kohler and made a nine yard end run as the quarter ended with the ball on our forty-five yard line.

Frank's forward failed and Mal kicked and Rutsky soon did the same. Two passes from Mal to Farrington and Phillips brought us to the twenty yard line but Bates nailed us for losses and took the ball. A series of long passes, line bucks and end runs, broken up occasionally by the White, gradually brought Bates to the five yard line. Here the home defense stiffened and then we took the ball on the two yard line. Mal punted only Loyalty.

A few days ago, and as a direct aftermath of the Bates game, the editor had a rather extended discussion on Bowdoin spirit with an alumnus of the college who has been intimately associated with the students for a long period of years. When we touched on the evident lack of real enthusiasm in the cheering at the game, the alumnus nearly squeaked us with a socratic query: "After all isn't that sort of thing merely the froth of the strong spirit of loyalty that lies beneath the surface, quiet, for the most part, but none the less firm and willing?"

My friend of the alumni speaks from much experience, I realize, but I fear that he may not have grasped the full significance of what he said. To a certain degree the organized cheering at Bowdoin, as at all truly American colleges, is artificial. That appears in the fact that one cheer leader may be able to urge a greater volume of noise from the crowd than another. So far the English idea of American, and by American we mean Bowdoin, cheering holds good. But there is a larger aspect to it. The American youth's attitude to organized cheering is inbred. For years he has been taught to believe that that form of applause and exhortation is the one effective one. Unfortunately for the position of the English adherents the idea is held not only by the youth in the stands, but also by the youth on the playing field, and there the psychology of the thing enters.

Unless the writer has been monstrously deceived by the many athletes with whom he has discussed this subject, he is correct in saying that the team desires and feels the need of appreciation of difficulties as well as triumphs from its grand stand members.

Such appreciation does not mean that the men in the stands must "yell their heads off" from the beginning of a game to the end of it. It does mean, however, that they must stay with their players in those heart rending moments when the tide of battle turns against them. Furthermore, it means that they must attempt to comprehend what the team is up against. For concrete examples, in the negative, Bowdoin men may recall the funeral silence that fell upon the ranks of our supporters when Bates rushed the ball down the field for gain after gain during her periods of dominance. They may then recall the almost unstrainable tumult that broke forth to drown the calling of the signals when Bowdoin took the ball and started rushing down the field on the side next to the Bowdoin cheering section. They may further recall spontaneous admonitions to "get that coat," and the bursting applause, not of sympathy but of unsportsmanlike relief, that went up when time was called to allow for repairs on the injured member of an opposing half back whose skin happened to be of a somewhat dusky shade than that of the cheerers. And lastly some may recall, and thank God they are not numerous, how many after man went down injured without a gesture of sympathy from them until it happened that a man connected with them by fraternal bonds was the unfortunate one.

We are all Bowdoin men, desiring the best for the college. We are proud of that motto on our grand stand, "Fair Play and May the Best Man Win." We know that we have a football team composed of men who are giving their best for the college, in the hope of adding to its noble traditions yet more for clean, hard competition. Are we then, as Bowdoin men, basking in the reflected glory of a historic brilliancy made and maintained by our predecessors to sacrifice the very traditions that have made Bowdoin great for petty considerations, or for mere sloth? Men of Bowdoin, your opportunity is before you! Let that Bowdoin spirit appear that lies more or less dominant in each one of you. Attend the rallies, not the movies; learn and sing the Bowdoin songs; learn and shout the Bowdoin cheers; attend en masse the Bowdoin games; and Joe Bowdoin's spirit will not be troubled.

Communications.

The Orient is, as ever, glad to be the recipient of communications bearing on questions of importance to its readers. It is the policy of the editor to enter into editorial discussion of such communications only when such a course seems necessary. The communication of last issue by Klees '25 is fully answered by the two communications published below, one from an undergraduate and member of the Board of Managers, the other from a very deeply interested alumnus. We hope that there may be many such live discussions carried on through our columns this year.

To the Editor of the Bowdoin Orient:

In the issue of Oct. 24, Mr. Fritz Klees of the "student body" assailed the Board of Managers for publishing the names of the Blanket Tax slackers. In his defense of the under dog, the young man has based his affronts on the supposition that there may be one fellow black-listed "who cannot possibly afford to pay."

Living within a student democracy is not a necessity, but a privilege! Every democracy must be supported by taxes and no individual able to look after himself is exempt from paying for that privilege. There are people who will try to dodge their taxes when they could work and pay them. Who sympathizes with such people when they are deprived of their freedom, when their property is confiscated, or when their names are published in a paper or an annual report? Can many of us imagine that there may exist some Bowdoin student who is so lacking in resourcefulness that he cannot find some honest way to get ten dollars between September and Christmas? No matter how hard he may be working to earn his way, he can toil a bit harder for the privilege of being square with the A.S.B.C. If he can't do it he is not worthwhile, and may as well get out of college now, for he will find many harder difficulties to overcome than that one before the year is ended.

The disloyalty of each Blanket Tax dodger is evidenced by his open refusal to even get an "extension." Such a chap may be taught the lesson he needs by having his name published; he may be worthy later. Sad, too, is the case of any fellow in his last semester of residence in college who thinks he can get out of paying the final installment of the tax, simply because he will soon be going away and his bluff may not be "called!"

Will some member of the Student Council duly request a referendum on the question "Resolved, that the College authorities hereafter place the Blanket Tax upon Term Bills." If adopted by "the student body" (including the dodgers!) such collection would benefit every student activity, and would save unpleasantness in semester's yet to come. It seems potent that most of the Alumni and Undergraduates will approve such a course, for they paid their "poll taxes" in the past, and were glad of the privilege, even though each payment may have been a real sacrifice to some.

Yours very truly,

G. S. JOYCE '18.

Gloucester, Oct. 27, 1923.

To the Editor of the "Orient."

Dear Sir:

The communication of Mr. Klees published in the "Orient" of October 24th prompts me as a member of the Board of Managers to write a few words supporting the managers' stand on the Blanket Tax situation.

Concerning the publication of the list of names of men who have not paid their tax Mr. Klees wrote in part: "Such an action is utterly out of accord with the Bowdoin tradition of fair play, with the American tradition of justice." To me the exact opposite is true. Is it fair play and justice that certain men, perfectly able to pay their taxes, be allowed to enjoy the benefits of the Associated Students of Bowdoin College and mingle with their fellows with the complacent feeling that their business laxity will be unobserved? There are a very few men in college that are truly unable to pay their blanket tax. Recognizing this fact the Board of Managers excuses such men and that is the end of it as far as they are concerned. But it is the altogether too large class of men that are perfectly able to pay but won't. Liberal credit extensions are given for the mere asking. It is indeed an extremely regrettable fact that so many Bowdoin men are completely lacking in the first principles of business ethics.

Surely no student can have a valid objection, except the sustained lack of funds, to paying a blanket tax. This nominal sum is just as legitimate a bill as his tuition or Fraternity bill. Since we cannot bar him from college classes or deprive him of the Fraternity privileges, it seems the least that we can do is to let his fellow students know that he is a slacker. The efficiency of this system is demonstrated by the fact that 97 per cent of the men in college have paid their tax or signified their intention of doing so. Since it is obvious that some stimulus is necessary to collect the money, it seems evident to me that the publication of the list of delinquents in the "Orient" is as mild and yet as effective a legitimate method as any we could employ.

Very truly yours,

LAWRENCE BLATCHFORD '24.

Faculty Notes

Professor Wilmot B. Mitchell presided at the meeting of the Department of English at the Maine State Teachers' Association, October 25. At this session Professor Charles Wilcox Snow of Wesleyan University, a graduate of Bowdoin in the class of 1907, spoke on "Some Aspects of Contemporary American Literature." Professor Snow is the author of a recent volume of poems, "Maine Coast."

The annual meeting of the Association of New England Colleges will be held at Yale, November second and third. President Sills and Professor Moody will be Bowdoin's delegates.

Professor Wilmot B. Mitchell attended the National Congregational Council in Springfield, October 19, 20, 21.

Dean Nixon represented Bowdoin at the semi-centennial of Boston University, October 25 and 26.

Dr. Winford H. Smith '99, superintendent of Johns Hopkins Hospital, was Bowdoin's delegate at the recent inauguration of the new president of St. John's College, Annapolis.

Colonel Weston P. Chamberlain, M. D., Bowdoin '93, of the surgeon-general's office in Washington, represented Bowdoin at the inauguration of the new president of George Washington University.

Dr. Whittier Guest of Honor At Bowdoin Club Banquet

Gov. Baxter '98, President Sills '01,
Sec. MacCormick '15, Coach Oster-gren, Coach Magee Speakers

Dr. Whittier was the guest of honor at the annual meeting of the Bowdoin Club of Portland held in the Congress Square Hotel last Friday evening. Governor Baxter '98, President Sills '01, Alumni Secretary MacCormick '15, Coach Ostergren and Coach Magee were present and spoke.

The club voted to send a radiogram to Don MacMillan '98 now frozen in for the long Arctic winter in the schooner "Bowdoin" eleven degrees from the North Pole. The message is as follows: "Bowdoin Club of Portland, assembled annual meeting, Dr. Whittier honored guest, sends you its cordial greetings."

John F. Dana '98 was elected president of the club to succeed Philip F. Chapman '06. Vergil C. McGorin was re-elected secretary. The following were elected to the executive committee: Edward S. Anthoine '02, Philip F. Chapman '06, Seward J. Marsh '12, Frank L. Cowan '13, Dr. Daniel Mannix '15, Dwight Sayward '16, Don J. Edwards '16, and Emerson W. Zeitler '20.

Governor Baxter called attention to the remarkable influence which Dr. Whittier has held over many generations of young men. After paying further tribute to the father of Bowdoin athletics, he turned to the Doctor and said: "As Governor, I want to say that the people of the State of Maine, not only Bowdoin men but others, appreciate the work you have done for them, and they wish you long life and happiness, and love you from the bottom of their hearts."

Mr. MacCormick spoke briefly of football plans for next year and then speaking of Dr. Whittier said: "I consider him the cornerstone of Bowdoin loyalty and athletic spirit. It is men of his spirit who make Bowdoin a continuous proposition, who tie one period to another. There is no man in all the long list of Bowdoin alumni to whom I can pay a more heartfelt tribute."

President Sills dwelt on the non-athletic activities of Dr. Whittier. He spoke of the Doctor's late afternoon teaching service. He said: "Bowdoin feels that in his service it has something which in the very vital sense of the word, is a precious thing."

Dr. Dudley A. Sargent '75, who was unable to be present on account of his physical condition, sent a letter paying tribute to Dr. Whittier's service. He said "No one has done more to uphold the fundamental principles of physical training than the Doctor and Bowdoin may well be proud of him."

Judge John A. Peters '85, a classmate of Dr. Whittier, wrote: "I would go farther to attend a banquet in honor of Dr. Whittier as a Bowdoin man than for any other man in America; and the word 'regret' does not adequately express my feeling when I say that my work absolutely prevents my being there."

"I have thought this over carefully and I want to say deliberately that Frank Whittier has given to Bowdoin College more in proportion than any other man, living or dead. He has given more of himself in return for his degree than any other graduate. His unselfish devotion to Bowdoin will be a monument for future generations. He can't grow much in the esteem of Bowdoin men, but appreciation of his work will constantly increase."

On behalf of the club, President Philip F. Chapman presented Dr. Whittier with a gold stop-watch as a token of its esteem.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:
Dear Sir:

As a member of the Bowdoin College football squad I wish to protest against certain remarks which have been made by some of the alumni, student body, and others interested, concerning the Bates game of last Saturday. There seems to be a desire on the part of these aforementioned people to place the blame for our defeat on Fred Ostergren, our splendid coach.

Men of Bowdoin, no coach ever won a football game. In the final analysis, it is the eleven men on the playing field who are responsible for the outcome of the game. From a store of knowledge gained through great and varied experience, as player and coach, Fred has given us his all, out on Whittier Field this fall, to develop a winning team for Bowdoin.

My friends, this is what I'm driving at. We can not go out on the field and say, "We are Bowdoin, and therefore we are going to win," depending on ancient tradition and reputations of great teams that have gone before us. We pride ourselves on our famous old institution, on our reputation for fight and spirit, for sportsmanship and fair play. But we cannot, as I have said, run out on the field, look pretty, and expect to win on the strength of what we have done in the past.

Let us not be hypocrites, shifting the blame for our shortcomings on the shoulders of one who is all too willing to bear it, but rather let us recognize the true seat of the difficulty. Fellow students, we have a great Bowdoin spirit, but in that same spirit we must take care that there is no room for conceit or over-confidence. We have two games left on this season's schedule, so let's pull ourselves together, and having done so, I can promise you that we will have no reason to feel displeased with the results of these games. Finally, I want to say, and I have not the least doubt that I am voicing the sentiment of the whole squad, that every Bowdoin man, first, last, and always is for Fred V. Ostergren.

Very sincerely yours,
ROBERT T. PHILLIPS '24.

'20—William Woodside Curtis was married on Sept. 15th to Miss Ethel Whittlesey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Whittlesey, at New Haven, Conn. At home after Nov. 15th at 9 Sayles Ave., Saylesville, R. I.

Football Game

to have the ball hit the goal post and Ray was nailed on our twenty yard line. Then a beautiful pass from Kempton, who was in at quarter for Moulton, to E. Woodman covered the full twenty yards for Bates last score. Rutsky's goal failed. Phillips received the kick off and made a twenty yard run lead, but Bates intercepted Kempton, who was in at quarter for a long pass from Kempton to Rowe brought the ball to the six yard line where Bowdoin got the ball on downs and Phillips made three yards as the half ended.

The second half opened when Farrington ran back the kick-off twenty-five yards to the forty yard line. Several passes failed and Mal punted to the twenty-five yard line where Hildreth nailed Rutsky in his tracks. Bates was forced to kick and Mal soon returned it but Bates again punted and Mal received on the thirty-five yard line. Kohler made four yards and a pass netted four more. Frank made first down. Bates was penalized fifteen yards and Kohler and Blake made another first down through the line. Mal made six yards and Kohler made nine more through the line. It was Bowdoin's first down with goal to go. Farrington and Blake made three yards apiece, and Mal plunged through for a touchdown. Mal got the goal on an offside by Bates. Rutsky ran back the kickoff fifteen yards but Ray was stopped dead three successive times. Farrington received Rutsky's punt at about mid-field but he and Mal fell short of first down and Bates took the ball. Ray made eight yards but dropped two of them on the next play. After an exchange of punts, the quarter ended with the ball in mid-field.

Ray was stopped dead by Kohler but a pass from Moulton to Rowe and a plunge by Rutsky netted first down. Robinson tackled Ray five yards behind the line of scrimmage but another long pass almost made first down. Rutsky then tried for a goal but failed. Phillips went in for Kohler and failed to gain. Several futile attempts at passing forced Mal to punt. Woodman and Ray annexed ten yards and Ray dashed off twenty more around end to the ten yard line. Hepworth went in for Blake and since he saw that his team was not going to make first down he sent in Kempton but the little quarter failed to make a field goal. Bowdoin's first down. A long pass from Farrington to Charley Hildreth advanced us twenty-five yards and Morrell and Hepworth made first down. A fifteen and a five yard penalty for Bates brought the White to the twenty yard line but a stone wall, a fumble and an incomplete pass gave Bates the ball but was soon forced to punt to Phillips who was stopped on the forty yard line. Vaux went in for Horace Hildreth who was hurt. Ray intercepted a pass and after a few vain attempts to gain ground Rutsky punted to Phillips as the whistle blew.

Paul Blanchard To Speak On The Labor Movement

On Thursday evening at 7.15, Paul Blanchard of New York will give a lecture on "The College Man and The Labor Movement." Mr. Blanchard is brought to Bowdoin under the auspices of the Economics Club and the Economics Department and should prove to be of both interest and value to the students of the college who are interested in the labor situation of this country at the present time. Mr. Blanchard is secretary of the League of Industrial Democracy and has therefore been in close touch with the situation. Just where the lecture will be given has not as yet been announced, but will be posted as soon as it is finally decided.

Bowdoin Finishes Third In State Cross Country

Maine Wins With 31 Points; Bates Second With 53; Bowdoin 58, Colby 84—Foster Fifth, Plaisted Sixth

Maine won the state inter-collegiate cross country race at Waterville with thirty-one points while Bates barely nosed out the Bowdoin harriers taking fifty-three points to our fifty-eight. Colby finished in the ruck with a total of eighty-four points although the captain of the Waterville team was the first to finish. It was a fast race over a difficult five and a half mile course, and Captain Payne of Colby lowered the course record, held by Barker of Bates, intercollegiate two mile champion, by twelve seconds, finishing in thirty-two minutes, twenty-five and two-fifths seconds.

Hillman and Raymond of Maine finished second and third respectively, and Captain McGinley of Bates beat out Bob Foster for fourth position. Captain Frank Plaisted followed Bob to the tape a few yards behind. Other Bowdoin men to score were Howes, twelfth; Small, seventeenth, and Eastman, nineteenth. Ham, a freshman, finished twenty-first just failing to score.

All of the Bowdoin team were in good condition at the finish, which showed how carefully they had been trained, because the race grid was too much for many of the starters and a few collapsed. This is the seventh victory for Maine while Bates has three to its credit. Bowdoin and Colby have yet to register a victory.

The summary:

- 1—Payne, Colby.
- 2—Hillman, Maine.
- 3—Raymond, Maine.
- 4—McGinley, Bates.
- 5—Foster, Bowdoin.
- 6—Plaisted, Bowdoin.

Maine Rally

A meeting of all the student body, who had the college spirit to turn out, was held in Memorial Hall last Friday evening. There was only a small percentage of the college present, far less than there should have been before such an important game as that with Maine.

Miguel gave a short talk expressing the need for a stimulation of college spirit and gave the afternoon's gathering at the station as an example. Professor Cushing gave a short talk on the necessity for an exhibition of spirit at the Maine game. He gave as a slogan for Bowdoin: "The college that won't be beaten, can't be beaten." After Professor Cushing's speech there was cheering and Harry Keane's new song, "Fight on Bowdoin!" was sung with the assistance of the band and the leadership of the author.

"Spike" McCormick was the next speaker. He began his speech in his usual humorous vein but soon grew serious in the discussion of Bowdoin spirit. He commented on the small number of students present at the station in the afternoon and at the rally in the evening. "Is college spirit at Bowdoin dying out?" was the question which Mr. McCormick put to the students. He spoke of the courage and fight of the members of the team and implied that the least that the college as a whole could do was to back them up and make them feel that they were being supported. He concluded by saying that every one should be present at the Maine game to show the team that Bowdoin was with them. After long applause following "Spike's" speech, Bowdoin Beta was sung and there was a little cheering practice.

Hill '27 Victorious In Fall Tennis Tournament

Tolman '27, Runner-Up, Defeated By Hill '27, 7-5, 6-1, 7-5

Last week the Fall Singles Tennis Tournament was completed with Hill '27 victorious over Tolman '27 in the finals match by the score of 7-5, 6-1, 7-5. Previous to his victory in the finals, Hill had defeated Reed '27, Nichols '25 by default, Spear '25. Tolman had won over Charles '25, Mitchell '25, Penneck '27, and Farnham '27. The fact that an unusually large percentage of the men in the last few rounds of the tournament were freshmen show that there will be a large amount of material out for the varsity in the spring. Three of the four men in the semi-finals matches were first-year men.

With but few exceptions the third and fourth round matches, the semi-finals, and finals were closely contested and brought to light material which should make a good foundation for building future teams. The meet was a success in every way, with more than sixty men competing. The one great need of the college for carrying on such meets is more and better courts. It is to be hoped that the college will attempt to remedy this situation in some way as soon as possible. Not only is the need of more courts felt in these intermural contests, but it is a vital handicap in intercollegiate tournaments in the spring.

The results of the matches which have not as yet been printed in the Orient are as follows:

Fourth Round

- Tolman '27 defeated Penneck '27, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.
- Farnham '27 defeated Chamberlain '24, 6-0, 6-0.
- Spear '25 defeated Wood '27, by default.
- Hill '27 defeated Withey '25, 8-6, 7-5.

Semi-Final Matches

- Tolman defeated Farnham, 6-2, 6-3.
- Hill defeated Spear, 6-3, 6-3.

Final Match

- Hill '27 defeated Tolman '27, 7-5, 6-1, 7-5.

Coming Game With Tufts Promises Hard Contest

Harvard Defeats Medford Team 16-0 in Tufts' First Defeat of Season

Bowdoin for the first time this year came out of the game without any injuries. The team has started a hard week's work in preparation for the Tufts contest to be held next Saturday at Medford, Mass. This game will mean a great deal to Bowdoin as Tufts held Harvard to a score of 16 to 0. It is a great deal of credit to Tufts as Harvard appeared much stronger in this game than in any of the previous ones.

The outstanding players of Tufts' team were Etelman, the diminutive quarterback, and French on the offensive with Chandonnet featuring on the defensive. These men will bear watching in the coming game. It will be remembered that French was responsible for the victory over Middlebury when he received a forward pass and ran 45 yards for a touchdown.

By the showing that Bowdoin put up in the Maine game, especially in the second half, a great battle will be given the fans who travel to see the White in action for the last time this year.

For two years in succession, Bowdoin has beaten Tufts in Portland. In the fall of 1921, it was an easy victory for a great White team which completed an undefeated season. The game ended with the score 20 to 0, and with a team of second string men on the field. Last year the game was the scene of a battle that will never be forgotten by those who saw it. With the score 13 to 0 at the end of the first half, the Bowdoin team came back, fighting with all it had in the last half and turned what looked to be almost certain defeat into a brilliant victory by scoring fourteen points.

This year it will be a harder battle than ever. Tufts has won five straight victories and lost to Harvard only. The team is a well-balanced, fighting organization which can make any opponent show its best. It will be a hard battle this Saturday with both teams giving all they have—Tufts to make up for the past defeats, and Bowdoin to maintain the line of victories.

MacMillan Radio Message Picked Up In Topsham

Explorer Announces From "The Bowdoin" That "All Is Well"

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hamilton of Topsham were fortunate at an early hour Thursday morning to pick up Donald MacMillan's weekly message to the world from the Arctic region. The message was picked up from 1 to 1.15 that morning and was clearly heard and fairly loud, but there was a slight static and code interference.

Captain MacMillan desires a denial of the report that the Bowdoin was or has been in great danger from jamming by ice floes. The explorer says "All Well." Gives menu for celebrating birthday anniversary of one of the party. The Esquimaux is immensely surprised at the radio and nearly went wild on hearing voices from civilization.

The message follows:

Radio Station WNP
From "The Bowdoin."

"Have finished the shooting of bear for winter skins. Have plenty of sheep skins. Are shooting some elder duck. We are celebrating birthday anniversary of (the name could not be heard owing to interruption), tomorrow, when menu will be seal meat and ice cream. Our visitors, an Esquimaux and his wife have gone South, expect huge influx of visitors in next November moon. Deny report that the Bowdoin was or has been in great danger from jamming by ice floes. All well. We are receiving messages sent us every week. The Esquimaux are immensely surprised at radio and nearly went wild to hear voices from civilization. This expedition is the only one that has been so far North and able to keep in touch with civilization."

Signed,
DONALD B. MACMILLAN."

State Series Standing

With only one remaining game in the State series, the Colby-Bates game, scheduled to be played on November 12, the series is complete as far as Bowdoin is concerned. The one remaining game will determine the positions of the three other colleges in the series, while Bowdoin must be satisfied with the cellar position this year. If Colby is successful in defeating Bates, she will clinch the title with an average of 1,000, having defeated Maine and tied Bowdoin. If this happens the colleges will finish in the following order: Colby, Maine, Bates, Bowdoin. If, however, Bates is the winner, the situation will be entirely changed. Maine and Bates would be tied for the championship, each having won two games and lost one. Colby would be forced into third position, and the colleges would stand Bates and Maine tied for first, Colby, Bowdoin.

At present Colby is at the top of the list, but whether she can stay there is a matter of much conjecture. The standing is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Tied	Average
Colby	1	0	1	1.000
Maine	2	1	0	.667
Bates	1	1	0	.500
Bowdoin	0	2	1	.000

Physical Training Schedule

The winter schedule for physical training which starts Dec. 3rd has been announced by physical director Roland Cobb, and is as follows:

Seniors: Tuesdays and Thursdays, 4.30-5.30.

Juniors: Tuesdays and Thursdays, 4.30-5.30; Fridays, 3.30-4.30.

Sophomores: Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 4.30-5.30.

Freshmen: Mondays and Fridays, 2.30-3.30; Tuesdays, 3.30-4.30.

Instructors: Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, 3.30-4.30. This course is for the three upper classes only. Men who expect to teach or who are interested in a course in advanced gymnastics should see the physical instructor for admission, before the opening of the winter season, Dec. 3rd. Any men having conflicts should see the physical instructor at once.

Paul Blanchard Speaks On Labor And College Man

Paul Blanchard, field secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy, speaking last Thursday evening in Adams Hall under the auspices of the Economics Club, presented a platform upon which labor and the college men might agree.

College men, who as a rule are from the capitalist class, can agree with organized labor on the right of collective bargaining. The industrial court where both organized capital and organized labor hire an impartial chairman who hears the arguments of both sides and renders a binding decision, has been working for eleven years in the Rochester and Chicago clothing industries. The second point on which labor and the college man can agree is the eight hour day for women and children which has now become a recognized thing. The third point which Mr. Blanchard made in his platform was the abolition of injunctions in strikes. The injunction he characterized as a vicious and unjust tool of the capitalist. The last plank dealt with the closing of the gap between rich and poor.

Mr. Blanchard expressed himself as in favor of the closed shop principle and as opposed to the check-off system. Absentee ownership was characterized as far different from the old relationship between employer and employee. The public, and college men in particular, demands that labor as well as capital shall keep its agreements. We demand that both sides arbitrate; we demand no unnecessary strikes; and we demand that neither labor nor capital shall dodge an honest day's work. The laborer who shirks, Mr. Blanchard said, does it because he sees the capitalist doing it.

Mr. Blanchard is a charming and interesting speaker despite his radical tendencies. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and has studied at Columbia and Harvard. He wears a Phi Beta Kappa key. The League for Industrial Democracy, which he represents, is a national organization committed to a program of "education for the new social order based on production for use and not for profit." It was formed by college alumni. Its officers are largely college men who have had labor experience.

This meeting is the first of a series of similar nature which will be conducted by the Economics Club. Each will be followed by a forum.

Last Saturday, before a crowd of about six thousand, and on an ideal day, the powerful Maine eleven beat the lighter Bowdoin team 28-6 at Orono. The up state team got the jump at the first and gained a lead that the heroic attempts of the White could not overcome. Almost at the first, Lunge, the Maine left tackle broke through and blocked Garland's punt and the Bowdoin star could not recover the ball till it was over his own goal line. Then a series of line plunges brought the Blue to our twenty-five yard line, and a long pass from Merritt to Small put the ball over and the goal failed. Maine again received the kick-off and consistent but not spectacular gains by the whole University back field coupled with another long pass brought the pig-skin to the four-yard line. It took the Maine team all four downs, however, to push over another touchdown, for Garland then sent a long kick to Taylor who made a beautiful run back and started Maine on another slashing offensive, and Small and Blair gained consistently until the Blue sent another one of those passes to Merritt who was stopped on our twenty yard line and a couple of plunges by Gruhn gave him his second and Maine its third touchdown. Blair kicked the goal. Maine kicked off to Farrington this time but after making one first down, Capt. Small of the Orono team interrupted one of Mal's passes on our forty-five yard line, Maine again started a march down the field but the plucky White line refused to allow the severest of the Maine plunges to penetrate beyond its three-yard line and again when the Blue tried to score the Bowdoin team held on the fifteen yard line. Maine again got that far but the whistle blew as the half ended. The second half was a different story, altho it started with a Maine onslaught resulting in a touchdown by Gruhn and a goal by Blair. Bob Phillips then received Small's kick and ran it back fifteen-yards and Mal punted. The White then gained, the ball on downs fifty-seven yards from the goal line. Giving its very best and showing undying spirit, Bowdoin began its first great offensive. Time and time again, Joe Garland, despite his injuries, ripped through the heavy Maine team and with the help of Frank Farrington finally pushed the ball over in the first play of the last period, Joe himself made over forty of these fifty-seven yards. Mal's try for the extra point was blocked. Joe then kicked off to Maine and the fighting White gained the ball on downs on its forty-five yard line and started a drive, with Garland leading, only to be stopped by a fumble on the five-yard line. From then on, it was mostly exchange of punts with each team making a few first downs. Outplayed thirteen to two on first downs, the invincible Bowdoin spirit gave us an advantage ten to nine in the last half.

The Game

Small kicked-off over the goal line and it was Bowdoin's first down on the twenty-yard line and Joe Garland kicked to Maine's forty-yard line. After failing to make much gain, Small punted to Mal who was stopped on his twenty-yard line and when Joe tried to kick Lunge broke through and blocked it. As it rolled over the goal line Garland fell on it but Maine had scored a safety. Maine 2-Bowdoin 0. It was Bowdoin's ball on the twenty-yard line and after failing to gain Joe again kicked to Maine's forty-yard line. Blair made six yards and in two more rushes Small annexed twenty-two more and placed the ball on our thirty yard line and after a few futile attempts to gain

The Chimes.

The College has reason to be proud of the numerous additions to her campus during the past year. A memorial gateway of remarkable beauty; a bulletin board which, in replacing the old unsightly litter on the Chapel door, lends a harmonious touch in the utilitarian arrangement of things collegian; these are visible tokens of the affection of our alumni for the College. And to these beauties of sight which greeted us as we returned to college in the fall must now be added a newer beauty still—this one of sound.

Through the magnificence of two members of an old Bowdoin family, the Paysons, the college now enjoys a musical distinction which enhances its already well established reputation as a leader for the finer things of life. It is most appropriate that a memorial to the Paysons and Martins who have been connected with Bowdoin since its inception should take the form of chimes.

Ancient in its origin, the music of chimes has played an important part in the history of music. In the old world, in monastery, cathedral, and college, the sweet-toned chimes have worked their way into the hearts and lives of the people, affording them a musical tradition rich in its dignity. A few weeks have sufficed to make the Bowdoin chimes a real part of the life of the college. Early each morning they send out their summons for the chapel service, and at intervals of some days extended concerts furnish a source of pleasure to all the inhabitants of the community.

Around the chimes will grow a lasting tradition, a tradition which should have a larger part in forming the characters of Bowdoin men in the college generations to come. The inspiration of their music will be one of the great things which the alumnus will remember of his undergraduate days. Eternal as true friendship, and as strong as its impression, the music of the Bowdoin chimes has begun its long career of inspiration to Bowdoin men.

Red Cross Roll Call Starts November 11-29

There is probably no word harder worked in the colleges and universities today than "vision." And it is because of this quest of vision that students are thinking with a clarity, a degree of penetration, an inclusiveness, and an earnestness of purpose which did not characterize preceding generations. Underneath a certain surface lightness engendered by the healthful give-and-take of present day campus life, there is developing a fibre which will stand the test of the epoch upon which the world is entering.

The Red Cross, national and international, recognizes the fact that in the American colleges and universities of today is to be found its leadership for tomorrow, in a work which perhaps more than any other is interpreting to the world at large the full scope and meaning of the ideal of the Brotherhood of Man. Consequently it voices at this time an appeal to the students of America, not only for support in the oncoming Red Cross Roll Call, November 11-29, but for serious constructive study of the work and methods of the Organization, looking toward the day when they will assume their rightful positions of community, state and national leadership.

The demands of the time are increasingly complex, and the future is heavily charged with forces which as yet defy analysis. It is not by chance that you have come to your high place in life. We believe it is for a purpose, and that without the best each one can do in service to his fellowmen, all life must be poorer in the end.

Will you not therefore, stand with the unconquerable will of a Sidney Lanier to the ideal of service? Through years of poverty which he could have changed by sacrifice of his ideals, and through a greater number of years of illness from tuberculosis which he had not the power to change, the beloved poet of the Southland struggled on, until with a temperament of 104, and while too weak to feed himself, he penciled his last and greatest poem, "Sunrise," afraid that he would die ere the completion of his task.

"Knowledge we ask not—knowledge Thou has lent!"

But Lord, the will—there lies our bitter need; Give us to build above a deep intent, The deed, the deed!"

Harvard Business School Midyear Entrance Plan

Of distinct interest to seniors who are graduating at Midyears is the announcement of a Midyear Entrance Plan just made by the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

For two years a few men have been permitted to enter in February. As a result of the experience with these students, the school is now prepared to offer the same courses of study that are available to those entering in September.

The program of work has been so adjusted that students entering at that time will be able to complete the regular work for the degree of Master of Business Administration in the usual two years, graduating in February of the second year following their entrance.

During the past summer applications from 443 men for admission to the School in September were received. From this number only 332 could be finally accepted and enrolled. A comparison with corresponding figures for last year of 302 applications received and 247 men admitted, shows the growing demand for the training given by the school.

It was in order to meet this increasing demand for admission to its courses that the recent announcement was made.

It is expected that this opportunity will prove attractive to those men desirous of entering the school who will have completed the requirements for their college degree at Midyear and who would, therefore, under the more usual program, lose at least five months before beginning their professional career. It should also be of interest to those men who, having graduated in June and gone into business, have found their training inadequate for an effective grasp of business conditions.

The following men from Bowdoin College are among the successful applicants now registered in the school: Second year men: Cobb, R. W.; Eldridge, D. S.

First year men: Bishop, H. P.; Miller, N. F.; Philbrick, K. R.; Wetherell, J. H.

Sunday Chapel

"O That Israel Might Live Before Thee" Text of Rev. Ashby's Address

The Reverend T. E. Ashby, pastor of the First Congregational Church, conducted the chapel services last Sunday. His text was taken from the book of Genesis, "O that Israel might live before thee."

He appealed to college men to be courageous in carrying out the ideal of their youth. It has been said that the college man is the most pessimistic man in the world. It is college men who have seen vision. World progress is the result of the realization of dreams. History has shown that the nation which risks itself for a cause is the better off. There are always perils when a man dedicates his life to the dreams of childhood. We should be courageous in so dedicating our lives.

He said that one should not content himself with things as they are in the world today but should strive to work out his ideals of progress and advancement of civilization, even though it cost him all his time and strength. If hundreds of great men had not given their lives for their convictions of right, civilization would not have reached the high plane which it has attained.

Dr. Charles Upson Clark Speaks On Rome And Italy

Last Thursday evening Dr. Charles Upson Clark, prominent in classical and diplomatic circles, and former professor at Yale, lectured in Hubbard Hall. The subject of his lecture was Rome, past and present and what it has meant to modern civilization.

In opening his lecture Dr. Clark spoke of his former visit to Bowdoin, when he lectured on Roumania. He then turned to the topic of what Rome has meant to our modern civilization. He spoke of the Roman Laws which still live as the basis of the laws of most Christian countries and have scarcely been improved upon throughout the centuries. He called attention to the importance of the Roman language in forming the foundation of all the Romance languages and the English to a large extent. Rome, according to Dr. Clark, is particularly interesting to the Christian nations because Rome was the cradle of Christianity in its early days and the seat of power of the only church for many hundreds of years. Dr. Clark spoke of his researches in the Ambrosian Library at Milan and, in connection with this, of his acquaintance with the present Pope, then the librarian there. This led to the subject of modern Rome and Italy. Dr. Clark described graphically how the Italian troops withstood the great German offensive. This spirit of bravery and perseverance against odds was, he felt, the true spirit of Rome, ancient and modern.

Dr. Clark next turned to his exhibition of lantern slides. This program was divided as follows: first, those slides dealing with the country around Rome; second, those illustrating the advancement of the ancient Roman civilization, and lastly those showing the city itself as it is today. Dr. Clark carefully explained each picture and enriched most of them by stories of his own life in Italy. These pictures and comments were extremely interesting to the classical student and to the audience in general. In concluding his lecture Dr. Clark again emphasized his feeling of the spirit of Rome: the constant struggle against all obstacles for the advancement of civilization.

Campus Notes

The freshman delegation of the Phi Delta Psi Fraternity gave a smoker for the members of the freshmen delegations of the other fraternities. Two delegates attended from each frat. The house was artistically decorated in blue, gold, and white. The visitors were presented with Halloween caps and tin snob pipes as souvenirs of the occasion. The evening was spent at card playing. Refreshments were served at ten o'clock and the company dispersed.

Last Friday night and Saturday the boy scouts of Cumberland County held a get-together at Brunswick, or rather on the Bowdoin campus. Three or four hundred boys were present, the College having offered all its facilities to them. They arrived Friday evening and camped on the track floor in the Hyde Athletic Building. Saturday their events were held on Whittier field, and they were conducted through the College buildings. Professor Noel C. Little, a former scoutmaster, represented the College.

Friday, November 9, before the Tufts game, the Bowdoin club of Boston will give a dinner in honor of the football team, at which Coach Ostergren will speak.

Saturday morning, November 10, the Bowdoin alumni council will meet in Boston.

Alumni Notes

1916—Major William D. Ireland of Portland has been promoted to lieutenant colonel. Colonel Ireland, who has been in command of the 386th Infantry, 97th Division Organized Reserves, with headquarters in Bangor, will be transferred to the 303rd Infantry, 97th Division, with headquarters in Lewiston, and will be second in command to Colonel Henry G. Beyer.

Colonel Ireland married Miss Mary Elliott, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert M. Elliott. He is the manager of the Portland office of Richardson, Hill & Co.

Col. Ireland has an enviable military record, serving throughout the World War with the 103rd Regiment, 26th Division, the old 2nd Maine, and taking part in many major operations participated in by the crack Maine regiment. Marked ability as an officer won recognition for Col. Ireland and he was promoted from private to a major in less than two years.

At the beginning of the participation of the United States in the World War Col. Ireland was a sergeant in the Ordnance Department, Maine National Guard. When the 2nd Maine was called to the Colors Sgt. Ireland transferred to the Machine Gun Company of Bangor as a private and on April 28th, 1917, was commissioned a second lieutenant. He was made a first lieutenant in January, 1918, a captain in June, 1918, and a major in February, 1919.

son. Joe and Mal made six yards but through the Bowdoin line a lateral pass from Merritt to Small resulted in the first touchdown. Small's try for the extra point failed. Maine 8, Bowdoin 0. Garland kicked to Taylor who was stopped on his thirty-five yard line. Blair and Small just failed to make first down but a Bowdoin off-side gave it to them. Gruhn made two yards and Small and Merritt covered the required distance. Blair made nine yards in three tries on alternate line-backs and end runs and Gruhn made first down on the thirty yard line. On the next play Blake broke through and nailed Small in his tracks but a pass from the Maine Captain to Newhall then brought the ball to our four-yard line. Gruhn could only make three yards in the next two plays while Merritt failed to gain at all through the White stone-wall. Gruhn, however, just barely got the ball through for a score but Small failed in his try for a goal. Maine 14-Bowdoin 0.

Garland kicked off to Taylor again who was stopped on his thirty yard line. Blair made two yards and Lancaster, a stalky freshman, went in for Townsend. Small then made six yards and Blair made twelve to center.

Field and Small went to the thirty-eight yard line. Vaux went in for Blake who took Garland's place when the latter was hurt. Small ran outside and Blair was nailed but then threw a pass to Merritt who made first down on the twenty-yard line.

Second Period

Blair and Small made eight yards. Gruhn then made four yards and another first down and then scored again and Blair kicked the goal. Maine 21-Bowdoin 0. Small kicked to Farrington on the twenty yard line and Mal's pass was blocked. Blake made three yards and a Maine off-side gave Bowdoin first down. Frank made two yards but Morrell's pass was interrupted by Small on the Bowdoin forty-five yard line. Small's pass failed and Cutts went in for Merritt. Blair made twenty yards through center. Gruhn and Small made twelve yards and first down on the eight yard line. Blair made three more and Campbell went in for Jackson.

The next play was speared and Gruhn was held by the impenetrable Bowdoin line and it was the White's first down on the three yard line. Horseman went in for Taylor and to the forty yard line Cutts and Blair Repscha for Gruhn. After Mal's punt made nine yards and Blair made first down. Fowles went in for Smith and nailed Cutts on the next play and Blair failed to gain. Ward for Cutts. Two lateral passes failed and it was Bowdoin's ball on the fifteen yard line. Jordan for Blair and Dwelley for Fraser. Frank made four yards and Mal kicked to Blair on the forty yard line. Jordan and Repscha made six yards and Burnett went in for Lancaster. Small made first down. Bowdoin was off-side giving the Blue first down on the twenty yard line as Savage went in for Littlefield and Reiche for Gentile. Small made two yards as the half ended with the ball on our fifteen yard line.

Third Period

Small kicked to Bob Phillips who made twenty yards to the twenty-five yard line. Farrington lost a yard and Phillips made three and Blake made ten through center but a pass was blocked and the next one intercepted by Gruhn on the fifty yard line. Small to Newhall netted twenty yards and the Maine captain made five yards while a cross buck by Blair went to the four yard line. Gruhn then plowed through for a touchdown while Blair made Maine's final score. Maine 28, Bowdoin 0.

Small kicked to Bob Phillips who ran fifteen yards to the twenty-two yard line. Mal and Frank failed to gain sufficient ground and the White captain kicked to the Maine thirty-five yard line. Blair and Small made first down but Bowdoin then took the ball on downs on the Maine forty-three yard line. Garland went in for Phillips and Savage for Littlefield and Frank made four yards. Garland and Farrington made first down. Frank then made seven yards while a short pass from Mal to Blake made first down. Joe made fourteen yards but was called back five for crawling. Mal and Frank made three yards.

Fourth Period

Campbell went in for Savage. Joe then tore through for almost twenty yards and a touchdown. Bowdoin's only score since Fraser blocked Mal's kick. Maine 28, Bowdoin 6.

Garland kicked to Blair who was stopped on the thirty-two yard line. Blair and Gruhn made first down but failed to do it again and Small kicked to the Bowdoin forty-five yard line. Joe made eleven yards and Farrington and Blake made six more. Garland then made first down twice in succession. Mal and Frank made first again on the ten yard line. Cronin went in for Blake and Elliott for Jack-then there was a fumble and it was Maine's ball on her four yard line.

A punt by Maine and a blocked pass by Small gave the Blue the ball on the twenty yard line. Small again kicked and after breaking up several Bowdoin passes the Maine team took the ball on downs. Repscha went in for Gruhn and Cutts for Merritt. A series of plunges by Repscha and Small brought the ball to out fifteen yard line as the final whistle blew.

Of Joe Garland the Portland Sunday Telegram said, "It was a case of a shifty, fighting, line plunger and plucky back, Joe Garland, who by reason of his playing under strain of pain, injured, worn out, yet fighting, inspired his team-mates to die game but fighting."

WILLIAM KONRAD ROENTGEN

1845-1923
Born in Lennep, Prussia. Educated at Zurich. Awarded the Rumford Medal of the Royal Society in 1896 jointly with Philip Lenard for discovery of X-rays. Won the Nobel Prize in physics in 1901.

"I did not think—I investigated"

One day in 1895, Roentgen noticed that a cardboard coated with fluorescent material glowed while a nearby Pluecker tube was in action. "What did you think?" an English scientist asked him. "I did not think; I investigated," was the reply.

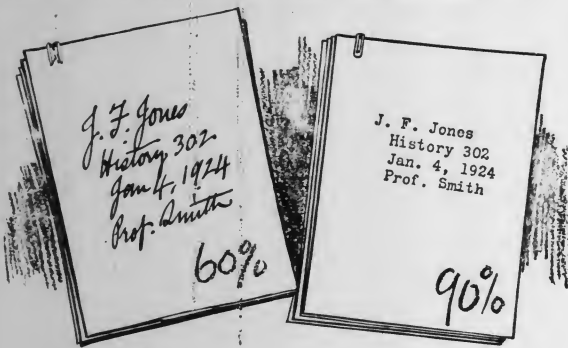

Roentgen covered the tube with black paper. Still the cardboard glowed. He took photographs through a pine door and discovered on them a white band corresponding to the lead beading on the door. His investigation led to the discovery of X-rays.

Roentgen's rays have proved an inestimable boon to humanity. In the hands of doctor and surgeon they are saving life and reducing suffering. In the hands of the scientist they are yielding new knowledge—even of the arrangement and structure of atoms. The Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company have contributed greatly to these ends by developing more powerful and efficacious X-ray tubes.

The General Electric Company manufactures everything electric—from fans to powerful locomotives, from tiny lamps to mighty power plants. Its products are used around the world.

—Boston University Triumphs Over
Colby 18-7The scores show that the scales tip greatly in favor of Bates. The Garnet defeated Trinity 7-0 while Colby lost to Boston University 18-7. The breaks of the game between Colby and B. U. were many, and perhaps, did not give Colby an even chance. The first touchdown was scored over the second team, and when Colby's veterans did get into the game, they showed woefully, the reaction of their victory over Maine.
Coach Greene was evidently saving his best men for the Bates game so it is safe to conclude that Colby will put up a wonderful fight against Bates, possibly a winning one.Both the Bates and Colby games last Saturday were marked by their lack of thrills. While Bates won her game, she lost her best backfield man, Charlie Ray, the colored halfback, who played such a large part in the Bow-doin game. He was carried off the field with a badly sprained ankle, early in the second half. Neither team seems to have developed a forward passing game. Bates attempted 14 passes and completed four. Colby made several successful passes in the third quarter but failed to gain much ground by them. Even with Ray gone, Rutsky, Woodman, and Kempton should put up a strong fight for the Garnet. All things being considered the game is bound to be a close one and the victory is very apt to follow the way the game breaks.Faculty NotesAt the annual convention of the President Sills Speaks At Armistice Day Service

Honor Roll of World War Read—President Urges More Faith in Country and Leaders

The annual Armistice Day chapel service was held last Sunday afternoon. The services were opened by the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner." President Sills read the list of those alumni who had made the supreme sacrifice during the World War and then he made the chapel address. He took, as a text, a portion of the forty-fourth chapter of Ecclesiastes. In opening, he mentioned the fact that nearly every nation has adopted the custom of setting aside certain days, in which the people, even in the midst of festivities, may be reminded of some great event. The interesting thing about Armistice Day, however, is that it is the only day which is internationally celebrated. This is indicative of the fact that, as time goes on, we must withdraw more and more from national isolation.

Five years ago, we were overjoyed at the thought that the war was over, and that the boys were coming home, that we almost believed that peace and prosperity were restored to us at a single coup. Time has shown us, however, that it is as easy to carry on war as to establish that happy state of affairs. Many mistakes were made in establishing peace. Indeed it almost seems as if to make a lasting peace among men and nations were impossible. In regard to re-establishing prosperity, it is a naturally slow process, and this slowness has caused, among the people of the world, much cynicism. This is expressed by many by intimation that the nations of the world always have had their first and last interests at home and that they pay no attention to the rest of mankind. It is the plain duty of every intelligent and patriotic man to protest these statements.

Many people say that they have heard too much idealism in the last few years, but President Sills asks us to consider the situation from a point of view of individual decency. No decent man goes through life considering only himself. He likes to build up a spirit of good fellowship among his neighbors. "We in this country," said Mr. Sills, "have not followed the steadfast resolution of Washington or the sublime faith of Lincoln." There has been a marked decrease in our faith in our country and its leaders. A day like this recalls us to our better selves. It commends us to the support of such things as the Red Cross and the Cancellation of Allied Debts. We should cooperate wholeheartedly with the other nations for the betterment of the world and pray that something of the character of Abraham Lincoln descend upon us. Lincoln even believed that the Civil War was the will of God. "He who made the world still protects it," he said. "That," said President Sills, "should be the spirit of Armistice Day."

Tillotson Recital Held In Memorial Hall Thursday

A musical recital was given in Memorial Hall last Thursday evening by Frederic Tillotson, pianist, assisted by Mary Jacobs, contralto, and Mrs. Burnett, cellist. Mr. Tillotson is one of America's foremost pianists and, although only twenty-seven years old, his fame is widely known. Bowdoin men should appreciate the opportunity offered them by having the chance to hear so prominent a musician. The vocal selections were worthy of the greatest appreciation and the audience enjoyed especially those with the cello obligato. There were a large number of students, professors and townspeople present.

The program was briefly as follows:
Rhapsodie No. 4, E flat Brahms
Ballade, G minor Grieg
Mr. Tillotson

The Water Lily Grieg
At Night Rachmaninoff
Allah Chadwick
Of all the Airs Loud
More Like a Lantern Kramer

Miss Jacobs

Cello Obligato, Mrs. Burnett
Etude de Concert, F minor Liszt
Nocturne, C minor, Op. 48, No. 1 Chopin
Scherzo, C sharp minor Chopin
Mr. Tillotson

The recital was financed and presented by the Mozart Club in cooperation with the musical department of the college.

Red Cross Membership Campaign Held Nov. 13-14

The Red Cross membership campaign for the College was conducted on Tuesday and Wednesday. Rouillard '24, chairman of the committee appointed treasurers for each fraternity. Fraternity standings will be printed in the Orient next week. The following are the house treasurers:

Boston Chamber Music Concert In Memorial Hall

On Monday evening, November 12, the Boston Chamber Music Club gave a concert in Memorial Hall under the joint auspices of the Saturday Club of Brunswick and the Bowdoin College Music Department. This group consists of six men from the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Daniel Kuntz, viz., Julius Theodorowicz, first violin of the Symphony Orchestra; George Miquelle, cello; Henri Girard, bass; G. Bladet, flute; Louis Speyer, oboe; and Herbert Ringwall, piano.

The varied and interesting program which they offered was appreciated by a large audience of town people and college men. The committee in charge of the engagement was very fortunate in being able to arrange to have Mr. Theodorowicz give two solos. The concert stimulated a great deal of interest both in the college and in the town.

The program follows:

1. Petite Suite Coleridge-Taylor
2. Waltzes Brahms
3. Invitation to the Dance Weber
4. Violin Solos
Spanish Dance, No. 8 Sarasate
Valse Tschaiowsky
Mr. Theodorowicz
5. Pastel minuet Paradis

Rondo Capriccioso Mendelssohn
7. Selection—Lohengrin Wagner

State Series Retrospect

The results of all the football games that have been played between Bowdoin and the other three colleges of the state are printed below for convenient reference. A study of these records reveals the following facts:

With the other three colleges Bowdoin has won 48 games, lost 35, tied 10. With Bates, Bowdoin has won 18, lost 9, tied 2. With Colby, Bowdoin has won 18 games, lost 12, tied 5. With the University of Maine, Bowdoin has won 12 games, lost 13, tied 3. The aggregate point scoring is as follows:

Bowdoin 345, Bates 164.
Bowdoin 490, Colby 266.
Bowdoin 260, Maine 272.
Bowdoin 1035, Opponents 702.

Athletic Council Meeting Discusses Many Problems

Bradeen '26 Elected Manager of Track
—Cobb '26 and Thompson '26,
Assistant Managers—Hockey
Budget Approved

The Athletic Council held an important meeting last Thursday afternoon. The most pressing matter was to solve the problem of the track department. C. C. Adams, the manager, felt obliged to resign and the Council accepted his resignation with great regret. It was agreed that some system must be devised whereby there will be two assistant managers of track. This will be submitted to the student body by referendum later. The best proposal made was that in the annual election of a track manager, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes should be manager of Track, the second highest to be manager of Cross-country.

The Council exercised its right of appointment by appointing as manager Charles S. Bradeen '26, the assistant manager, and by appointing as assistant managers two former candidates, Nathan A. Cobb '26 and Porter Thompson '26.

Roland H. Cobb '17 was elected assistant graduate manager. The graduate manager and the assistant were authorized to establish at once a central supply office for all sports, for the purchase and issue of athletic supplies.

Prof. Cushing was requested to prepare a uniform accounting system for all sports and to submit it to the Council at a later meeting.

The hockey budget was approved, contingent on an increase of the A. S. B. C. appropriation for that sport.

A baseball game with the New York Athletic Club on April 3, 1924 was approved.

Alumni Council Meeting

The fall meeting of the Alumni Council was held Saturday morning in Boston at the office of Ripley L. Dana '01. The members present were President Frank H. Swan '98, of Providence, Roy L. Marston '99 and Sherman N. Shumway '17, of Skowhegan, Philip G. Clifford '03 and William D. Ireland '16 of Portland, Ripley L. Dana '01 and Felix A. Burton '07 of Boston, and Austin H. McCormick '15, alumni secretary.

Particular interest was shown in the report of the committee on undergraduate activities, of which Col. Shumway is chairman. There was also interesting discussion of how alumni associations can stimulate interest in the College so that any limitations project adopted may be based on a large number of eligible candidates.

The football team closed its season last Saturday with a glorious victory over its old rival, Tufts. Out-played and out-pointed in the first half, the White re-entered the game with a determination that was invincible. Soon after half began, Frank Farrington hauled down one of Mal Morrell's passes and dashed sixty yards through the whole Tufts defense for the winning score of the day. Once again during the last half did the Bowdoin team show its metal by reaching the Medford aggregation's twenty yard line only to have a drop kick by Bob Phillips fail by inches.

During the first half, the Jumbos clearly out-did our best efforts, registering six first downs while Bowdoin failed to cover sufficient ground at any time, and completing four out of six attempts at forward passes while our aerial game was a failure.

The second half, however, told a different story. We had a decided edge in all departments of the game. For instance, out of thirteen attempts at passes, twelve were futile for the Medfordites.

There was a large Bowdoin cheering section on hand, comprised of fellows who made the trip and of alumni and enthusiasts around Boston, and they made enough noise to keep the oval echoing with cheer for the White.

The Game

Mal received the kick-off on the seven yard line and punted to the forty. Etelman made first down on two line plunges and added five more. Bowdoin then yielded five yards, for being off-side. Bowdoin held Tufts for downs on the next few plays and the Greater Boston team received the ball again on the forty yard line. Aided by two successful passes and another Bowdoin off side, Tufts made first down on our twenty-five yard line and Chandonnet was nailed for a loss as the period ended.

Second Period

Joe Garland intercepted a pass and on the next play made five more. Then the White punted to the twenty-two yard line. Tufts lost five yards on an off side and got nailed for more than ten more in the next two plays and was forced to punt. This was soon returned as McDonald went in for Hughes and Perry for Etelman. Tufts was nailed for repeated losses but finally Perry came to the rescue and through a series of forward passes by him to French and Cook the ball was brought to the twenty-five yard line from which he made the initial score by a beautiful drop kick. As the period ended Moels broke away for a twenty-five yard run but the whistle had blown.

Third Period

Frank received the kick off on the fifteen yard line and ran to the twenty-seven. A pass was incomplete and Joe Garland made three yards through center. Then a forward pass from Mal to Frank, who barely caught it in the midst of the Medford backfield, started the freshman flash on his spectacular sixty yard dash for a touchdown. Mal scored the extra point. After the kick off, Tufts was soon forced to punt. A pass from Mal to Frank netted four yards and Joe made eleven more on the next two rushes. But Tufts forced us to kick and Blake caught it on the fifteen yard line. An exchange of punts followed. Then Kohler opened another attack with a seven yard gain and Joe added twelve more. Tufts was penalized fifteen yards and it was our first down on the fifteen yard line. Bowdoin soon suffered the same penalty. Joe Garland was hurt and Phillips took his place. A forward pass failed to gain.

College Singing.

A rather marked increase in interest and performance in mass singing has been noticed in college this year. This improvement is indicative, we hope, of an implication on the part of the undergraduates that Bowdoin is to take its place in due season as a singing college. For many seasons the musical organizations on the campus have enjoyed a very favorable reputation throughout much of the Atlantic seaboard. This in itself is good and commendable, but it is not enough. Too often, in college as elsewhere, we are inclined to feel satisfied with the expression of our spirits through proxies.

For example, we seek amusement at the theatre and praise or condemn the performance as it expresses or fails to express our particular mood; we go to church for the purpose of worshipping God, but if we go at all thoughtfully we go to that church from whose pulpit we may expect to hear our sentiments propounded with a greater or less degree of accuracy, and we let the preacher do the propounding; we go to college, and all too many of us leave the expression of our spirit of scholastic enterprise to those who sit in the professional chairs—all these we do, generally speaking, but thanks to something or other there appears to be a real revival of the Bowdoin spirit that sets Bowdoin men singing their own songs with a lusty vigor that stirs the emotion, and furnishes the spark to motivate the great machine of imagination.

A singing college is a loyal college. It is a loyal college because it expands its lungs and cooperates in the expression of its ardor for all that the noble traditions of its life mean. It is a loyal college because it comprises a group of men who sing not because they vainly adore the harmonious strains of their own voices, but because they sing, whether talented or not, for love of the college. It is a loyal college because it sincerely and spontaneously sings the college songs for love of them in their faithful portrayal of the filial love to the well-loved mother of our scholastic lives.

Such a college, we happily believe, is Bowdoin. And of such loyal men is Bowdoin composed. They have shown it in the cheering section at Whittier Field, they have shown it at rallies and other student assemblies, they have shown it, in fact, wherever opportunity has offered, in the warm glow of victory or the dark chill of defeat.

The singing this fall has been real. It has held the elements of a splendid movement forward, and for its very success it must not be allowed to languish. It is the duty of every Bowdoin man to know and sing his college songs. It is his great good fortune to be able to sing them as a Bowdoin man, and to sing them with his whole enthusiasm. The opportunity is ours to grasp. If we want to make Bowdoin's fame ever greater, we have a worthy contribution really in our hand. Are we to withhold it through sheer indifference or are we to see to it that Bowdoin is henceforth known as a singing college?

Idler's Column

For some time the Orient has considered running a column which can publish matter of the sort usually found in such sections of college papers and in the daily press. Contributions mailed or handed in to the editor of the Orient by alumni or undergraduates will find their way to the column conductor. Light material will be welcomed, but contributors are not urged to send in the glad news that M. Balm is an undertaker in Woonoh, Oklahoma or that Robert Bacon and Minnie Egg have entered a matrimonial union in Swampy Village, Iowa. We consider this sort of thing screamingly funny, but it hardly seems fair to offer too much side-splitting stuff to the student body. That sort of humor has its proper place in the Bear Skin. The column will appear only from time to time. Campus affairs may be discussed, kindly, we hope, but frankly.

The football season came to a happy ending Saturday, when Tufts learned that lightning may strike three times in the same place. The season has been short on victories and long on spirit. Probably, after all, this is better than the other way about. The team seemed to feel after the Tufts game that they were beginning next season's schedule rather than finishing this year's.

The victory was particularly pleasing because the two freshman backs, Farrington and Kohler, came into their own. The former wrote his signature to his first Bowdoin season in clear, bold strokes, like the w. k. signature of J. Hancock. The latter showed the power that had been hoped for in him, both on the offence and defense. His driving tackles did a great deal to limit Mr. French's widely-advertised end runs.

Those two gallant warriors, Joe Garland and Charlie Hildreth, were borne home on their shields. They got, and deserved, crashing ovations from the Bowdoin stands.

By the way, the Bowdoin cheering and singing, executed by Boston alumni and friends and a fair number of undergraduates, were vastly better than Tufts' Carleton Nelson was there to lead, with Vic Whitman, a former cheer-leader, in reserve.

The Orient will review the season properly in a later issue.

The value of an athletics-for-all policy such as Williams has was shown by the fall activities. The interfraternity cross-country run uncovered Ham, a natural runner of great promise. The fall tennis tournament brought Donald M. Hill and several other freshman stars to the front. Hill, with his father, won the national father-and-son tourney two years ago. His father and younger brother did the same thing last year.

There were this year about half as many freshman major warnings as last year. What this indicates is beyond us. We do not dare hope that the present freshman class is that much better than last year's new men. It will be worth their while to set up a record which will convince the skeptics, many of whom are in the sophomore class.

While Bowdoin was winning von Ludendorff was losing. The new German monarchy seems to have fallen largely because the army went out for some beer. We forget whether the Whiskey Rebellion in our own history moved on similar lines. Probably not. We cannot blame the monarchist troops for storming a brewery. Democracy without beer may be possible; monarchy never. As we understand the short-lived German movement the von Ludendorff "putsch" lacked the necessary punch.

The monarchists instituted one worth-while innovation. The press reported that when meetings were held the chairman fired his revolver in the air for silence. This idea seems adaptable. Could more perfect silence be obtained at the opening of an art lecture by firing a shotgun? A proper choice of arms, from a pop-gun for Math. 7 to a French 75 for Senior Gym, should ensure speedy silence in any course.

Perhaps we should not have commented on international affairs in a student publication. But the campus intelligentsia must be pleased, and next week we will write something for the Andy Gump crowd. (Second thought: this is too caustic. After all, the War IS over, isn't it?)

What is more important, the press also reports that blondes are disappearing. That artificial blondes, whose beauty is bottled-in-bond, are vanishing is not a cause for national mourning. To believe that the bona fide blonde, whose hair has aged in the wood, is disappearing is a denial of the theory that the world is growing better.

But if the all-important homo prefers brunettes to blondes these days it is certain that the good will dye young.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

After the Tufts game practically all Boston and Portland papers stated in their accounts that Bowdoin was twice penalized for unnecessary roughness. That statement is untrue, and an effort will be made to have each newspaper correct it. A contradiction of the statement will also be sent to every college with which we have athletic relations.

Bowdoin was twice penalized for holding, which probably caused the misstatements. Our men played a clean game and every Bowdoin man present was extremely proud of them.

After the game I went into Boston in the same car with the umpire. He complimented us on the good sportsmanship of our men, and cited two particular instances.

The first was when he penalized Tucker for holding. He said that when he told Tucker he was holding, the answer came back: "Yes, I was. I'm sorry. I forgot myself." The umpire inferred that he seldom received such a sportsmanlike answer to a penalty.

The second case was when the umpire said a Tufts man did not step out of bounds, although Tufts claimed he did and wished the ball taken in 15 yards. Capt. Morrell immediately seconded the Tufts' claim, and said that we wanted them to have "everything that's coming to them."

It seems fair that our team, which has come through a disappointing season with a spirit that we can well be proud of, should have the benefit of an absolute denial of a misstatement which does the team great injustice and the College much harm.

Very truly yours,

A. H. MACCORMICK '15.

Short Story Contest To Be Held By Granite Monthly

Open to Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont Colleges—Prizes Offered

A communication has been received by the English Department of the College from the Granite Monthly, New Hampshire State Magazine, announcing plans for a short story contest which is to be conducted by this publication. It is proposed to open the contest to college students of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, and the English departments of the various institutions in these states have been requested to aid in carrying out the contest. Cash prizes of $30, $25, and $10 are to be offered for first, second and third places respectively, prize winning stories to appear in the publication. This contest should prove interesting to a great many of the undergraduates here at Bowdoin, and there is no reason why the College should not be well represented. Any students interested should get in touch with the Granite Monthly, Patriot Building, Concord, New Hampshire. The text of the communication is as follows:

"Our magazine is desirous of obtaining short stories. It is also interested in getting in touch with the young men and women of our Northern New England colleges who are interested in literature. In pursuance of this two-fold object we plan to offer a series of prizes—the first being $50, the second $25, and several of $10, for the best short stories submitted to us by the college students of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

"We feel that this contest can be made an incentive to the students and brought to a successful termination only by the co-operation of the English Departments in the various institutions. The prizes will be awarded not by our editorial staff but by impartial judges selected from outside. The contest will probably close about the end of the first college semester. Will you not help us by making this offer known to the students of your department and by urging them to submit their stories to us? Of course the proposed contest is planned to secure material for our publication, but we feel that at the same time it may be of help to you, and we are much interested in making it beneficial to our colleges.

"We would be glad to receive advice and suggestions from you regarding the conduct of this contest and we are hoping for your aid."

Achorn '81 Article In Boston Transcript. On The Church On The Hill

The Boston Transcript recently had an interesting article under the heading "The Church on the Hill," which will touch a responsive chord in Bowdoin graduates and attendants at that famous church. It is written by Edgar O. Achorn, graduate of Bowdoin in the class of 1881. He is a native of Newcastle and has an attractive summer home at Christmas Cove. For years he was in the diplomatic service being connected with an Embassy at St. Petersburg. He is now the senior member of the well known law firm of Achorn & Bates of Boston. He has been an overseer of the college since 1909, and few of her sons are more interested in her welfare.

A son, Erik, who graduated from Bowdoin also, a few years ago with high honors, is now taking a post graduate course in Paris.

The article follows:
No Congregational church in Maine and few in New England are clothed with greater dignity or authority than the "Church on the Hill" at Brunswick, Maine. And the reason for this is not far to seek—its association with Bowdoin college, covering a period of 120 years.

The minister who fills this pulpit must preach to a congregation dominated in part by intellectuals—the college faculty—and he has the opportunity, the responsibility, the privilege, shall I say the challenge, that the presence of a large body of young men creates; and it must not be lost sight of that Bowdoin, like her sister denominational colleges in New England, was founded as a cradle for the ministry.

The traditions of this church are rich in the memories of the eminent men who have filled its pulpit and its pews.

It was under the aegis of this church that Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and from this pulpit that Longfellow sang one of his greatest poems—"Morituri Salutamus"—on the fiftieth reunion of his class.

The gothic architecture of the church itself, differing so greatly from the New England meeting house, imparts an ecclesiastical, a dim, religious light, to the interior that seems to harmonize with its historical associations; at least so it impressed me as I entered the church last Sunday morning and was ushered to a seat midway up the aisle.

Sitting there during the few minutes of silence before the service began, my thoughts wandered back to the forty-five years ago when I, under the compulsory attendance at church service, had a seat in the transept with my classmates and looked down upon the immortals whose pews were on the broad aisle below.

In that day General Joshua L. Chamberlain was president of the college and commanded the right of the line; others of the faculty were on the right or left wing or in the rear guard. All was dignity, sanctity, piety! The sermons in which the "doctrine" and metaphysics shared the honors, were intended for the edification of the intellectuals below. As they had no meaning or message for us, we students generally took advantage of this opportunity to make up our lost sleep.

I do recall, however, on one occasion that a minister who was on exchange had so far wandered from the beaten path, or perhaps was simply seeking to point a moral, as to call attention to the fact that the price of whiskey had recently fallen, whereupon the floor of the transept rang with applause, in which the cowhide boots of even those who slept and were awakened by the glad news, added the weight of their approval.

And now after forty-five years the setting was the same; but the vested choir, the beauty and dignity of the service, and above all the sermon as an interpretation of the gospel of Jesus Christ out of an orthodox congregational pulpit of today, was one of the finest and most inspiring appeals that has ever fallen on my ears. And, oh, how different from those ancient disquisitions on the fall of man.

With an earnestness, with a sincerity, with a force and persuasion, with an authority that reminds me forcibly of Dr. Gordon of the Old South, the Rev. Thompson E. Ashby talked on the challenge of the Christian purpose, on the duty of the church to inspire in the hearts of all men a desire to live the life that Jesus taught, to do his work in the world in the spirit of the Master and in the love of his fellow man.

In appealing for membership in this church, Mr. Ashby, among other things said:

The door of the church should be high enough to let a man bring his head in with him.

You may think you are a heretic. Well, we want heretics to join our church.

Believe what you find it possible to believe.

"O tempora! O mores!" I exclaimed. Here, indeed, was a minister of a Congregational church, in an educational centre of New England, daring to forget the ancient creed and plead the spirit—the purpose of the Master! And this not in consonance with Bishop Lawrence's anniversary sermon?

Is the beginning of a new day at hand—a day when the new religion and the new church is to come into its own?

Edgar O. Achorn.

Fourth Period

Bob dropped back for a field goal but his attempt failed. It was Tufts first down on the twenty yard line. After several incomplete passes, the Jumbos kicked out to Bob who was stopped on the thirty-seven yard line. A series of line plunges failed to gain so Perry received Mal's kick on the twenty-five yard line. Again Tufts tried passes but failed and so the game went. Tufts tried thirteen passes and completed but one which netted twenty-five yards. Galvariski went in for Cohen, Etelman for Hughes and Cronin for Burnard. With three seconds to play, Perry made one last attempt at a pass, and failed.

History repeats itself as another Bowdoin team comes from behind to defeat a strong Tufts eleven.

About ninety members of the Bowdoin Club of Boston met Friday evening at the University Club for a dinner and a Tufts game rally. A large number of recent graduates added to the enthusiasm. Cheers were practiced under Vic Whitman's leadership and King Turgeon '23 lead the singing, with Don Eames '23 at the piano. As a result, both singing and cheering at the Tufts game were excellent.

Prof. Melvin T. Copeland '06 of Harvard, president of the club, presided over the post-prandial exercises. He first called on Coach Ostergren, who reviewed the past season, analyzed the team's faults and his own frankly, and spoke of his plans for next year. The next speaker was Coach Magee, who spoke of last spring's track team and of the material now in College. He made several cheerful predictions, which received enthusiastic applause.

Luther Dana '03, chairman of the Athletic Council, then spoke. He urged the alumni around Boston to interest men who were scholars as well as athletes in Bowdoin, stating that in no other way could Bowdoin compete with institutions whose requirements are less rigorous.

Austin H. McCormick '15 was the last speaker. He reviewed the football season and outlined next year's schedule. He spoke of the spirit which the team had displayed throughout the year, and called on the alumni to show that they are interested not only in "winning Bowdoin teams," but in "Bowdoin teams," saying that he believed a period of defeat does more to develop a sound College spirit than a long period of victory.

The fact that none of the speakers seemed hopeful of a victory over Tufts made Saturday's upset all the more pleasant.

The chapel bell rang at half-past three, Thursday afternoon, to call out the student body for a football rally. A long line of men, four or five abreast was formed in front of the chapel, and, led by the band, it proceeded to Whittier Athletic Field where the team was having practice. On the path through the pines "Go! Get! Go Get Tufts!!" was shouted in time with the beats of the drum. While filing on to the field Bowdoin Beata was sung. Then the line halted and formed along the side line for cheering and singing. A cheer was given for the coach and each member of the team in turn. Phi Chi and Fight on Bowdoin were among the songs. After about half an hour of loyal vocal effort the line was formed again and the march was continued around the field with cheering and singing and finally to the gate, and through the pines to the college where the men broke ranks and dispersed.

Dr. Ralph Adams Cram Delivered Annie Talbot Cole Lecture Thursday

"Spain and Spanish Art" Subject of Interesting Address—Large Crowd
Attends

Ralph Adams Cram, Litt.D., LL.D., delivered the Annie Talbot Cole lecture for 1923 in Memorial Hall last Thursday evening at 8.15. Doctor Cram spoke on "Spain and Spanish Art." In introducing the speaker, President Sills said that although the Cole lectureship was founded to "foster an appreciation of the beautiful as revealed through nature, poetry, music, and the fine arts" this was the first time that any lecturer had been chosen to speak on art.

Doctor Cram said in the beginning that his lecture would deal more with Spain than with Spanish art. It is impossible, he said, to tell about the art of a country without telling a great deal of its history.

Art cannot be made out of nothing. It is an expression of the people themselves, in their past and in their present. A country's history is revealed in the art and architecture which it leaves for future generations. The great things in a country's life are shown by its art.

Spain is a much misunderstood land. It is one of the countries of which the world in general knows little. The mention of Spain immediately connotes in one's mind the thought of bull fights, of the Inquisition, and of men in broad sombreros playing their guitars to some dark-skinned beauty. Spain is thought to be a backward land, a backward of civilization, a country of medieval tendencies trying to live in this advanced age.

This is not so. It is one of the most potent countries, and one of the most democratic. Its classes are clear-cut. The King of Spain, Doctor Adams said, thinks nothing of walking unattended down the main thoroughfares of Madrid. He had just as soon ask anyone, beggar or merchant, for a light for his cigarette. The austerity and fortitude of the people are two great characteristics. The Spaniard cares nothing for the comforts of life. He has a better sense of comparative values than anyone else. He keeps out of politics which he regards as dirty business. He is perhaps the most courteous man in the world. Even at the sacrifice of his own time, he will escort a stranger who asks.

Doctor Cram spent six months in Spain, where he lived with his family in a Spanish villa, employed Spanish servants, and lived in the Spanish manner. He was therefore in a position to judge at first hand the life of the Spaniard.

The first impression which the visitor gets, said Doctor Cram, is of the enormous antiquity of the people. Their civilization goes back to the Moors in medieval times, and back of them the Visigoths and the Romans. The next impression which the visitor gets is the extraordinary quality of their democracy. The greatest impression perhaps is of their religion.

Doctor Cram said that the Spaniards were the most evangelical people he had ever seen. Their acceptance of religion is frank and simple. Their relation is from man to God directly. Spanish cathedrals may be empty except on special occasions, but every day the Spaniard goes to his parish church whether he goes to his business or not. The people enjoy preaching, which is nearly always simple and direct in its appeal. Their service is simple and without ostentation.

Spain is not a decadent country in the least. Although she has not sold her soul for commerce, manufacturing, and trade, she may be the better for it. There are things in Spain which we can profit by.

Bowdoin Places Fourth In N. E. Cross Country

Foster of Bowdoin Finishes Fifth—
Doherty of Tufts Wins in Fast
Time

On Saturday, November 17, the Bates College cross country runners won the New England intercollegiate crown from a large field of seventy-five contestants, nosing out the U. of M. harriers who were favored to repeat their victories of the past two years. The race was run over the Franklin Park course of five and one-half miles, starting from the clubhouse of the Scarborough Golf Club. The victory was due to a well balanced team than to individual runners. Four of the five men entered qualified by being within the first ten men to cross the tape. H. W. Raymond and A. S. Hillman were the two first team men to break the tape, Raymond leading. However, the next U. of M. runner, A. G. Patten, finished in the fifteenth place and the two remaining members finished nineteenth and twentieth.

John Doherty of Tufts, the only representative of that college, was the star of the meet. He obtained a lead early at the start which he held to the finish although closely pressed by Hillman at the halfway mark. Soon after this Hillman was obliged to fall back and Doherty maintained his lead to the finish undisputed. Just before reaching the home stretch Raymond, who had been running steadily in the seventh position without visible effort, passed Hillman and trailed Doherty to the tape. George W. Raymond of Boston College finished third in the team totals.

R. J. Foster of Bowdoin was the fifth man to finish, running the course in 24 minutes and 14 seconds. Doherty's time for the run was 28 minutes, 40 seconds, which is 4 and 25 seconds faster time than was made last year. The scores of the teams were as follows:

Bates	4	6	7	10	18	45
Maine	1	2	15	19	20	57
New Hampshire	13	16	22	27	35	113
Bowdoin	5	17	32	40	42	136
Holy Cross	8	14	26	41	54	143

Williams	11	25	29	28	53	156
Brown	24	38	30	36	45	163
Boston College	3	21	47	55	58	184
Boston Univ.	12	44	49	68	70	243

Colby, which had entered a team, was the only one to withdraw. Although Doherty of Tufts finished first, the Medford college did not enter a team. In the scoring Doherty was not counted and each runner was advanced one place.

First fifteen men in: Doherty, Tufts; Raymond, Maine; Hillman, Maine; Leonard, B. C.; Holt, Bates; Foster, Bowdoin; McGinley, Bates; Ward, Bates; Donaghy, Holy Cross; Fricker, M.I.T.; Hurley, Bates; Sanford, Williams; Stacey, B.U.; Snow, N. H.; and Larivee, Holy Cross.

New Rule on Elections Passed—Honor
System and Team Voting Discussed

At a meeting of the Student Council at the Sigma Nu House last Friday evening a law was passed to take effect in all A.S.B.C. elections from now on. Ballots on which the total number of names are not voted for or on which all the offices are not marked are made legal. Thus in the future when there are three men to be elected for a certain office, it is necessary to vote only for the number which one desires and not necessarily for the total number of men to be elected. Also one may vote for only one or two of the offices printed on the ballot and his vote will be permitted. In the past the opposite has been customary, which forced everyone to vote the full ballot. It is expected that this new law will do away with throwing the votes to weak men and thus causing many men to be elected who would not have been by the new system. It also does away with voting for men of whom the voter knows nothing whatsoever concerning his qualifications or ability for filling the position.

The matter of letter men on the major teams voting with the student body in addition to voting with the team was also discussed but no definite action was taken. At present the letter men vote only with the team, while the captain votes only with the manager and coach unit. Under the scheme that is suggested the men on the team would have a vote with the student body and one with the team. The captain would have three. The upholders of the measure say that since each man is in reality a member of each unit, he should have a vote with each unit.

The honor system was discussed but no action was taken on it.

Red Cross Roll Call

Eight fraternities secured 100 per cent membership in the Red Cross during the membership roll call last week. The entire College average was 84.4%.

The following is the fraternity standing:

Alpha Delta Phi	100
Psi Upsilon	100
Chi Psi	100
Delta Kappa Epsilon	100
Theta Delta Chi	100
Delta Upsilon	100
Beta Theta Pi	100
Sigma Nu	74
Phi Delta Psi	74
Kappa Sigma	59
Non-Fraternity	59
Zeta Psi	46

The result this year compares favorably with that of last year when the total college membership was 74.48%. Three years ago, in the First College Roll Call Bowdoin had the highest average among the New England colleges.

The captains of the four college football teams in the State have picked the players that are in their opinions the best in the State. The Portland "Telegram" has taken these and combined them into an All-Maine team of thirteen men, on which Colby has five, Bates has four, Maine three, and Bowdoin 1. There were tie votes in the selection of left guard and right tackle, thus making it necessary for thirteen men to be placed on the first team.

In making these selections each captain picked only from the teams of the other three colleges, so as to avoid any possibility of favoritism. For this reason, three votes was the largest number that any one man could receive, and therefore any man receiving that number was considered a unanimous selection.

The five unanimous selections this year are Ben Soule, end; Arthur Burdick, tackle; Goodrich, guard; and Swede Enholm, center, all of Colby; Jim Blair, halfback, of Maine. There were shifts made in the selection and composition of the All-Maine only in the case of the line men, where the side of the line was not noticed; that is, the selections were made according to the number of votes received for tackle or end, regardless of whether the votes were for right or left tackle and right or left end.

The votes were distributed as follows:

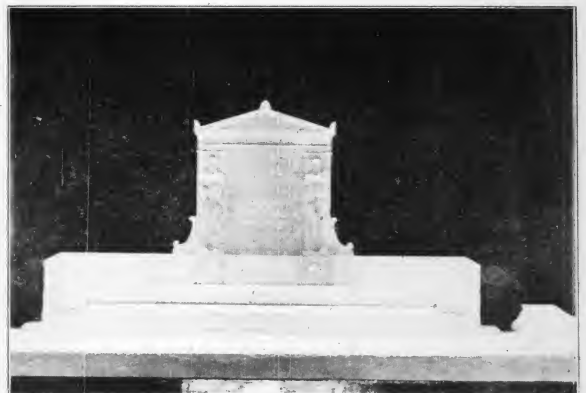

- Ends—Soule, Colby, 3; Rowe, Bates, 2; H. Hildreth, Bowdoin, 1; Newhall, Maine, 1; C. Hildreth, Bowdoin, 1.
Tackles—Burdick, Colby, 3; Fraser, Maine, 2; Scott, Maine, 2; Lunge, Maine, 1.

THE BOWDOIN WAR MEMORIAL

What Has Been Done In The Past, And What Is Planned For The Future

Since the close of the war, there has been a widespread feeling that a suitable memorial should be erected in honor of those Bowdoin men who gave their lives or their services for their country. Action was first taken by the Alumni Council, during the winter of 1918-19, in the appointment of a special committee, consisting of Messrs. H. H. Pierce, W. W. Lawrence and A. G. Staples. This committee, after careful consideration, and after consultation with alumni, friends of the College, and professional advisers, submitted a report at Commencement in 1919. In this report various suggestions for a memorial were reviewed, and certain definite principles of procedure recommended. The endorsement of a professorship or of one or more fellowships was rejected, in the conviction that "the graduates will in general feel that no memorial will be satisfactory which is not visible and tangible as well as permanent." A new organ, new chapel doors, or additions to Memorial Hall were not favored, on account of the general feeling that "the memorial now to be erected should, if possible, be a separate, independent and distinct structure and not a mere addition to something already existing." The appropriateness of a swimming-pool as a war memorial was seriously questioned, and the erection of a fence around exercises." The Committee further strongly urged "that the design and execution of any memorial which shall be decided upon, no matter how simple its character, shall not be undertaken except under the advice of the highest professional skill obtainable. There is no question that the chief end to be striven for in any memorial which may be erected must be its artistic quality." In conclusion the Committee suggested that the Alumni Council recommend to the President and the Governing Boards of the College (1) "the erection of a tangible and permanent structure in memory of the men of Bowdoin College who have given their lives in the present war and in recognition of the others who have served in the Army and Navy during the conflict," (2) the appointment of a Committee by the Boards "to undertake the execution of this object, including the obtaining of professional advice, the approval of the design, the selection of the site, the raising of the necessary subscriptions, and thereafter the letting of contracts;" and the Campus was rejected on professional advice, as "likely to detract from rather than add to the beauty of the campus as a whole." A memorial gateway also seemed to the Committee unwise, "since the principal entrances to the campus already possess gates. If, therefore, one were now to be erected as a war memorial, a site of secondary importance would necessarily be chosen for it. Furthermore, if an elaborate structure were placed in such a location, it is probable that it would be felt to be out of keeping with its surroundings." "A building would call for the expenditure of more money that could well be raised for a memorial, particularly in view of the present high prices, and the necessity of providing funds for the maintenance and care of such a building."

The final and definite recommendation of the Committee was "the adoption of the idea of a rostrum or sedilia. It is believed that such a structure, of artistic design and in harmony with its surroundings, would add much

(3) the approval by the Council of "an outdoor rostrum, sedilia or theatre" as the most desirable form of memorial. The report of the Committee was unanimously accepted and approved by the Alumni Council, in June, 1919, and it was voted to present the report to the Boards for their consideration. This was accordingly done. At a meeting held on June 23, 1919, the Trustees voted "that a committee consisting of the President, Dr. Cole and Dr. W. J. Curtis of this board, with such as the Overseers and Faculty and the Alumni Council may join, be requested to consider the form and the design of an appropriate and general memorial to the sons of Bowdoin who gave their lives or their services in the present war, with discretion as to raising funds to carry out the purpose of this v.c.e. and to report their conclusions to the boards at the next Commencement." The composition of this committee, in addition to those already named from the Board of Trustees, was as follows: from the (Continued on Page 3)

Just Distribution.

In the present era of industrialism, when the supply of labor is carefully arranged and the employment divided equitably to take care of the demand for human hands, it seems strange to find a place where wisdom, or at least learning, is supposed to reign supreme encountering difficulty in supplying men to fill positions of responsibility. Only a few days ago this problem was presented to us quite forcibly when a man who has shown real executive ability as manager of one of the major sports found it necessary to resign. The pressure of carrying on his classroom work, certain remunerative work outside, and an active part in the college dramas in addition to his managerial business was really too much for him, and he had to give up or go under.

It is the old familiar story, seen from a slightly different aspect. The parable of the talents, "Unto him that hath shall be given, but from him that hath not even that which he hath shall be taken away" has a particular bearing on the participation in college activities. There we see, as everywhere else, how certain it is that the man who shows ability in one line is sought after in another, and another, until he finds his time so filled with a multitude of duties that he can do real justice to none of them. The successful athlete, the efficient manager, the popular journalist, dramatist, or musician, if he allows the urging of his friends or his ambition for prominence to override his judgment, finds himself, soon or late, in an embroglio difficult to escape. On the other hand, it is not at all unusual to find a man in his Junior or Senior year completely on the outside of all activities, but of some ability, who is anxious to find a place where he may be of service without experience.

Men in the second class can meet their difficulty by starting to look for a niche in their freshman year. It is for the men in the first category that the problem assumes annoying proportions. A marked tendency to concentrate all authority and honor in the few who attain to athletic or executive renown may have something to do with augmenting the problem, since it works in a vicious circle. The one criterion of ability is performance. In all branches of activity ability counts as the requisite to leadership. And leadership places heavy burdens on the leader.

We carry on a good many activities wholly outside the curriculum here at Bowdoin. We have certainly enough men to conduct all these activities, and to conduct them well. But the men do not seem to realize either duty or opportunity until it is too late to be of any use. The result is, as stated before, that a comparatively small group of fairly versatile men perform the functions of the whole college of more than four hundred. Small wonder that dissatisfaction arises at the conduct of one or more bodies—the wonder is that they are not all smothered.

The college, through the Student Council and the Athletic Council, is doing what it can to distribute on a fair basis the responsibilities of the campus activities. To this end a change has been suggested for the management of track. This change, providing that two managers shall do the work hitherto loaded on one, should be salutary if accepted by the undergraduates. Last year a committee on limitation of activities was elected to attempt an even distribution of activity. This is all very well, but any system of distribution fails when you cannot find the distributees.

As long as men who are perfectly well able to play a part in the work of the college beyond the classroom refuse to do so, the activities will suffer from insufficient attention, and a few men will be burdened with duties too onerous for them. The activities now existent are important. They must be carried on, but a handful of men cannot carry them on properly. The situation demands the concerted effort of all men of Bowdoin to the goal of booming campus activities that are truly representative, not the product of a few overworked zealots who doggedly insist on keeping things going, support or no support. There is a real opportunity here; are we going to grasp it?

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

In voicing protest against any feature of an established institution one always runs the risk of being misunderstood. To avoid, if possible, any such misunderstanding, I wish to make clear that I most heartily favor the American Red Cross and its work and that I am not criticising those who directed the recent Roll Call here at Bowdoin.

The method of conducting that drive for memberships is, I believe, open to criticism. No group, fraternity or non-fraternity, I submit, should suffer because some of its members do not care to contribute to a designated charity. Nor should any individual be called a "snacker" or a disloyal fraternity man if he cannot afford or does not care to give to such an organization. It is contrary to the spirit and the purpose of the Red Cross to secure funds by such means.

My protest, may I repeat, is not against the American Red Cross, but against making membership in that, or any other organization outside the college, a matter of interfraternity competition.

Yours very truly,
GLENN R. MCINTIRE.

Spanish politics and Italian politics, Doctor Cram ventured the question, "Is the Latin coming back?" Premier Llovera when he acted outside the Constitution in the recent Spanish revolution did not act from an imperialistic motive. His move was taken as the only one by which the rotten political system might be corrected. He even had the support of the King and the people. The similar action of Mussolini in Italy shows that something is working underneath these Latin races. Can this influence creep into Europe now trembling?

Doctor Cram's sojourn in Spain was in connection with his work as an architect. He made a careful study of Spanish architecture, particularly that of the churches and cathedrals. Spanish architecture is distinct in itself. This is a result of the Moorish civilization which existed for a period longer than that from the time of William the Conqueror to the present. The Moorish center, Cordova, once had four hundred public baths, four hundred mosques, and a great university. The Spaniard has taken over every form of architecture and while retaining its important features has added a distinctive Spanish touch. In Spain we see Gothic, Roman, Renaissance, all blended with the distinct Spanish touch.

Doctor Cram illustrated his lecture with slides showing the physical features of Spain, its snow-covered mountains, its castles in the hills, its hidden valleys, the tropical places on the coast; the houses, with their elaborate courtyards; the Alhambra, that wonderful Kubla Khan pleasure house, the last place which the Moors held in Spain; the walled cities, the walls on Roman foundations, built by the Moors, and rebuilt by the Christians; the magnificent cathedrals, notably Seville.

The slides which Doctor Cram showed of the cathedrals were particularly beautiful. There is no limit to the labor and cost which went into the erecting of churches. The Spaniard used the gold from America lavishly. He built solid gold altars, and solid silver towers, eight and nine feet high.

The interior of the Cathedral of Seville, Doctor Cram said, was the greatest he had ever seen. The colors are wonderful. The millions of minute designs are startling. And yet the master-builder of Seville is unknown. It seems almost as if it were of divine creation.

Fall Handicap Meet

Plaisted Noses Out Foster in Two Mile Race—Farrington '27 and Ham '27 Show Well

The fall handicap meet has been under progress for the last week or so. There has been some very keen competition, and many fast times have been turned in. Several freshmen have showed up exceedingly well. On his first day out for track Frank Farrington easily won his heats in the trials and semi-finals of the 150 yard dash. Ham, the freshman cross country star, won the 660. Albert Ecke and David Sellev performed creditably in the shot put and 300 yard dash respectively. One of the closest and most thrilling races of the whole meet was the two mile. Frankie Plaisted and Bob Foster, both starting from scratch, were neck and neck the whole distance, with Plaisted barely beating out Foster at the tape.

The finals of the 300 yard and 150 yard runs will be run off after Coach Magee returns Wednesday from Detroit, where he has been attending a conference.

Hammer throw—First, Fish, 10 feet, 105 ft. 11 in.; second, Hill, 20 feet, 92 ft. 3 in.; third, Burnett, scratch, 87 ft. 6 in.

Two mile run—First, Plaisted, scratch; second, Foster, scratch; third, Small, 50 yards. Time 10:26.

75 yard dash—First, Mason, scratch; second, Gray, 2 yards; third, Spinney, scratch. Time 8:1.

Shot put—First, Charles, scratch, 37 ft. 42 in.; second, Baker, scratch, 37 ft. 32 in.; and Littlefield, 4 ft. 37 ft. 32 in.; third, Ecke, 5 feet, 36 ft. 3 in.

300 yard dash—First heat: First, Spinney, scratch; second, Huntress, 12 yards. 2nd heat: first, Hamilton, scratch; second, Nexins, 8 yards. Third heat: first, Mason, scratch; second, Burgess, 10 yards. Fourth heat: first, Tarbell, scratch; second, Young, eight yards. Fifth heat: first, Littlefield, scratch; second, Nelson, scratch. Sixth heat: first, Lovell, scratch; second, Rowe, 8 yards. Seventh heat: first Fanning, scratch; second, Sellev, 2 yards.

150 yard dash—Semi-finals: first heat, first, Mason, scratch; second, Littlefield, 2 yards. Second heat: first, F. Farrington, scratch; second, Lovell, 2 yards.

High jump—first, Lovell; second, Littlefield; third, Hall and Hamilton, tied. Height, 5 ft. 1 in.

Annie Talbot Cole
Lecturers Since 1907

The Annie Talbot Cole Lectureship which this year brought to the College Doctor Ralph Adams Cram, was founded in 1907 by Mrs. Calista Mayhew of South Orange, N. J., in memory of her niece, Mrs. Samuel Valentine Cole, of Norton, Mass. The Lectureship annually brings to the college a speaker of world renown, a leader of thought, and a master in some chosen field.

The lectures have been delivered by: 1907—Professor George Herbert Palmer, LL.D.

1909—Reverend Charles A. Dinsmore.

1909—Honorable Samuel W. McCall, LL.D.

To the Editor of The Bowdoin Orient:
 In writing a short article two years ago on the Bowdoin Athletic Association, I pointed out the need of having a communication system. The need is still there, and it is still urgent. I am sure that the Association will find it necessary to have a communication system, and I am sure that it will find it necessary to have a communication system.

At this same Commencement Messrs. McKim, Mead and White of New York City, the designers of the Art Building and the '75 Gates, were appointed by the Boards consulting architects of the College.

A circular was prepared by the War Memorial Committee in April, 1920, containing full information in regard to action already taken by the Alumni Council and the Boards, and preliminary descriptions and cuts of designs for a rostrum, and for a statue set against a background much like that of the rostrum. The burning of the Bowdoin Union made further consideration of a building seem advisable, and Hon. P. P. Baxter wrote urging the endowment of memorial scholarships. Copies of this circular, in which these four proposals were carefully set forth, were sent to members of the Governing Boards, the Faculty, the presidents of alumni associations, class secretaries, and other representative alumni. Postcards were enclosed, and the replies carefully tabulated. A large majority voted for the rostrum, the vote standing as follows: Rostrum, 74; Building for the Bowdoin Union, 32; Scholarships, 27; a Statue, 7. It will be observed that there were more votes for the rostrum than for all the other proposals combined. The report of the Committee was laid before the Boards at Commencement, 1920, and by vote of the Boards the same Committee was continued, "with power to decide upon and prepare a final design for such rostrum, and also be authorized to invite, at the proper time, subscriptions for this purpose."

Much time and effort was devoted by the Committee to investigation of the various problems involved in the design, location, and erection of such a memorial. Finally, in order that these problems might be tentatively decided so that definite instructions could be given to the architect, a meeting was held at the residence of W. J. Curtis, Esq., in New York City, at which it was voted:

1. That no names, whether of those who served or of those who fell, be placed on the memorial.

2. That the memorial be constructed of granite, the quality and color to be left to the discretion of the architects.

3. That Messrs. McKim, Mead and White be requested to prepare definite plans for a rostrum of granite, at lines of the rostrum into relief, and to provide a suggestion of a setting. The trees and shrubs will depend entirely upon the final location. The architect in general charge, the senior member of the firm of McKim, Mead and White, Mr. William M. Kendall, who has shown great interest in the harmonious development of the campus, and upon whom the College conferred a degree at last Commencement, strongly recommends placing the rostrum upon the axis formed by the Art Building and Appleton Hall, about half way between the two walks running parallel to the dormitory, but facing the Art Building. This location is illustrated in the accompanying cut. The path leading directly across from the Art Building would be continued either up to the Memorial, or stop just short of the further cross path. "This seemed the only site in the whole campus," writes Mr. Kendall, "which afforded a direct relation to some other important construction, and that seemed to me of paramount importance." One of the advantages of this site is that the audience would not have to face the afternoon sun, as they would if the rostrum were located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building. Many alumni have expressed a desire to have the memorial situated beneath or near the Thorndike Oak. Professional advice is against this, for two reasons. In the first place, it is unwise to locate a permanent structure with reference to a tree, the life of which is limited. A stone memorial built near the tree would probably shorten its life considerably. In the second place, the general effect of the campus will not be improved by a structure in the center, unrelated to the general plan of the buildings and grounds. This whole question remains to be decided; no conclusion in regard to the location of the rostrum has yet been made.

A report, embodying the results of the activities of the War Memorial Committee, was presented to the Boards at Commencement, 1923. The Committee was by vote continued with the following membership: the President; Messrs. Curtis, Pierce and Lawrence from the Trustees; Messrs. Achorn, Fisher and Quimby from the Overseers; Professors Hutchins and Burnett from the Faculty, and Messrs. R. L. Dana and Frost from the Alumni Council.

No action of any kind has been taken since Commencement. It is believed that the Alumni should have ample time to become familiar with the suggested design, and that they should understand very clearly what has been done in the past by the Committees who have had the work in charge. This article has been written to serve both these purposes. Great care has been taken in the past, as the foregoing account shows, to avoid any action which did not have the support of representative alumni, the Boards and the Faculty. Before the Committee appeals for subscriptions, it desires to have the criticisms and suggestions of all who are interested in the present plans. Such communications may be addressed to the Secretary of the Committee, Professor William W. Lawrence, Columbia University, New York City. Those who write are reminded that only constructive criticism is helpful, and that it is not advisable, in view of the large majority of votes cast for the rostrum, and the time and effort spent in

The burning of the Bowdoin Union made further consideration of a building seem advisable, and Hon. P. P. Baxter wrote urging the endowment of memorial scholarships. 4. That it be located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building, the exact spot to be determined by the architects.

5. That the selection of inscriptions be referred to a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Sills, Cole, and Lawrence, with power, the inscriptions to be either in English or in Latin, or both.

6. That a model be prepared, to be on view at Commencement.

7. That the conclusions of the Committee be submitted to the Boards for their information at Commencement.

In accordance with these instructions, definite plans were prepared by Messrs. McKim, Mead and White, and submitted to the Boards at Commencement, 1923, in blue-print form. These included tentative designs for the figure sculpture, by Tom Jones. At the same time a plaster model of the memorial, constructed with great care to scale, and with the sculptures added, was placed on view in the Art Building, where it is still on exhibition. A cut of this model accompanies this article. A circular was prepared by the War Memorial Committee in April, 1920, containing full information in regard to action already taken by the Alumni Council and the Boards, and preliminary descriptions and cuts of designs for a rostrum, and for a statue set against a background much like that of the rostrum. The burning of the Bowdoin Union made further consideration of a building seem advisable, and Hon. P. P. Baxter wrote urging the endowment of memorial scholarships. Copies of this circular, in which these four proposals were carefully set forth, were sent to members of the Governing Boards, the Faculty, the presidents of alumni associations, class secretaries, and other representative alumni. Postcards were enclosed, and the replies carefully tabulated. A large majority voted for the rostrum, the vote standing as follows: Rostrum, 74; Building for the Bowdoin Union, 32; Scholarships, 27; a Statue, 7. It will be observed that there were more votes for the rostrum than for all the other proposals combined. The report of the Committee was laid before the Boards at Commencement, 1920, and by vote of the Boards the same Committee was continued, "with power to decide upon and prepare a final design for such rostrum, and also be authorized to invite, at the proper time, subscriptions for this purpose."

Much time and effort was devoted by the Committee to investigation of the various problems involved in the design, location, and erection of such a cost not to exceed $40,000, exclusive of architects' fees, all names to be omitted, but with appropriate inscriptions, and with such figures as can be procured for such a sum.

4. That it be located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building, the exact spot to be determined by the architects.

5. That the selection of inscriptions be referred to a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Sills, Cole, and Lawrence, with power, the inscriptions to be either in English or in Latin, or both.

6. That a model be prepared, to be on view at Commencement.

7. That the conclusions of the Committee be submitted to the Boards for their information at Commencement.

In accordance with these instructions, definite plans were prepared by Messrs. McKim, Mead and White, and submitted to the Boards at Commencement 1923, in blue-print form. These included tentative designs for the figure sculpture, by Tom Jones. At the same time a plaster model of the memorial, constructed with great care to scale, and with the sculptures added, was placed on view in the Art Building, where it is still on exhibition. A cut of this model accompanies this article. Those who inspect the model are asked to remember that the inscriptions are not those which will be used on the completed structure, but added to give the decorative effect of the lettering, that the Memorial will not be white, as the plaster suggests, but a gray in general like that of the Chapel, and that the shrubbery is merely added to throw the Overseers, Messrs. Mallett and Achorn; from the Alumni Council, Messrs. H. H. Pierce, W. W. Lawrence and A. G. Staples; from the Faculty, Messrs. Hutchins and Burnett. The Committee was organized with President Sills as Chairman and Mr. Lawrence as Secretary.

At this same Commencement Messrs. McKim, Mead and White of New York City, the designers of the a memorial. Finally, in order that these problems might be tentatively decided so that definite instructions could be given to the architect, a meeting was held at the residence of W. J. Curtis, Esq., in New York City, at which it was voted:

1. That no names, whether of those who served or of those who fell, be placed on the memorial.
2. That the memorial be constructed of granite, the quality and color to be left to the discretion of the architects.
3. That Messrs. McKim, Mead and White be requested to prepare definite plans for a rostrum of granite, at lines of the rostrum into relief, and to provide a suggestion of a setting. The trees and shrubs will depend entirely upon the final location. The architect in general charge, the senior member of the firm of McKim, Mead and White, Mr. William M. Kendall, who has shown great interest in the harmonious development of the campus, and upon whom the College conferred a degree at last Commencement, strongly recommends placing the rostrum upon the axis formed by the Art Building and Appleton Hall, about half way between the two walks running parallel to the dormitory, but facing the Art Building. This location is illustrated in the accompanying cut. The path leading directly across from the Art Building would be continued either up to the Memorial, or stop just short of the further cross path. "This seemed the only site in the whole campus," writes Mr. Kendall, "which afforded a direct relation to some other important construction, and that seemed to me of paramount importance." One of the advantages of this site is that the audience would not have to face the afternoon sun, as they would if the rostrum were located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building. Many alumni have expressed a desire to have the memorial situated beneath or near the Thorndike Oak. Professional advice is against this, for two reasons. In the first place, it is unwise to locate a permanent structure with reference to a tree, the life of which is limited. A stone memorial built near the tree would probably shorten its life considerably. In the second place, the general effect of the campus will not be improved by a structure in the center, unrelated to the general plan of the buildings and grounds. This whole question remains to be decided; no conclusion in regard to the location of the rostrum has yet been made.

A report, embodying the results of the activities of the War Memorial Committee, was presented to the Boards at Commencement, 1923. The Committee was by vote continued with the following membership: the President; Messrs. Curtis, Pierce and Lawrence from the Trustees; Messrs. Achorn, Fisher and Quimby from the Overseers; Professors Hutchins and Burnett from the Faculty, and Messrs. R. L. Dana and Frost from the Alumni Council.

No action of any kind has been taken since Commencement. It is believed that the Alumni should have ample time to become familiar with the suggested design, and that they should understand very clearly what has been done in the past by the Committees who have had the work in charge. This article has been written to serve both these purposes. Great care has been taken in the past, as the foregoing account shows, to avoid any action which did not have the support of representative alumni, the Boards and the Faculty. Before the Committee appeals for subscriptions, it desires to have the criticisms and suggestions of all who are interested in the present plans. Such communications may be addressed to the Secretary of the Committee, Professor William W. Lawrence, Columbia University, New York City. Those who write are reminded that only constructive criticism is helpful, and that it is not advisable, in view of the large majority of votes cast for the rostrum, and the time and effort spent in

7. That the conclusions of the Committee be submitted to the Boards for their information at Commencement.

In accordance with these instructions, definite plans were prepared by Messrs. McKim, Mead and White, and submitted to the Boards at Commencement 1923, in blue-print form. These included tentative designs for the figure sculpture, by Tom Jones. At the same time a plaster model of the memorial, constructed with great care to scale, and with the sculptures added, was placed on view in the Art Building, where it is still on exhibition. A cut of this model accompanies this article. Those who inspect the model are asked to remember that the inscriptions are not those which will be used on the completed structure, but added to give the decorative effect of the lettering, that the Memorial will not be white, as the plaster suggests, but a gray in general like that of the Chapel, and that the shrubbery is merely added to throw the Art Building and the '75 Gates, were appointed by the Boards consulting architects of the College.

A circular was prepared by the War Memorial Committee in April, 1920, containing full information in regard to action already taken by the Alumni Council and the Boards, and preliminary descriptions and cuts of designs for a rostrum, and for a statue set against a background much like that of the rostrum. The burning of the Bowdoin Union made further consideration of a building seem advisable, and Hon. P. P. Baxter wrote urging the endowment of memorial scholarships. Copies of this circular, in which these four proposals were carefully set forth, were sent to members of the Governing Boards, the Faculty, the presidents of alumni associations, class secretaries, and other representative alumni. Postcards were enclosed, and the replies carefully tabulated. A large majority voted for the rostrum, the vote standing as follows: Rostrum, 74; Building for the Bowdoin Union, 32; Scholarships, 27; a Statue, 7. It will be observed that there were more votes for the rostrum than for all the other proposals combined. The report of the Committee was laid before the Boards at Commencement, 1920, and by vote of the Boards the same Committee was continued, "with power to decide upon and prepare a final design for such rostrum, and also be authorized to invite, at the proper time, subscriptions for this purpose."

Much time and effort was devoted by the Committee to investigation of the various problems involved in the design, location, and erection of such a memorial. Finally, in order that these problems might be tentatively decided so that definite instructions could be given to the architect, a meeting was held at the residence of W. J. Curtis, Esq., in New York City, at which it was voted:

1. That no names, whether of those who served or of those who fell, be placed on the memorial.
2. That the memorial be constructed of granite, the quality and color to be left to the discretion of the architects.
3. That Messrs. McKim, Mead and White be requested to prepare definite plans for a rostrum of granite, at lines of the rostrum into relief, and to provide a suggestion of a setting. The trees and shrubs will depend entirely upon the final location. The architect in general charge, the senior member of the firm of McKim, Mead and White, Mr. William M. Kendall, who has shown great interest in the harmonious development of the campus, and upon whom the College conferred a degree at last Commencement, strongly recommends placing the rostrum upon the axis formed by the Art Building and Appleton Hall, about half way between the two walks running parallel to the dormitory, but facing the Art Building. This location is illustrated in the accompanying cut. The path leading directly across from the Art Building would be continued either up to the Memorial, or stop just short of the further cross path. "This seemed the only site in the whole campus," writes Mr. Kendall, "which afforded a direct relation to some other important construction, and that seemed to me of paramount importance." One of the advantages of this site is that the audience would not have to face the afternoon sun, as they would if the rostrum were located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building. Many alumni have expressed a desire to have the memorial situated beneath or near the Thorndike Oak. Professional advice is against this, for two reasons. In the first place, it is unwise to locate a permanent structure with reference to a tree, the life of which is limited. A stone memorial built near the tree would probably shorten its life considerably. In the second place, the general effect of the campus will not be improved by a structure in the center, unrelated to the general plan of the buildings and grounds. This whole question remains to be decided; no conclusion in regard to the location of the rostrum has yet been made.

A report, embodying the results of the activities of the War Memorial Committee, was presented to the Boards at Commencement, 1923. The Committee was by vote continued with the following membership: the President; Messrs. Curtis, Pierce and Lawrence from the Trustees; Messrs. Achorn, Fisher and Quimby from the Overseers; Professors Hutchins and Burnett from the Faculty, and Messrs. R. L. Dana and Frost from the Alumni Council.

No action of any kind has been taken since Commencement. It is believed that the Alumni should have ample time to become familiar with the suggested design, and that they should understand very clearly what has been done in the past by the Committees who have had the work in charge. This article has been written to serve both these purposes. Great care has been taken in the past, as the foregoing account shows, to avoid any action which did not have the support of representative alumni, the Boards and the Faculty. Before the Committee appeals for subscriptions, it desires to have the criticisms and suggestions of all who are interested in the present plans. Such communications may be addressed to the Secretary of the Committee, Professor William W. Lawrence, Columbia University, New York City. Those who write are reminded that only constructive criticism is helpful, and that it is not advisable, in view of the large majority of votes cast for the rostrum, and the time and effort spent in a cost not to exceed $40,000, exclusive of architects' fees, all names to be omitted, but with appropriate inscriptions, and with such figures as can be procured for such a sum.

4. That it be located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building, the exact spot to be determined by the architects.

5. That the selection of inscriptions be referred to a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Sills, Cole, and Lawrence, with power, the inscriptions to be either in English or in Latin, or both.

6. That a model be prepared, to be on view at Commencement.

7. That the conclusions of the Committee be submitted to the Boards for their information at Commencement.

In accordance with these instructions, definite plans were prepared by Messrs. McKim, Mead and White, and submitted to the Boards at Commencement 1922, in blue-print form. These included tentative designs for the figure sculpture, by Tom Jones. At the same time a plaster model of the memorial, constructed with great care to scale, and with the sculptures added, was placed on view in the Art Building, where it is still on exhibition. A cut of this model accompanies this article. Those who inspect the model are asked to remember that the inscriptions are not those which will be used on the completed structure, but added to give the decorative effect of the lettering, that the Memorial will not be white, as the plaster suggests, but a gray in general like that of the Chapel, and that the shrubbery is merely added to throw the lines of the rostrum into relief, and to provide a suggestion of a setting. The trees and shrubs will depend entirely upon the final location. The architect in general charge, the senior member of the firm of McKim, Mead and White, Mr. William M. Kendall, who has shown great interest in the harmonious development of the campus, and upon whom the College conferred a degree at last Commencement, strongly recommends placing the rostrum upon the axis formed by the Art Building and Appleton Hall, about half way between the two walks running parallel to the dormitory, but facing the Art Building. This location is illustrated in the accompanying cut. The path leading directly across from the Art Building would be continued either up to the Memorial, or stop just short of the further cross path. "This seemed the only site in the whole campus," writes Mr. Kendall, "which afforded a direct relation to some other important construction, and that seemed to me of paramount importance." One of the advantages of this site is that the audience would not have to face the afternoon sun, as they would if the rostrum were located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building. Many alumni have expressed a desire to have the memorial situated beneath or near the Thorndike Oak. Professional advice is against this, for two reasons. In the first place, it is unwise to locate a permanent structure with reference to a tree, the life of which is limited. A stone memorial built near the tree would probably shorten its life considerably. In the second place, the general effect of the campus will not be improved by a structure in the center, unrelated to the general plan of the buildings and grounds. This whole question remains to be decided; no conclusion in regard to the location of the rostrum has yet been made.

A report, embodying the results of the activities of the War Memorial Committee, was presented to the Boards at Commencement, 1923. The Committee was by vote continued with the following membership: the President; Messrs. Curtis, Pierce and Lawrence from the Trustees; Messrs. Achorn, Fisher and Quimby from the Overseers; Professors Hutchins and Burnett from the Faculty, and Messrs. R. L. Dana and Frost from the Alumni Council.

No action of any kind has been taken since Commencement. It is believed that the Alumni should have ample time to become familiar with the suggested design, and that they should understand very clearly what has been done in the past by the Committees who have had the work in charge. This article has been written to serve both these purposes. Great care has been taken in the past, as the foregoing account shows, to avoid any action which did not have the support of representative alumni, the Boards and the Faculty. Before the Committee appeals for subscriptions, it desires to have the criticisms and suggestions of all who are interested in the present plans. Such communications may be addressed to the Secretary of the Committee, Professor William W. Lawrence, Columbia University, New York City. Those who write are reminded that only constructive criticism is helpful, and that it is not advisable, in view of the large majority of votes cast for the rostrum, and the time and effort spent in

Dr. Ralph Adams Cram Delivered Annie Talbot Cole Lecture Thursday

"Spain and Spanish Art" Subject of Interesting Address—Large Crowd
Attends

Ralph Adams Cram, Litt.D., LL.D., delivered the Annie Talbot Cole lecture for 1923 in Memorial Hall last Thursday evening at 8.15. Doctor Cram spoke on "Spain and Spanish Art." In introducing the speaker President Sills said that although the Cole lectureship was founded to "foster an appreciation of the beautiful as revealed through nature, poetry, music, and the fine arts" this was the first time that any lecturer had been chosen to speak on art.

Doctor Cram said in the beginning that his lecture would deal more with Spain than with Spanish art. It is impossible, he said, to tell about the art of a country without telling about a great deal of its history.

Art cannot be made out of nothing. It is an expression of the people themselves, in their past and in their present. A country's history is revealed in the art and architecture which it leaves for future generations. The great things in a country's life are shown by its art.

Spain is a much misunderstood land. It is one of the countries of which the world in general knows little. The mention of Spain immediately connotes in one's mind the thought of bull fights, of the Inquisition, and of men in broad sombreros playing their guitars to some dark-skinned beauty. Spain is thought to be a backward land, a backward water of civilization, a country of medieval tendencies trying to live in this advanced age.

This is not so. It is one of the most potent countries, and one of the most democratic. Its classes are clear-cut. The King of Spain, Doctor Adams said, thinks nothing of walking unattended down the main thoroughfares of Madrid. He had just as soon ask anyone, beggar or merchant, for a light for his cigarette. The austerity and fortitude of the people are two great characteristics. The Spaniard cares nothing for the comforts of life. He has a better sense of comparative values than anyone else. He keeps out of politics which he regards as dirty business. He is perhaps the most courteous man in the world. Even at the sacrifice of his own time, he will escort a stranger who asks.

Doctor Cram spent six months in Spain, where he lived with his family in a Spanish villa, employed Spanish servants, and lived in the Spanish manner. He was therefore in a position to judge at first hand the life of the Spaniard.

The first impression which the visitor gets, said Doctor Cram, is of the enormous antiquity of the people. Their civilization goes back to the Moors in medieval times, and back of them the Visigoths and the Romans. The next impression which the visitor gets is the extraordinary quality of their democracy. The greatest impression perhaps is of their religion.

Doctor Cram said that the Spaniards were the most evangelical people he had ever seen. Their acceptance of religion is frank and simple. Their relation is from man to God directly. Spanish cathedrals may be empty except on special occasions, but every day the Spaniard goes to his parish church whether he goes to his business or not. The people enjoy preaching, which is nearly always simple and direct in its appeal. Their service is simple and without ostentation.

Spain is not a decadent country in the least. Although she has not sold her soul for commerce, manufacturing, and trade, she may be the better for it. There are things in Spain which we can profit by.

Bowdoin Places Fourth In N. E. Cross Country

Foster of Bowdoin Finishes Fifth—
Doherty of Tufts Wins in Fast
Time

On Saturday, November 17, the Bates College cross country runners won the New England intercollegiate crown from a large field of seventy-five contestants, nosing out the U. of M. harriers who were favored to repeat their victories of the past two years. The race was run over the Franklin Park course of five and one-half miles, starting from the clubhouse of the Scarborough Golf Club. The victory was due to a well balanced team than to individual runners. Four of the five men entered qualified by being within the first ten men to cross the tape. H. W. Raymond and A. S. Hillman were the two first team men to break the tape, Raymond leading. However the next U. of M. runner, A. G. Patten, finished in the fifteenth place and the two remaining members finished nineteenth and twentieth.

John Doherty of Tufts, the only representative of that college, was the star of the meet. He obtained a lead early at the start which he held to the finish although closely pressed by Hillman at the halfway mark. Soon after this Hillman was obliged to fall back and Doherty maintained his lead to the finish undisputed. Just before reaching the home stretch Raymond, who had been running steadily in the seventh position without visible effort, passed Hillman and trailed Doherty to the tape. George W. Leonard of Boston College finished third in the team totals.

R. J. Foster of Bowdoin was the fifth man to finish, running the course in 29 minutes and 14 seconds. Doherty's time for the run was 28 minutes and 40 seconds, which is 4 and 2-5 seconds faster time than was made last year.

The scores of the teams were as follows:

Bates	4	6	7	10	18	45
Maine	1	2	15	19	20	57
New Hampshire	13	16	22	27	35	113
Bowdoin	5	17	32	40	42	136
Holy Cross	8	14	26	41	54	143
M. I. T.	9	31	33	37	43	153
Williams	11	25	29	28	53	156

Boston College	3	21	47	55	58	184
Boston Univ.	12	44	49	68	70	243

Colby, which had entered a team, was the only one to withdraw. Although Doherty of Tufts finished first, the Medford college did not enter a team. In the scoring Doherty was not counted and each runner was advanced one place.

First fifteen men in: Doherty, Tufts; Raymond, Maine; Hillman, Maine; Leonard, B. C.; Holt, Bates; Foster, Bowdoin; McGinley, Bates; Ward, Bates; Donaghy, Holy Cross; Fricker, M.I.T.; Hurley, Bates; Sanford, Williams; Stacey, B.U.; Snow, N. H.; and Larivee, Holy Cross.

Student Council Meeting

New Rule on Elections Passed—Honor
System and Team Voting Discussed

At a meeting of the Student Council at the Sigma Nu House last Friday evening a law was passed to take effect in all A.S.B.C. elections from now on. Ballots on which the total number of names are not voted for or on which all the offices are not marked are made legal. Thus in the future when there are three men to be elected for a certain office, it is necessary to vote only for the number which one desires and not necessarily for the total number of men to be elected. Also one may vote for only one or two of the offices printed on the ballot and his vote will be permitted. In the past the opposite has been customary, which forced everyone to vote the full ballot. It is expected that this new law will do away with throwing the votes to weak men and thus causing many men to be elected who would not have been by the new system. It also does away with voting for men of whom the voter knows nothing whatsoever concerning his qualifications or ability for filling the position.

The matter of letter men on the major teams voting with the student body in addition to voting with the team was also discussed but no definite action was taken. At present the letter men vote only with the team, while the captain votes only with the manager and coach unit. Under the scheme that is suggested the men on the team would have a vote with the student body and one with the team. The captain would have three. The upholders of the measure say that since each man is in reality a member of each unit, he should have a vote with each unit.

The honor system was discussed but no action was taken on it.

Red Cross Roll Call

Eight fraternities secured 100 per cent membership in the Red Cross during the membership roll call last week. The entire College average was 84.4%.

The following is the fraternity standing:

Alpha Delta Phi	100	P.C.
Psi Upsilon	100	100
Chi Psi	100	100
Delta Kappa Epsilon	100	100
Theta Delta Chi	100	100
Delta Upsilon	100	100
Beta Theta Pi	100	100
Sigma Nu	100	100
Phi Delta Psi	74	74
Kappa Sigma	59	59
Non-Fraternity	59	59
Zeta Psi	46	46

The result this year compares favorably with that of last year when the total college membership was 74.48%. Three years ago, in the First College Roll Call Bowdoin had the highest average among the New England colleges.

The captains of the four college football teams in the State have picked the players that are in their opinions the best in the State. The Portland "Telegram" has taken these and combined them into an All-Maine team of thirteen men, on which Colby has five, Bates has four, Maine three, and Bowdoin 1. There were five votes in the selection of left guard and right tackle, thus making it necessary for thirteen men to be placed on the first team.

In making these selections each captain picked only from the teams of the other three colleges, so as to avoid any possibility of favoritism. For this reason, three votes was the largest number that any one man could receive, and therefore any man receiving that number was considered a unanimous selection.

The five unanimous selections this year are Ben Soule, end; Arthur Burckel, tackle; Goodrich, guard; and Swede Enholm, center, all of Colby; Jim Blair, halfback, of Maine. There were shifts made in the selection and composition of the All-Maine only in the case of the linemen, where the side of the line was not noticed; that is, the selections were made according to the number of votes received for tackle or end, regardless of whether the votes were for right or left tackle and right or left end.

The votes were distributed as follows:

Ends—Soule, Colby, 3; Rowe, Bates, 2; H. Hildreth; Bowdoin, 1; Newhall, Maine, 1; C. Hildreth, Bowdoin, 1.
Tackles—Burckel, Colby, 3; Fraser, Maine, 2; Scott, Maine, 2; Lunge, Maine, 1.

THE BOWDOIN WAR MEMORIAL

What Has Been Done In The Past, And What Is Planned For The Future

Since the close of the war, there has been a widespread feeling that a suitable memorial should be erected in honor of those Bowdoin men who gave their lives or their services for their country. Action was first taken by the Alumni Council, during the winter of 1918-19, in the appointment of a

Model of the Proposed War Memorial

special committee, consisting of Messrs. H. H. Pierce, W. W. Lawrence and A. G. Staples. This committee, after careful consideration, and after consultation with alumni, friends of the College, and professional advisers, submitted a report at Commencement in 1919. In this report various suggestions for a memorial were reviewed, and certain definite principles of procedure recommended. The endorsement of a fellowship or of one or more fellowships was rejected, in the conviction that "the graduates will in general feel that no memorial will be satisfactory which is not visible, and tangible as well as permanent." A new organ, new chapel doors, or additions to Memorial Hall were not favored, on account of the general feeling that "the memorial now to be erected should, if possible, be a separate, independent and distinct structure and not a mere addition to something already existing." The appropriateness of a swimming-pool as a war memorial was seriously questioned, and the erection of a fence around the Campus was rejected on professional advice, as "likely to detract from rather than add to the beauty of the campus as a whole." A memorial gateway also seemed to the Committee unwise, "since the principal entrances to the campus already possess gates. If, therefore, one were now to be erected as a war memorial, a site of secondary importance would necessarily be chosen for it. Furthermore, if an elaborate structure were placed in such a location, it is probable that it would be felt to be out of keeping with its surroundings." "A building which would call for the expenditure of more money that could well be raised for a memorial, particularly in view of the present high prices, and the necessity of providing funds for the maintenance and care of such a building."

The final and definite recommendation of the Committee was "the adoption of the idea of a rostrum or sedilia. It is believed that such a structure, of artistic design and in harmony with its surroundings, would add much

(3) the approval by the Council of "an outdoor rostrum, sedilia or theatre" as the most desirable form of memorial. The report of the Committee was unanimously accepted and approved by the Alumni Council, in June, 1919, and it was voted to present the report to the Boards for their consideration. This was accordingly done. At a meeting held on June 23, 1919, the Trustees voted "that a committee consisting of the President, Dr. Cole and Dr. W. J. Curtis of this board, with such as the Overseers and Faculty and the Alumni Council may join, be requested to consider the form and the design of an appropriate and general memorial to the sons of Bowdoin who gave their lives or their services in the present war, with discretion as to raising funds to carry out the purpose of this vote, and to report their conclusions to the boards at the next Commencement." The composition of this committee, in addition to those already named from the Board of Trustees, was as follows: from the

Just Distribution.

In the present era of industrialism, when the supply of labor is carefully arranged and the employment divided equitably to take care of the demand for human hands, it seems strange to find a place where wisdom, or at least learning, is supposed to reign supreme encountering difficulty in supplying men to fill positions of responsibility. Only a few days ago this problem was presented to us quite forcibly when a man who has shown real executive ability as manager of one of the major sports found it necessary to resign. The pressure of carrying on his classroom work, certain remunerative work outside, and an active part in the college dramatics in addition to his managerial business was really too much for him, and he had to give up or go under.

It is the old familiar story, seen from a slightly different aspect. The parable of the talents, "I unto him that hath shall be given, but from him that hath not even that which he hath shall be taken away" has a particular bearing on the participation in college activities. There we see, as everywhere else, how certain it is that the man who shows ability in one line is sought after in another, and another, until he finds his time so filled with a multitude of duties that he can do real justice to none of them. The successful athlete, the efficient manager, the popular journalist, dramatist, or musician, if he allows the urging of his friends or his ambition for prominence to override his judgment, finds himself, soon or late, in an embroglio difficult to escape. On the other hand, it is not at all unusual to find a man in his Junior or Senior year completely on the outside of all activities, but of some ability, who is anxious to find a place where he may be of service without experience.

Men in the second class can meet their difficulty by starting to look for a niche in their freshman year. It is for the men in the first category that the problem assumes annoying proportions. A marked tendency to concentrate all authority and honor in the few who attain to athletic or executive renown may have something to do with augmenting the problem, since it works in a vicious circle. The one criterion of ability is performance. In all branches of activity ability counts as the requisite to leadership. And leadership places heavy burdens on the leader.

We carry on a good many activities wholly outside the curriculum here at Bowdoin. We have certainly enough men to conduct all these activities, and to conduct them well. But the men do not seem to realize either duty or opportunity until it is too late to be of any use. The result is, as stated before, that a comparatively small group of fairly versatile men perform the functions of the whole college of more than four hundred. Small wonder that dissatisfaction arises at the conduct of one or more bodies—the wonder is that they are not all smothered.

The college, through the Student Council and the Athletic Council, is doing what it can to distribute on a fair basis the responsibilities of the campus activities. To this end a change has been suggested for the management of track. This change, providing that two managers shall do the work hitherto loaded on one, should be salutary if accepted by the undergraduates. Last year a committee on limitation of activities was elected to attempt an even distribution of activity. This is all very well, but any system of distribution fails when you cannot find the distributees.

As long as men who are perfectly well able to play a part in the work of the college beyond the classroom refuse to do so, the activities will suffer from insufficient attention, and a few men will be burdened with duties too onerous for them. The activities now existent are important. They must be carried on, but a handful of men cannot carry them on properly. The situation demands the concerted effort of all men of Bowdoin to the goal of booming campus activities that are truly representative, not the product of a few overworked zealots who doggedly insist on keeping things going, support or no support. There is a real opportunity here; are we going to grasp it?

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

In voicing protest against any feature of an established institution one always runs the risk of being misunderstood. To avoid, if possible, any such misunderstanding, I wish to make clear that I most heartily favor the American Red Cross and its work and that I am not criticising those who directed the recent Roll Call here at Bowdoin.

The method of conducting that drive for memberships is, I believe, open to criticism. No group, fraternity or non-fraternity, I submit, should suffer because some of its members do not care to contribute to a designated charity. Nor should any individual be called a "snacker" or a disloyal fraternity man if he cannot afford or does not care to give to such an organization. It is contrary to the spirit and the purpose of the Red Cross to secure funds by such means.

My protest, may I repeat, is not against the American Red Cross, but against making membership in that, or any other organization outside the college, a matter of interfraternity competition.

Yours very truly,

GLENN R. MCINTIRE.

Spanish politics and Italian politics, Doctor Cram ventured the question, "Is the Latin coming back?" Premier Rivera when he acted outside the Constitution in the recent Spanish revolution did not act from an imperialist motive. His move was taken as the only one by which the rotten political system might be corrected. He even had the support of the King and the people. The similar action of Mussolini in Italy shows that something is working underneath these Latin races. Can this influence creep into Europe now trembling?

Doctor Cram's sojourn in Spain was in connection with his work as an architect. He made a careful study of Spanish architecture, particularly that of the churches and cathedrals. Spanish architecture is distinct in itself. This is a result of the Moorish civilization which existed for a period longer than that from the time of William the Conqueror to the present. The Moorish center, Cordova, once had four hundred public baths, four hundred mosques, and a great university. The Spaniard has taken over every form of architecture and while retaining its important features has added a distinctive Spanish touch. In Spain we see Gothic, Roman, Renaissance, all blended with the distinct Spanish touch.

Doctor Cram illustrated his lecture with slides showing the physical features of Spain, its snow-covered mountains, its castles in the hills, its hidden valleys, the tropical places on the coast; the houses with their elaborate courtyards; the Alhambra, that wonderful Kubla Khan pleasure house, the last place which the Moors held in Spain; the walled cities, the walls on Roman foundations, built by the Moors, and rebuilt by the Christians; the magnificent cathedrals, notably Seville.

The slides which Doctor Cram showed of the cathedrals were particularly beautiful. There is no limit to the labor and cost which went into the erecting of churches. The Spaniard used the gold from America lavishly. He built solid gold altars, and solid silver towers, eight and nine feet high.

The interior of the Cathedral of Seville, Doctor Cram said, was the greatest he had ever seen. The colors are wonderful. The millions of minute designs are startling. And yet the master-builder of Seville is unknown. It seems almost as if it were of divine creation.

Fall Handicap Meet

Plaisted Noses Out Foster in Two Mile Race—Farrington '27 and Ham '27 Show Well

The fall handicap meet has been under progress for the last week or so. There has been some very keen competition, and many fast times have been turned in. Several freshmen have showed up exceedingly well. On his first day out for track Frank Farrington easily won his heats in the trials and semi-finals of the 150 yard dash. Ham, the freshman cross country star, won the 660. Albert Ecke and David Sellow performed creditably in the shot put and 300 yard dash respectively. One of the closest and most thrilling races of the whole meet was the two mile. Frankie Plaisted and Bob Foster, both starting from scratch, were neck and neck the whole distance, with Plaisted barely beating out Foster at the tape.

The finals of the 300 yard and 150 yard runs will be run off after Coach Magee returns Wednesday from Detroit, where he has been attending a conference.

Hammer throw—First, Fish, 10 feet, 105 ft. 11 in.; second, Hill, 20 feet, 92 ft. 3 in.; third, Burnett, scratch, 87 ft. 6 in.

Two mile run—First, Plaisted, scratch; second, Foster, scratch; third, Small, 50 yards. Time 10:26.

75 yard dash—first, Mason, scratch; second, Gray, 2 yards; third, Spinney, scratch. Time 8:1.

Shot put—First, Charles, scratch, 37 ft. 4 1/2 in.; second, Baker, scratch, 37 ft. 3 1/2 in.; and Littlefield, 4 ft., 37 ft. 3 1/2 in.; third, Ecke, 5 feet, 36 ft. 3 in.

300 yard dash—First heat: First, Spinney, scratch; second, Huntress, 12 yards. 2nd heat: first, Hamilton, scratch; second, Nevins, 8 yards. Third heat: first, Mason, scratch; second, Burgess, 10 yards. Fourth heat: first, Tarbell, scratch; second, Young, eight yards. Fifth heat: first, Littlefield, scratch; second, Nelson, scratch. Sixth heat: first, Lovell, scratch; second, Rowe, 8 yards. Seventh heat: first, Fanning, scratch; second, Sellow, 2 yards.

150 yard dash—Semi-finals: first heat, first, Mason, scratch; second, Littlefield, 2 yards. Second heat: first, F. Farrington, scratch; second, Lovell, 2 yards.

High jump—first, Lovell; second, Littlefield; third, Hall and Hamilton, tied. Height, 5 ft. 1 in.

Annie Talbot Cole

Lecturers Since 1907

The Annie Talbot Cole Lectureship which this year brought to the College Doctor Ralph Adams Cram, was founded in 1907 by Mrs. Calista Maybaw of South Orange, N. J., in memory of her niece, Mrs. Samuel Valentine Cole, of Norton, Mass. The Lectureship annually brings to the college a speaker of world renown, a leader of thought, and a master in some chosen field.

The lectures have been delivered by:

1907—Professor George Herbert Palmer, LL.D.

1909—Reverend Charles A. Dinsmore.

1909—Honorable Samuel W. McCall, LL.D.

1910—Reverend Samuel Valentine Cole, D.D.

1911—Professor Bliss Perry, LL.D., Litt.D., LL.D.

NEWS COMEDY REVIEW

Proposed Bowdoin World War Memorial

Overseers, Messrs. Mallett and Achorn; from the Alumni Council, Messrs. H. H. Pierce, W. W. Lawrence and A. G. Staples; from the Faculty, Messrs. Hutchins and Burnett. The Committee was organized with President Sills as Chairman and Mr. Lawrence as Secretary.

At this same Commencement Messrs. McKim, Mead and White of New York City, the designers of the a memorial. Finally, in order that these problems might be tentatively decided so that definite instructions could be given to the architect, a meeting was held at the residence of W. J. Curtis, Esq., in New York City, at which it was voted:

1. That no names, whether of those who served or of those who fell, be placed on the memorial.

2. That the memorial be constructed of granite, the quality and color to be left to the discretion of the architects.

3. That Messrs. McKim, Mead and White be requested to prepare definite plans for a rostrum of granite, at lines of the rostrum into relief, and to provide a suggestion of a setting. The trees and shrubs will depend entirely upon the final location. The architect in general charge, the senior member of the firm of McKim, Mead and White, Mr. William M. Kendall, who has shown great interest in the harmonious development of the campus, and upon whom the College conferred a degree at last Commencement, strongly recommends placing the rostrum upon the axis formed by the Art Building and Appleton Hall, about half way between the two walks running parallel to the dormitory, but facing the Art Building. This location is illustrated in the accompanying cut. The path leading directly across from the Art Building would be continued either up to the Memorial, or stop just short of the further cross path. "This seemed the only site in the whole campus," writes Mr. Kendall, "which afforded a direct relation to some other important construction, and that seemed to me of paramount importance." One of the advantages of this site is that the audience would not have to face the afternoon sun, as they would if the rostrum were located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building. Many alumni have expressed a desire to have the memorial situated beneath or near the Thorndike Oak. Professional advice is against this, for two reasons. In the first place, it is unwise to locate a permanent structure with reference to a tree, the life of which is limited. A stone memorial built near the tree would probably shorten its life considerably. In the second place, the general effect of the campus will not be improved by a structure in the center, unrelated to the general plan of the buildings and grounds. This whole question remains to be decided; no conclusion in regard to the location of the rostrum has yet been made.

A report, embodying the results of the activities of the War Memorial Committee, was presented to the Boards at Commencement, 1923. The Committee was by vote continued with the following membership: the President; Messrs. Curtis, Pierce and Lawrence from the Trustees; Messrs. Achorn, Fisher and Quimby from the Overseers; Professors Hutchins and Burnett from the Faculty, and Messrs. R. L. Dana and Frost from the Alumni Council.

No action of any kind has been taken since Commencement. It is believed that the Alumni should have ample time to become familiar with the suggested design, and that they should understand very clearly what has been done in the past by the Committees who have had the work in charge. This article has been written to serve both these purposes. Great care has been taken in the past, as the foregoing account shows, to avoid any action which did not have the support of representative alumni, the Boards and the Faculty. Before the Committee appeals for subscriptions, it desires to have the criticisms and suggestions of all who are interested in the present plans. Such communications may be addressed to the Secretary of the Committee, Professor William W. Lawrence, Columbia University, New York City. Those who write are reminded that only constructive criticism is helpful, and that it is not advisable, in view of the large majority of votes cast for the rostrum, and the time and effort spent in

Another proposed site: between the Class of '75 Gates and the Science Building

Art Building and the '75 Gates, were appointed by the Boards consulting architects of the College.

A circular was prepared by the War Memorial Committee in April, 1920, containing full information in regard to action already taken by the Alumni Council and the Boards, and preliminary descriptions and cuts of designs for a rostrum, and for a statue set against a background much like that of the rostrum. The burning of the Bowdoin Union made further consideration of a building seem advisable, and Hon. P. P. Baxter wrote urging the endowment of memorial scholarships. Copies of this circular, in which these four proposals were carefully set forth, were sent to members of the Governing Boards, the Faculty, the presidents of alumni associations, class secretaries, and other representative alumni. Postcards were enclosed, and the replies carefully tabulated. A large majority voted for the rostrum, the vote standing as follows: Rostrum, 74; Building for the Bowdoin Union, 32; Scholarships, 27; a Statue, 7. It will be observed that there were more votes for the rostrum than for all the other proposals combined. The report of the Committee was laid before the Boards at Commencement, 1920, and by vote of the Boards the same Committee was continued, "with power to decide upon and prepare a final design for such rostrum, and also be authorized to invite, at the proper time, subscriptions for this purpose."

Much time and effort was devoted by the Committee to investigation of the various problems involved in the design, location, and erection of such a cost not to exceed $40,000, exclusive of architects' fees, all names to be omitted, but with appropriate inscriptions, and with such figures as can be procured for such a sum.

4. That it be located between the '75 Gates and the Science Building, the exact spot to be determined by the architects.

5. That the selection of inscriptions be referred to a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Sills, Cole, and Lawrence, with power, the inscriptions to be either in English or in Latin, or both.

6. That a model be prepared, to be on view at Commencement.

7. That the conclusions of the Committee be submitted to the Boards for their information at Commencement.

In accordance with these instructions, definite plans were prepared by Messrs. McKim, Mead and White, and submitted to the Boards at Commencement 1923, in blue-print form. These included tentative designs for the figure sculpture, by Tom Jones. At the same time a plaster model of the memorial, constructed with great care to scale, and with the sculptures added, was placed on view in the Art Building, where it is still on exhibition. A cut of this model accompanies this article. Those who inspect the model are asked to remember that the inscriptions are not those which will be used on the completed structure, but added to give the decorative effect of the lettering, that the Memorial will not be white, as the plaster suggests, but a gray in general like that of the Chapel, and that the shrubbery is merely added to throw the perfecting plans for it, to advocate a different type of memorial. Any structure of this sort, which fulfils an aesthetic rather than a utilitarian function, must necessarily arouse some differences of opinion. Such differences the Committee will endeavor to reconcile, so far as is possible, in accordance with the professional advice engaged upon the work. Nothing will be left undone to secure to the College a memorial of permanent artistic beauty, a worthy commemoration of the devotion of the sons of Bowdoin to their country. It is much to be desired that as many of the alumni as possible shall have a share in its erection.

A smaller number of contributions by wealthier alumni will be much less an expression of the true spirit of the College than more modest subscriptions given by a larger number of men. And after the final decisions are made, the final designs accepted, and the final location determined, it is of the first importance that the alumni as a whole shall give the execution of the work their heartiest moral support, even if their own personal preferences have not coincided with the opinions of the majority, or the counsels of the architectural and landscape experts. Erected with enthusiasm and the hearty co-operation of all Bowdoin men, the memorial will be truly an expression of the gratitude of the College as a whole for those of its sons who gave their services in the World War.

Mr. MacCormick has had considerable experience in this line, as in 1917 he and Mr. Osborne made an investigation of the conditions at the Naval Prison in the Portsmouth Navy Yard. Previous to this Mr. MacCormick had made an investigation at the jails of Maine and of the State Prison at Thomaston.

Winning Team to Meet Amherst in Underclass Debate

Rouillard '24, chairman of the committee in charge of the Freshman-Sophomore debate, has announced the topic which will serve for that debate as well as the underclass debate with Amherst. It is "Resolved: That the United States should grant recognition to the Government of Russia."

Trials for the Freshman-Sophomore debate will be held in the debating room in Hubbard Hall Wednesday, November 21, from four to six o'clock. All men who are desirous of trying out should see Rouillard at 7 South Appleton at once.

The underclass debate with Amherst will come in January and will be at Amherst. The Bowdoin team will be picked from the class teams in the Freshman-Sophomore debate which will take place in December.

The debate with Amherst this year will be the third one which has been held. Bowdoin has won once and Amherst once.

In the interclass debate last year, the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen and were in turn defeated by the Amherst team.

Sunday Chapel
Science and Mankind Subject of Professor Crook's Sermon

The Chapel address last Sunday was given by Assistant Professor Crook, the new member of the department of Economics and Sociology. The text was taken from the thirteenth chapter of the Book of Deuteronomy beginning with the tenth verse: "I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil; . . . therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live."

Science, as we term it today, is not more than three centuries old. One must multiply this length of time by one hundred to reach the period when man was beginning to be a social animal. Out of the ice age came a totally different man than had existed before—man with the tool of language.

Thirty thousand years is a small time compared with that which it took man to come from the animal stage. To get that period of time we should have to multiply three centuries by three thousand.

This development may be easily seen by comparing it with the life of a man who lives to the age of fifty. Forty-nine years out of his fifty the man would be struggling to secure a foothold for himself over his rivals. In the last few weeks of his life he would have learned to talk. On the final day, just before his fiftieth birthday, he would have all the wonders of modern civilization burst upon him.

We are carrying only a thin veneer in our civilization. A scratch may penetrate it. Our great problem is how to handle present day science without destroying ourselves. We must restrain our cave man instincts.

"I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil; . . . therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live."

Professor Dewing Reads Paper On Greek Standard

Informative And Interesting Lecture Delivered At This Meeting

A meeting of the Ibis, senior society, was held Friday evening, Nov. 23, at the Zeta Psi Chapter house. Each member was present with one guest.

President K. C. M. Sills, Professors Elliott, Means, and Dewing were the guests of the society. Professor Dewing read an excellent paper on the Greek Standard.

The Greek Standard, an ideal of perfection, is perhaps best expressed by the motto "Nothing in Excess." It is illustrated in the fields of government, mode of living, literature, constructive and plastic arts. In government it is expressed more in the moderation of the individual than in the government as a whole. This condition was made possible by the Athenian type, one which would doubtless never recur. Moderation in food, clothing, and manners, is apparent in their mode of living. Grecian literature is famous for its drama, comedy and philosophy, while as for the constructive art, altho the buildings were not impressive because of size, like the Coliseum, yet their beauty and harmony of line have won for them a noteworthy distinction. The same was true of the Plastic Arts. The statues were not colossal but sought to express perfection of form.

The reading of the paper was followed by an interesting discussion which brought out Professor Dewing's knowledge of his subject. Professor Dewing was a Professor of Classics and dean of Robert's college, Constantinople. Later he was Professor of Classics at Princeton. He served with the American Red Cross in Greece in 1918 and 1919.

Athletic Systems Used At Bowdoin And Williams

In a recent issue of a Boston paper there appeared an article concerning the success of the "athletics for all" policy that has been adopted by Williams College. Williams has been meeting with unusual success in intercollegiate athletics since this program was put into effect last fall. Her football team lost only to Tufts and Yale, and again won the "Little Three" championship this fall by defeating Amherst last Saturday. Her basketball, hockey, relay, and swimming teams were among the best in New England. Her baseball team last spring was unusually strong, winning the "Little Three" championship in addition to defeating such teams as Harvard, Vermont, and Columbia. Williams also came through in tennis, winning the New England championship in both singles and doubles.

This fall in the freshman class at Williams the following number of men are turning out for various sports, football, 45; soccer, 24; cross-country, 16; tennis, 43; golf, 50; baseball, 18; track, 15; regular work, 38; physiotherapy, 3. Upper class are also compelled to come out for some sport or other, and 85% of the entire student body are reporting for regularly organized physical activities. There are 300 men who are out every day, and the remainder report at least three times a week.

At Bowdoin, although all are compelled to take physical training there is no "Sports for All" program, except for the freshmen. Of the freshman class this fall, 14 are out for baseball, 37 for track, 36 for tennis, 32 for football, and 14 for golf. It is rather interesting to note that while Williams has been least successful of late in track than in any other sport, that is where Bowdoin has had her greatest success. Here there are more freshmen out for track than any other sport, while at Williams there are many more out for several other sports than for cross-country and track combined. Also, here the men are out for track all winter, and there is a freshman track team that competes in several meets.

There are many who recommend that there should be compulsory athletics for all at Bowdoin as there is at Williams. But if this is too radical a departure, open up the fall athletic system for freshmen to men from all classes, and get the spirit started of "every man out to help the teams," and out to help by daily practicing one sport or another. A small college of the size of Bowdoin, to be successful in athletics is forced into one of two methods. She may adopt questionable methods of securing and keeping athletics; or she may adopt an inclusive system of sports for all which will develop material for next year. The first method is entirely contrary to the principles of Bowdoin College, and consequently she should work for the latter.

Smyrna Disaster Described By Mr. Birge In Lecture

One of the most unique lectures ever delivered at Bowdoin was given by a "Y" speaker Tuesday, Nov. 20, in Hubbard Hall. The lecture was given before a small audience, due possibly to the short notice of it that was given. It was delivered in a very informal manner, his listeners sitting in a circle, and asking him questions whenever they desired.

The lecturer described the Smyrna disaster as follows. "The Greeks were originally about 200 miles inland on the coast of Asia Minor, completely surrounded by Turks. In the middle of August, the Greek army was defeated and fled toward Smyrna. Their route led them thru two valleys the inhabitants of which joined the soldiers in their flight. No trace of the remainder of those inhabitants who were left, has ever been found. They were completely annihilated by the oncoming Turks.

There gathered in Smyrna, over 100,000 refugees. The normal population of the city was a little less than 400,000. Then, for one whole day, between the time of the fleeing of the Greeks to the arrival of the Turks, there was no government in Smyrna. The city was very orderly, however, and no violence was committed.

Then the advance guard of the Turkish army arrived and the looting began. With the coming of the main army, the murdering of Armenians and Greeks became a common practice. Mr. Birge had charge of the Armenian college, a school of about 400 students, in Smyrna. This place was exempt from the general carnage but suffered from looting. Two days after the Turks came, the women and children were ordered to leave. And when the Kee, or water-front, was crowded with fear-maddened refugees, the city was fired. By ceaseless efforts he managed to get most of the women off onto the boats in the harbor. None of the men were allowed to go.

The Turks soon deported all the men into the interior and ordered all other people to leave Smyrna by the last of October. Then one of the most heroic feats of the entire disaster was performed. Mr. Jennings, a Y.M.C.A. Secretary, chartered a merchant vessel in the employ of the Greek government for $4,000 and sold tickets among the refugees to pay for the passage. Jennings then went to Greece and by every means in his power persuaded the Greek government to send a fleet of naval vessels to take off the remaining refugees. Finally, he gained the desired fleet and commanded by himself in want of an admiral, the Greeks sailed over to Smyrna and took off the last of their countrymen. Approximately 235,000 people were removed in this way. The Turks killed about 10,000.

When asked the reason from the Turks' point of view for the disaster, Mr. Birge replied, "The Greeks are hereditary enemies of the Turks. They were occupying a small sector inserted in Turkish territory and continually stirring up trouble among the Armenians and even Turks themselves. Therefore, the logical step was to remove them and the results showed the Turks' method of removing."

Sunday Chapel

"Independence" Subject of President Sills' Address

At the Sunday chapel exercises of November 25, President Sills spoke on the subject of "Independence."

The subject may not seem to apply to college students. Nevertheless it was made the subject of an address by Rudyard Kipling to the students of Saint Andrew's University. It seems to be the fault of the present generation to follow the steps of their elders rather than follow out our own initiative.

This is illustrated by the football and baseball games as they are played today. In many of these competitive contests, the coaches direct every move of the players. It is easily compared to the case of a professor sitting down beside a pupil during an examination and answering the questions for him.

We should follow the example of Pasteur who educated himself and kept up his general reading thru life. If the average college man will gain initiative sufficient to do this, he can do himself more good than "the seven watchmen who sit in a high tower."

Football Letters Awarded By Athletic Council

Central System of Accounting Introduced—Nominations for Football Manager

At a meeting of the Athletic Council on November 21 football letters were awarded the following members of the squad:

Capt. Malcolm E. Morrell '24.
Robert T. Phillips '24.
Robert S. Burnett '25.
Ernest L. Blake '25.
James Berry '25.
John W. Cronin '25.
Joseph D. Garland '25.
Charles L. Hildreth '25.
Horace A. Hildreth '25.
Richard P. Jones '25.
Alden G. Smith '25.
Frank L. Tucker '25.
George S. Robinson, Jr., '25.
Kenneth R. McLean '26.
Frank A. Farrington '27.
Julius Kohler '27.

A central system of accounting has been arranged by Professor Cushing and will be used in the future by all managers of athletic sports. This method brings all athletic funds under central control and administration, and combined with a system of vouchers the financial end of athletics will be put on a sound basis. Assistant Graduate Manager Cobb will have charge of the central store of equipment and supply, which with the new accounting system will go into effect by the first of the year.

Gulliver '25 and Horsman '25 were nominated by the Athletic Council for the management of football. The elections will take place this month or early next month. The next meeting of the council will be December 20.

Fire In Sigma Nu House Causes Slight Damage

The Sigma Nu chapter house suffered damages of nearly $1,000 from a fire which started in the cellar of the house on Sunday afternoon of last week. The damage was fully covered by insurance. Mal Merrill was the first to notice the fire, when his attention was attracted to it by a burst of flame from the basement door. He immediately summoned the fire department, which, with the aid of a large number of college students, succeeded in checking the blaze in about half an hour.

The fire was exceedingly smoky so that the pipemen were obliged to wear gas masks in order to enter the basement. However, beyond the smoke damage but little loss was occasioned on the first and second floors, and $500 should be more than sufficient to cover the damage in the basement. The all out sounded at 4:55 o'clock.

The fire evidently started in a rubbish barrel, but many are of the opinion that it was caused by a short circuit in the electric light line, as a humming sound had been heard about the time of the fire.

Christmas Number Of Bear-Skin Soon To Appear

Issue Is Parody of Vanity Fair—New Ideas Introduced

The Bear-Skin Board has been busy since early fall collecting and arranging the material for the next publication, which will appear at the Christmas House Parties. This number of the Bear-Skin is to be a parody number of Vanity Fair, and is eagerly expected by the college.

Aside from a few unavoidable mechanical defects, the number will be an excellent parody, and ought to be one of the best numbers of the Bear-Skin yet published. The Board has selected a number of typical contributors to and features of this magazine, and has imitated their manners and personalities.

The text will consist of parodies of the well-known articles on Bridge, Automobiles and the Well-Dressed Man, together with satirical sketches after the manner of George Chapman, Fish, and Mansereel. Besides these there will be a number of sketches appreciated most by readers of the magazine. For the first time also, photographs will be introduced in the Bear-Skin in imitation of the many photographs to be found in Vanity Fair, showing the latest development in art, the stage, automobiles, and the well-known Hall of Fame.

The cover for this issue has been done by Williams '25, and is a perfect parody of the usual style of Vanity Fair cover. Photographic sketches by Leighton, Art Editor, will add much to the completeness of the number. The Board wishes to thank its contributors, if any, through these columns.

Football Schedule For 1924 Season Announced

The football schedule for the coming season has been completed and was recently announced by Austin H. McCormick, who had charge of making up the schedule. The season will open with St. Stephen's Episcopal College of Annandale-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., which on September 27th will come to Brunswick. This will be the first time that the two colleges have ever played each other. Other home games will be played with Amherst, University of Maine and Tufts, while the White team will play Williams, Colby, Bates and Wesleyan on their home grounds.

The schedule is as follows:
Sept. 27—St. Stephen's at Brunswick.
Oct. 4—Williams at Williamstown, Mass.
Oct. 11—Amherst at Brunswick.
Oct. 18—Colby at Waterville.
Oct. 25—Bates at Lewiston.
Nov. 3—University of Maine at Brunswick.
Nov. 10—Tufts at Brunswick.
Nov. 17—Wesleyan at Middletown, Conn.

Magee Is Selected As A Coach For Olympic Team

High Honor Paid Bowdoin College Track Coach by Head of the Amateur Athletic Union

John J. Magee, the Bowdoin track coach, has been recommended as one of the assistant coaches of the United States Olympic track team by President William C. Prout of Boston, head of the Amateur Athletic Union of America. Recommended as head coach is Lawson Robertson of the University of Pennsylvania, with the following other assistants: Steve Farrell, of the University of Michigan; John F. Moakley of Cornell; Keene Fitzpatrick of Princeton; Harry Hillman of Dartmouth; Thomas F. Keane of Syracuse; Elmer Oliphant of the Army; Harry Gilt of Illinois; Ed Farrell of Harvard; A. A. Stagg of Chicago; George Bresnahan of Iowa; Walter Christie of California; and Dean Cromwell of University of Southern California.

The fact that the Bowdoin coach was among those selected is a fine tribute to the ability of the man, who has always been recognized as one of the leading track instructors in the East, and a bigger tribute in as much as all of the other coaches have been recommended from the large universities.

Jack Magee has been at Bowdoin ten years. Since his entrance Bowdoin has steadily jumped under his direction to the pinnacle of success in track. He is known as a developer of track stars and it was through his tireless efforts that ex-Captain Tootell, the American hammer champion and record holder, reached fame. In addition to Tootell, Magee has developed many other stars.

The debating trials for the Freshman-Sophomore debate were held in the Debating Room, Nov. 21 and 22. The competition, especially for the Freshman team, was close. The results of the judges' decisions were: Freshmen: Hewitt, Jones, MacQuire, Sophomores: Reid, Griffith, Tevitz. The subject of this year's debate is "Resolved: That the United States should grant recognition to the government of Russia." The debate will take place some time in December and the winning team will debate a similar team at Amherst in mid-winter. The sophomores have been victorious in every contest thus far but should be given a hard fight for debating honors. The entire Freshman team is made up of veteran speakers while Reid is the only Sophomore who has as yet shown his ability in debating. The honors in the last two Amherst debates have been even, Bowdoin winning the first, and Amherst, last year. The Class of 1925 team debated against Amherst both years. The debate this year is at Amherst and should furnish a great incentive for both teams to win.

Sophomores Win Over Freshmen In Football Game By Score of 3-0

Wiseman's Field Goal Wins For Sophomores—Morrell and Ecker are Freshman Stars—Underclassmen Outplay Opponents

Last Saturday on a field thick with mud and in the midst of a continued torrent of rain the Freshman football team was humbled by the accurate toe of Wiseman, the Sophomore left half-back, 3-0. Out playing their opponents in almost every department of the game, the lower classmen seemed to lack the punch to push the ball across though they got within scoring distance several times and were almost always dangerous. Wiseman was by far the out-standing star of the game, while Morrell and Ecker played good games for the Freshmen with Keegan's defensive work for the Sophs.

The Sophomores received the kick-off and made a first down but then tumbled to the Freshmen in mid-field. In three rushes they went twelve yards and then kicked. The second year men punted back to their opponents on the forty-five yard line. A series of line plunges by Morrell and Murphy put the ball on the three yard line where the Sophs held for downs, just as they punted out the period ended.

The second period had just started when the Freshmen fumbled the slippery ball and an exchange of punts resulted. Shortly after this Morrell threw a pass to Lavine who fany dove into the air and just barely caught it. The ball was then on the twelve yard line. A drop kick by Morrell failed and the Sophomores punted out of danger from their one yard line where the ball was stopped. The Freshmen again tried a pass and Wiseman intercepted on the ten yard line. The half ended when the Sophs were held for downs on the twenty yard line.

The lower classmen kicked off and Murphy recovered Wiseman's fumble on the first play. Smith the Sophomore right half intercepted a pass on the thirty-eight yard line and an exchange of punts followed. Then a beautifully executed pass, Smith to Wiseman, put the Sophomores in scoring position and Wiseman dropped back and sent a beautiful drop-kick through the bars for the only score of the game.

In the fourth period the Freshmen again threatened their opponents' goal line when a Sophomore interference with a player catching the ball on the twenty-five yard line, Morrell made thirteen yards through the line and a pass, Morrell to Vaux, placed their team on the five yard line, but try as they could, the Sophomore line was impenetrable, and the upper classmen kicked the ball out of danger and from then on the game was not dangerous for either side.

Intellectual Honesty.

Almost every basic problem we meet in life may be solved by a judicious reference to common sense. At the present time, and here in Bowdoin, there arises the inevitable question of intellectual honesty. Here too, the common sense solution is most practicable, for the problem is certainly a division of a very decidedly fundamental question of ethics.

It is indeed unfortunate that it should become necessary for attention to be called to this question. It should be no problem at all in a college where the stamina of the men is for the most part very high, and where the students have been prepared for college in schools of excellent reputation. But since the problem does exist, it is evident that something is lacking in our ethical system, and that we must find the root of the evil in order to exterminate it. Possible remedies will be the subject of later editorials in this paper.

We undergraduates at Bowdoin are not in the position of Lucretius, who could gaze from a philosophical eminence and consider the sweetness of being able to observe others weltering in the waves at sea. We too, are in the pounding surge of the tide. There can be nothing Lucretian, nothing pharisaical about our attitude. There is no opportunity for us to assume a "better than thou" state of mind in our relations with other institutions of learning more apparently in difficulty than we are. The fact is that, even though we may not be in the most violent wash of the waves, we are in the same sea, in the same storm as are all others disturbed by defects in collective honor.

Dishonesty, or a lack of appreciation of honor, in intellectual affairs manifests itself in various ways. First, and most obvious of these is cheating or "cribbing" in examinations. This is the major condition that arises as a result of the combined influence of several minor conditions. Among these are such not uncommon practices as relying upon one good-natured and capable man in a group to do all the work of preparation in accumulating material for reports and examinations. This type of dishonesty is not particularly bad in itself, but it is bad in that it robs every man participating in it of intellectual advancement and moral development. It is not good for ten men in a group to rely on the eleventh to put his time and energy, before an examination, into preparing meaty outlines for the use of the other ten. Nor is it good for one man to read material assigned, taking careful notes, to hand on the information he has received to the others in his group. Even the cramming or the tutoring system, as widely practiced, is subject to a great deal of abuse. Tutoring is good only so long as it develops the mental ability of the taught. When its end and aim is to merely increase the store of information it, too, becomes a form of intellectual dishonesty.

These suggestions open up a whole field of petty misdeameans that are of minor importance insofar as they affect the standing of the college among its fellows, but are of real weight in the influence they have upon the young men who resort to them. There is but one way to combat them—to force the destructive powers into submission that our men may come out of college frank, free citizens of the world. That way is personal determination. Well, indeed, should we know that the whole object of education is to increase the mental capacity of the student. There can be no such increase without the volition of the individual, and that volition shows itself in the effort made toward such a development.

Not long ago the writer was talking with a man of wide business experience, acquainted intimately with the world and its problems. In the course of our conversation I asked my friend what his advice was in general to young people of today. He said that his advice would be that found in the old copy books of our early school days, the maxims that have been offered as guides to young minds for centuries. Such maxims as the Golden Rule, and "Honesty is the best policy," along with "Nihil sine labor" are as true today as they were ages ago when the first crude philosopher fashioned them in the first crude language. Perhaps we youths do realize the verity of these rules of conduct, but we rather scoff at them as old-fashioned, forced out by the pressure of a new era in thought and policy.

The fact remains that we are faced with a problem as elementary as are the maxims. The solution is at our finger tips—in our own hands. If we want to make Bowdoin known as a real "nurturer of men" we can do it. But not by vote of the faculty nor of the student body. Whatever is done will be done by the individual, or by a number of individuals sufficient to enforce the right upon irreconcilable wrong-doers. Can it be that Bowdoin men are too ultra-modernly pigheaded to disbelieve the proven fact that honesty, even in small matters, is the best policy?

An Open Letter

To Hon. J. Porter Russell, Tufts '98
A Grateful Acknowledgment from Edgar O. Achorn, Bowdoin '81

My Dear Fidus Achates:

For many years you and I have met on the bloody sands of the Tufts-Bowdoin football field and have done valiant service "rooting" for our respective teams.

It may be at times that our loyalty has carried us beyond the limits of discretion—as it did a year ago at Portland. I was then the subject of considerable solicitude on the part of my friends because I took up with your wager—or shall I say gentlemen's agreement—that, depending upon which team suffered defeat, the one or the other of us should walk home.

These good friends of mine were apprehensive lest I might faint by the wayside, by reason of my advanced years, if I lost out.

The Fates kindly assigned me to a seat in the Pullman car, but I never understood that you suffered any permanent disability by reason of your long hike from Portland to Boston—being still in the bloom of youth. With this experience of yours in mind and the desire to get even with me that must have surged in your manly breast, I am bound to say that I was profoundly impressed—I might add relieved—by your magnanimity in declining to cover my bet of $50 on the outcome of the game Saturday, November 10, at Tufts Oval.

Your summing up of the situation that "to accept my wager would be like taking candy away from a child and you were above such rapine," while painful to listen to impressed me as Websterian and as marking you a gentleman and a true sport—at any rate it let me out.

I feel that your kindly conduct ought not to be hid under a bushel, that I owe it to you to thus publicly to pay you a tribute of praise.

I am told (unless all signs fail) that Bowdoin will have a "walkover" next year when she meets Tufts on the gridiron. In anticipation of that game, I hope that I in turn may be sufficiently high-minded as to withstand the temptation of betting with you on a sure thing.

Faithfully yours,

EDGAR O. ACHORN.

A rare species of bird was the gift of Mr. G. Allen Howe to the ornithological collection at Bowdoin. Mr. Howe has just returned from Mere Point where he has been on a hunting expedition in Casco Bay. When he came back, he brought with him a bird which had a large irregular spot on the back of its head and black bar across its white wings. Professor Albert O. Gross identified it as a Clangula islandica.

Friendship

An Acrostic

How glows the earth beneath his cheerful ray
As rising from his couch, the sun appears,
Repelling darkness, letting in the day,
Revolving through the cycles of the years,
Yet mounts he higher in his heavenward race,
Floods with a glory everything below;
Then turning hastes to hide his shining face.
How beautiful flames up the after-glow!
Our friendships formed in days of trusting youth,
Made stronger through our years of toil and strife,
Perfected in sincerity and truth,
Serenest pleasure give in closing life.
Of all good gifts the gods to us may send
None can be better than an honest friend.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

I feel that the officiating in last Saturday's game between the Sophomores and Freshmen teams should not go by without a word of comment. I express the opinion of the Freshmen team, as well as my own, when I say the game was a bit more intelligently handled than in several collegiate struggles of the first rank, which we have seen. Referee Gibbons, Umpire Tucker, Field Judge Blake, and Linesmen Kirkpatrick, Miguel, and Gulliver are all to be congratulated upon their high grade work.

Campus Notes

On Friday, November 23, the freshman delegation of the Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity gave an informal smoker at the chapter house. The guests were entertained by the orchestra at the house and by bridge. Refreshments consisting of delicious mousse, cookies and candy were served and natural wood pipes of a peculiar variety were given out as favors. It was a great success and afforded a general good time for delegates from all of the houses on the campus.

The Deke freshman smoker was held last Tuesday evening, November 13, at the chapter house. Twenty odd guests were present. The evening was spent in playing cards and pool. Refreshments of ice cream, fancy crackers, and punch were served. At the close of the evening favors in the form of small Bowdoin beads were given out. One of the guests, Chi Hai Fong, wrote in Chinese on each of the beads the name of the guest to whom it belonged.

Any visitor to Bowdoin would think that tag-football is the popular sport of the college, for on any fair day directly after lunch there are anywhere from five to eight games in progress on different parts of the campus and around the fraternity houses, and the game is growing increasingly popular.

There is considerable talk around the campus in favor of organizing an interfraternity league. In fact a few games have already been played between teams representing different houses. Tag-football would be an ideal sport for an interfraternity league. The only equipment necessary is a football. No special ability is necessary to enable one to be able to play. There is generally a half hour every day after lunch and before the first afternoon class, and which would afford ample opportunity in which to play. Another thing that makes a league possible is the fact that there is no need of a set number of players to a team. Anywhere from four to ten can play on a side, although seven is about the best number. Unlike football no training is necessary, the only physical requirement is that one be able to run. The sport is one that appeals to the average student, as it combines certain elements of football that go towards making a popular sport. Last fall there was a league at Dartmouth that met with considerable success.

Informal Dance Held In Hyde Gymnasium

About sixty or seventy couples enjoyed the informal dance held at the gymnasium on the evening of November 24 under the auspices of the Student Council. The proceeds were turned over to the musical clubs to help defray present outstanding debts and the expenses of the coming trips this year. Mrs. Edward H. Wass and Mrs. M. Phillips Mason were the patronesses. Music was furnished by a college orchestra.

An invitation has been received by college authorities from Harvard to participate in a meet June 7. Owing to the fact that the final examinations start June 5, it will not be possible to accept. However an attempt will be made to change the date to May 10.

The opening game of the football season next fall will be with St. Stephens College of Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y., September 27. Although St. Stephens is a small college it has a very good standing. It is a college of the type of Trinity, with which Bowdoin had athletic relations for several years. The football team had a splendid record this year, defeating Hamilton, C.C.N.Y., Worcester Tech, Drexel, and holding New York University to a 14 to 6 score. The scheduling of this game is in the policy of the college to have athletic relations in football with colleges of the same type as Bowdoin.

An attractive booklet published to advertise Dunshire Clothing contains brief sketches of American Colleges and Universities founded before 1800. Bowdoin is ninth in order.

Alumni Notes

1871—Dr. C. M. Bisbee, the oldest physician in Oxford County in active practise, was given a surprise birthday party on November 28 at his home in Rumford. Dr. Bisbee has followed his profession for 52 years. For 16 years he was examining surgeon for the United States before going to Rumford.

1875—William S. Hunton of Readfield, President of the Maine State Dairymen's Association, addressed the Kiwanis Club of Portland last Tuesday on the subject of farming conditions in Maine.

1882—George G. Weeks, a former speaker of the Maine House of Representatives, was stricken as he was about to register in a Portland hotel on the evening of November 21. He died shortly afterward, the cause being heart disease.

Mr. Weeks, who had practiced law in Fairfield since 1885, served five terms in the lower house between 1893 and 1910, being speaker in 1900, and served in the Senate in 1899 and 1902. He was born in Fairfield in 1860. He was prominent in Masonry and in Somerset county banking circles.

1891—Wilbert G. Mallett, principal of Farmington Normal School, has been elected president of the newly organized Abbott School.

1898—Governor Percival Baxter, in his official capacity, became a member of the historic South Parish Congregational Church of Augusta, November 4. James G. Blaine was a member of this church.

1901—Dr. George L. Pratt of Farmington has been nominated by Governor Baxter as Medical Examiner of Franklin County.

1909—Ernest L. Goodspeed of Gardiner has been nominated as a disclosure commissioner by Governor Baxter.

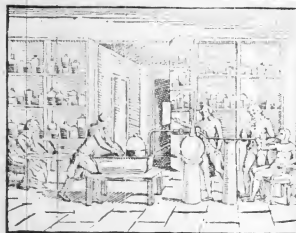

1909—Ralph Owen Brewster of Portland recently made formal announcement that he would seek the Republican nomination for governor in 1924. Mr. Brewster was born in Dexter, and is a graduate of the Harvard Law School. He started practicing law in Portland after his graduation from law school. He has been a member of the State Senate and the House of Representatives. During the war he was regimental adjutant of the third Maine infantry, and later he resigned to enter the Field Artillery officers training school at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky.

1913—Dr. and Mrs. Neil A. Fogg of Rockland have received congratulation on the birth of a boy by radio by Donald B. MacMillan.

1916—Dwight H. Sayward of Portland received his appointment as Second Lieutenant in the Officers Reserve Corps, and has been assigned to the 303rd Infantry.

1917—Col. Shumway has gone to attend the funeral of George Dilboy, a member of the Yankee Division who was killed in action in France. Col. Shumway was a captain in the 103rd Company in which Dilboy served. Gov. Baxter appointed Col. Shumway to attend as the representative of the state.

Ex-1918—Rodney D. Turner, M. D. has established his office in association with his father, Dr. Oliver W. Turner, in the Augusta Trust Company building. Rodney Turner is a graduate of the medical school of Boston University, and of the Jefferson Medical School of Philadelphia, and has also received considerable special training in New York and Boston.

ANTOINE LAURENT LAVOISIER
1743-1794

Born in Paris, son of a wealthy tradesman. As a student won a prize for an essay on lighting the streets of Paris. Held various Government posts. A martyr of the Reign of Terror. Founder of modern chemistry.

This is the mark of the General Electric Company, an organization of 100,000 men and women engaged in producing the tools by which electricity—man's great servant—is making the world a better place to live in.

They couldn't destroy the work he did

"The Republic has no need for savants," sneered a tool of Robespierre as he sent Lavoisier, founder of modern chemistry, to the guillotine. A century later the French Government collected all the scientific studies of this great citizen of Paris and published them, that the record of his researches might be preserved for all time.

Lavoisier showed the errors of the theory of phlogiston—that hypothetical, material substance which was believed to be an element of all combustible compounds and to produce fire when liberated. He proved fire to be the union of other elements with a gas which he named oxygen.

Lavoisier's work goes on. In the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company the determination of the effects of atmospheric air on lamp filaments, on metals and on delicate instruments is possible because of the discoveries of Lavoisier and his contemporaries.

Choice of a Career

From the Yale News

THE NINETY-FOUR

Someone, probably an insurance agent, was quoted recently as saying that from the mass of one hundred college graduates one individual only rose to the Polo and butler class, perilously near the top of the financial ladder. Five others became comfortably off and found themselves after twenty years at the small yacht and chauffeur stage. The other ninety-four presumably congregate in the great section of the American people who drive their own Buicks to the golf club. In other words, dreaming about being a rich man is one thing, and making the grade is "something else again."

Yet the ninety-four presumably work just as hard as the sumptuous six. Their business is the axis on which a small and uninteresting world revolves. They have become devotees of the dollar and when that fickle deity deserts, have nowhere else to turn. Jammed in a dull, straight rut of business they can never leave the road and jump the fence into finer fields of life. This, then, is the portion of ninety-four men out of every hundred now on the campus.

The answer to the problem lies in the proper choice of a career.

Between now and Commencement we shall have something to offer on the subject of "Careers." Watch for the space with the Famous Signature.

officials were elected:President, Homer R. Blodgett '96;
Vice President, John Gregson '01; Secretary

The following members were present:

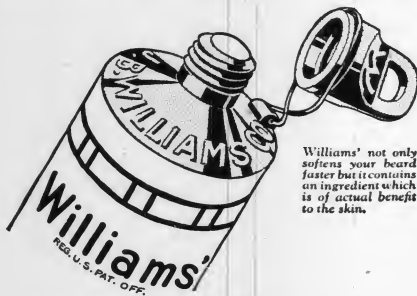

'George W. Fillson '77, Wm. R. Smith '90, Homer R. Blodgett '96, Preston Keys '96, John Gregson '01, Ralph Cushing '05, Clarence A. Rogers '06, Edward A. Duddy '07, Joseph H. Newell '12, Allen Blodgett '22, George Packard non graduate.

The president outlined briefly the most important events that had occurred at the College since the last meeting.
The general policies of Bowdoin and other small colleges were discussed in considerable detail.The meeting closed with singing familiar Bowdoin songs, Rogers being at the piano accompanied by Newell with the cornet.The Central Graduate Association of Theta Delta Chi held a luncheon at the University Club of Chicago on October 26, in honor of their founders. As Donald B.
MacMillan Bowdoin '98 is a member of their fraternity and as he is now in the frozen north he was specially considered at the meeting.
On this account and his being a Bowdoin man Mr. Tillson '77, Mr. Gregson '01, and Mr. Cushing '05 were invited to be present although each one represented a fraternity other than Theta Delta Chi. This proved to be a specially enjoyable affair to the Bowdoin men and was the first time when other than their own fraternity had been invited to participate in a strictly fraternity affair as far as they knew. To Bowdoin men it seemed a very happy idea showing as it did that true fraternal relations could exist between the different fraternities.

BOWDOIN'S VARSITY FOOTBALL LETTER MEN OF 1923 SEASON

Seventeen Men Are Awarded Letters

Malcolm Morrell, captain and quarterback of the White team, has played in the varsity backfield three of the four years he has spent at Bowdoin. He made his "B" in his Freshman year, playing right halfback. He did not play during his Sophomore year, but staged a comeback last year and played a wonderful game in the full-back position. His performance in the Harvard game was extremely creditable, both to Bowdoin and himself. In the Tufts game of last year Mal was partially responsible for Bowdoin's almost superhuman comeback which netted the White team a 13 to 12 victory in the second half. After having led this year's team through a rather dis-baseball. He was manager of the freshman football team. This year he has been playing in the line for the varsity, and has shown up as a dependable forward. His fraternity is Theta Delta Chi.

Ernest L. Blake made his letter this year after three years of hard work and plugging. At the Harvard school there he was a member of the football team for two years, and of the baseball team three years, and of senior year he was captain of the football team. At Bowdoin he was on both the freshman and sophomore football teams, being captain of the latter team. This is his first year as a member of the varsity. Last spring he made his letter in baseball. This fall he has been playing at end and in the backfield, performing very creditably at both positions. He is a fine wingman, and is a dependable ground-gainer in the backfield. He is a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

James Berry '25, unfortunately, received such a serious injury that he was unable to play in many games during the last football season. Because of his outstanding work as a linesman, however, he received his letter. He played throughout the Colby game with great success. In the Bates game his shoulder was so severely injured that it put him out of football for the rest of the year. The quality of his work is well known on the rink and on the diamond. Berry is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity.

John Cronin '25 won his football letter this year by playing through a season in which he measured up to the situation every time that he was called upon. He should make a strong bid for the vacancy left by the graduation of Captain Morrell this coming June. Jim has played a fighting game for three years on the football squad.

Coach Fred V. Ostergren

heartening series of defeats, he was rewarded by seeing his men outplay and outpoint the powerful Tufts team which up to the time of the Bowdoin game had been defeated only by Harvard. That game was the last that he will ever play for Bowdoin and in it his reputation as a field general was made. In spite of the many reverses that his team met, Mal worked and fought with undying confidence in his men and deserves to be rated as one of Bowdoin's big captains.

Manager Ross, of this year's team, has filled his position in a way that is beyond question worthy of praise. He deserves much credit for bringing the financial and managerial end of the team through the season so successfully. As this is the season that the Maine game was in Orono, it was thought early in the fall that football would, as is usual for seasons corresponding to this, turn in no surplus funds. To the surprise of all concerned, Manager Ross has not only turned in a far larger surplus than was expected by the most optimistic, but he has paid expenses that the alumni have handled in seasons past. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Robert Phillips has completed his third season with the team and will be available to Coach Ostergren for still another. Despite his size, he is the lightest man on the team, Bob has given some wonderful exhibitions of football during his career at Bowdoin.

Joseph Garland, fb

In the Tufts game of last year and against Norwich this year, he showed exceptional ability. He comes from Jamaica Plain, Mass., is twenty-two years old and prepared at Worcester Academy. He is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

This is Robert Burnett's third season on the football squad. He is a graduate of the Plymouth, Mass. High school, where he was on the football team for four years, being captain his senior year. He was also manager of

Manager B. B. Ross

He won his letter in hockey last year and is a member of the Phi Delta Psi fraternity.

Joseph D. Garland '25 makes his debut this year into the "B" Club. He was second choice for fullback in the All-Maine. Out as he was with smashed ribs as a result of the Colby game it was only by the grittiest kind of grit that he made himself the hero of the Maine game. His ground gaining was not only consistent throughout the entire season, but it was spectacular. Time after time he would smash through the opposing line for gains until compelled by injuries to be carried to the sidelines. After the Colby game, Joe was never in condition physically to play football. His ribs constantly bothered him. It was just cold nerve that carried him through the season. This is his first year of varsity football although he is a junior. He transferred from Tufts at the end of his freshman year and could not play last year on account of the one-year ruling. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi.

Charlie Hildreth-like his brother Horace-is also a veteran of three years. Forced to start the season with an injured knee he has been handicapped throughout the year by different injuries. Despite this he has played a good game. His defensive work in the Tufts game was an important cog in our machine, while he has more than once demonstrated his ability on the offense, receiving forward passes and running under punts. Charlie is also a varsity track man. He is president of the Y.M.C.A. and a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Horace Hildreth, one of those Hildreth twins, is a veteran of three years' standing and was up to his usual form this year. His exceptional

List Of High Scorers Of The Eastern Colleges

Farrington of Bowdoin and Gruhn of Maine Have Each Scored Five Touchdowns

It is interesting to note that Frank Farrington is tied for thirty-first place in the list of high scorers of the Eastern colleges of the past football season. He scored a total of 30 points, and is tied for first place among the football players of the Maine colleges with Gruhn of Maine. The other players who also scored 30 points are McMahon, H. C.; Amos, W. & J.; Foley, Syracuse; Palm, Penn State; Millman, Lafayette; Comiowick, H. C.; Gebhardt, Lafayette; Gruhn, Maine; Loebo, Middlebury. Joe Garland is tied for fifty-first place with Millett, Colby; Payor, Brown; Whetstone, Cornell; Dooley, Dartmouth; Redinger, Colgate; Greer, Lehigh; Flippin, Navy; Waite, Rutgers. They all scored 24 points. Pfann of Cornell is first with a total of 86 points. Malloy of Yale leads the number of field goals scored, with a total of six.

A. S. B. C. Elections

At the A.S.B.C. elections held last Friday L. D. Horsman '25 was elected manager of football for the season of 1924. Shurtleff '26 and Vose '26 were elected assistant hockey managers.

Junior Class Elections

The Junior class elections were held at a meeting in Memorial Hall last Friday evening. The officers and Ivy Day committee were elected as follows:

President, Richard P. Jones.
Vice-President, Ernest L. Blake.
Secretary-Treasurer, Edwin C. Burdard.
Marshal, Joseph D. Garland.
Poet, H. L. C. Leighton.
Chaplain, Charles L. Hildreth.
Orator, Thomas N. Fasso.
Odist, Philip M. Hood.
Ivy Day Committee, James Berry, chairman; Ray E. Collett, John W. Cronin, Frederick P. Perkins, Samuel H. Williams.

Due to a misunderstanding in regard to cuts, it was impossible to include a cut of Captain Mal Morrell in this issue.

As the varsity letter men have not yet had their pictures taken, it will be necessary to omit it from this issue. It will be printed as soon as available.

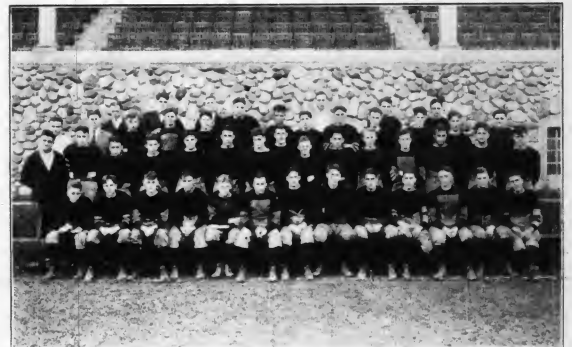

FOOTBALL TEAM COMPLETES SEASON OF UNEARNED DEFEATS AND UNEXPECTED VICTORIES

Triumphs Over Amherst, Norwich, and Tufts More Than Offset Wesleyan, Bates, and Maine Defeats— Colby Tied

Though many have labeled Bowdoin's football season as being decidedly unsuccessful on account of the unfortunate outcome of the State series, close followers of the team can note many bright spots in its career. Finishing in the cellar position here in Maine, the White went down to Medford to play Tufts. The odds were giving them only slight backing, yet they played the game, fighting as only a Bowdoin team knows how, and the result—a glorious seven to three victory over the team which held Harvard to an exceedingly low score. In addition to this, we recall the game with Colby, State champions. Here certainly was a team that did not deserve to tie the White. Twice did the Bowdoin team score only to have an official take the points away from them, yet they kept on fighting, giving in best to break the dead-lock in vain. With such creditable performances as this, to say nothing of the valiant stand and touchdown made the one yard line. Throughout almost the entire first half the Wesleyan team was forced to remain in its own territory. Captain Morrell starred for Bowdoin with his excellent punting, while the plunges of Garland and Farrington's runs were no small bother to the black and red. A series of spectacular end runs by Fricke and Adams and a brilliant overhead game paved the way for Fricke's first touchdown. The goal failed. In the third period Fricke scored in almost the same way and Scriggins made the extra point for the final score of the game. From then on the game was even. A few good forward passes were completed but the play was marred by fumbling. In the final quarter the White put up a valiant fight for a score but the game ended too soon.

In the next encounter, the first home game of the season, a greatly improved Bowdoin team triumphed over Norwich fourteen to nothing. The game was one of the best exhibitions of for-against the powerful Maine team, no eleven should consider its season unsuccessful and every man in college should be proud of his team, a team which gave its best in every game and which, no matter how great its opponents odds, was never beaten until the final whistle.

To Coach Ostergren and Trainer Magee not enough credit can be given. They developed a team which upheld to the last the traditions of Bowdoin athletics and next year will undoubtedly bring to them one of Bowdoin's most powerful and successful teams. Once again Bowdoin opened the season by defeating Amherst thirteen to nothing. Before the game, very few had any idea of the White's relative power, but the decisive victory assured us that we had a strong team. Although it was the first game of the season and was away from home, the team played mid-season football.

The first half was close and neither team seemed to have offensive strength enough to put the ball across the line. Amherst had practically all the opportunities for scoring but the bold stand of the Maine team in critical moments prevented her from obtaining any edge. Early in the second period the Massachusetts team completed a long pass to our seven yard line and a score seemed inevitable. With the ball on the one yard line and fourth down coming, Bowdoin braced and refused to let the ball beyond its one foot line. Such a valiant display of defensive strength seemed to take the whip out of the Amherst team and the second half was all Bowdoin.

Opening the second half with a drive and overhead attack which utterly bewildered her opponents, Bowdoin marched down the field. Early in the third period a long pass placed the White in scoring position and after three plunges Joe Garland took the ball across. Bowdoin failed to make the extra point. The final score came in the last period, also as a result of forward passes. Bowdoin had managed to keep the ball in Amherst territory and finally reached the fifteen yard line. A short pass from Morrell to Phillips was successful and Bob scored. Mal kicked the extra point.

Following this victory came a thirteen to nothing defeat at the hands of the powerful Wesleyan eleven in Middletown. It was a hard fought game and several times it looked as if the White would score. Once a penalty stopped the black-jerseyed team on ward passing seen in Whittier Field with Captain Morrell and Jones starring in this department. The game was no walk-away for the White for the big rangy Norwich warriors had some excellent offensive and defensive men in Rosenthal and Bradley.

The first touchdown was made in the second period after a long series of well executed passes had brought the pigskin to the seven yard line. One plunge was sufficient for Joe Garland to carry it across. Mal Morrell scored the extra point by drop-kicking. The second score came in the third period when Mal tossed a beautiful pass to Farrington who dodged in and out through the opposing backfield and placed the ball behind the goal post thirty-eight yards from where he had started. Mal again kicked the goal for the final point of the game. It was a wonderful game to watch with Joe Garland's line plunges, Frank Farrington's run and a scintillating aerial attack, made interesting by the good work of the opposing backfield.

Starting with the Colby game right through the State series we suffered a series of disappointments. The first of these was, however, the keenest. Clearly out-playing Colby in every department of the game, and absolutely out-scoring them, we had to be content with a 6-6 tie. The field was muddy after two days' rain and during the first period neither team seemed to get underway. It was a see-saw quarter but Bowdoin did get near enough for Morrell to try a field goal but it failed. The next quarter was an exciting one. Long passes from Farrington to H. Hildreth brought the White to the ten yard line and when it was held for downs, Mal tried another field goal. This too was ruled out but the opinion of those in direct line was that it was successful by three or four feet. Millett, the Colby kicker then punted short and the Bowdoin team got near enough to try another goal but this failed. Joe Garland was hurt in this attack. Soon plunges by Morrell and Jones brought the ball within scoring distance and Farrington put it over. The goal failed. Jones was hurt in this play. Later on after H. Hildreth had recovered one of Mal's kicks to the goal line for a touchdown. But one of the officials thought he ran off-side and blew his whistle, calling Frank back ten yards. The official afterwards admitted that he was wrong

Football in 1923.

We who are interested in football at Bowdoin, and that means all of us, can review dispassionately, now that the 1923 season is ended, the events that made up that season. In another part of this issue all the games are well-reviewed. With that portion of the season's history the writer will not meddle. Rather let us consider here some analysis of the game as played by Bowdoin men, presumably for the glory of Bowdoin in the past months.

An analysis of a season not replete with magnificent triumphs is no easy task for an undergraduate. A prevalent fallacy of collegiate thinking seems to demand that the college journal shall devote its valuable time and space to the praise of college representatives with any criticism so heavily sugar-coated as to make it ineffective. We have no quarrel with the football team that played for Bowdoin this fall. We have nothing but high praise, not that of the damning sort, for the men who went out all season and worked hard for the portion of success that was theirs. To the men who made up our eleven is due honor not so much for what they accomplished in total points gained, but for the admirable efforts they made against heavy odds.

Bowdoin football, like everything else Bowdoin, is likely to get in a bad way when the great number of students lie back and allow a few men to carry on all the work that is accomplished. The fact is that Bowdoin is attacked by the virus of self-complacency. Unfortunately, but none the less surely, there are men who profess to be Bowdoin men yet who regard the athletic teams of the college in much the same light as the Romans regarded their trained gladiators. To such men, the winning or losing of contests is considered as entirely "up to" the team. As a matter of fact, it is not. Football, one of the most effective "nurturers of men," gets a chance to nurture only a scattering few from each class. It is a matter of note that, taken by and large, it does tend to develop and strengthen the qualities of manhood in its active followers at Bowdoin. A strong reason for this is the fact that we have here an athletic system representative in the truest sense. The men who play on our athletic teams do so at a considerable sacrifice of time, without concessions of any kind either scholastic or financial, a condition, alas, which certainly is not universal. And this is where the general responsibility of the students come in.

There are, in the preparatory schools of this country, a large number of capable young men fully eligible to become Bowdoin men. Among them are athletes, students, real sportsmen, and others, with many combining several of the characteristics. Ruling out any who cannot qualify as true sportsmen, we find a list of men fitted by training and inherent ability in a more or less degree to become members of Bowdoin athletic teams. They are valuable material for the college. They possess real utility. Now, what procedure shall we follow to secure those men, along with their classmates otherwise gifted, for Bowdoin instead of letting them run amuck in less worthy institutions, which make but little secret of their corrupt system of obtaining athletic material? Shall we simply sit down and hope that chance will bring us a list of good candidates, or shall we go out and make sure of that list?

The point is this: the whole college, not the team alone, is the responsible party in the games of a football season. If defeats face us, they are but a challenge to do better at the next meeting, and to a man or a college with the right stuff inside a defeat is the finest stimulus in the world. No jejune "good loser," but an honest, fair-fighting sportsman, Bowdoin can profit much by the lessons of the past. We have a fine nucleus returning for the team next fall. Only one letter man, Captain Mal Morrell, is graduating this June, and the team that remains has shown its stamina on hard fought fields. That means that our chances are good, provided every last man in college will get behind the team and push with all the spirit and intensity in him. We can't expect the team to show real Bowdoin spirit and fight when the majority of the men in the bleachers have hardly a suspicion as to what the phrase means. The realization comes with appreciation. Think Bowdoin, talk Bowdoin, dream Bowdoin, and, above all work for Bowdoin—the spirit will come.

The Fire Danger.

The great prevalence of cigarette smoking in the lecture buildings is, according to the college authorities, liable to result in a disastrous fire if not wisely restricted. There is no objection to smoking in these buildings, as long as the men are careful about extinguishing the butts before disposing of them. With a little consideration and cooperation from the men, the thing should assume no serious proportions as a menace.

Student Reforms.

The Student Council attempts to keep its ear to the ground to seek out the improvements desired for the betterment of the college in its student affairs. Unfortunately this method does not seem to cover the field with all due accuracy. Recommendations from any student are cordially received and seriously considered by the Council. Such recommendations are highly desired, as most surely emanating from the men concerned. Without such guideposts for direction, the Student Council can but grope rather blindly along the way.

Football Season

but that didn't fatten our score.

During the second half Bowdoin held the slashing Colby backs for downs on its own goal line time and time again. Finally, however, Colby got first down on the five yard line and after three tries Millett managed to score but failed to kick the goal. It was an unfortunate start of the State series.

The second game of the series and the last home game in the season resulted in a 12-7 victory for Bates. The heavy Garnet team opened the game with such a dazzling attack that it gained an early lead. Opening a bagful of trick plays which seemed to outwit the White warriors, it sent Ray off for a twenty-five yard end run and Woodman through for fifteen more to our three yard line. Two plunges were necessary, however, before our goal line could be crossed. In the second period the same thing happened but this time the Bowdoin line was impenetrable and we took the ball on our two yard line only to have Mal's kick-out hit the goal posts where Kempton recovered. The little Bates quarterback then tossed a pass to Woodman who rang up Bates' last score.

The second half was a different story. A determined Bowdoin team went on to the field and after holding its opponents for downs several times, nailing the Bates stars in their tracks, it started a glorious march down the field, every man contributing his share and finally Mal carried the ball across and kicked the goal.

Throughout the game, Morrell starred with his kicking and Farrington and Tucker played good defensive games. As the game ended Bowdoin was again hammering its way to another score but time cut them short.

The last game in the State series was with the University of Maine at Orono. Here we were against a decidedly better team and lost by a score of 28-6. The up-state team got the jump at the start and piled up a lead which the most heroic efforts of the much lighter Bowdoin team could not hope to overcome—yet they tried valiantly. Almost at the first, Lunge, the Maine tackle broke through and blocked Joe Garland's punt and the plucky Bowdoin back could not recover until the ball was behind his own goal. Then a series of line plunges brought the ball to our twenty-five yard line and a long pass, Merritt to Small, scored, but the goal failed. Maine again received the kick-off and consistent but not spectacular gains by the whole University backfield coupled with another long pass brought the ball to our four yard line. This time the White defense strengthened and it took our heavy opponents four tries to push the ball over as the goal again failed. Garland then kicked off again and once again did Maine start another offensive, Small and Gruhn gaining consistently, until a long pass to Merritt brought them to our twenty yard line. Two plunges put Gruhn across for his second and Maine's third touchdown. Blair kicked the goal. Bowdoin received the kick-off but Small intercepted a pass and another march was started. But this time, fighting, invincible, the White refused to let the ball beyond its three yard line and twice again Maine got to the fifteen yard only to lose the ball on downs.

The second half was a different story although a Maine onslaught at the first resulted in a touchdown. Bob Phillips received the kick-off and ran it back fifteen yards and then the White started to break through the Maine line again and again. Thanks to the steady work of Joe Garland, who made over forty of the fifty-seven yards, Farrington finally carried the ball over. Once again the Bowdoin team crashed through to the five yard line only to fumble and lose the ball. Outplayed thirteen to two first downs in the first half, the invincible Bowdoin spirit gave us an advantage of ten to nine in the last.

In the last game of the season the Bowdoin team entered the Tufts Oval a decided under-dog. But the White, playing its very best brand of football left the Oval not until they had tied a seven to three defeat on the tail of Jumbo. Out-played and out-scored in the first half, the White re-entered the game with a determination that was unconquerable. Soon after the half had begun, Frank Farrington hauled down one of Mal Morrell's passes and dashed sixty yards through the whole Tufts defense for the winning score of the game and Mal kicked the goal. Once again during the last half did the Bowdoin team get within scoring distance and when they were held for downs. Bob Phillips tried for a drop-kick but failed.

During the first half the Jumbos clearly out-did our best efforts, registering six first downs while Bowdoin failed to cover enough ground at any time, and completing four out of six attempts at forward passes, while our aerial game was a failure. Perry also scored a field goal.

The second half, however, reversed things. We had a decided edge in all departments of the game. For instance, out of thirteen attempts at passes, twelve were futile for the Medfordites. They were clearly out fought.

Masque And Gown Chooses Christmas Plays Cast

The Masque and Gown will put on two short plays at the time of the Christmas house parties. Jewett '24 and Watson '24 make up the cast for "The Reckoning." The cast for "Squaring it with the Boss" is as follows: Jimmy Greening, C. Hildreth '25; Beth Greening, Flint '27; Aunt Hortense, Montgomery '27; Aunt Clarissa, Davis '27; Mr. Dunne, Brown '27; and Johnny Renter, Lord '27. Professor Brown is coaching "Squaring it with the Boss."

The plays will be presented at the Cumberland Theatre, Friday afternoon, December 21. Chairman of the dance committees at every house should notify Manager Browne '25 at the Psi U house of the number of tickets they wish reserved.

There will be a closed meeting of the Ibis on next Friday night at the Alpha Delta Phi house. Professor Bell will read a paper.

PATHE NEWS and REVIEW

Letter Men of 1923

work in the Colby game as the receiver of two long forwards together with his steady playing all fall won him mention for the mythical all-Maine eleven. In the Bates game he received a compound fracture of the collar bone which prevented him from playing the rest of the season. His fine work on the defense and offense was greatly missed in the Maine game, where he would certainly have starred. Horace is not only a member of Ben Houser's baseball squad but also has won his letter in the high jump for the past two years. He is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Frank Farrington

Richard "Red" Jones started off the season in a fine manner, playing a wonderful brand of football in all the early games of the season. He gave every evidence of being one of the best defensive backs that ever wore a Bowdoin uniform, and he was almost equally good at carrying the ball. In the first half of the Colby game he was playing one of the best games of his football career at Bowdoin, but in the second half his knee was very badly hurt, and he was not able to play for the remainder of the season. He is an Exeter man, where he was prominent in athletics, being a member of the football team two years and the baseball team three. He made his letter in baseball and football here at Bowdoin both his freshman and sophomore years. He was a member of the former U.Q. Freshman honorary society, and of the Sophomore society, Phi Chi. This year he is a member of the Junior Owls. His freshman and sophomore years he was vice-president of his class and is president of the Junior class this year. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Stanley Robinson comes from Lewiston, where he learned the rudiments of the game in high school. For two years he has played tackle for the White. Last year he was hurt in the Harvard game but this year he played throughout the season without being once removed. He is nineteen years old and will be at Bowdoin for two more years. He is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Alden Smith '25 has played a game this year that is far more worthy of praise than he has received. It is very rarely that substantial gains have been made through his part of the line. He has fought from the start to the finish of every game he has played in, in a manner well worthy of a Bowdoin fighter. Throughout the State series he played a fine game, fighting and holding his position with a spirit that never gave up. His support in the line next year should be a valuable asset to the team. He is a member of Alpha Delta Phi.

Newell C. Townsend came to Bowdoin from the Brookline, Mass. High school, where he played on the football team for one year and was also on the school track team. His freshman year in College he was a member of the football squad, and was on the freshman track team. His sophomore year he played regularly on the varsity at guard. This year he has been playing tackle, but has been somewhat handicapped by a bad hand. He is a fine linesman, and his opponents have always found his part of the line a hard one through which to make gains.

Frank Tucker was the only Bowdoin man to place on the all-Maine mythical eleven. He is a fighting, dependable guard, a tower of strength in the line. He has played a consistent game all season. His opposition in the Maine series was tough enough to keep anyone busy, but Tucker stood up like the veteran he is. He is both an offensive and defensive player. For three seasons he has held his side of the line almost impregnable against the attacks of backs of all New England. It is a fitting tribute that his work not only of this year but of seasons past, should be honored by his being elected to the all Maine team of 1923. He is a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity.

Kenneth McLean, right tackle, from Tacoma, Washington, made his first "B" this year. He played in a few of last year's games but did not come into his own until this season. Against Amherst, Wesleyan, and Norwich he put up a wonderful fight. In the Norwich game, however, he was injured and was unable to play again until the Maine game. At Orono he did fine work and although the White met defeat "Mac" deserves no less credit for his splendid performance. In the Tufts game he had a chance to show what is in him and the result is that he is looked upon as one of the mainstays of the Bowdoin line. He has developed greatly in the last two years and much is expected of him next season and the season after. He has done a great deal towards filling the shoes of "Toots" Tootell and Bowdoin may be reasonably sure that in him she has the material for an All Maine tackle.

Frank Farrington, ex-Cony High star was the only freshman to appear in every game. Playing a strong offensive game he tore great holes in the opposing line and accounted for many yards of ground gained. His spectacular run of 65 yards in the Tufts game marks him as a flashy and aggressive back. Frank should be one of the mainstays of next year's team. Besides starring at football Frank is a track man of the first order and is already working under the careful tutelage age of Magee. He is a popular man in his class, is class president, and a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Julius "Jo" Kohler, ex-captain of Newton High school's grid team, was the only other freshman to make his letter in varsity football. He has shown unusual ability all fall as a defensive back, especially in the Tufts game when he stopped Capt-elect "Van" French of Tufts, the widely heralded Tufts back. His offensive work was demonstrated in the Bates game where he was an important factor in off-tackle plays. Kohler did not show his full ability until the Tufts game when his playing showed him to be a fighter with skill and assurance. Ostergren expects much from this hard-working freshman who will be a valuable addition to next year's team. "Jo" is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Sunday Chapel

Professor George Roy Elliott Speaks on Religion

Last Sunday Chapel was conducted by Professor George Roy Elliott. He spoke on the young man who chooses the ordinary life and the young man who chooses the best life.

Two hundred years ago it was the fashion both for English and American youths to think that it was the thing to have religion. But they didn't have as much as they thought they did. Today when it is not considered fashionable to have religion, young men have more than they think.

Anyone's religion is aiming for any kind of life better than his own. All of us have some sort of religion going on within us all the time, even if it is some stroke of life greater than our own which we imitate.

You cannot tell whether your religion is an elm tree or a lilac bush until you let it grow. Our religion here in college is changing from the religion of a child to the religion of a mature mind. In childhood, religion is only an observance of certain forms and practices drilled into us by our parents. Later we see that particular things and persons are not big enough. We come to a decision. There are two types of life which we can choose. We may take the life of an ordinary Bowdoin man or we may take the best kind of life we can imagine.

The best life is joyous, yet it is firm. It is earnest. It is humorous.

It is easy to name the qualities of the good life. But is it to you just a list of qualities or does it mean something? In taking the best life, some will ridicule us. We just have to put up with it. Nobody ever hits an ordinary life. Hypocrisy is the cry against the best life follower. If you have never been accused of hypocrisy, you have never done anything out of the ordinary.

You will realize that if you choose the good life that you will not pursue it, but it will pursue you.

The Bowdoin religious spirit is shown every morning between 8:20 and 8:30. You can exercise your own religion in chapel every morning at these hours.

Student Council Meeting

Interfraternity Council and Senior Class Endowment Plan Discussed

A meeting of the Student Council was held last Thursday evening at the Deke house. The major part of the meeting was taken up in a discussion of the proposed class endowment for the Seniors. The plan is for every member of the class to insure himself for a certain amount, at the end of 25 years the accumulated money goes to the College, or if he should die in the meantime the College receives the amount for which he is insured. Harvard, Yale and Princeton make use of this plan. The matter was brought up four years ago, but at that time the trustees of the college were not in favor of it, as they wanted the money immediately. A representative of an insurance company was present. Nothing definite was done in regard to the matter, as the Student Council has no authority to act in regard to such a matter, but it will be brought up at a meeting of the Senior class.

The matter of an Inter-Fraternity Council was also discussed. It was decided that a set of rules and a constitution should be drawn up for such an organization, and President Miguel appointed a committee to do it. The committee is composed of M. E. Morrill, G. W. Rowe, R. J. Kirkpatrick. Although no definite plans have been made the duties of this Council will be to have complete charge of all inter-fraternity sports and activities.

$250 in Prizes

What 10 words best describe the new cap?

As you see, the Williams' Shaving Cream Cap is hinged on and can't get lost. Tell us how it helps you. Do you find it a time-saver? Do you, because of it, find greater satisfaction in quick-working Williams' lather, so gently beneficial to your skin? Read our offer; then write us a winning slogan.

Our prize offer

For the best sentence of ten words or less on the value of the Williams' Hinged Cap, we offer the following prizes: 1st prize $100; 2nd prize $50; two 3rd prizes, $25 each; two 4th prizes, $10 each; six 5th prizes, $5 each. Any undergraduate or graduate student is eligible. If two or more persons submit identical slogans deemed worthy of prizes, the full amount of the prize will be awarded to each. Contest closes at midnight, March 14th, 1924. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. You may submit any number of slogans but write on one side of paper only, putting name, address, college and class at top of each sheet. Address letters to Contest Editor, The J. B. The training consisted of staying up all night before the game. Those who dozed off to sleep were quickly brought back into training by a wholesome shake by a representative of the opposing team. The following writeup contained in the Boston Post of last mighty battle:The Worst Man team struggle culminated happily for the Zeta Psi's,

Saturday, when after a terrific battle lasting 10 three-minute periods, they wiped the mud from their faces and announced to the world that a score of 12 to 6 wasn't so bad.Captain Stringer of the Psi Upsi-on showed true sportsmanship. He shook Captain Burley's hand vigorously and opined that the worst man had won.The Psi Upsilon claim a great moral victory. Meacham, the Psi Upsilon steward, when last seen was headed for the First National to negotiate a loan with which to feed the Zetes, who immediately after the game, started clamoring for food.The game with 10 three-minute rounds was more like a prize fight. In the first round the Zetes grabbed the pill on the kickoff, and Porter, the Zeta Mercury, streaked down the sideline for a touchdown. Captain Burley gave them a lot of moral encouragement from the sidelines.In the seventh round Wood, the Psi Upsilon hope, feinted with a forward pass and ran 30 yards. He tried the real thing the next time, but Nichols of the Zete crew intercepted it and ran across again. The Psi Upsilon halfback, Wood, who threw all his weight (105 pounds) against the line, plunged through for the only touchdown for the losers.

Charlie Hildreth Elected Football Captain For 1924

Three-Year Varsity Football Letter Man and Varsity Track Man Wins Captaincy

Last Friday afternoon at Webber's Studio, Charlie Hildreth was elected captain of the Bowdoin football team for the coming season. It was a close election, developing into a three-cornered fight between Joe Garland, full-back, Dick Jones, halfback, and the captain-elect, who with his brother Horace has held down the end positions for the past three years. Charlie started this season handicapped by a bad knee but despite this he played an admirable game all season, although several injuries have fallen his lot. Time and time again he has turned his lightning-like speed to great advantage by getting down under Mal Morrell's spirals to nail the catcher in his tracks. In the future time he proved to be an important factor in our defensive game, and more than once did he demonstrate his offensive ability by hauling down difficult passes.

The captain-elect is a varsity track man and president of the Y.M.C.A. under whose auspices he made an extensive tour of the foreign countries this summer. He comes from Zeta Psi fraternity.

Professor Dewing Speaks Before Classical Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Classical Club was held a week ago last Monday evening at the D. U. House. Professor Henry B. Dewing gave an extremely interesting account of his work with the American Red Cross in Greece just before and after the armistice was signed. As he was in many different parts of Greece he was well suited to tell of the condition of that country at that time. Among the things that Professor Dewing said was that the Greek people, like many other destitute people of Europe, looked to the United States as a land that would give them aid in their time of need. Everything American was almost worshiped.

Following this, there was a general discussion, during which Professor Dewing threw some light on the Turkish situation. He said that the Turks were a more congenial people than the Greeks, and thus were more capable of winning the good will of the Americans whom they came in contact with. The Turks haven't the business ability of the Greeks, and as the Americans are able to get the better of them in business transactions, they are more favorably impressed by them than the Greeks.

Seven local Greeks and John D. Spanos, a freshman, were the guests of the club. They sang the Greek national anthem, and signed their names to the minute book.

At the business meeting the matter of the Classical Club play was brought up. The play has been under way for more than a month, and weekly rehearsals are being held. The play will first be presented to the student body the latter part of February, or the first of March.

The next meeting of the Classical Club will be held the middle of January. At this meeting an outside speaker from the Classical department of one of the other Maine colleges will address the club.

Bowdoin Music Awarded Juilliard Fellowship

Stetson to be College Organist During Second Semester

Robert S. Stetson of Boston, a native of Brunswick and a graduate of Bowdoin in the Class of 1918, has the honor of being the first Bowdoin graduate to receive a fellowship from the Juilliard Musical Foundation of New York. He has just received notice from the Foundation that he has been awarded a large fellowship. Mr. Stetson since his graduation from Bowdoin has spent considerable time in study at the New England Conservatory of Music. He has specialized in the study of the piano and organ, but is also a skilled cellist. He has been chosen to act as college organist at Bowdoin during the second semester of the present college year when Professor Edward H. Wass, the head of the music department, will be traveling and studying in Europe.

The Juilliard Foundation, established a few years ago, is by far the largest with which Bowdoin is connected. Its resources total fifteen millions, the income from which is available to undergraduates and alumni of the selected colleges in the form of scholarships and fellowships. An idea of the scope of its activity may be gained from the fact that during this year more than eight thousand students of vocal music applied for fellowships. Of course the number is greatly augmented by those students of other branches of music.

Much credit is due Professor Wass for his untiring efforts to secure Bowdoin a notable position on the approved list of institutions whose fellows are eligible for aid from the Foundation. It is also interesting to note in this connection that Bowdoin is highly favored by the trustees of the fund as having one of the finest departments of musical education in any small college. Candidates for aid are nominated by the college from either the undergraduate or alumni body, and are carefully selected from a field of the large extent indicated above.

Mr. Stetson, the first Bowdoin recipient of a fellowship, was extremely prominent in the college musical circles as an undergraduate. A member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity, he was for four years associated with the Musical Clubs and the Chapel Choir. In his senior year he was Leader of the Glee Club, and he was the first to start the Instrumental Club along the road to its present condition of musical excellence. His ability as a cellist did much to improve the ensemble of the then Mandolin Club, which, up to his time had been the purveyor of only such tinkling music as could be expected from a handful of banjos and mandolins unaccompanied by the mellow stringed instruments, piano, wind instruments, or drums. Since graduation he has devoted his energy to the piano and organ. The award of the Juilliard Foundation comes to him as a substantial recognition of real talent, and so far as is known, this is the first time that a graduate of any Maine college has been so honored.

Bowdoin Club Of Portland Dinner December 22

Dean Nix N. Toastmaster; President Sills, A. G. Staples '82, Charlie Hildreth '25 Speakers

The annual dinner of the Bowdoin Club of Portland, the biggest and liveliest of all Bowdoin's local alumni dinners, will be held Saturday evening, December 22, at the Falmouth Hotel. Dean Nixon is to act as toastmaster. The speakers will include President Sills, Arthur G. Staples '82, editor of the Lewiston Journal and one of the wittiest speakers of the alumni body. Captain-elect Charlie Hildreth of the football team as the representative of the student body, and alumni from Boston, New York and other cities, who will bring greetings from their own groups.

John F. Dana '98, the president of the Bowdoin Club of Portland, is responsible for the general arrangements and will preside until midnight the evening over to the capable hands and ready wit of "Nick." The stunts, which have become a distinctive part of the program in the last few years, are in charge of a committee headed by Seward J. Marsh '12. Among the recent additions to the ranks of those who are pressed into service annually to make fools of themselves for the delight of their fellow-diners is Phil Wilder '23 and his w.k. line.

It has been found impossible to continue the practice of inviting the undergraduates to attend gratis. They will be as welcome as ever, but will be asked to go on the pay-as-you-enter basis, the levy being $1.50.

Student Council Purchases Novel Football Scoreboard

Will Be Used for Games Away From Home in Both Football and Baseball

At a meeting of the student council held last Friday evening it was voted to purchase an electric football scoreboard of the type known as the "Grid-Graph football scoreboard." This scoreboard will be used at times when the varsity plays away, and also on days when games of general interest, such as the Harvard-Yale and Colby-Bates games, are played. This is an extremely forward movement, and one that will doubtless receive the wholehearted approval of the student body. The scoreboard is a grid-iron in miniature. Each man and each possible play is represented by a small light. As a certain player completes a play his light flickers. Another light—the football—glides over the board in the exact position on the field that the play occurs. Those who have seen the board in operation claim that it is the next best thing to the game itself. It is possible for each play to be depicted almost as soon as it takes place on the field because of a direct wire from the sidelines. Bowdoin will be one of the first colleges in New England to have one of these scoreboards, although there are several universities and colleges in other parts of the country that have them. Some of them are Ohio State, Purdue, W. & J., Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Michigan Agricultural, Notre Dame, Missouri, Indiana, Kansas, Morgantown, Penn., Yale, and New Hampshire State.

The board can also be used for baseball games, and it will doubtless be used when important college games are played away from Brunswick, and during the world series.

As soon as the board arrives a demonstration will be given before the student body.

Math Club Organizes For Coming Year

Elects Officers And Plans Many Discussions For Near Future

At an organization meeting of the Mathematics Club held in Adams Hall last Wednesday evening the following officers were elected: Gilpatrick '24, president; Perkins '25, vice-president; Baggett '25, secretary-treasurer; program committee, H. L. C. Leighton '25, chairman, Pushee '25, and Frizzell '25.

Following the elections, discussion of various topics of interest from the scientific and general viewpoint took place. It is planned to hold regular monthly meetings at which some interesting subject will be discussed and if possible professors of other departments of science will be present to give paper and information. The first meeting is planned for the second week following the Christmas vacation. At the meeting in February the members of Math 4, who are eligible to membership, will be taken in.

Ibis Meeting

Professor Bell Give Paper on The World War

A closed meeting of the Ibis Club was held last Friday evening at the Alpha Delta Phi House. Professors Elliott and Bell and Dean Nixon were present at the meeting. Professor Bell read a paper on the Franco-Prussian situation since 1870. This was a repetition of a paper read in Portland recently by Professor Bell. The purpose of this reading was to get the student viewpoint on the subject. In the paper Professor Bell went back to the beginning of the nineteenth century and traced the developments between the two countries. He gave a much different account of their relations than is the popular idea. It is commonly thought that the Germans have been altogether in the wrong. Although he did not defend the Germans, Professor Bell told of acts of the French that are no more to be defended than those of the Germans. After the reading of the paper there was a general discussion, following which refreshments were served.

The Honor System.

For several years the plan of having some form of honor system installed in Bowdoin has been spasmodically discussed. Perhaps our generation desires to discuss it passively and let it go at that, but, at any rate, it will be discussed in this column as fully and frankly as the powers and information of the editor will allow. This does not mean that the Orient wishes to enforce its opinion upon an unwilling majority, but it does mean that it will do its best to make clear to the college the need for a more responsible system of examinations, and the benefits which would be derived from such a system. It was in this intent that the editorial of December fifth, appearing in number nineteen of the present volume under the title of "Intellectual Honesty," was presented. The attempt in that was to show, among other things, how real a need exists in the college for a system of intellectual honor dependent upon the students. At this time the endeavor will be to explain the desired system, with some attention to the real possibilities it holds.

The honor system, as developed in numerous colleges and universities throughout the country, is exactly what the name implies. In all matters of examinations, exercises, and so on, the student is entirely on his own responsibility, and public opinion, enforced by a sort of vigilance committee takes care of the administration of this personal honor. The plan has worked beautifully in many places, Wesleyan and Princeton in particular, with the result that more and more as colleges seek liberalism in education they turn to the honor system as one of the important channels of character development.

There is nothing more mean and contemptible than a system of surveillance or spying. There is no spot on earth where it is more out of place than at an honored institution like our own Bowdoin. It savors strongly of the puerile in education, yet our faculty is defenceless: it is pursuing the only course open to it. Certain it is that any honor system imposed upon the college by the faculty would receive little encouragement. Such a move must come from the students themselves, from those who are most affected by it. Only then can it carry with it the strength and majesty of general sanction.

The Student Council, as the representative organization of the student body, has given the problem serious consideration. Members of the two upper classes, at least, have had some opportunity to test the system in various courses in which the professors place special confidence in the reliability of their students. It is a matter of note that in such courses there is noticeable at once a considerable decrease in the number of men who stoop to cheating. In these courses it is, indeed, generally considered a reprehensible thing to cheat, while in many others the practice is considered rather a neat accomplishment. The comparison may appear overdone—it is not. It shows, however, the trend of student thought. It shows that the men are quite willing and ready to cooperate in a matter of personal honesty, but that when it comes to a clash of deceptive skill between professor and student, the student is quite as willing to let the devil take the hindmost, and the odds are against the monitor.

With these things in mind, with a clearer understanding of the situation as it stands here, let us hope that student opinion will soon demand a recognition of undergraduates as men of honor. Let us hope that the day when the professor is compelled to watch our work with a sentinel gaze will soon be past.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

Some days ago there appeared in the "Orient" a communication from Prof. W. W. Lawrence of Columbia University concerning the proposed war memorial. In writing this for publication, I am not perhaps obeying his wish for I am conscious that my criticism is not entirely "constructive" and I am afraid that I cannot altogether refrain from advocating a different type of memorial. Nevertheless this is printed publicly, for should not a thing that concerns the whole college and which is to be paid for by the majority of the alumni be discussed on as well as pro in a place where the things said against it as well as those said for it may be read, considered and judged? Perhaps Mr. Lawrence feels that the Alumni being on the whole none too bright, should not be allowed to know or think too much but instead should be guided by sager heads, such as those who are on the committee. Well, perhaps they should. In these days of cynicism and general doubt, democracy, as well as other theories heretofore held as axiomatic, is being tested. But at least the committee in leading us should not blind-fold us.

In the discussions about this proposed memorial, two main questions seem to be uppermost. First, whether it is to be of purely memorial character, like a rostrum, or whether it is to be utilitarian as well. Second, if it is not to be utilitarian, whether this plan or another is more desirable.

Those who wish the memorial to be of some real practical use to the college point out that with a faculty of good third less than other colleges of our rank, such as Amherst, Wesleyan and Williams, we are sadly in need of professors. Prof. Lawrence says the graduates want something tangible. One cannot stub one's toe on a professorship; that is true, but if our "representative Alumni" and other—(as it is inferred less representative)—graduates have not the imagination to see that a professorship is far more enduring than any collection of stone and that by imparting knowledge and developing wisdom it is a supremely fit memorial for those men who died and fought in a war which was to end all war, why then truly has the abode of Longfellow and Hawthorne become the stable and breeding place of bucolic Main-Streeters. And if they wish not this they could endow the Library or Art Museum without greatly injuring either of them; or they could erect a new Union or they could commission a real artist to fresco the inside of the chapel; but let us not continue with what they could do for doubtless they will do none of them; rather let us turn to that which they have done.

In any work of art it is the spirit of the executor that is most important depending on him the work is good, mediocre or bad. McKim, Mead and White—a very antique firm—are responsible for the general design of the memorial against which there is little to say and for which there is even less. To eulogize it is to call it safe and sane and there are those who feel that it is better suited for a float in a parade during some aesthetic Safety-First week than for a war memorial. It is simple—barely simple—so much so in fact that to the whimsically minded it is not far outside of the artistic category of bald heads. But after all the general design is not bad, it is quite innocuous and perhaps we should not reject it too hastily for we might get something worse. However, to those great, fat things, one on each side, closely resembling Polish maids-of-all-work in their rolly robustness, that flatfootedly guard the inscription, no mercy should be shown. Artistic touchstones come and go. What is derided today is extolled tomorrow. Three hundred years ago Rubens endowed creatures like these with enough joyous sensuality to make them live perhaps for ever; fifty years ago their descendants bounced and cavorted on the wall paper of upper-class houses, but today obesity, for the time at least, is relegated to the sanitarium. It may be that a non-utilitarian type of memorial is best; it may even be that it is better to content ourselves with mediocrity instead of daring for the truly beautiful and inspired, but surely we are not allowed two stupid, fat, dumpy, lugubrious women—fit subjects for a Turkish bath—to epitomize the spirit with which the sons of Bowdoin fought and for which some of them gave their lives.

Thanking you for your trouble, I beg to remain

Very sincerely,

W. K. GUTMAN '24.

Communication

Dec. 15, 1923.

Editor, Bowdoin Orient

To all Bowdoin Men:

If the present policy of the student body with regard to elections within that body continues where are we going to end? Since I have been in college I have watched with keen interest the outcome of the various elections held during the course of the year and have come to the following conclusions:

A. The interests of the college are invariably subordinated to the interests of the fraternity.

B. The man best qualified for a given position frequently is defeated.

C. Students having what we are pleased to call Bowdoin spirit are strictly in the minority.

If I were alone in these beliefs I would refrain from making any comment, but having assured myself that a considerable part of the student body take the same attitude, I do not propose to let this electioneering business continue without forcible comment. Most of us realize that the conditions are but to put it frankly, we lack the moral courage to vote according to the dictates of common sense.

I do not say good men are not placed in office; that may be. But why not have the best men in office? As long as we fill the important offices which are at the disposal of the students with mediocre men, the spirit of the college will be mediocre. Some men, inflamed by prejudice or bigotry, can see no farther than the narrow horizon of their own desire like hypocritical psalm-singers they declaim in burning words their love for old Bowdoin. Some men, at every opportunity slave to advance the cause of friend or fraternity, stop their ears to the voice of reason, and their object attained, sit back and sigh, "the old Bowdoin spirit."

If a given fraternity has a wealth of "best" men it is insane to reason that it is justifiable to hurt her at the expense of the college by electing a "good" man from another fraternity. Let us give the best man his reward and let us give it to him without stint or grudge.

I consider this a rather strong indictment of our present fraternity system insofar as it has to do with our student elections. The problem is most difficult one to solve. Few men leave Bowdoin without having in some measure suffered the consequences of interfraternity politics. To my mind the solution lies in the mind and purpose of the individual student. One sometimes feels that some men should ballot only in the presence of a policeman who wears a size eleven shoe. What good are words when personal or group aggrandizement are considered the main issue? In conclusion, I bear no grudge or ill feeling toward any man who has been or may be elected to any office in the college. My argument may be summed up in those thrilling words found cut in the stone at Hubbard grandstand, "Fair play, and may the best man win."

A wireless message was received from Donald B. MacMillan at the Prince Rupert, B. C., station Nov. 28. In this message Captain MacMillan said that news of the world was received every evening from two European wireless stations. It is believed that the Bowdoin's wireless made a world's record for short wave stations when Mix, the operator recently talked with amateur station "G" CEU in Hawaii, a distance of 5000 miles. Messages have been received from stations in England, Holland, Germany, Mexico, France, Norway, Italy, Japan, and Spain.

Last Tuesday afternoon an informal tea was given at the Psi Upsilon house in honor of Miss Mary Harrod Northend, who lectured that evening at Memorial hall on "The House and Garden." Miss Northend's father, William D. Northend '43, was one of the founders of the Kappa chapter of Psi Upsilon at Bowdoin, where he was also a professor and one of the contributors to the art museum. Mrs. Austin H. MacCormick poured, and Miss Anna Smith was hostess. The guests were those members of the faculty and people from the town who are intimately connected with the chapter.

The Psi Upsilon freshman smoker was held last Friday evening. Representatives from the freshman delegations of all the fraternities on the campus were present. The evening was spent in playing cards and pool. Ash trays were presented to the guests as favors. Refreshments of punch and cookies, fruit salad and sandwiches, and ice cream and cookies were served.

A meeting of the Biology Club was held the evening of Dec. 10 at the Deke House. Most of the evening was spent in transacting routine business. Plans were made for the next meeting at which Ferguson '24 will read a paper on trees, and Chamberlain '24 one on plant life. Plans were also discussed concerning the lecture by G. H. Parker, professor of biology at Harvard, which will be given in co-operation with the Saturday Club some time after Easter. After the business was completed refreshments were served.

A Christmas Vacation Suggestion To Seniors

THIS is your last year in college. This is your last Christmas vacation.

Your career after graduation is a question that you will want to talk over with the folks at home. They will be even more interested than you are. Now is the time to do it.

The John Hancock has in its field organization producers who began as life insurance men immediately after graduation and have made a conspicuous success of it.

Why waste time trying out something else which looks "just as good" and then come into the life insurance work to compete with the man who got into the game from the start?

Annual Catalogue 1923-24

Has Interesting Facts

Enrollment Statistics, New Prizes and Requirements

The new Bowdoin College Catalogue, for the college year 1923-24, is now being mailed to the alumni and to other educational institutions. It is published in the usual form and contains the standard information regarding students, courses, faculty, buildings, scholarships, undergraduate and alumni organizations, and so on. It contains, however, some new information of special interest.

The data on enrollment shows that Bowdoin is sticking closely to the 500 mark. The total enrollment this year is 503 as opposed to 506 last year. The distribution by classes is more uniform than last year, when the large freshman class upset the balance. The figures by classes are as follows: Seniors, 83; Juniors, 97; Sophomores, 166; Freshmen, 150; Special Students, 7.

The final figures on geographical distribution show that Maine students number 296 and comprises nearly 59% of the total. Massachusetts is the second state with 132 students, or 26% of the total. These figures compared with those of last year show a decrease of 17 in the number from Maine and an increase of 20 in the number of Massachusetts men. New Hampshire is third with 16. Connecticut has 15 representatives, New York 10, Pennsylvania 7, Illinois 5, and Rhode Island 4. The following are represented by one student each: New Jersey, Vermont, Georgia, District of Columbia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Utah, Washington, Japan, Mexico, and New Brunswick. China has two.

That the Bowdoin student body is predominantly of New England derivation is shown by the fact that the number from the New England states is 464, or 92% of the total. At the opening of the college year there were four foreign students in the entering class, and one from across the border in New Brunswick. Of the four the two freshmen from China are still in college. The representative from Japan was called home to Tokio immediately after the college year opened by the Tokio disaster, but will return to Bowdoin next year. He is the son of Vice-Admiral Okada of the Japanese Navy. Probably the first Mexican student to enter Bowdoin was Ignacio Herreras, a freshman from Mexico City. Soon after college opened his guardian, then the Mexican Secretary of State, announced his candidacy for the Presidency and Herreras left college to assist him in his campaign. He too will return to college next year. One of the Chinese students, Chi Hai Fong of Canton, China, has also lived in Mexico City, his father having been for three years the Chinese minister to Mexico. Quincy Queen Shan Sheh comes from northern China, his home being in Tientsin. He was educated at Phillips Andover.

Among the new scholastic regulations noted for the first time in the catalogue is the English requirement, which makes correct use of written and spoken English a prerequisite for the degree. If any member of the Faculty discovers that a student is deficient in the use of English, the student is reported to a special committee of the faculty, which gives him a special course of instruction. He is not recommended for a degree until he has satisfied this committee. Another new academic regulation is that making a larger number of courses year courses instead of semester courses. This is in line with Bowdoin's academic policy to make the college course a continuous and unified process.

The catalogue notes one new scholarship, that established by the Men's Singing Club of Beverly, Mass. There are two new prizes, the Sumner L. Kimball Prize and the Horace Lord Piper Prize, both established by Sumner L. Kimball '55, the "Father of the U. S. Life-Saving Service."

It is announced that more than $16,000 is distributed annually at Bowdoin in the form of scholarships and prizes in aid of meritorious students of slender means. The new figures on resources show that the estimated value of the college buildings and equipment is $2,561,000 and that the annual expenditure for the maintenance of the college of liberal arts is $229,046.16. The total interest bearing funds of Bowdoin College on March 31 last were $3,063,950.09. Since that date other funds, including the Blake Bequest of a half million dollars, have been received. The total endowment of the college is today about a million dollars larger than it was five years ago.

MacMillan Keeps in Touch with the World Through the Zenith Long Distance Receiver

Dr. Donald B. MacMillan, the Arctic explorer, who has been sojourning in the land of ice for the last 16 years, before starting out on his 1923 expedition, mentioned at a dinner given him by a number of friends in Chicago that the true hardship of the Arctic is not the cold, not the lack of food, but the awful solitude, so terrible indeed that men go mad because of it.

Two months later, the idea of radio communication had made such appeal to the explorer that he arranged to take with him not only a standard ZENITH receiving set, but also a ZENITH transmitter. This equipment is now in the schooner Bowdoin, back in Eskimo Land, "frozen in" for the probable duration of 10 months. The antenna wires reach from the mast of the Bowdoin to the cliffs. Dr. MacMillan and his crew, now "frozen in" within 9 degrees of the north pole, have "tuned in" with several hundred stations, some as far away as Los Angeles, Mexico, and the Hawaiian Islands.

This is the first time an Arctic exploration party has kept in touch with the rest of the world. It was a matter of much concern to Dr. MacMillan to get the best radio. He selected ZENITH exclusively.

Clearness of tone—freedom from distortion—is a second important feature of the ZENITH. It reproduces faithfully with volume the voice and music as it is sent from the broadcasting station.

Reverend Harry F. Shook Takes 139th Psalm as Text

The Reverend Harry F. Shook, pastor of the Universalist Church of Brunswick, who is leaving to take up a new pastorate in New Hampshire, spoke at the Sunday Chapel service. Mr. Shook took his text from the 139th Psalm.

There are three revelations of the Divine Life: the physical life, the human being, and the Book. The increasing knowledge of the being of the world leads to the doubting of the Book.

It seems reasonable to believe that long ago God looked ahead and fashioned nature accordingly. God saw certain effects. Some ask why God did not have everything perfect. If He had He would see man in peace, no trouble, no struggling. But as He looked down He would see the same thing, one thousand, ten thousand, a hundred thousand years after. The monotony of it made Him pause and give up such a plan.

But as He looked down through the ages He saw all this. He decided on a slow development. Thus He looks down and sees bright examples of ingenuity. He sees the joy of achievement following struggle. All this He saw in the beginning and thus ordered it.

He knew that there would be selfishness, arrogance, and lust for power. But too He saw ultimate triumph which would justify this method.

The chief value of Christmas is the imminence of God. The significance of the Christmas card is that it brings God nearer to us. With God so near, every break in the way should lead us to Him. God has faith in us. As a proof He has endowed us with great capacities.

Let us justify his faith.

Alumni Notes

'73—Dr. Daniel A. Robinson of Bangor has been recently elected president of the Convalescent Home Corporation of that city.

'82—In a recent Boston "Transcript" there appeared an article concerning Arthur Gray Staples, of Lewiston, author-editor of the "Lewiston Daily Journal," and well known after-dinner speaker.

1894—Frederick W. Pickard, vice-president of E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., is at present on an extended foreign trip.

1904—Howard C. Griffin is now connected with the staff of Carnegie Institute of Technology, in Pittsburgh, as associate professor of Chemistry.

1909—Governor Baxter has nominated E. L. Goodspeed of Gardiner as disclosure commissioner.

1910—Charles A. Cary is now superintendent of the Connable Works of the Du Pont interests at Lewisburg, Alabama. His home is at 1401 North 29th St., Birmingham.

1917—James C. Oliver, manager of the Hudson Motor Sales Co. at Lewiston, has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel in the National Guard.

'21—Invitations to the wedding of Paul H. Eames and Elizabeth Head of Bangor have been recently received. The wedding will take place December 27.

Miss Head is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Head of Bangor. She is a graduate of Wellsley in the class of 1923, and has recently returned from an extensive European trip accompanied by her parents. Mr. Eames is now in the employ of the Western Electric Company of Boston.

Faculty Notes

President Sills returned last Tuesday from a trip to Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago, and other cities. At each of these cities he attended meetings of the Bowdoin Alumni Associations, at which prominent educators were guests of the alumni.

One of the most interesting meetings was that of the Chicago Bowdoin Club held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel; at which songs, cheers and speeches made by Pres. Sills and Homer R. Blodgett '96, President of the Chicago Alumni, were broadcasted to Donald MacMillan '98 on the schooner Bowdoin. The Edgewater Beach Hotel station has been broadcasting news weekly to MacMillan.

At Buffalo he spoke to the college of Liberal Arts of Buffalo University and to two of the largest schools in western New York, the Nichols School and the Lafayette High School.

At Cleveland Pres. Sills spoke at the University School at Shoreham Heights High School, and at the Howe High School.

On Monday he attended the conference of New England College Presidents on Athletics and was elected president of the conference, to succeed former President Meiklejohn of Amherst.

Two exhibition baseball games have been scheduled with Bates. The game at Lewiston will be played April 19, while the game here will probably be played April 26. Second team baseball games have been scheduled with Westbrook Seminary. One game will be played at Portland April 19, and the other here April 30.

It has been found impossible for Harvard to give Bowdoin another date for the dual track meet suggested for June 7. It was impossible for Bowdoin to agree to the latter date because of the fact that the final examinations begin the fifth.

Two exhibition baseball games will be played with Bates before the opening of the State series, one on April 19 at Lewiston and the second on April 26 at Brunswick.

The second team will meet Westbrook Seminary in Portland on April 19 and at Brunswick on April 23.

The Board of Directors of the Alumni Fund will meet on Saturday, Dec. 22, at 12:30 p. m. at the Cumberland Club, Portland. At this meeting the chairman of the Board will be elected for the current year and the year's policies will be decided on. The members of the Board are Hoyt A. Moore '95, Frederick W. Pickard '94, and Alfred B. White '98, whose terms expire in 1924; Judge Charles F. Johnson '79, William W. Thomas '94, Ellis Spear, Jr., '98, and Austin H. Bowdoin Club Of Portland Fourth Annual Dinner Proves Great Success

Dean Nixon, Toastmaster; Arthur G. Staples '82, Charles Hildreth '25, Speakers—Four Hundred Present

The fourth annual dinner of the Bowdoin Club of Portland, held on December twenty-second at the Falmouth Hotel, provided a general good time and pleasant class and fraternity reunions for about three hundred alumni and students. Early in the evening the old and young grads from Portland and the vicinity got together in a sort of informal social. President Dana presided at the dinner and his opening address was a masterpiece of witty references to campus life. He introduced Dean Nixon as toastmaster. Among the speakers were Arthur G. Staples of the Lewiston "Journal," President Sills, who addressed a group of sub-freshmen from various high schools and preparatory schools throughout the state, and captain-elect Charles Hildreth '25 of the football team.

Adding zest to the affair were a number of very clever entertainments put on by some of the alumni and students. During the dinner a telegram, supposedly from President Coolidge, arrived and in it he stated that he could not endorse the candidacy of Hiram Johnson. Later a mummy of King Tut was wheeled in and was brought to life by Dr. Daniel M. Manix '15. Carl K. Ross '17 was the mummy. After that, Austin H. McCormick '15, taking the part of Henry Fiver, candidate for the presidency, in partnership with Axel Fiver (Clarence A. Brown '14), gave a long take-off on Henry Ford which was highly amusing. Perhaps the stunt which received the biggest ovation was that of Chester G. Abbott '12, who gave an impersonation of Professor Mott questioning a sub-freshman. Philip G. Wilder '23 was the student and Adelbert H. Merrill also took part.

Upon the motion of Arthur G. Staples '82, the following message was sent to Donald B. MacMillan, "Four hundred Bowdoin men in fourth annual Portland banquet send you most cordial Christmas greetings and best wishes for a successful New Year."

Outing Club Organizes For Winter Carnivals

Team to Take Part in Four Meets—May Build Ski Jump

The Outing Club met to organize for the coming season of winter carnivals and intercollegiate competitions last Friday in the Debating room of the library. The purpose of the meeting was to get the club started in preparing to organize a team to represent the College in as many winter carnivals as can be participated in. At present it looks as though three and possibly four meets would be attended in addition to the interfraternity meet. These are the winter carnivals at the University of Maine, Waterville, and Lewiston. The interfraternity meet will be some time during the last of February.

From the prospects at present Bowdoin should be able to put out a team that will equal last year's in quality. Only one letter man was lost by graduation, Bergenstahl, who will of course be greatly missed. There is much good material in the incoming class, which in addition to the nucleus already available, should make the team unquestionably the second strongest in the State. An invitation has been received to participate in a carnival at Rumford sometime the last of this month, but it will probably be impossible to attend on account of final examinations.

The Club hopes to be able to have some sort of ski jump built this winter. This cannot be done, however, without the aid and cooperation of some interest outside of the college. The location will probably be on Standpipe Hill, as this is the only possible place within a reasonable distance of the campus. Several members of the faculty are actively interested in the matter, and if a large membership can be attained, the project will undoubtedly be successful.

The same system of renting out toboggans will be used this year, that is, any fraternity having a membership of twelve or more will have a toboggan for its private use during the winter.

Maine Colleges To Conduct Intercollegiate Contests

Competition in Short Story and Verse Writing Ends April 1

At a recent conference of the presidents of the Maine colleges held in Waterville, it was decided to establish intercollegiate competition between undergraduates of the four colleges in the writing of short stories and of verse.

Four competitions will be held closing on April 1, 1924. The first is a short story contest open to the male undergraduates of the four colleges. Stories will be limited to a maximum of three thousand words. A similar competition for the women students of Bates, Colby and Maine will also be held. The verse competition will be limited to one hundred lines. There will be separate contests for men and women.

This represents the first real effort of the Maine colleges to compete in creative literary work. If successful, it is not unlikely that the competition in these fields may be followed by those in the fields of dramatics, music, essays on economic and sociological subjects, and possibly undergraduate scientific research.

Sunday Chapel

President Sills Speaks on Undergraduate Discontent

President Sills conducted the chapel service last Sunday. He spoke upon student discontent. He was glad, he said, to hear of discontent among the student body. It is a sign of progress.

Our affection for an institution, said Matthew Arnold, may be assessed by our desire to make it better. There are many kinds of discontent; that of war, the fretfulness of the school girl, and that discontent which denotes progress.

It is the feeling of leaders of undergraduate thought that things might be better. The college does, and always has, welcomed criticism from the student body. Carefully thought out ideas are always considered. To be conclusive, however, they must be approved by those older in experience and more capable of judging.

The College can go ahead only when there is loyalty and when everyone feels himself a member of the College. All suggestions must be courteously presented. A recent example was the admirable communication in the Orient regarding fraternity policies.

There are of course certain restrictions which the College must always maintain. They must teach discipline to train the students. Many students are restless. If restrictions are arbitrary, the college authorities are always glad to remove them.

There should be more individual responsibility among the students. We all carry the reputation of the College with us. There is more carelessness than actual vice, although there is bound to be some of the latter in an institution the size of Bowdoin. Several merchants in town have reported receiving bad checks. More of this is carelessness than attempt to defraud.

Let us work a little harder for the College. We are apt to shun things for the benefit of the College if they put us out of our way. The College cannot be made better unless each one makes himself better. This will help more than anything else to make it better. Let anyone set before himself examples, not only of great men, but also of friends whom we admire or despise.

Let us carry this thought always in mind: if we are discontented with what the College is doing, there is progress.

Short Story Contest Being Held By Granite Monthly

Cash prizes of $50, $25, and $10 are offered by the Granite Monthly, New Hampshire State magazine, for the best short story written by a student of any of the colleges in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont.

All manuscripts must be typewritten. Subject matter may be fiction or narrative. Stories must not exceed 3000 words. The contest closes February 1, 1924. Manuscripts will not be returned.

The prize-winning stories will appear in the Granite Monthly. Judges will be selected from outside the editorial staff of the paper. Stories should be addressed to the Granite Monthly, Patriot Building, Concord, N. H.

Athletic Council Awards Cross Country Letters

Six Men Receive Letters

The Athletic Council met on Wednesday, December 20, to award letters to the members of the varsity cross country team. Those who received them were: Captain Frank H. Plaisted '24, Robert J. Foster '25, G. Allen Howes '25, Robert J. Lavigne '24, Harold F. Eastman '25, Joseph I. Small '24.

The team has had some hard reverses this year which crippled the team for practically the whole season. Captain Plaisted has been handicapped from the start with appendicitis and was unable to do the fine work that was expected of him and which he would undoubtedly have done had his condition made it possible. At present he is recovering from an operation in the hospital. It is expected that he will soon return to college. He is a varsity hockey letter man of the first class and a member of track team for two years.

Bob Foster '25 has completed a season of wonderful running in spite of the many setbacks received by the team. In the Harvard meet he finished second to the Harvard captain and did equally well in the other meets. Foster's work was the mainstay of the team in every meet and great things are expected of him next spring and next year in both track and cross country. He is a present New England half mile champion. He is a two year letter man in track and cross country.

G. Allen Howes '25 did some good running throughout the season. He is a man who can be depended on to give his all and to make a creditable showing in every meet. He has won his letter for two years in cross country and is a good two mile.

Robert J. Lavigne '24, although he has won no conspicuous honors in track or cross country, has been working hard for four years and showed fine possibilities at the start of the season. He was taken with cramps, however, and was unable to participate in any of the meets this year. Bob has certainly earned his letter through hard work in the past.

Harold Eastman '25 was another victim of injuries and as a result his work was missing during the season. He sprained his ankle early in the fall and was unable to give the fine results that were to be expected from his past showing. He is a junior and his help should strengthen next year's team a great deal.

Joseph Small '24 after a lay-off of a year came back and did some good work for the team, especially in the New England. At the time of the Maine meet he was suffering from a weak ankle but the following week he ran the race of his life at the New England meet. It is because of his work there and in the dual meets that he is awarded his letter.

Board of Directors Of Alumni Fund Meets

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Fund, held at the Cumberland Club, Portland, on Dec. 22, William W. Thomas '94 of Portland was elected chairman of the Board for the present year. The members present were Mr. Thomas, Judge Charles F. Johnson '79 of Portland, John R. Bass '00 of Wilton, Luther Dana '03 of Westbrook, and the Alumni Secretary, A. H. McCormick '15. Mr. McCormick reported on the progress of the Fund, both in the matter of the amounts already paid in on pledges made during the Endowment Fund campaign and in the matter of efforts now being made to make the Fund productive under the plan of a large number of small gifts annually to income. The matter of whether the Board should encourage or discourage the purchase of class insurance by any class which wished to contribute to the Fund in this way was discussed, and Dwight H. Sayward '16, representing the John Hancock Insurance Co., explained this method of contributing.

The Freshman-sophomore debate will be held Monday evening, January 14, at eight o'clock in the debating room of the library. The subject for debate is "Resolved, that the U. S. government should recognize the Soviet government of Russia." The members of the freshman team will be Hewitt, F. Jones, Maguire, and Perry alternate. The sophomore team is composed of Griffin, Read, Tevitz, and Gay, alternate. A. P. Daggett '25 is coach of the freshman team, and G. W. Rowe '24 of the sophomore team.

Student Council Urges Undergraduate Interest

Meetings Are Public—Criticism Of Student Affairs Desired

The Student Council would like the undergraduates of the College to show more concern in the matters of general interest to the College that are being taken under consideration by the student council. It especially desires that the students should realize that the meetings of the student council are public and not private, and anyone who is interested is invited to attend them. It is very hard for the student council to make decisions on matters of importance unless there is some interest and feeling expressed on them by the students. All students are cordially invited to make suggestions and express their opinions in regard to all affairs of moment to the members of the student council, either in person or in writing. The student council will be very glad to take these matters under consideration. The president of the council will be more than glad to furnish the time and place of meetings to any member of the student body.

Course In Pedagogy To Be Given Second Semester

Maine School Men To Take Part In Course—Field Work Also a Feature

A new course designed for seniors who expect to enter teaching will be offered next semester. The course is unique in that secondary school men will be invited to conduct part of the work. The purpose of this course, which will be under the direction of the Faculty Committee on Preparatory Schools, is to give practical training to those men who expect to teach. It will also afford a basis on which the college can make recommendations of prospective teachers.

The early part of the course will be devoted to a consideration of the general problems of teaching. Such subjects as the relation of the teacher to the community, the problem of the teacher in the larger schools and in the smaller schools, problems of discipline, planning lessons, mental measurements and so on will be discussed. The later weeks of the course will be devoted to methods of teaching various subjects. Part of this work will be conducted by members of the faculty, the remainder by secondary school men from some of the leading schools in New England.

Among the Maine school men who will conduct part of the course are Superintendent Cone of Brunswick, Superintendent Jack of Portland, Principal Moulton of Edward Little High School, Auburn, Principal Wing of Deering High School, Principal Woodbury of Thornton Academy, and Mr. Josiah W. Taylor, Agent for Secondary Education, of the State Department.

The work will consist of two lectures and one conference weekly with outside reading and some field work in the form of visits to nearby schools to observe teaching methods.

While the hours have not been definitely decided it is probable that the course will come on Tuesday at 1:30 and on Thursday from 1:30 to 3:30. Men wishing to take the course should enroll at once with Mr. McCormick. Those who could not take the course at the hours mentioned above are requested to see him immediately.

Garcelon-Merritt Medical Scholarships Awarded

Twenty-Four Former Bowdoin Medical School Men Receive Awards

President Sills has announced that thirty-eight medical scholarships have been assigned from the Garcelon-Merritt Fund, the total amount of scholarship aid being $5,240. Twenty-four other applications were considered and laid on the table until a subsequent meeting of the committee. In the number of scholarships given were twenty-four former members of the Bowdoin Medical School, who are now completing their course in other institutions. Scholarships were assigned to students at the medical institutions of the following universities: Harvard, Yale, Western Reserve, University of Vermont, Boston University, Tufts, Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, Medical College of South Carolina. The scholarships ranged in amount from $85 to $400. All the applicants stated their intention of practicing for at least a time in the State of Maine.

Freshman One-Semester Ruling Is Adopted By The Athletic Council

Similar Action Expected Soon By Bates and Colby—Will Affect Cross Country, Football, and Hockey

At the meeting of the Athletic Council on December 20, a rule for preventing the freshmen from representing the college in athletics during the first semester was adopted. The rule will greatly affect football and cross-country, as well as hockey. Fully a half of the hockey schedule comes during the last month of the first semester.

However, it is expected that the advantages of this ruling will more than offset the disadvantages caused by it. The freshmen will have a chance to get a good start in their courses and become firmly established by the end of the first semester. The ruling should raise the scholastic standing of the freshmen considerably.

The only other college in the state to have a similar rule in effect at the present time is the University of Maine, which can well afford to have it on account of its large student body. The measure has been considered for some time at Bowdoin but to put it into effect without simultaneous action on the parts of the other colleges was impossible. At a recent meeting of the presidents of Bowdoin, Bates, and Colby, it was agreed that they should recommend such action to their respective colleges as soon as possible. Although neither of the other two colleges have passed such a law as yet it is expected they will do so in the near future. The Bowdoin ruling is in no way made contingent on similar action by Bates and Colby.

A short schedule will be planned for the freshman teams in the sports which are affected and the present system of compulsory athletics will remain in full force. In this way freshmen will still receive training in athletics without giving a majority of their time and thought to it.

Thomas Mott Osborne To Lecture On Prison Reform

Will Speak at Cumberland Theatre Thursday, Jan. 10

Mr. Thomas Mott Osborne, the prison reformer whose work has created more attention than that of any other man in the field since John Howard, will lecture tomorrow evening, Jan. 10, at the Cumberland Theatre, and will also exhibit his seven-reel moving picture, "The Right Way." Although he will appear under the auspices of the Saturday Club of Brunswick, the affair is open to the public and tickets have been placed at the disposal of the undergraduates through representatives in each fraternity. The price of admission is 55 cents. Seats are not reserved.

Mr. Osborne has been a frequent visitor to the campus in recent years and has lectured on several occasions. He is now bringing to Maine for the first time a moving picture which he believes to be the best of its kind. Although it was made by a moving picture company as a commercial proposition, the scenes depicting prison life were made under unusual conditions. The company went to the Naval Prison at Portsmouth, N. H., and made many of the scenes in the prison, using prisoners not only in the larger scenes, but in some of the smaller ones. The whole picture was made with Mr. Osborne's cooperation, while some of the scenes in the underworld were made with the advice of crooks "in the active practice of their profession." The result is a picture of interest not only to one interested in prisons, but to the ordinary movie fan who enjoys the unusual type of picture.

Mr. Osborne has recently taken part in one of the most important prison studies he has ever made, that of the notoriously bad prisons of Pennsylvania. This study was made at the request of Gov. Pinchot, and will be followed by a similar study of the prison system of Colorado. He has also found time to visit most of the prisons on the Atlantic seaboard and to lecture in most of the cities of the East. Last year he spent in Europe, going first to Greece at the request of the Queen, and later lecturing in England, Scotland and Wales.

Advertising the College.

President Hyde, for so many years the able leader of our College, was very proud of the fact that Bowdoin does not advertise. He could well be proud of this, for at Bowdoin it has long been the policy of the College to steer clear of those forms of blatant press-broadcasting and pro-seizitizing, still, unfortunately, not unknown in the field of higher education. But it is certain that that beloved and far-seeing President must have realized that Bowdoin, like any other institution of learning must inevitably advertise itself in a way less obvious, less obtrusive, than the ordinary way of seeking publicity.

There is a quiet, more or less modest, way in which every member of the College advertises that institution which he has chosen as his Alma Mater. President Sills called attention to that way in his address in Chapel last Sunday when he said that wherever we go we carry the College with us, to a certain degree. By the attitude of the undergraduates and alumni, by the evidences of their culture, by their demonstration for the finest things of citizenship, they cannot but show to the world without the walls of Bowdoin the sort of place that Bowdoin is. This is merely an application to our own particular case of that Biblical quotation, "By their fruits ye shall know them."

At our Alumni meetings, where prospective members of the College are frequently present, it is invariably the fact that we attempt to present among the list of speakers those best fitted among the Faculty and undergraduate body to demonstrate and expound the best thought of the College, as well as that Bowdoin spirit of which we are all so proud. When we have the good fortune to entertain prospective students in our campus homes, it is invariably true that we strive always not only to explain, but to enact, almost to dramatize, the high standard which Bowdoin holds up for her sons in their lives as in their scholarship. Certainly, when any of us talk to men who, in the difficult period before entering college, are anxious to compare and contrast, to weigh point against point in selecting their Alma Mater, we make every effort to show them what a splendid place Bowdoin is, and not infrequently some of our number have the happy fortune to do it well. All this is just and commendable as regards our activities without the walls, but it must be clearly borne in mind that our efforts at showing the College in its true light cannot stop at the spoken word.

Each act is like a stone dropped in a quiet pool, sending the ripples in an ever-widening circle, and disturbing every object with which they come in contact. Our acts within the college, as without, have their first effect, of course, upon ourselves, but a far wider effect upon those outside who desire to know the worst as well as the best about Bowdoin. It behooves us, then, as loyal members of this College, to so conduct our lives as to show to all men that Bowdoin stands for all that is best in moral, social, and civic development. Forgetting self, we can show through the finest form of advertising ever known, that Bowdoin is truly "the nurturer of men" to whom we are willing to pledge our love again and again, and not without effect.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

I have obtained permission from Prof. Lawrence to print the following letter written him early in December by Professor Andrews. I shall be grateful to you if you will publish it in your columns. It is an admirable discussion of a subject which may well be discussed fully and rationally.

Sincerely yours,

A. H. MACCORMICK,
Alumni Secretary.

December 2, 1923.

Professor William W. Lawrence,
Columbia University,
New York.

My dear Mr. Lawrence:

Your clear and thorough presentation to the Alumni of the action taken up to the present time by the Committee on the College War Memorial merits warm commendation, as do the work and the dedicated deliberation of the Committee. The task assigned the Committee of gathering opinions from many men of many minds and many tastes upon a matter which involves feeling so profound, so sensitive, and yet so difficult of adequate expression is indeed a supremely hard task; and one hopes that the great body of the Alumni will show their appreciation of the effort of the Committee to reach a perfect result by offering, in a spirit no less dedicated, the suggestions and criticisms you invite.

It certainly now seems clear that the preference of the Alumni has been shown to be in favor of a rostrum, and that discussion, to be genuinely co-operative, to be, indeed, relevant to the question, should, at whatever sacrifice of divergent individual preferences or minority proposals, commit itself to the proposal which the Committee put forward, after prolonged consideration and with the counsel of the expert opinion duly constituted by the Board of Trustees for the College in matters aesthetic.

In a matter so unwieldy and of import so grave, however, the individual is likely to distrust and to withhold his own opinion. Everybody knows that the memorial is to stand, not for a generation or two, but for centuries; everybody desires that it be a work of lasting beauty; but few feel themselves competent to say whether a given design can stand the test of the ages. Fewer still are competent to produce the thing of beauty that is a joy forever. Works of art do not result from mere commissions, though genius, even very great genius, can sometimes be hired; it cannot be guaranteed always to work or to gratify its client. Even the extraordinary poet laureate like Tennyson seldom reaches the height of the Ode on the Death of Wellington. Even a sculptor like MacMonnies excites more public debate than delight. It has to be recognized that the largest sum possible to be raised, offered to the greatest living sculptor—if any final authority could name him—might fail to produce the perennially perfect work which the Committee and the Alumni alike desire. It has to be recognized that a novel design wrought by a famous artist out of the very substance and spirit of the Great Struggle, embodying emblematically the arms of that struggle and concretely the men who won the Cause or died for it, would be essentially an experimental design: if a number of such were submitted in competition, one might be chosen, because of its immediate appeal, which yet, half a century afterwards, might seem an antiquated specimen of a past vogue, and another, rejected as freakish, might at some time far in the future prove, after all, the one imperishable design of the lot.

If these considerations are recognized, then it will doubtless be recognized also that the Committee have followed a wise course in offering, as the fundamental form of the proposed rostrum, a form which has stood the test of more than two thousand years—the Greek style with its pilasters, pediment, and acroteria. A rostrum of that form, and of the proportions, the restraint, the simplicity, of the submitted model should be a thing of beauty two thousand years hence, a satisfaction forever. Moreover, the notable plainness of the architectural detail of the model seems altogether consonant with the nature of the proposed granite medium.

The quality and scale of the lettering appear in themselves admirable also. The scale of the draped figures in relief, however, raises a question in my mind which, without complete as-

Alumni Notes

1874—Samuel Valentine Cole, President of Wheaton College, has recently published a poem entitled "Bethlehem."

'80—The following spirited letter has been received by Luther Dana '03 from H. R. Given, Esq., of Weaverville, Cal.

My dear Mr. Dana:

Enclosed find my check for the Bowdoin Athletic Fund. I took a great interest in athletics in my college years '76 to '80 and took an active part in baseball, gym and track events. In my last year I won the 100 yard dash in 10 1/2 seconds.

During my life in California I have played quite a lot of amateur baseball and can still do the back dive and various somersaults from the spring board at the swimming pool.

Two years ago at the age of 62, I played a ball game for the championship of the county—Weaverville vs. State highway team, and we won 6 to 5. On the last half of the ninth inning the score stood 5 to 5, Weaverville at bat. The first two men were out and then I came to bat, hit safely, stole second and third and came in with the winning run on a fumbled grounder. Not bad for a kid of my age.

I greedily read all athletic events in the Orient and my spirit is with the boys who are showing the good old Bowdoin fight and spirit. I remain with kind regards

Very truly,

H. R. GIVEN.

1886—Dr. A. S. Thayer of Portland died at his home of angina pectoris. Dr. Thayer was a native of Medway, Mass., and has practiced medicine for many years in Portland.

1891—Lewis A. Bureigh, Jr., who has been operated on for appendicitis at the Augusta General Hospital, is improving greatly and it is expected that he will go to his home in a few days.

1898—Donald B. MacMillan is kept well informed by radio. He sends this message to the civilized country: "Here at the top of the world in the darkness of the great Arctic night, isolated as we are from even outposts of civilization, radio has conquered solitude, banished anxiety over welfare of friends and relatives at home. We are almost as incredulous as the Eskimos that this can be so. But here we are and nightly it comes to find us intimately with the great world south of us."

Donald F. Snow, '01 of Bangor, and Herbert Powers, ex-'91, of Fort Fairfield, have been appointed by Governor Baxter on the Board to probe tax exemptions.

1905—James G. Finn, once a star tackle on the varsity has just been released from the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington after having spent five years and four months in hospitals in American and France. He was wounded in the battle of the Oureq River, July 28, 1918.

1907—Fulton R. Redman of Ellsworth is being generally endorsed by Democrats in this section for United States Senator. Mr. Redman was one of the speakers at the big Democratic dinner meeting held in Portland a few weeks ago.

1909—Claude O. Bower of Auburn, overseer of the Columbia mill of Lewiston, will soon move to Adams, Mass., where he and his father are to be engaged in a similar line of manufacturing.

1913—Frank I. Cowan has announced his candidacy for county attorney in the June primaries.

1913—Daniel E. Gardner was married on the twenty-seventh of December to Miss Clara Arvilla Jacoby at Dallas, Texas.

1917—Edward Humphrey has joined the advertising department of the Portland Press-Herald.

1917—The marriage of Harry Piedra to Miss Rita A. Trelles occurred December 15 at Matanzas, Cuba. Mr. and Mrs. Piedra will make their home at Havana, Cuba.

1917—Carleton M. Pike has been appointed by Senator Hale to serve as assistant clerk of the Committee on Naval Affairs.

1916—John L. Baxter of Brunswick has recently been elected vice-president of the Maine Canners' Association.

Faculty Notes

Robert S. Stetson '18 who was to have taken the place of Professor Wass as college organist during the second semester is to continue his studies as a fellow in the Juilliard Foundation. Although nobody has been chosen to fill the vacancy, it is expected that there will be an appointment in the near future.

President and Mrs. Sills and about twenty-five others from the faculty attended a reception given at Bates College Saturday, January 5, for the members of the faculty of Bowdoin.

Professor Davis attended a meeting of the National Association of Teachers of Speech where he read a paper. He was elected to the executive council for a term of three years. The meeting was in Cincinnati.

Professor Cushing attended a meeting in Washington of the American Economics Association.

Professor Livingston was present at the meeting of the Modern Language Association where he read a paper. Professor Elliott also attended.

Professor Joseph Davis, formerly instructor in Economics at Bowdoin, now of the faculty of Leland Stanford Junior University, sailed, during the past week, as one of two economic experts of a special Reparations Committee. The first meeting will be held on the fourteenth of this month in Paris.

Professor Hornell attended a meeting of the Teachers of History and Political Science, held in Columbus, where he read a paper. He is on the executive committee of the Association.

President Sills recently received an interesting letter from Paul H. Eames '21 regarding his hearing by radio of Pres. Sills recent speech in Chicago. Writing from Boston Mr. Eames says in part: "Believe me it was certainly interesting to hear the Bowdoin cheers and songs coming in over our radio receiving set. If MacMillan, away up North, was as enthusiastic as Boardman and I were over that particular bit of broadcasting, then he certainly enjoyed the banquet of the Chicago Bowdoin Alumni."

1917—Major James C. Oliver of Lewiston has successfully passed examinations for a lieutenant-colonelcy and has been recommended by the examining board for promotion. Major Oliver is manager of the Hudson Motor Sales Company of Lewiston.

1917—Colonel Sherman N. Shumway has been elected commander of the Simon Peter's Post of the American Legion. Colonel Shumway served with the 26th Division throughout the war and was the youngest lieutenant-colonel in the American Expeditionary Forces.

ex-'18—Lester F. Wallace of Portland recently became sales manager of the Burgess-Forbes Co. Mr. Wallace was formerly circulation manager of the Portland "Evening Express." He is a graduate of Columbia University. After his graduation from college he was identified with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., after which he joined the advertising department of the "Evening Express."

At a recent meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Portland President George W. Craigie '07 turned over the management of the club to president-elect George E. Fogg '02. Mr. Craigie was presented with a beautiful mirror clock.

'02—Edward S. Anthoine of Portland has announced his candidacy in the Republican primaries for State Senator from Cumberland County. Mr. Anthoine has received considerable political experience as President of the Common Council of Portland in 1910, and as chairman of the Republican City Committee in 1911 and 1912. Mr. Anthoine was overseas during the World War, and witnessed three months of active service with the 315th field artillery. Since the war he has been prominent in affairs of the American Legion, having been chosen first vice commander and afterwards department commander of Maine.

'12—George W. Kern is the father of a future Bowdoin back-field man. "Farmer" stated that the boy would be named Kriss Kringle Kern, so as to produce the magic initials "K.K.K." Somebody else, however, has named him George Johnson Kern.

surance as to its justification—since the best models are but imperfect hints of the final result—I venture to present. These figures produce the impression of being caryatides—an impression that persists because of their resemblance to the caryatides of the Erechtheum. The impression is more than misleading—it is infelicitous in that the figures appear, as caryatides, too stoutly proportioned for the slight pediment above them. Some modification of their height and robustness might correct this impression. As to their expressiveness, their significance, one can scarcely form a just judgment from the model; but it may be said that the simplicity of their draperies and of the emblems they carry promises, again, an effective result in granite.

Granite, one believes, is the most durable material available in this part of the world, and it was doubtless that consideration which led the Committee to suggest it as the most appropriate material for an imperishable memorial. One does not, however, understand this suggestion to be at all final. If another material were in question, another, or a greatly modified, design might be contemplated. The questions both of material and design, moreover, involve the problem of location. It is true, in general, that a design quite suitable for one location may be far less effective, or even inharmonious, in another location. Therefore, one might not be far wrong in asserting that our basic problem is that of location, and in urging that the Alumni consider this matter most earnestly and express their views to the Committee.

If the discussion of location now appears fundamentally pertinent, it is the submitted design we have to thank for making the fact clear. One location indicated is that on the axis of the Walker Art Building and Appleton Hall, on the easterly side of the main path to College Street, facing the Art Building. This location is conspicuous from the chief entrance to the grounds, and it would assure a satisfactorily symmetrical placing of the memorial. It is an ideal location axially and in impressiveness. Another suggested site is on the north side of the central avenue leading to the Chapel, between that avenue and the Seales Science Building; a memorial placed here, backed by the trees bordering the Campus on the Maine Street side, would be seen to great advantage from a point of view in the general vicinity of South Maine Hall, since it would close the vista between two rows of trees that cross the Campus parallel to, and just north of, the central avenue. A memorial so situated, however, would run a risk of being overpowered by the Science Building and of itself overpowering the '75 Gate—problems which a successful design would have to solve, along with the question of whether granite or some other material be the best intermediary between the buff brick of the Science Building and the stone of the Gate. A third suggested site, near the Thorndike Oak and approximately central on the Campus, is open to the valid objections cited in the report. To these may be added the objection that it is undesirable to break, except by paths and trees, the pleasant expanse of greensward between Hubbard Hall and Massachusetts Hall, which I believe many Alumni would feel an equally valid objection to a central location. Yet it is curious how custom, sentiment, and tradition bind us to tolerate the wooden platform under the Oak—a makeshift which must strike discriminating strangers as unworthy to be so conspicuously islanded in that fine expanse of turf. To this slight platform a monumental rostrum, set far enough from the Oak so as not to injure it—say on the axis of Hubbard Hall—would surely be preferable, as I see the matter. That is a point perhaps worth consideration in the further discussion as to location.

Returning now to the memorial design submitted for approval, and studying it from the standpoint of its suitability to the locations indicated: my impression is that its scale renders it unsuitable for the situation near the Science Building—that it would be dwarfed by the building and would dwarf the '75 Gate. It does seem to me best to fit the central location; it would there be too far removed from other buildings to compete with them in scale, and its granite would not contrast coldly with a brick background. Finally, my personal question would be whether, for a memorial placed on the axis of the Walker Art Building, with Appleton Hall behind it, brick and Indiana limestone, for example, would not be more harmonious materials than granite; but here again I realize that the contrast of the granite with the bricks of Appleton might be greatly softened by a generous planting of shrubs—a background and setting of greenery, of which the conventional hedge accompanying the model is merely a symbol.

Yours very sincerely,
HENRY F. ANDREWS.

John E. Chapman '77 Dies On Christmas Eve

Took Active Interest in the College—
For Many Years a Member of the Board of Overseers

Speaking in Chapel Wednesday morning, January 2nd, President Sills said:

Late on Christmas eve there died at his home in Brunswick, Mr. John E. Chapman of the class of 1877. He had been all his life deeply interested in the College, having served as the ideal secretary of the famous class of '77 since graduation, and having been a member of the Board of Overseers for several years. He was loyal to the College and loyal to his fraternity, the Alpha Delta Phi.

Having lived for some years in Boston where he was for a while on the editorial staff of the Youth's Companion and afterwards for some time the trustee of important estates, he came to Brunswick to make his home a few years since. He was, I believe, the most beloved man in Brunswick.

Few people have left a deeper impression upon their community. One of his classmates wrote of him as follows:

"He was a fine, lovable man. He didn't seem to have any of the rough corners that so many of us carry around. He was always patient and tolerant. I knew him, of course, many years, and was extremely fond of him. I can't pose as authority on what constitutes a Christian, but there has always been a vague notion in my mind that John Chapman more than any man I ever knew seemed to me to be what a Christian ought to be."

Mr. Chapman did not acquire great wealth, nor fame, nor a position of eminence; but he devoted his life to the service of others; and he was always considerate of others. Men of all walks of life have been under his sweet influence. He was in deed and in truth a Christian gentleman. When your own life story is ended you can wish for no higher tribute than has been paid to him.

He was sent overseas early in the war, and was in command of Company A, 7th Machine Gun Battalion of the Third Division, which held the main bridge over the Marne at Chateau-Thierry. He was the first American officer to enter the town. But nobody had thought to do it

By bringing electricity down from the clouds over a kite string, it was a simple thing to prove that lightning was nothing more than a tremendous electrical flash.

For centuries before Franklin flew his kite in 1751 philosophers had been speculating about the nature of lightning. With electrified globes and charged bottles, others had evolved the theory that the puny sparks of the laboratory and the stupendous phenomenon of the heavens were related; but Franklin substituted fact for theory—by scientific experiment.

Roaring electrical discharges, man-made lightning as deadly as that from the clouds, are now produced by scientists in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company. They are part of experiments which are making it possible to use the power of mountain torrents farther and farther from the great industrial centers.

Electrical machines bearing the mark of the General Electric Company, in use throughout the world, are raising standards of living by doing the work of millions of men.

There has recently been issued by the State a volume written by Henry S. Burrage, State historian, that should be of great interest to Bowdoin men. Its title is "Thomas Hamlin Hubbard." It gives much information concerning the Hubbards in Readfield and Hallowell as well as the military career of Thomas Hubbard, about whom Hallowell people really know less than of his brother, John Barrett Hubbard, for whom the local G.A.R. Post was named. John Barrett Hubbard was the elder son, but was killed early in the Civil war at Port Hudson, and it remained for his younger brother to carry on the honor of the family name. Mr. Burrage gives the ancestry of the Hubbards, emphasizing particularly Thomas Hubbard's grandfather, Dr. John Hubbard, who came from Kingston, N. H., to Readfield, Me., and also treating at some length the career of John Hubbard, Thomas Hubbard's father, who settled in Hallowell and became State senator and twice governor. Interesting descriptions of Hallowell of that day are given.

Thomas Hamlin Hubbard, second son of the governor, like his brother, was educated at the Hallowell Academy, then famous throughout the State. Both graduated from Bowdoin. He enlisted somewhat later than his brother, but was at once made adjutant of the 25th Maine Volunteers. Mr. Burrage in his book describes his military career in full and his various promotions. It also gives his later legal career and his various interests, one of which was his assistance to Peary in the latter's explorations. Much is made of the honors paid him. The book is one that should be read by all Hallowell people. General Hubbard's record should be a matter of pride.

Professor Thomas Means represented the College at the banquet of the Bowdoin Club of Bangor held at the Tarratine club on December 29. He spoke of the present ratio of faculty to the student body which is one to seventeen, as one of the interesting facts about the College. He also told of the course in Pedagogy which is to be offered next semester. Other speakers were Principal Clarence W. Proctor '98 of Bangor High, Frederic W. Adams '89, William R. Crowley, G. Williams Rowe '24 representing the undergraduates, and Raymond Worcester representing the guests from Bangor High, and preparatory schools.

The Club voted to present a cup to Bangor High School to be awarded each year to the class leading in the debating activities of the school.

The officers of the Club for the coming year are: George F. Eaton '14, president; Donald S. Higgins '19, vice-president; and Albert P. Cushman '13, secretary and treasurer.

Due largely to the initiative of Paul J. Koughan '15, now manager of the Minneapolis branch of the Library Bureau, the Bowdoin Alumni of that city, and vicinity have decided to organize a Bowdoin Club. In answer to a letter from Mr. Koughan, each alumnus responded in favor of an annual dinner at least and the majority favored more frequent meetings. The first meeting was held on the night of Jan. 2 at the Minneapolis Athletic Club. No report has been received from the meeting as yet. While the number of Bowdoin alumni in the vicinity of Minneapolis is small, it has always included a considerable number of the most prominent citizens of St. Paul and Minneapolis.

There will be a meeting of the Boston Alumni Association on January 16. President K. C. M. Sills, Alumni Secretary Austin H. McCormick of the faculty and William Rowe of the student body will represent the College. Among the other speakers will be Whiting of column fame in the Boston "Herald." Dinner will be served at Young's Hotel.

A special meeting of the Overseers of the College will be held in Hubbard Hall, February 1, to fill the vacancy in the Board of Trustees caused by the death of the late Edward Stanwood, Litt.D.; make appropriations for the period from March 31, 1924 to June 30, 1924; to see if the Boards will vote to amend the Laws, so that the close of the fiscal year shall be June 30; and to hear and act on the reports of the Committee on Limiting the Membership of the College, the Committee on the Blake bequest, and the Committee on Athletics.

Dr. William Witherle Lawrence of

New York, professor of English Literature at Columbia University, lectured to President Sill's class in comparative literature last Friday on "The Characteristics of the Middle Ages." Professor Lawrence is a graduate of Bowdoin in the class of 1898, and is a member of the Board of Trustees.

The committee on programs of the Economics Club has recently been selected, and is composed of Grenfell '24, Bishop '24, Toole '24, Mitchell '25, and Abrahamson '26.

The dates of the hockey games with the University of Maine have been changed in order that the game at Orono may come at the time of the Maine winter carnival, which is February 9. The game at Brunswick will be played February 16.

Thomas Mott Osborne Lectures On Prison Reform in United States

Illustrates Lecture With Moving Picture Showing Prison Conditions

Thomas Mott Osborne, world famous exponent of the prison reform movement, spoke in the Cumberland theater last Thursday night under the auspices of the Saturday Club. While he was in town he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. McCormick who gave an informal dinner in his honor on Tuesday evening. In his address, Mr. Osborne first explained why the "Smiler" was innocently executed in the moving picture which he showed despite the fact that the director wanted him saved in real movie style. The incident, he said, was based upon fact. He then told about several innocent men whom he had had to execute during his term as warden of Sing Sing prison. He also told about a man who had come within fifty-five minutes of paying the supreme penalty, who was saved by the confession of another prisoner. He then discussed the type of discipline which depended upon force and which didn't train the prisoner for the problems he was to face when he was liberated. He described the Mutual Welfare League, the system of self government which he instituted ten years ago in the prisons of New York state. He told of the way in which it had worked out, especially at the Naval Prison in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, when twenty-five hundred men, some of them serving life sentences, conducted their own affairs very largely and managed discipline without any guards what so ever inside the prison. He spoke briefly on the National Society of Penal Information which has been organized to keep the public informed as to prison conditions. It is this society for which Mr. Osborne and Mr. McCormick will make a study of the penal system of Colorado early in February. After the lecture, a large number of students stayed and talked with Mr. Osborne.

The moving picture which Mr. Osborne presented in connection with his lecture was the story of a product of the East Side in New York and the son of a wealthy family, both of whom landed in prison. The old type of prison was first shown with its effect upon the New York gunman. The prison under a new warden was then shown and its effect upon both prisoners. One of the most dramatic parts of the picture was the story of the "Smiler," a typical New York crook convicted of a murder of which he was innocent. The prison scenes in the picture were exceptionally fine, having been actually taken in prison, and there was a minimum of studio scenes.

Musical Clubs To Take Extended Trips In East

Boston Trip Starts February 14—New York Tour During the Easter Holidays

The Musical Clubs will open their season on February 8, a week after the midyear examinations, when they give a concert in Auburn under the auspices of the Auburn post of the American Legion.

The Boston trip will be made the following week and will include concerts in Saco, Portsmouth and Boston. The concert at Saco will be given on February 14 under the auspices of Thornton Academy. The Portsmouth concert on the 15th will be under the auspices of Portsmouth High School. The Alumni Association of Boston will be in charge of the concert in Boston on the 16th.

The New York trip will be made as last year during the Easter holidays. Plans are not yet in their final form. The present itinerary includes concerts in New York, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., Brooklyn and New London, Conn. The only date in this trip which is definitely settled is that of the concert in Philadelphia, under the auspices of the alumni, on April 3.

In addition to the longer trips, the Clubs will go to Bangor on February 20 under the auspices of the Bowdoin Club of Bangor. They will also appear in Brunswick and in Portland.

Following the policy of last year, the Clubs will present a program composed in part of classical pieces. The Jazz Band which was so popular last year will be a feature again this year.

College Receives Two Bequests In Last Month

Kate Douglas Wiggin and Mary C.
Spaulding Benefactors of College

During the past month it has become known through the filing of the wills of Kate Douglas Wiggin and Mary C. Spaulding that Bowdoin will receive legacies amounting to $7,500. Miss Wiggin (Mrs. Riggs) has left $5,000 to the college unconditionally, while Miss Spaulding left $2,500 which is to be known as the "Joseph W. Spaulding Fund," the interest of which shall be used yearly for the specific purpose of aiding some freshman.

Miss Wiggin's death occurred last summer in London, but her will was not filed until last month. Her fame as an authoress was world wide and although she was not born in Maine, she was considered as being a Maine authoress. She has long been identified with Bowdoin College, in 1904 she received the degree of Litt.D. from the college, being one of three women to have received that honor. She was also the founder and first president of the Society of Bowdoin Women, which took such a prominent part in the campaign for the Endowment Fund, and which has given lunches and provided headquarters for the women during commencements. It will not be known for what purpose the money will be used until the next meeting of the governing boards of the college, which will be next February.

The death of Miss Spaulding occurred last December, and the will was filed the very last part of the month. The fund is in honor of Miss Spaulding's father, Joseph W. Spaulding. He was an honorary graduate of the college in the class of 1878. In the Civil War he was promoted from a lieutenant to lieutenant-colonel. Mr. Spaulding represented the town of Richmond in both houses of the Maine legislature for several years after the Civil War, and he also held several other public offices. His death occurred in September, 1919.

Hockey Team Faces Bates With Almost No Practice

Bates and St. Dominique to be Played at Lewiston This Week

A poorly prepared Bowdoin hockey team opens its season at Lewiston next Wednesday afternoon when it plays Bates. Lack of practice, owing to the useless condition of the rink, will be the White's greatest handicap. To date, the team has never played together, despite the fact that all the last year letter-men are on hand with the exception of Plaisted, who has appendicitis, Young and A. W. Tolman, Jr. Still another obstacle in the road to hockey success is the team's lack of a coach. It is expected, however, that as soon as the ice is good enough to make practice possible, a coach will be chosen.

The revised schedule for the season is: Jan. 15, Bates at Lewiston; Jan. 18, St. Dominique at Lewiston (night); Jan. 23, Colby at Brunswick; Feb. 9, Maine at Orono; Feb. 16, Maine at Brunswick; Feb. 20, Colby at Waterville; Feb. 23, Bates at Brunswick.

Another game with St. Dominique is pending.

Bowdoin Invited To Student Citizenship Conference

Bowdoin has been invited to send delegates to the Student Section of the New England Citizenship Conference, to be held at Tech in the Walker Memorial Building, Jan. 19 to 22. The purpose of the conference is "to create, strengthen and voice public sentiment for obedience to law and for stricter enforcement, especially of the Eighteenth Amendment." The honorary chairman is ex-Pres. Eliot and the chairman is former Governor Milliken of Maine. Lodging and meals will be provided for delegates at Harvard and Tech. The speakers at the Student Section include Pres. Faunce of Brown, Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard and Rabbi Harry Levi. Any men who would be interested in attending this conference are asked to hand their names to Mr. McCormick or to R. H. Lee at the Zeta Psi House.

Colby Athletic Council Tables One-Semester Rule

The Athletic Council of Colby College recently tabled indefinitely the one semester rule adopted by Bowdoin a short time ago. The action of the council was due largely to the strong opinion of the student body opposed to the adoption of the measure. President Roberts urged the passage of this measure.

Colby's action will in no wise affect the decision of the Bowdoin Athletic Council.

Fencing Team To Meet Harvard And M. I. T.

Bowdoin Team Weakened by Loss of
Two of Last Year's Team

The Bowdoin fencing team will fence Harvard February 2 at Cambridge, and it will also have a match with Massachusetts Institute of Technology February 23. At trials held last Saturday in the fencing room of the gymnasium the following men were selected for the team that will represent Bowdoin at both of the matches. E. Clow '25, Davis '21, and Perkins '25. Clow is a veteran of last year's team, and is captain of this year's. Quinby and Roberts who were the other two members of last year's outfit are not now in college, and this leaves Clow the only veteran. At the start of the season there were more than thirty out for the team, but the number of aspirants has recently been cut to 15. Clow has been acting as coach, but an attempt will be made to secure the services of Julian E. Gray '18 for a short while, in order that the team may be coached by a more experienced man. When he was in college Gray was one of the leading fencers, being captain of the team of 1917. He is now attending Harvard graduate school, and he has done considerable work with the Harvard varsity fencing squad. Challenges were received from both Columbia and Yale, but there is small chance for a match with either, certainly not with Columbia. Dartmouth was challenged, but as her schedule was already filled, there was no opportunity of arranging a match this year.

The Harvard match is almost a college tradition, as one is held practically every year. Matches with M.I.T. have not been so frequent, the last one occurring three years ago, when Bowdoin won five to four. Owing to Harvard's superior coaching and equipment, there is not much chance of a win over her, although it is hoped to make a better showing than was made last year. As M.I.T. lays less emphasis on fencing than Harvard, it is hoped that Bowdoin can repeat her win of three years ago.

Class Of 1868 Prize Speaking Thursday

The Class of 1868 Prize Speaking will be held in Memorial Hall Thursday, January 17, at 8.00 o'clock.

The speakers, who are all members of the senior class are: J. M. Briscoe, G. E. Hill, R. H. Lee, C. D. Roulard, and G. W. Rowe.

The Class of 1868 Prize is one of forty-five dollars, and is given annually to the author of the best written and spoken oration in the Senior Class.

Sophomore Hop Date Set For March 13

At a meeting of the Sophomore Class held January 7 the following men were elected to the Sophomore Hop Committee, Neale, Maclean, Griffin, Hamilton and Perry. At a meeting of the committee held later, Hamilton was elected chairman.

It has been decided that the Sophomore Hop will be held March 13 and 14. The orchestra which will play for the gym dance has not yet been decided upon, although the committee is considering several good ones.

Through an error the name of Howard Kroll '25 was omitted from the list of men making their letters in cross country that appeared in last week's Orient.

Professor John C. Kirtland To Give Classical Course

Has Been at Exeter for Quarter of a Century—Distinguished in the Educational Field

Professor John C. Kirtland, for the past quarter of a century Morison professor of Latin at the Phillips Exeter Academy, has been appointed to the faculty here, where he will conduct a new course in the classics to be given next semester.

Professor Kirtland has distinguished himself among the Latin scholars of the New England secondary schools, and his experience has made him especially well fitted to participate in a course which covers the practical aspect of preparatory school teaching. He holds the degrees of A.A., A.M., and L.H.D. from Hobart College, and has done graduate work at Leland Stanford Junior University. Besides his work at Exeter, he has taught at Washington College and at Leland Stanford University, while in 1918 he was on the faculty of the summer school at Columbia. For the past few years, he has been chairman of the faculty during the summer session at Exeter.

He is a Phi Beta Kappa man, and a member of the American Philological Association, the Classical Association of England and Wales, and the National Institute of Social Sciences. He has been chairman of the commission on college entrance requirements in Latin, and of other important educational committees. He is editor-in-chief of the MacMillan Latin Series and in collaboration with Mr. Rogers of Exeter has written an "Introduction to Latin." Professor Kirtland will take up his work in college as soon as he returns from a European trip, probably early in May.

Seventeen Men Enroll In Course of Pedagogy

Professor Kirtland and Joel Hathaway to Assist in Teaching Course

Seventeen men have already enrolled in the new course for prospective teachers to be given next semester. In order to avoid conflicts with other Senior courses the hours will be 2:30 Tuesday and 2:30 to 4:30 Thursday. A complete description of the course will probably appear in next week's Orient. In addition to the secondary school men already announced the College has secured for part of the course the services of two of the best men in New England, Prof. Kirtland of Exeter and Mr. Joel Hathaway of Boston. Prof. Kirtland, who will take charge of the work devoted to the teaching of the classics, has been professor of Latin at Exeter for the past 25 years. He has been chairman and member of many important educational committees and is the editor-in-chief of Macmillan's Latin Series. Mr. Hathaway will take charge of the work in modern languages. He is connected with the City Board of Education of Boston and is recognized as an expert in the supervision and directing of teachers of the modern languages.

Y.M.C.A. Holds Weekly Informal Discussions

Russell M. McGown '21 Speaker at First Meeting

Russell M. McGown '21, General Secretary of the Bates Y.M.C.A., was the speaker a week ago Sunday at the first of a series of Sunday evening meetings to be held by the Bowdoin Y.M.C.A. through the winter months. Mr. McGown described the organization of the Bates work and spoke of some things which he thought could be done on our campus.

The meetings, of which this was the first, are an out-growth of similar meetings held last year. Six of last year's meetings were held in fraternity houses. This year the Y.M.C.A. is fortunate in having the use of Prof. Burnett's Playhouse, containing a comfortable room with a large fireplace, a piano, etc. It is entered from Page street, being at the rear of Prof. Burnett's residence. One enters without knocking or formality of any kind. The discussions are informal and the meetings are designed for securing free and informal discussion of a variety of subjects in which the student body is interested. The meetings begin at 7:30 and break up early. All students are invited to attend if they care to.

Inexperienced Relay Team Faces Stiff Competition During Coming Season

Bowdoin to Meet Harvard and M. I. T.
at B. A. A. Games—Freshmen to Meet Portland Feb. 22—Interfraternity Meet March 7

This year Coach Magee faces a situation such as he has not had to contend with since he first came to Bowdoin over ten years ago. Of last year's relay team there is not a single veteran left around whom he can build this year's quartet. "Steve" Palmer has graduated, and Glenn Butler will graduate at the end of the first semester. Cy Webster, who left college last year will return at the beginning of the second semester. The other remaining veteran of the team that made such a sensation last year is Don Mason, and he is not running this year, although still in college. Jack has always had at least one veteran man on whom he could depend. Not only this, but the entire squad lacks experience in running indoors. The only varsity track man on the squad is Bob Foster, New England half mile champion. But in spite of all these difficulties Coach Magee is very optimistic, and is quite confident that he can develop from this green and inexperienced squad a team that will measure up to the standards set by Bowdoin relay teams of the past decade.

The first meet in which Bowdoin will compete will be at the Boston Athletic Association games which will be held in Boston February 2. At these games the relay team will compete in a triangular race with Harvard and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. As these are two of the fastest teams that compete in these games the Bowdoin team will be forced to travel. The latter part of February the team will probably run at the Wilcox games which will be held in New York. On Feb. 22 the American Legion games will be held at Boston, and the relay team will also compete then. Coach Magee is trying to arrange a race with Williams for these games. These are probably all the contests in which Bowdoin will be represented this winter, although several invitations to compete in various others have been received.

Since the Christmas holidays the members of the squad have been practicing daily. Last Saturday time trials were held, and although no times were given out, it is understood that Coach Magee is more than pleased with the results. Among the most promising members of the squad are Bob Foster '25, Kack Hamilton '26, Frank Farrington '27, John Tarbell '26, Leon Spinney '26, Hal Littlefield '26, Jimmy Robinson '26 and Sam Hull '27. Foster is practically sure of making the team, and it is about a toss up for the rest of the places between the other men. Other members of the squad are Gray, Gentner, Small, Fanning, Sellow, Boynton, Whittier, Fay, Nelson, Rowe, Rosen, Marshall, Marino, Huntress and Goodhue.

Captain Francis Bishop of the track team has gone over 12 feet several times, and will be entered in the pole vault at the B.A.A. games. If it is possible, Bob Foster will run in the invitation 660, in addition to being on the relay team. In this race he will run against such men as Helfrich of Penn State, Jake Driscoll, former Boston College star and intercollegiate quarter mile champion, and George Masters of Georgetown, former Deering High luminary. Mal Hardy's return to college will be a help to the team. He will be eligible to compete for Bowdoin, and will be entered in the hurdles at the B.A.A. games. Al Small '25 has been showing a great improvement, and Coach Magee is very much satisfied by the work that he has been doing in the high and broad jumps. He is also showing up well in the sprints; and with Barrett Nichols '25 and Frank Farrington '26 in addition to him that department

The Student a Citizen.

It is a strange thing that the most flagrant violation of law should come from the people in the land who claim to be the most intelligent. College men, yes, and college women, too, have been notoriously lax in their attitude toward the portion of our Constitution which prohibits the trafficking in alcoholic beverages. In the college, the intellectual anteroom of the world, we find conditions in regard to prohibition enforcement certainly no better, often, unfortunately, worse than those in the least savory parts of the land.

If social responsibility means anything more than a term to the college man, if the man is willing to face facts honestly, if he wishes first of all to present his college to the world in the proper light, then he must realize that he owes, more than any other man, a considerable debt of loyalty to the nation. For the four, six, eight, or perhaps more years during which the rest of the world assumes our share of production, we have no means of payment except as we shall render service to the world. That means true citizenship.

Our citizenship is real, even though many still do not vote, although we are fairly well removed from the conflicting currents of politics. Not the least demand of citizenship upon us is that of absolute fairness. We disregard all the fundamental principles of fair play when we play at hide-and-seek with the officers of the federal government engaged in enforcing the prohibitory laws. We forget that as citizens, enjoying the privileges of citizenship, we are tacitly sworn to see that the laws of the land are enforced. Consciously or not, we are agents of the government which protects and watches over us. We cannot, therefore, fail to face the facts as they exist. Whether violations of the law will or will not result in our being dropped from college, our duty in the matter is clear.

In all sections of the nation the colleges are meeting the situation with a laudable vigor and assurance. Action is coming from the students themselves—not from the Faculty. That is the only satisfactory way to curb the evil. Several clippings appended to this editorial give a general idea of what attitude students are taking elsewhere. The conference being held on the question the last of this week in Cambridge will help largely in determining the New England policy. Bowdoin men have their responsibility to the government, exactly as have other men. Why not recognize it?

Penn State Council Unanimous for Prohibition

The Student Council of Penn State College, representing 3400 students, has adopted resolutions unanimously placing the students on record in support of prohibition and in opposition to "any practice or transactions in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment."

This action by Penn State originated with the undergraduates and is their official expression. It is in line with recent action taken at Yale, Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio State and other important institutions.

The resolutions, as reported by the local representative at Penn State to the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association at Washington, recognizing that "college students should be leaders of thought," "heartily endorse all action on the part of our national and state executives that will lead to more efficient enforcement of the law" and pledge the Student Council to "support the administration of our college in severely punishing students guilty" of violating the law.

College Law Observance Publicity

Believing that "as go the colleges today so will go the nation tomorrow," the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, Washington, D. C., is undertaking to get the Law Enforcement movement effectively before the "last student" in the more than 600 American colleges by issuing a series of twenty posters intended to be placed, weekly for twenty weeks, on college bulletin boards.

The series will cover, in turn, every phase of the movement, respect for law, athletic, economic, scientific and international. For the present it will stress the observance of the 18th Amendment. Forceful statements of Presidents Coolidge, Roosevelt, Taft and Harding, carrying fine portraits, appear on the first four, now ready.

The idea has struck fire. Over 100 institutions are "signed up." The bulletin work began January 1st. The price is $10.00 per set of two posters for 20 weeks; additional sets $4.00. Students, teachers, organizations and citizens are invited to pay or raise the cost of the posters, for one or more colleges in their city.

University of Illinois Stands by the Law

Just previous to the recent Annual Homecoming the students of the University of Illinois, at a meeting attended by 3000 Illini, heartily approved by resolution "the stand taken by President Coolidge and the governors of the states at their recent Conference with reference to the enforcement of the law against the liquor traffic."

They promise to stand individually for prohibition; to use their influence in the groups to which they are related; and to "ask the cooperation of our alumni and friends so that on the occasion of our inaugural Homecoming nothing will occur which can be construed as disrespect for or disobedience to the law." They urge similar action by other student bodies throughout the country.

Students Pledge Dry Junior Week

Members of the Junior class of the University of Pennsylvania recently took a "dry" pledge to remain in force during the festivities of junior week. The pledge was made following an address by the Rev. John R. Hart, chaplain of the Church of the Transfiguration, in chapel exercises which featured the first day's activities.

It was also agreed that there would be no boisterous conduct at any of the events.

M. A. C. Frat Takes Action

Following drinking at a dance of one of the fraternities of Michigan Agricultural College, the fraternity requested four of their men to resign and their resignations were accepted. The administrative office of the institution recognized the offense by suspending two men indefinitely and placing four more on probation.

Editor's Note: The following communication seems to express something that we, editorially do not quite thoroughly understand. The thought is one, however, with which we quite agree. Let us hope that it will not be expressed many more times here at Bowdoin. Honor! What an empty word in our examinations! W. R.

To the Editor of the Orient:

We, the "aristocracy of intellect," are proud that we must have guardians of our honor at the coming mid-years. When you see them,—pacing restlessly back and forth, think what a privilege we have in being so carefully guarded!

It is the fault of our own group, and there are the following reasons for change,—

But then I must cram . . . and there are honest crooks!

Yours in penitence,

No. 83-1925,

AVERY M. SPEAR.

Communication

The Editor of the Orient:

I would like to testify to my enjoyment of Mr. Gutman's amusing and provocative letter in regard to the War Memorial. It seems to me that his is a point of view which it is important to put forward and in saying this I am sure I shall not be misunderstood as implying anything against the Committee which has given this matter careful thought.

While I am disposed to agree with the Committee that a War Memorial should not be a mere utility, I should also be reluctant to have it a mere futility and I cannot believe that the proposed rostrum falls outside the latter category. With all that the college grievously needs, I do not see how we can justify an expenditure of I forget how many thousand dollars on a structure which the college quite obviously does not need at all. Perhaps we might justify a rostrum even though admittedly useless if it were a supreme work of art, but I do not think anyone would make that contention for the McKim, Mead and White design. Personally, I should think that even if we did build a rostrum competition might furnish a materially better design than the one which has been submitted.

Yours truly,

ROBERT HALE '10

Communication

To the Editor:

I seize upon your columns to discuss a question which has long been discussed in camera because I believe that linen will become cleaner when washed in sunlight and open air. The linen, in this case, being preparatory school methods as applied to the college in compulsory gymnasium attendance, compulsory chapel attendance, the cut system, and the rank system. Granting a modicum of necessity to these features of college, I believe that they contain obvious demerits.

It seems obvious that the student is the one who should say whether or not he should have a sound body. Attendance at physical training exercises (failure of which will result in probation and the withholding of a degree) will not, in any case, result in the development of a physique if the student cares so little about his body that he perfunctorily runs through the prescribed drill. "A sound mind in a sound body" is, trite, but not necessarily true.

I see no reason for compulsory chapel except that it is more or less traditional—the reason certainly isn't conviviality; it isn't to receive notices, there is a bulletin board; it can't be the singing, there is plenty of informal singing; and from unbiased observations of my fellow students I doubt very much if religion is the reason. Even if it were, there is little benefit to be derived from religion which is suffered under coercion. Those who derive any religious benefits from chapel exercises are the ones who would go voluntarily.

Whether the college be regarded as a business proposition or a fount of learning, I can see no excuse for the cut system. If Bowdoin is a business, the view must be taken that the students pay money for their instruction and if they don't want to take advantage of it the loss is their's, not the college's. If Bowdoin be regarded as a fount of learning, I still fail to see how the college loses because some men don't attend exercises regularly. It seems to be an open question

League of Youth Subject of President Sills' Address

President Sills addressed the college in the Sunday afternoon chapel service. He took for his text a part of the twelfth chapter of the First Book of Kings. In connection with this the President referred us to one of the most interesting movements in the world, the League of Youth. This movement, an outgrowth of the recent war, started in Europe and is now pushing itself forward in this country. It is quite natural that the youth of the world, those upon whom the burden of responsibility and suffering was placed during the war, should feel that the older generation must have been negligent not to foresee the great world wide catastrophe and to try to avert it. They feel that they should take the reins of the world into their own hands.

There are many good points in the League. Sir James Barrie, the great English playwright and poet, urged it, saying that the world is becoming so small that the youth in our country has more in common with that of other countries than age and youth themselves.

Dangers, on the other hand, stand ready to present themselves. In the first place, as President Sills pointed out, no body or class of people, religious, racial, or grouped according to age, can now-a-days work absolutely by itself, independent of all other groups. He advised that all the men of Bowdoin look up facts about the League and form an opinion one way or the other.

The second danger which might threaten the League of Youth is advice in favor of intolerance, that evil which is now showing its hideous head in a more frightful manner than ever before. In Russia, at present, a man who in any way has any connection with a church, no matter what its denomination, is no longer a Communist and a man who does not hold this status is as well dead. Here is a government in this educated world taking such an intolerant stand towards religion as even a Czar would refuse to take. Some of our modern magazines, such as the "New Republic" and the "Nation," preach intolerance. Certainly it was this which caused such a disruption in the various churches during the last month.

President Sills called our attention to a saying of Ben Johnson, "The truth lies open to all." Next he called to our notice the fact that in the Constitutional Convention, a group of fifty-five men, twenty-two members were college men. The Constitution of the United States is a wonderful example of the result of a combination of the young blood's new ideas and the sound reasoning of more mature minds. Such a masterpiece required toleration, patience, truth, and faith on the part of its composers.

In closing, President Sills repeated to us a passage from Goethe: "Guarding well the ancient treasure, Welcoming the new with pleasure."

Bowdoin Ranks Fifth In Graduate School Students

Third in New England—Penn. Columbia, Clark, and Harvard Lead Country

The Boston Transcript reprints part of an investigation recently conducted by School and Society to rank those institutions whose graduates seek to further their education in graduate and professional schools. Bowdoin ranks high in the results tabulated. The investigation was carried out with the idea that the representation of alumni in graduate and professional schools is a very fair measure of the intellectual enthusiasm of the colleges. The study was made in about fifty graduate schools on 14,000 students.

When account is taken of size by considering the number of alumni enrolled in graduate schools in proportion to the undergraduate enrollment at the colleges from which they came, Bowdoin is in fifth place for the whole country, and third place in New England. Penn leads with an average of 69.3, Columbia is second with 49.7 and Clark University is third with 31.7. Harvard scores 31.6, Bowdoin is fifth with 24.1, and then follow Amherst 19.1, Williams 18.4 and Yale 18.3.

New England colleges and universities which send less than 18 per cent and more than 12 per cent of their undergraduates to the high schools are: Rhode Island, Trinity, Wesleyan, Brown, Dartmouth, Boston University and Mt. Holyoke. Those between 8 and 12 per cent are Bates, Wellesley, Maine, Colby, Tufts and Radcliffe; those between 6 and 8 per cent Middlebury and Smith; those from 1 to 6 per cent Holy Cross and Simmons.

Ranking the colleges which send the largest proportion of their enrollment to graduate as distinct from professional schools, Penn again leads the list. The leaders in New England are Clark, Harvard, Bowdoin and Amherst in the order named. New England colleges which send the largest proportion of their enrollment to graduate medical schools are Bowdoin, Clark, and Harvard; those sending the greatest proportion of their graduates to law schools are Harvard, Williams, Trinity, Amherst and Bowdoin.

The Open Road Magazine Holding Editorial Contest

The Open Road magazine offers one hundred dollars for the best editorials of not more than five hundred words in length written and submitted on or before January 31, 1924. Competition will be divided between high school and preparatory students and all others whatever their age, including those in college and at work. Prizes of $25, $15 and $10 are offered to each group. The winning editorials will be published in The Open Road. The final judges in the contest are Dean LeBaron Russell Briggs of Harvard, M.A., DeWolfe Howe, of the Atlantic Monthly, and Basil King, novelist.

The editorials will be judged by: the clearness and force with which the idea is presented, the author's ability to write good English, and the importance and value of the subject.

Preference will be given to manuscripts that are typewritten on one side of the paper and sent folded, not rolled. A stamped addressed envelope must be enclosed for returning the manuscript if it proves unsuccessful. On the first page of the manuscript must appear the author's name and address together with a statement whether he is competing in Group I for preparatory school students or Group II for all others. Any subject may be chosen and any contestant may submit more than one editorial if he wishes.

All manuscripts must arrive at The Open Road office by five o'clock, January 31, 1924. All editorials should be addressed to Contest Editor, The Open Road, 248 Boylston Street, Boston.

President Kenneth C. M. Sills has accepted an invitation to preside at the lecture to be given at Frye Hall, Portland, January 14th, under the auspices of the Maine Committee of Miss Master's School at Dobb's Ferry, N. Y., at which time Major Ian Hay Bieth will lecture on "My Literary Experiences."

Four Teams Chosen After Bradbury Debating Trials

Debating Team to Take Eastern Tour in Spring—To Meet Tufts, Lafayette, Boston University, and Possibly Rutgers

Trials for the Bradbury debates were held last Monday afternoon in the Debating room of the Library, and the following men were selected, Lee '24, McIntyre '25, Daggett '25, Hill '24, Hewitt '27, H. Hildreth '25, Raye '24, McGuire '26, Saunders '24, Rowe '24, Read '26, Walch '25, Downs '27, F. Jones '27, Mitchell '25 and W. Gulliver '25, the last four being alternates. Twenty-seven men participated in the trials. The judges were Professors Mitchell, Davis, and Catlin.

The Bradbury debates themselves will be held the afternoon and evening of January 21. The subject for debate is, Resolved: that the United States should recognize the Soviet government of Russia. In the afternoon the following teams will oppose each other, Lee, McIntyre and Daggett, Downs, alternate; Hill, Hewitt and H. Hildreth, with F. Jones, alternate. The first team will take the affirmative. In the evening the affirmative will be upheld by a team composed of Rowe, Read, Walch, and Mitchell, alternate. This team will be opposed by one composed of Raye, McGuire, Saunders and W. Gulliver, alternate.

Four debates for this year's schedule have already been arranged, and there is a possibility of a fourth debate. On February 25 the team will debate Tufts at Medford. This will make the third consecutive year that Bowdoin has debated Tufts, and this year's will be the deciding debate, each college having won one. March 27 there will be a debate with Lafayette at Easton, Pennsylvania; while at the same time a team from Lafayette will debate at Brunswick. This will be the first time that these two colleges have ever met in debate. It is interesting to note that the Lafayette team is coached by A. R. Thayer, Bowdoin '22. When he was a senior at Bowdoin Mr. Thayer was captain of the debating team that made such a good showing on the western trip of that year, when Bowdoin was victorious in all four of its contests. There will also be a debate with Boston University, the date of which has not yet been decided, although it will probably come at the time of the Lafayette debate. An attempt is being made to arrange a debate with Rutgers at New Brunswick, N. J. If the attempt is successful the debate will be held on the Lafayette trip.

That there is an interest in debating is shown by the fact that so many men have tried out for the Bradbury Debates. There is a wealth of material among those who will participate in these debates, and from them there will be selected the teams which will represent Bowdoin in these intercollegiate debates.

Five of those men who will debate for the Bradbury prizes have been on previous varsity teams. These are Lee, Daggett, Hill, Hildreth and Walch represented Bowdoin in the Amherst underclass debate of last year. Practically all of the others have had previous experience on class teams since they have been at Bowdoin.

Minneapolis Alumni Hold Organization Meeting

The first meeting of the Minneapolis Bowdoin men held in several years assembled last night, January 2, at the Minneapolis Athletic Club. Among those present were: A. L. Crocker '73; Thomas Kneeland '74; Dr. John H. Morse '97; A. J. Russell '83; Earl Tuttle '13; P. J. Koughan '15.

The quantity and quality of Bowdoin spirit evidenced by those present would have done credit to an association as large as some of the New England alumni associations.

Meetings are to be held monthly for the future and it is our sincere hope that our numbers may be augmented in the near future by some of the younger of Bowdoin alumni who will investigate the opportunity of the Northwest. We wish to encourage recent graduates and graduates of future classes to get in touch with us and can assure any of those interested that desirable vocations can be found both in business and in the professions.

Alumni Notes

Class of 1870

Orville Boardman Grant was born September 4th, 1844, Ellsworth, Maine, and died at Greenup, Ill., August 2nd, 1923.

He was married to Miss Ada Byron Billings of Portland, Maine, March 15th, 1871. He entered the U. S. navy during the Civil War and was discharged at its close.

After graduation he taught at Skowhegan, Maine; Danvers, Mass.; Providence, R. I.; Vineland, N. J.; Philadelphia, Penn.; Wilmington, Del.; Victoria, Texas; Harrisburg, Penn.; Port Townsend, Wash.; South Seattle, Wash., and Springfield, Ky. Later he edited "The Greenup Press," Greenup, Ill., for 15 years.

He is survived by his wife and three children, Edith Grace, wife of F. W. Graff, Alexander B., and Harold A. 1897—Rev. Earl C. Davis, since 1919 minister of the Church of Our Father in Lancaster, Pa., has accepted a call to the Unitarian Church, Concord, N. H. Mr. Davis is a graduate of Bowdoin and Harvard Divinity School and was minister of Unity Church, Pittsfield, Mass., from 1905 to 1919.

1896—Henry W. Owen of Bath has been commissioned a major of artillery, Maine National Guard, and assigned to the 240th Artillery, C.A.C., in command of the Second Battalion. Major Owen has had considerable experience in the Maine Coast Artillery, National Guard, serving as an enlisted man in Fourth Company of Bath during 1912 and being commissioned captain in command of the company in December of that year. In 1917 he entered Federal service with his command and was stationed for a time at Fort Popham. His company was later transferred to Fort McKinley and he was afterwards detached from command and made coast defense adjutant. Major Owen was formerly editor of the Bath Times and is at present postmaster at Bath.

1907—A daughter, Martha Isabella, was born on December 16 to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Allen Buttrick.

23—The announcement of the engagement of Miss Frances W. Bragg to Donald J. Eames has recently been announced. Both are of Bangor.

1923—Joseph I. Smith is engaged to Miss Estelle Frances Arkin of Geneva, Ohio. Miss Arkin is a graduate of Kent College in the class of 1923 and is now principal of Junior High School in Fairpoint, Ohio.

Professor Fred A. Knapp of Lewiston, Professor of Latin at Bates College, addressed a meeting of the Classical Club yesterday evening at the Zeta Psi House. A picture of the Classical Club was taken last Thursday afternoon at Webber's Studio.

Out of nine junior internships given to seniors in the Boston University Medical School, four have been assigned to Bowdoin men. This is an excellent record for the men from Bowdoin who are pursuing their medical studies in Boston University.

whether or not the cut system is more conducive to learning than the system of optional attendance at lectures which obtains in European universities.

The ranking system falls under a similar category, and practically the same arguments hold. What earthly or divine difference does it make to the college whether a man learns more or less? The loss, if any, is his; nor is it certain that ranks are any criterion of the benefit that a man derives from a course.

It may be said in reply to the above two points that the reputation of the college may suffer. I admit the possibility of this, but is the purpose of the college to build a lofty reputation or to hold up the cup of learning for any who may wish to drink thereof?

I have taken an extreme and provocative point of view in the hope of calling forth some open discussion from the student body and (dare I hope it?) from the faculty.

In conclusion I would like to say that this blasphemy had formed itself in my mind before I received a card from the Dean.

will be well taken care of.
February 22 the freshmen will compete against Portland high at Brunswick in a dual meet. Later on there will be a contest with Hebron, and this will be followed by the Freshman-Sophomore and Interfraternity meets. The meet with Portland will be an especially hard one, as Portland has a veteran team, and Coach Magee will have to build an entirely new one. This means that he will almost have to perform miracles, as with the exception of three or four men there are no men out for track from the freshman class who have had any previous experience in track.

The indoor track schedule for the winter, as completed up to the present date, is as follows:

- Feb. 2—B.A.A. games.
- Feb. 22—Freshman meet with Portland High.
- Feb. 22—American Legion games at Boston.
- March 7—Interfraternity meet.
- March 8—Inter-scholastic meet.

Athletic Management
Reorganization Brings
Greater EfficiencySteps Taken During Last Semester
Will Put Bowdoin Athletics on a Firm Basis

With the mounting of athletic expenditures everywhere since the war and with the expansion of an athletic-for-all policy at Bowdoin, the athletic authorities at the Brunswick institution have been busy perfecting a system of athletic control and financial management which will co-ordinate the activities of all athletic organizations and govern expenditures so as to benefit the largest number possible. In the past few months steps have been taken that have been under consideration for several years. The result is a system established on sound business principles but allowing for the flexibility which must always be retained in athletic matters.

The chief developments at Bowdoin this year have come with the centralizing of the responsibility in the graduate manager, who acts as the executive representative of the Athletic Council. The office was created two years ago, Prof. Thomas Means serving as the first graduate manager. The position has been held for a year now by Lyman A. Cousens '02, of Portland, for several years chairman of the Athletic Council. His term of service has seen the athletic management centered more and more completely in the graduate manager.

Inefficient System Gone

His responsibility has been increased in many cases by taking duties from the student managers. The old system, under which inexperienced undergraduates handled comparatively large sums of money with rather general supervision, has gone for good from Bowdoin. Now student managers handle funds under strict supervision of the graduate manager. They are taught good business methods and are held to strict account for the management of the funds in their charge.

A uniform system of accounting for all sports has been installed. An essential element in the system is that all athletic funds pass through the graduate manager's office. All student managers' accounts are kept under his direction and all bills are paid by him after they have passed through the managers' hands.

The accounting system was set up by Professor Morgan B. Cushing, who has had practical experience in banking and who came to Bowdoin from the University of Pennsylvania, to conduct courses in Money and Banking and Corporation Finance. Professor Cushing was recently elected to the athletic council.

To take the mass of details off Mr. Cousens' hands, the council this fall elected Roland H. Cobb '17 assistant graduate manager. Mr. Cobb is instructor in physical education at Bowdoin. As an overseas officer during the war he learned many things, particularly about the issue and checking of equipment, that come into his work as assistant graduate manager. As director of the Cobb camps for boys at Denmark he has also had valuable business experience.

New Department Organized

Under Mr. Cobb's supervision a new department has been organized for the purchase, storing and issue of all sorts of athletics equipment. In the stock room at the Sargent Gymnasium the Bowdoin athlete can now get on requisition anything from a roll of adhesive tape to a complete football uniform, but he must sign a receipt for it and the equipment has to be turned in again at the end of the season, either entire or in worn-out remnants.

When Jack Magee's track squad numbers over 100 men, who report for duty even before the 60 or more men out for football put their togs in mothballs, and when Ben Houser's baseball men start operations in the Hyde Athletic Building about February first, and the hockey squad turns out in warm woollens and expensive gloves and starts breaking two-dollar sticks—the equipment item in Bowdoin's athletic budget mounts up.

Under a system where each manager buys for his own sport and often loses equipment in the rush of other duties, there is bound to be waste. But the new Bowdoin equipment system, centralizing purchase, storage, issue, repair, and so on, is expected to save a great deal.

The man who assists Mr. Cobb in the stock room is Brooks Savage '21, former manager of baseball. Savage is also an overseas veteran and he understands the army equipment system from real experience. The only thing ever issued him in the army without his giving a receipt for it was a dose of shrapnel that he still carries in his leg.

While, under the new system, the student manager is no longer given a free hand, he actually learns more than before, and his business training is not such an expensive proposition. He learns how to make a budget and to stay within it as well as how to plan such trips as the Southern baseball trip, which lasts over a week and takes the baseball team as far South as Annapolis. He also learns how to meet one of the biggest problems the Bowdoin manager has these days: the handling of big crowds. At the football game with Maine, for example, thousands of people come to Whittier Field. Their proper seating, the care of their cars, the accurate checking of tickets, and so on, are a tremendous problem. On such occasions the graduate manager or his representatives go over all the plans with the student manager and give him what advice and direction he needs.

Several of the professors and their wives are much interested in assisting in the care and welfare of the refugees of Greece. Proceeds are to be used in the care of a half million refugees driven into Greece from Smyrna and other parts of Asia Minor. Hockey Team Opens Season With Two Defeats

Lose First State Series Game to Bates

In the first game of the Maine college hockey season Bowdoin was swamped by Bates 7-0. The Bowdoin players with no practice were scarcely a match for the well-trained Bates machine which led by flashy Joey Cogan had little trouble in scoring a victory. The game was ragged, the players being hindered by the poor condition of the Lake Andrews ring. Joey Cogan was the individual star of the game and was responsible for the majority of goals. By his dashing attacks he broke up more than one threatened Bowdoin advance and often buried the puck in the White goal despite the efforts of Nichols, Bowdoin goal tender, who nevertheless turned back more than one well-directed shot. The Stanley brothers starred on the defense and it was largely due to their efforts that the White ice birds were unable to score. Capt. Miguel struggled in vain to pierce the Garnet goal which however remained unscathed although it was repeatedly threatened.

With favorable weather conditions Bowdoin should stand a good chance of winning the state championship. Many lettermen are back and the only thing lacking is the opportunity for practice. Old Man Winter certainly seems to have it in for the White players since, because of poor weather, the Bowdoin team has been unable to get on the surface for any early season practice. In spite of this handicap if the future weather will permit we should produce a combination which will cause the other colleges a lot of trouble.

The line-up:

Bates (7)	(0) Bowdoin
O'Connor, w	rw, Bucknam
Cogan (Capt.), c	c, Cronin
Corey, rw	w, Preble
D. Stanley, ld	rd, (Capt.) Miguel

Game With St. Dominiques

The fastest St. Dominique hockey team defeated the Bowdoin team in the White's second game of the season by a 5-0 score. The issue of the game was never in doubt. The St. Dominiques with one victory and one loss to their credit, played a steady, consistent game while Bowdoin handicapped as in the Bates game by a lack of practice only excelled by spurts. Moreau, the home team center, was the individual star of the game, having several goals to his credit. The work of Miguel and Nichols was the outstanding feature of Bowdoin's play. St. Dominique scored one goal in the first period, two in the second and two in the third. Several times the White skaters outlasted their opponents displaying splendid team work and giving the St. Dominiques many worried moments, but these spurts only lasted a short time.

The Bowdoin team put up a much stiffer fight than did the U. of M. team over whom the fast Lewiston team had little trouble in scoring a victory. This was the third encounter of the season for the St. Dominiques and credits them with two victories and one loss when they were barely nosed out by Bates after a long struggle. Bowdoin looks like a worthy contender for the state championship honors if she can have practice. With a team composed wholly of veteran players and with the sensational spurts and plays of this game as an example, it looks as if the White crew would be more than a match for any of the Maine college hockey outfits.

The line-up:

St. Dominique (5)	(0) Bowdoin
Pelchat, rw	lw, Preble
Therriault, c	c, Cronin
Vachon, lw	rw, Bucknam
Simpson, rd	ld, Widen
Bilodeau, ld	rd, Miguel

Referees, French, Lavelle. Goal umpires, Corriveau, Michaud. Substitutions, Bowdoin. Littlefield for Bucknam; St. Dominique, Moreau for Therriault. Goals, by Moreau 2, Therriault, Simpson.

Interfraternity Council Considered At Meeting

Student Council Making Investigation

The Student Council is considering the internal organization and functions of an interfraternity council, a body of which the college has long felt a need. The new council will be put into operation at the beginning of the second semester. Among the things which will first be brought to its attention will be the formation of an interfraternity basketball league and schedule.

Freshmen Win Debate

Defeat Sophomores in Annual Contest

The annual Freshman-Sophomore debate took place last week in the Debating Room of Hubbard Hall. The room was filled to overflowing by students, visitors, and members of the faculty. Promptly at eight o'clock Richard H. Lee '24, president of the Debating Council, introduced the first speaker of the evening, Charles Griffin of the Sophomore class. Mr. Griffin stated the question for discussion, "Resolved, that the United States Government should recognize the Soviet government of Russia." He introduced the case for the affirmative by showing that the average Russian of today was not clad in worn out garments or old shoes and did not sport a six months growth of beard. The Russian is not different from multitudes of other Europeans. The affirmative case was outlined by Mr. Griffin. "They would prove," he said, "first that the Soviet possessed the essential characteristics of a state and second, that the Soviet can fulfill its international obligations." The government is stable, said the speaker, because it is not connected with any form of communism and proof of this lies in the fact that the Soviet has existed through six years of strife and revolution. Moreover, the Soviet can fulfill its international obligations. It was agreed at the Canne's Conference, that if the Soviet would fulfill its international obligations, it should be represented at the Genoa conference and the fact that it was present at the Genoa conference was proof that the Soviet had fulfilled these obligations. In regard to propaganda, Senator Borah claimed that for the last three years there had been none in the United States. Therefore we should not worry concerning Bolshevik propaganda after recognition.

Senator Beedy stated that Russia was the key to European peace, therefore we must recognize Russia in order to bring about a world peace. Recognition would insure such peace, Mr. Griffin said, and we should not withhold the peace of the world for selfish reasons.

The first speaker for the negative, Merritt A. Hewett of the class of 1927 was then introduced. The speaker presented the case as follows: "The opposition will prove this evening that for legal, moral, and economic reasons we should not recognize the Soviet government. As first speaker, I shall show you that because the Soviet refuses to recognize international law, we should not recognize her. Her refusal has been shown by her cancellation or rather annulment of all foreign debts, her refusal to guarantee sanctity of contract, to protect the life and property of aliens, to respect other governments, and moreover she has

Pedagogy Course

Plans Announced

The new course in Pedagogy next semester will come at 2:30 p. m. on Tuesdays and from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. on Thursdays. The second hour Thursday will be a conference. Enrollment in the course will probably be limited to twenty men.

It has been announced that two Bowdoin graduates, Principal James A. Lewis '15 of Westbrook High School, and Harvey D. Miller '17 of the Bangor High School, will take charge of the work in Science and English respectively.

Prof. Kirtland of Exeter will have charge of the work on the Classics in this course, and will not conduct a new course in the Classics Department, as announced in last week's Orient.

The place of meeting and a list of the men who have been admitted to the course are posted on the bulletin board.

Y. M. C. A. Is Active

The Y.M.C.A. is as usual doing splendid work. The sum of twenty-three dollars, realized from the chapel collection was devoted to making Christmas a little happier for Brunswick's poor. The gym classes held every Thursday evening for the town boys have a large attendance, at least forty boys ranging in age from 9 to 17 years have registered and the leaders of the movement have their hands full. All men who are interested in this kind of social service work are asked to communicate with either Francis Bishop or Charles Hildreth. It is hoped that Bowdoin's quota of $1000 for the European Student Relief will be quickly filled as everyone must realize the importance of this worthy cause. The drive will probably start immediately after the mid-year examinations. The Y.M.C.A. conducts weekly meetings every Sunday evening in Professor Burnett's playhouse which all are urged to attend.

Student Council Holds Important Meeting

Discuss Question of Changing System of Track Managers—Advocate Student Friendship Fund

The Student Council has for some time been discussing the possibilities of introducing the honor system at Bowdoin. Student opinion in favor of the system appears to be growing.

The Student Council is studying the systems used in a number of colleges. A plan which should prove workable at Bowdoin may be briefly outlined as follows: A committee of three would be appointed by the Student Council from the student body. This committee would have full charge of the execution of the honor system. Every man, on entering college, would be required to sign a pledge to support the honor system. By doing this the undesirability of signing every paper handed in would be done away with. Any breaches of rules under the honor system would be reported to the committee of three for disciplinary action.

By its study of the working of the system in other colleges, the Student Council feels that it is not only a good thing but also a successful thing.

At Wesleyan, Amherst, Princeton, and Williams, the honor system has made a very definite success. At Princeton it has been called the most cherished possession of the college.

The Student Council would appreciate an expression of sentiment on the honor system from the college at large.

At a meeting of the Student Council, held last Tuesday evening at the Delta Upsilon House, it was voted to hold a campaign to aid the Student Friendship fund. This is a fund to aid the needy students of Europe.

A resolution was passed empowering the President of the Student Council to enforce the rule which says that no man can represent the college on any organization which receives financial aid from the student funds unless he has paid his blanket tax.

The matter of changing the system of track managers was also discussed. It is considered that the present system of having one man for manager of cross-country, relay, and track itself is bad, as it places too much responsibility and work on his shoulders. It has been suggested that there should be two assistant managers, instead of one. When the election for manager is held the man receiving the largest number of votes will become manager of track and relay, and the other man will become manager of cross-country. It was voted to put this proposed plan up to a referendum of the student body at the next election.

It was voted to empower the President of the Student Council to appoint a committee to investigate the needs of various applicants for scholarships. This committee will be composed of men from each fraternity on the campus, and a representative of the non-fraternity men. The committee will assist the faculty in gathering information about applicants for scholarships.

Alumni Meeting Held In Boston

Wednesday evening, January 16, the fifty-sixth annual meeting and dinner of the Bowdoin Alumni of Boston and vicinity was held at Young's Hotel. A radio greeting was received from Donald MacMillan. The greeting was in reply to a message of John Clair Minot, retiring president of the Boston Alumni Association, and was as follows: "The staunch little Bowdoin, frozen fast in the ice of North Greenland, sends heartiest greetings to her fellow alumni at their fifty-sixth annual Boston dinner. The Bowdoin flag, the most northern flag flying in all the world, is hoisted tonight in honor of your happy gathering." It was received through station 9BB, Prince Rupert, British Columbia.

President Sills was the principal speaker of the dinner. He spoke of the success of the institute of politics of last year, and of plans to have an institute of literature in 1925, in honor of the centenary of the class of 1825, of which Longfellow and Hawthorne were members.

Other speakers were Austin MacCormick, alumni secretary; William Rowe, representing the undergraduate body; Donald McKay, Amherst; and E. E. Writing of the Boston Herald.

The following officers were elected: president, Harry C. Fabian '33; vice-presidents, Charles L. Favinger '06 and Ripley L. Dana '01; secretary, Franklin D. MacCormick '18; assistant secretary, E. Robert Little '16; treasurer, Felix A. Burton '07; assistant treasurer, John L. Crosby '10; executive committee, Wallace M. Powers '04, Dr. A. E. Austin '83, Clifford T. Perkins '15, Alden F. Head '16 and J. H. McLellan '20.

ANNUAL '68 PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST IN MEMORIAL HALL

Judges Award Hill First Prize—Rouillard Receives Honorable Mention

Last Thursday evening in Memorial Hall, George Edwin Hill was awarded the Class of 1868 prize of forty-five dollars for "the best written and spoken oration in the Senior class." He spoke on Calvin Coolidge. Clarence Dana Rouillard, who spoke on La Fontaine and the Fable, was given honorable mention. The other speakers were: Joseph Michael Brisebois on The College Problem; George William Rowe, Christianity and the Modern Spirit; Richard Henry Lee, The Bad Citizenship of Good Men; and Lawrence William Towle, who was excused, on France in the Ruhr. The judges were: The Reverend Joel Hastings Metcalf, Ph.D., of Portland; Clarence Webster Peabody, Esq., of Portland; and Mr. Josiah Willard Taylor of Augusta. President Kenneth Charles Morton Sills presided.

Clarence Dana Rouillard presented La Fontaine and the Fable. La Fontaine has been called the Homer of France. The greater part of his fame rests on about two hundred and forty fables. He brought the fable into poetry. Under him the fable reached its height. In them he built up an animal kingdom of his own. The French court often received the irony of La Fontaine. Behind his figures, we can catch his philosophy of life. A child of instinct, he never reached far enough in life to have a real philosophy. One of his most famous characters was Reynard the fox. La Fontaine paints life as it is, and the reader may draw his own conclusions. His fables are learned by children everywhere. English literature never had a greater fabler. The world owes to La Fontaine its high conception of the fable.

The second speaker was George Edwin Hill. His oration is to appear in a future edition of the "Quill." Joseph Michael Brisebois, the third speaker, had chosen for his subject, The College Problem. Edison, he said, threw a powerful bomb into a group of college men by asking a few general questions. There were so many "I don't know's" that Edison denounced all college men as ignoramuses. Society took up the Edison question, and for a time it threatened to supersede bridge as a popular pastime.

Let us look into the colleges so vehemently denounced by Edison. Do they train their graduates for leadership without giving them a knowledge of how to act in the ranks? In point of fact, the security which men just out of college feel in a degree, a Phi Beta Kappa key, and an enviable record of campus achievements, is being lost. College for society, is an investment. Society expects the college to train men for society's benefit. Society expects more from college men, the college expects better students.

Many go to college because they want, in some vague way, to be successful. Many go just to have the social advantage of a college education. These two groups of men are those which are causing the trouble. The college can do anything in the way of enlarging the curriculum, obtaining better professors, and increasing the equipment, but it can do nothing for the student without his aid. Yet the student expects the college to do much for him. The solution lies with the student. He must get to work.

George William Rowe spoke on Christianity and the Modern Spirit. Tired of war, the world turns to Christ as a medium of peace. The discontent bred by the war is shown in the religious controversy now raging within the Protestant Church.

Bryan and his supporters are so extreme in their opposition to anything that savors of Darwin's theory that they even want the study of evolution excluded from the schools. No ruling monarch ever had a harsher desire to crush free thought than Bryan and his followers have today regarding the theory of evolution. This is as it works on this side of the ocean.

On the other side, Giovanni Papini, known as an atheist and an anarchist, has written his masterpiece with a burning passion that brings the story home. Can the religion of Christ be recognized by modern science? Giovanni Papini says no. Yet who would deny science? Human intellect always tries to fathom the unfathomable. Youth must know what is behind everything. There is nothing more fitting for us than to know the truth of life, that truth which shall make us free.

The last speaker, Richard Henry Lee, had chosen for his topic, The Bad Citizenship of Good Men.

GEORGE EDWIN HILL '24
Who Was Awarded First Prize in '68 Speaking Contest

The criminal situation in the United States is the worst in the world according to a report of the American Bar Association. We have heard this, but when shall we realize that we are responsible? Law violators will defend themselves on the ground of personal liberty. Respectful violators don't realize that they are making anarchy out of government. The Constitution provides for majority rule. The man who accepts protection under the Constitution is bound thereby. One may think that he is so small and insignificant in the realm of things that his acts will not do any harm. Public inertia is the cause of graft.

Immigration is always considered along with the crime waves. The foreigner who arrives at our shores expects to imitate the American ways. Are we not at fault if he gets the wrong attitude? We cannot teach foreigners our ideals without contaminating them with our practices. Unless we live up to our laws, we cannot criticize the crime waves.

Honor System For Bowdoin Is Discussed

Student Council Investigating System in Other Colleges

A meeting of the Government Club was held last Wednesday evening at the Kappa Sigma House. Papers on the Bok Peace Plan were read by Lawrence, Towle and Gray. Then names were drawn and the men gave a short talk on the same subject. An informal discussion followed in which Professor Hammond took part. The club as a whole was in favor of the plan as presented. As President Miguel was in Lewiston with the hockey team, vice-president Gray presided. Although it was the intention of the club to elect officers for the coming year, the lack of a quorum prevented it.

Math Club Meeting

On Wednesday evening, January 16, the Math Club met in Adams Hall, 1st. Little spoke most interestingly on vector analysis and the solution of geometric theorems by vector representation. Following the lecture there was the usual discussion which is of great value to the members. The next meeting of the club will be held the middle of February at which time the new members in Math 4 will be initiated.

Sociology Club Meeting

The first meeting of the newly formed Sociology Club was at Professor Crook's house last Wednesday night for an informal discussion upon crime as regards prohibition. Professor Crook read from the Atlantic Monthly an article upon prohibition.

Work Begun On Ivy Revue

The committee for the Ivy Revue is busily at work with plans for the annual Ivy show. The committee has some very novel features in view and it is said that the coming revue will be the best yet. In order to facilitate and help the work of the committee all men who have any new ideas or suggestions are requested to communicate them to L. A. Jewett, Zeta Psi House, as soon as possible.

Hockey Game Postponed

The hockey game which had been scheduled with Colby for today has been postponed. It has not yet been decided when it will be played.

The Student's Place.

It is of considerable interest to notice the tendency of the undergraduate in recent months toward the critical attitude. The President has remarked on several occasions in Chapel addresses the prevalence of this attitude, and he, with many others, construes it as a good omen. No great amount of analysis is necessary to discover that the place of the undergraduate in college is an important one. Noah Webster, in his well known work, defines the college as "a body of persons engaged in common pursuits, or having common interest," and farther on, "a society of scholars or friends of learning incorporated for study or instruction, especially in the higher branches of learning." Thus, by the very nature of the college, we cannot get away from the fact that the undergraduate, as one of the "friends of learning" is certainly a member of the incorporated college, and, as such, vitally interested in the way in which the college performs its functions.

Although it may not always be evident, the undergraduate does take a great interest in the curriculum, the first essential of the college, and in the way that that curriculum is taught. Members of the Faculty doubtless wonder often-times whether this is true, and they have reason to do so. The good and the bad are found among students as among the members of any other group, but the policy of the college should be to work for the betterment of the good, to reform the bad. It is, therefore, not a little thing when a representative number of intelligent undergraduates, after a careful study of conditions from their viewpoint, present the results of their investigations, along with their recommendations, to the governing body of the college. Such a program is embodied in the latter portion of this editorial. It is the compilation by one man of the ideas of a large number of his fellows, if not a majority at least very nearly so.

The undergraduates do not believe that the college is in a bad way, but they do believe that it is not in the best way it might pursue. That, in a word, is the reason for the numerous criticisms of the college policy which arise from all sides among the undergraduate group. The men are spending a considerable amount of money, four years of the formative period of their lives, and all the loyalty of their personalities to the college in return for the best that the college can give. In the desire to have the best possible, it is not strange that progressive men, men with ideas, seeing means by which the college could be improved, should desire to let their views be known to all who compose the college. Such expressions are made in a whole-hearted effort at friendly cooperation between the students and the Faculty for the best interests of both. They are made only after fair and thorough consideration, and are presented in a spirit of helpfulness.

The suggestions embodied in the following outline have been compiled, as previously stated, by a member of the undergraduate body who wants to see Bowdoin, his Alma Mater, unsurpassed by any college approaching its class in this country. The men who are responsible for these resolutions want to see the college move toward the lofty goal of real liberality in education, to get away from the less worthy methods of instruction as far as possible, in order that the college, instead of being a mere intellectual water-spout may be a strong and steady current, carrying its men out to the sea of life properly prepared to navigate it, with the cool capability of acknowledged responsibility and breadth of vision. That is the mission of the college, a mission which the undergraduate is fully as anxious to see well fulfilled as is the administration.

The undergraduate recommendations follow:

Library

To be open on the coming and following Sunday night; stacks open every night during mid-years, beginning Wednesday, Jan. 23rd. The Library, in future, to be open Sunday nights from 7-10:30.

Scholarship Board

A board consisting of a member from each fraternity, and one from non-fraternity to find out actual needs of men applying for aid. Each member to study the needs of those applying from group, and recommend or refuse amounts.

Board to Aid Faculty

An organized means whereby students may make suggestions, criticisms, and state changes necessary in order to bring success in course. Due to the dissatisfaction of a large group in certain courses.

Honor System

Three upper classmen appointed by President of College body to act as investigation committee. To be voted on each year by student body for ratification.

Broader Basis for Athletics

Inter-class games between each of four classes for championship; each man who has played sport in prep school asked to turn out for practice during a certain period, until final weeding out.

Personality Questionnaire

A complete list of questions sent out by the college along the following: social; athletics—sports played; extra-curriculum; interests; ambitions; likes and dislikes; scholastic interests; to be used by faculty in limitation,—securing of broader men; to be used by fraternities in order to develop well rounded delegations.

Orientation Lectures

Eight lectures during the first semester including topics which interest and perplex the freshman:

1. Evening given to learning of songs and cheers; all the following evenings to be opened with cheers and songs, with closing song, Bowdoin Beata.
2. History of College and graduates by President of College.
3. College traditions and customs by President of Student body.
4. Value and choice of fraternity—used only if we have delayed initiations.
5. Use of library and methods of securing material.
6. How best to organize study work,—by different professors.
7. How to secure greatest help from Dean and Office requirements for graduation.
8. What is demanded of Bowdoin men.

These lectures could follow football rallies and thus not require two evenings a week. Final get-together at final lecture, with songs, eats, and snake dance about the campus and town with faculty as guests.

Second Semester Seniors

Men who have secured 32 courses by end of first semester, may only be required to take two or three courses as they desire. (2) they may substitute for their major the extra course,—in special department, with a thesis which has to be of real value in order to be accepted by whole faculty,—to be bound for library. Privilege to be extended to men with high standing in department of major, and who desire to do intensive work, rather than superficial.

College Chapel Speeches

Doing away with formality of chapel,—and substituting short five minute speeches on various topics, by President and Faculty on various problems and lessons from the Bible which might form a series. The topics could be placed on bulletin board every Saturday night for coming week. These are to be informal, and yet would present an opportunity for speakers to present a philosophy of life which would be carried through future years.

College Speakers and Preachers

Other colleges of our size show a greater number of outside speakers, and, I believe, the students feel the provinciality which has a tendency to develop here and wish to secure more men of note. With your permission I submit the list taken from Wesleyan Catalogue for 1923-1924.

We of the student body realize that we are possibly not in such a good location for securing speakers, but, I believe, that the students would willingly contribute to this end,—and to some amount. Certainly though we are not in such proximity to centers of population it ought not to prohibit absolutely speakers from the outside.

HILL WINNER OF CLASS OF 1860 PRIZE AT BOW.

Brunswick, Jan. 18.—The class of 1868 prize of $45 which is awarded annually to the author of the best written and spoken oration by a member of the senior class of Bowdoin college, was won Thursday evening by George E. Hill of Collinsville, Conn., who took for his subject, "Calvin Coolidge."

The other speakers were Joseph M. Metcalf of Portland, Clarence Webster Peabody of Portland and Josiah Willard Taylor of Augusta.

The judges were Rev. Joel Hastings Brisbois of Kingston, N. H., George E. Hill of Collinsville, Conn., Richard H. Lee of Foxcroft, Clarence D. Kouillard of Topsham and G. William Rowe of Bangor.

Alumni Notes

1874—Henry K. White, noted educator, died recently at Peekskill, N. Y. Mr. White, after graduating from Bowdoin taught for some years at the East Maine Conference Seminary. In 1892 he became principal of Bangor High school and held that position until 1908. Intending to retire from teaching, he was persuaded to become headmaster of Lincoln Academy at Newcastle, from which position he resigned in 1912. In 1898 Mr. White was president of the Maine Teachers' Association and in 1903 of the Maine Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools. In 1921 Bowdoin conferred on him the degree of L.H.D.

Longfellow's Text Books Discovered

Bowdoin Student Saves Volumes
From Fire

One of the most interesting finds made in years at Bowdoin College came to light when it was found that Chauncey Fish, a junior from Freeport, had rescued from the incinerator text books used by Henry W. Longfellow when a student at the college. Several of the books bear his unmistakable signature on the fly-leaf, others belonged to Stephen Longfellow, his brother and classmate at Bowdoin, and still others have the names of Anne Longfellow and Mary Longfellow in the front.

The most interesting book of the lot is a heavy leather bound dictionary, in whose cover the initials "H. L." have been cut with a knife. Its fly-leaves are covered with a series of sketches, scrawls, initials and other artistic embellishments. In several places the future poet scrawled his name or initials and the initials of his brother Stephen.

Several of the books have interest and value not only because they were owned by the Longfellow family, but because of their age and the light they throw on the type of text-book used.

One, a text on astronomy and geography, by Dr. Isaac Watts, was published in London in 1772 and was owned by the elder Stephen Longfellow in 1796.

A copy of Smyth's mathematics, written by the famous Bowdoin professor, has on the fly-leaf, "Henry W. Longfellow, Portland, Maine, Jan. 6th, 1853."

These books which are a large addition to Bowdoin's collection of Longfellow relics, narrowly escaped destruction when a janitor found them in a forgotten corner and threw them on an incinerator. They were already in the fire when young Fish happened to pass and saved what proved to be such an interesting collection.

70—Among the nine persons selected as a special committee, authorized by the State Legislator of 1823 to prepare a program for celebrating in New York State the 150th anniversary of the American Revolution, is Hon. De Alva S. Alexander, L.L.D., Buffalo. Mr. Alexander is a trustee and a former president of the New York State Historical Association. His "Political History of the State of New York," of which he has recently completed the fourth volume, qualifies him for the work of the committee.

Men Who Have Won Football Letters During Freshman Year

In connection with the recent action on the one-semester rule, which will bar all freshmen from playing on the varsity football teams, it is of interest to know how many freshmen have made football letters in the past ten years.

From the season of 1910 to the season of 1923, just nineteen men have made letters during their freshman year. A majority of these men have played all their four years in college. Six of them have become captains.

The following men have made football letters in their freshman year:

- 1910—R. T. Weatherill.
- 1911—H. A. Lewis, H. P. Faulkner.
- 1912—J. E. Barry, G. W. Leadbetter, H. H. Foster.
- 1913—C. R. Foster, J. C. Fitzgerald, J. E. Colbath.
- 1916—C. P. Rhoads, A. H. Drummond.
- 1918—No team owing to S.A.T.C.
- 1919—G. T. Mason.
- 1920—M. E. Morrell.
- 1921—C. L. Hildreth, H. A. Hildreth, R. P. Jones, E. J. Neil, C. C. Wotton.
- 1923—F. A. Farrington, J. W. A. Kohler.

Smoker Held For Non-Fraternity Men

Delta Upsilon Entertains Non-Fraternity Men at Chapter House

On Friday evening the Delta Upsilon fraternity held an informal smoker for the non-fraternity men of which there are a large number in college. The evening was most pleasantly spent with cards and mah-jongg, a buffet lunch being served about 10:30. Among those present were President Sills, Dean Nixon, Mr. MacCormick, Professors Means and Cook, and about fifty non-fraternity men. This was the first smoker of its kind ever given at Bowdoin and is one which meets with the hearty approval of the faculty. It has been suggested that the other fraternities would do well to follow this example. Great credit is due to the committee in charge of the affair, J. Henry Johnson '24, Shurtliff '26, and Winter '26.

70—Dr. Earle H. MacMichael of Malden, Mass., has gone to Arizona, where his recovery is despaired of. Mail through his Malden address, 1 Mountain avenue, will reach him.

Brunswick Dramatic Club To Present Play

Thursday evening, January 31, the Brunswick Dramatic Club will present the play "Captain Applejack" at the Cumberland theater. Several members of the faculty will be in the cast. The play was first produced in New York City, where it was a complete success. It appeared in the movies under the title of "Strangers of the Night." Professor Brown is coaching the play. Alumni Secretary Austin H. MacCormick will play the leading part. Other members of the faculty appearing in the presentation are Professor Burnett, Professor Davis, Mr. Colby and Professor Cushing. The complete cast is as follows:

- Ambrose Applejohn Mr. MacCormick
- Pengard Professor Davis
- Borolsky Professor Burnett
- Lusk Mr. Colby
- Johnny Jason Professor Cushing
- Anna Valeska Mrs. MacCormick
- Mrs. Pengard Mrs. Dewing

Economics Club Holds Business Meeting

The Economics Club met last week and transacted a number of items of important business. It voted to take into its membership only students in the three upper classes. A motion to limit membership to those majoring in Economics was passed, after being amended to permit charter members to retain their membership whether they are majoring in the subject or not.

The club has tentatively secured the following speakers: Harry M. Bigelow, editor of the Portland Press-Herald; M. F. Bragdon, wholesaler and retailer, of Portland; and S. A. Howes, immigration officer at Portland.

The officers of the club are: Spear '25, president; Berry '26, secretary; and Warren '25, treasurer.

Professor Mitchell left last Sunday for Chicago, where he will attend a meeting of the board of directors of the Church Extension Bureau. He will be gone for a week.

Debating Team Picked

On Monday afternoon and evening the Bradbury Prize Debates were held in the debating room of the library. The men picked for the varsity debating teams were Daggett '25, Hewett '27, Raye '24, Read '26, Rowe '24 and Welch '25. The alternates were Lee '24, Saunders '24 and McIntyre '25. As Daggett was in the infirmary he was unable to compete in the debates, but he was the unanimous choice of the judges for a place on the varsity team, his previous work in debating warranting the election. The negative team won in the afternoon, and the affirmative team in the evening. The former team won the first prize of forty dollars, and the affirmative team of the evening getting the first prize were Raye '24, McGuire '27, and Saunders '24, and Mitchell '25 alternate. The affirmative team was composed of Rowe '24, Read '26, Welch '25, and Jones '27 alternate. The team of the afternoon debate that upheld the affirmative was composed of Lee '24, McIntyre '24, and Downs '27. The opposing team consisted of Hewett '27, Hildreth '25, Hill '24, and Gulliver '25 alternate. The judges were Professor Davis, Professor Catlin, Professor Van Cleave, Professor Dewing and Professor Cushing.

refused to stop this nefarious propaganda. The Soviet has made no attempt to repay the debts which she owes the United States. These debts were loans from money raised from Liberty Bonds in the United States and therefore if the debts are not paid, the American people themselves must pay for Russia's policies. The Soviet propaganda is and has been spread broadcast over America in an attempt to "let the red flag over the Stars and Stripes. The Soviet desires to ruin the American government, cause a universal working men's strike, and make the United States a Socialist country. And the gentlemen of the affirmative ask us to sanction a policy which would aid this Bolshevik propaganda."

The second affirmative speaker was Edward T. Tevitz '26. Mr. Tevitz opened his speech by showing the strong doubt which existed as to the authenticity of documents which Secretary Hughes states have come from the Soviet government to stir up disorder in the United States. Recognition will stop propaganda, Russia is a spoiled child. We should not refuse to recognize it but treat with it and persuade it to stop its bad practices. Italy considered complaining of the effects of Russian propaganda after recognition but decided to refrain. Therefore we must suppose that the Soviet stopped sending propaganda out after recognition. Mr. Hughes is interfering in the internal affairs of Russia—a thing which President Jefferson and President Monroe have both repeated must not be done by any foreign country. Moreover, Secretary Hughes is fostering a revolution in Russia itself. Another proof of interference.

William J. McGuire, Jr., '27 spoke at length on the Soviet policies of opportunism and their apparent unreliability. The policy of the Soviet, said Mr. McGuire, is to do anything, anytime which will help the government of Russia. Lenin, Trotsky, and Tchecherin, have all declared in black and white that they will keep their word only so long as it is to the advantage of Russia. The Soviet has broken its contracts repeatedly, one instance occurring in the last two weeks. Therefore it can not be advantageous or possible to America to recognize the Soviets. Moreover, unreliability is another main objection to recognition. The Soviet has proved itself repeatedly, unreliable.

The constructive argument was closed for the affirmative by Lawrence M. Read '26. He showed that Russia had not annulled her debts but had offered to pay for them as soon as she was able. Recognition would be a great benefit to the world in general, not a panacea, but a great benefit. It is necessary to have a consular service in order to carry on a successful trade with Russia and we cannot have such a consular service or such a trade without recognition. Before the war an American company furnished all farm machinery to Russia but today a Danish company is supplying this machinery, a thing which could be done by the United States if the Soviet were recognized. When Russia is restored, Europe will get on her feet, and trade with America will increase rapidly. Germany, before the war, had her finger on Russia. She ran Russia economically and politically. Do we desire Germany to come back to this old power and create another world conflagration? The Soviet is not the only country which confiscated property. In America, the United States confiscated slaves after the Civil war which was certainly as deplorable a crime as that of the Soviet. Frederick N. Jones '27 closed the constructive argument for the negative. He proved that it would not be to the economic advantage of the United States to recognize the Soviet. First because it is not possible to do business with a government which refuses to guarantee sanctity of contract and moreover, that if it were possible, very little material advantage would accrue to America as a result of recognition. The Soviet discouraged foreign merchants doing business in Russia, they prevented foreign trade by swindling the peasants and strangling progressive business enterprises. Also, the Soviet policies have ruined production, transportation, and distribution in Russia, to such an extent that there is comparatively little trade in Russia today.

A short intermission was allowed between main speeches and rebuttal to allow the speakers to arrange their material. McGuire of the negative opened the rebuttal. He was followed by Griffin, then Jones, Tevitz, Hewett, and Read. The remarks of Tevitz concerning propaganda was one of the high spots of the evening. Hewett took up the affirmative points in regard to recognition of international law and removed them in rapid succession. His closing summary was the best single feature of the negative case. In a brilliant, witty, closing address, Read '26 showed the inevitable weaknesses of the negative and concluded his speech by summarizing the reasons which lead them to uphold recognition.

The judges, Professor Davis, Professors Livingston, and Reverend G. Frederick Rouillard of Topsham, handed in their written ballots. The vote was two to one in favor of the negative. This is the first of the series of inter-class contests in which the freshmen have been able to defeat the sophomores.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient.

Dear Sir:

I note with interest that there is to be formed an Interfraternity Council. I do not believe that any man should have a place on this board who is a member of the Student Council. In the first place, as its name implies, the Interfraternity Council is to deal with the fraternities and their problems alone. The Student Council has enough to do to look after the affairs of the student body. I do not see that any benefit will be derived from writing the two bodies in any manner whatever. By working separately, each body can work out its own problems and may act in an advisory capacity to the other. Should one man be on both councils it is likely that his position in one may be biased, prejudiced or embarrassed by his position in the other. Let the student body feel that it has two separate and distinct courts of appeal, two tribunals in whose hands the safekeeping of the interests of the college may be efficiently tried and safely lodged.

Yours sincerely,

ROBERT TITUS PHILLIPS '24

Charles Paddock To Speak In Memorial Hall Friday

Subject of Lecture "The Spirit of Sportsmanship"

Charley Paddock the "fleetest human being on earth," will be at Bowdoin College Friday, February 8, and will speak in Memorial Hall at eight o'clock.

Paddock has been called "the human streak," the super-athlete of modern times, and to prove this he holds twenty-three world records. He also represents the highest type of American citizenship. He is a student, a writer, a gifted speaker, a leader of men, and a fine Christian gentleman. He is a splendid example of what honest sportsmanship and correct living can do for a well-endowed and strong-hearted American.

It is not any easy mental leap these days to connect up athletics with scholarship, yet it is not so hard to

McMennamin And Hood Awarded Scholarships

First Bowdoin Undergraduates to Receive Aid from Juilliard Fund

George B. McMennamin, 1924, of Limestone, Maine, and Philip M. Hood 1925, of Beverly, Mass., have been awarded scholarships under the Juilliard Musical Foundation of New York. They have the honor of being the first undergraduates in Bowdoin to receive aid from this source, the only other Bowdoin man to have ever received it being Robert S. Stetson 1918, who received his award last fall.

The Juilliard Foundation, though it is a comparatively new institution, is one of the most resourceful of its kind since the income of a fifteen million dollar fund is distributed among graduates and undergraduates throughout the country. Last year more than eight thousand applied for vocal scholarships alone.

McMennamin is the manager of the musical clubs and a skilled cello player. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi. Hood is the assistant manager of the clubs and his work at the piano has certainly merited this reward. Any man who can play popular music to perfection and still not lose his artistic touch for the classics is worthy of such recognition. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Both men will receive in the vicinity of eight hundred dollars.

One-Semester Freshman Ruling Adopted By Bates

Follows Bowdoin's Action—Colby Only College in State Not Using Rule

At the recommendation of its Committee on Athletics, the Bates faculty last week adopted the one-semester rule. After the beginning of the fall term of 1924, no member of the freshman class will be eligible for varsity athletics until he has completed one-half year of college work.

Dean Fred E. Pomeroy stated that Bates has been in favor of non-eligibility of freshmen for some time, but had hitherto found it unadvisable to adopt the plan for two reasons: first, added expense to the college on account of the necessity for organizing freshman teams and securing additional coaches; and second, because of the fact that Bates being a small college it seemed unfair to make a ruling which would reduce the number of men available for her varsity teams, unless the plan should be adopted by other State and New England colleges with which Bates competes.

Bates' action was the result of the fall conference of New England College Presidents at Springfield, Mass., and the more recent meeting of the Maine College presidents at Waterville.

Colby is the only Maine college which has not adopted the one-semester rule.

Harvard Fencing Team Defeats Bowdoin 7 To 2

Last Saturday the Bowdoin fencing team was defeated by Harvard at Cambridge in the Hemenway Gymnasium by the score of 7 to 2 in the first match of the season for either team. The outstanding stars of the match were Lane brothers, who were both members of last year's Intercollegiate championship team, and who hope to be able to repeat this year in the tournament at New York. For Bowdoin, Perkins succeeded in capturing two bouts from the Cambridge fencers.

Bowdoin will meet Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston on February 23rd and is negotiating a match with Norwich, which has not been definitely decided upon as yet. The summary of the bouts:

E. L. Lane, Harvard, defeated G. T. Davis, Bowdoin, 5-1.

E. H. Lane, Harvard, defeated H. E. Clow, Bowdoin 5-0.

R. F. Floor, Harvard, defeated F. P. Perkins, Bowdoin, 5-3.

E. H. Lane, Harvard, defeated G. T. Davis, Bowdoin, 5-0.

E. L. Lane, Harvard, defeated H. E. Clow, Bowdoin 5-1.

F. P. Perkins Bowdoin, defeated Harvard Finney, Harvard, 5-3.

H. A. Durham, Harvard, defeated H. E. Clow, Bowdoin, 5-1.

R. A. Durham, Harvard, defeated G. T. Davis, Bowdoin, 5-1.

F. P. Perkins Bowdoin, defeated A. M. Carrillo, Harvard, 5-0.

Memorial Service For Woodrow Wilson Sunday

Speaking in Chapel Monday morning, President Sills said:

"Yesterday there passed to his reward one, who whatever else might be said of him, was without shadow of doubt the most distinguished American citizen of his immediate generation. To many of those, who like myself, had the honor of knowing Mr. Wilson personally, he seemed somewhat austere and without that warmth and sympathy that we usually associate with a great political leader; but no one could be in his presence without feeling that he was of different calibre from the ordinary man; that his thoughts and ideas were on a higher plane; that he had the quality of a very real greatness. In accordance with the usual College custom there will be a memorial service for Woodrow Wilson next Sunday afternoon, for there are few things that can do the younger generation more good than to reflect upon the characteristics and personality of those who in their own time have helped to make their country great, and surely Mr. Wilson gave the full measure of devotion to the service of his fellow-men."

Butler '26 And Harkness '26 Appointed To West Point

Governor Baxter has appointed Butler '26 and Harkness '26 to West Point Military Academy. He has written the following letter to both of them:

"Today I have signed the official papers recommending you for appointment to the West Point Military Academy. I do this because I am informed that you are a young man of character who wants to succeed in the world and who is willing to work for success."

"If you pass your examination and enter West Point you will in every sense of the word be a representative of Maine, and your scholarship record and personal conduct will reflect credit or discredit upon the good name of your State."

"I am placing my confidence in you and extend to you my best wishes."

Both men are from outside the State of Maine. Butler is from Manchester, Mass., and Harkness from Salt Lake City. Both are sergeants in the Maine National Guard, Battalion C, 240th Artillery.

Dr. Carmichael, Former Bowdoin Professor, Dies

Was Prominent As Inventor and Chemist

Dr. Henry Carmichael, inventor and chemist of note, and former professor at Bowdoin, died recently at his home in Malden, Mass. His health had been gradually failing since he suffered a stroke of paralysis last July.

He was born in Brooklyn in 1846, the son of a prominent inventor. He graduated from Amherst College in 1867, and later studied at the University of Goettingen in Germany. In 1869 he accepted the chair of chemistry at Iowa College. A year later he became professor of chemistry and allied sciences at Bowdoin, where he remained fourteen years.

During his residence in Brunswick, Professor Carmichael invented the machines for manufacturing hollow ware from wood pulp, a ware including the fibre pail. He was the inventor of the Carmichael process of copper mining and of the method of automatically charging water with carbonic acid, the process making it possible to manufacture soda water in stores. Later he had been working on a process to convert pulp into lumber. The process has been perfected, but not yet put on the market.

Juniors Attention

On account of the early date for which the Ivy exercises have been set for this year, it is necessary that all Junior pictures and groups be taken at the earliest possible date. The Editor would very much appreciate as many men as possible ordering and paying for pictures immediately after the sitting is made, as engraving copies cannot be obtained until this has been done.

Any contributions or ideas for the feature section of the Bugle would be greatly appreciated and should be made in the near future. Either mail or submit ideas to the member of the board in your fraternity house or direct to Fred Perkins, Editor-in-chief, at the D.K.E. House. Informal poses of members of the Class of 1925 are also desired.

Tootell Twice Breaks World's Record In Trials With 35-Pound Weight

Will Attempt Official Record in Meet at Boston February 16

F. D. Tootell, last year's track captain, hurled the 35 pound weight 58 feet 2 inches and 59 feet even last week in the Harvard cage. This breaks the official world's record of 57 feet held by Pat Ryan of the New York Irish American A. C. Tootell's first opportunity to officially break the world's record in the 35 pound event will be at the tri-cornered college meet at Boston on February 16.

Coach Jack Magee and Coach Farrell of Harvard saw Tootell when he made his record heaves. Tootell had been throwing the weight around 56 feet for more than a week. He asked Jack Magee to show him his trouble, and after the Bowdoin coach had corrected one fault Tootell made his two record heaves. Coach Farrell said that tossing the 35 pound weight was certain to help the former Bowdoin captain and predicted that he would heave the 16 pound hammer over 200 feet this year.

H. D. Gibson '02 Elected To Board Of Trustees

Professors Cram and Wass on Leave of Absence This Semester—William B. Jacob and Stanley W. Coburn Appointed Assistants

President Sills announced in chapel Monday morning that Harvey Dow Gibson of New York of the class of 1902 has been selected as one of the trustees of the college, to take the place of the late Edward Stanwood. Mr. Gibson has been an overseer of the college. He is the president of the New York Trust Company, and during the war he was general manager of the American Red Cross.

The finance committee of the boards now consists of William J. Curtis of New York City, chairman, Harvey D. Gibson, from the trustees, Frederick O. Conant of Portland, and William W. Thomas of Portland, from the overseers.

William B. Jacob has been appointed instructor in German for the second semester. Mr. Jacob is a graduate of the college in the class of 1923. He received summa cum laude, and a Phi Beta Kappa appointment. Mr. Jacob was appointed the Charles Carroll Everett Scholar. He was also a member of the football team, playing quarterback. Stanley W. Coburn, who completed his requirements for a degree in February, will be an assistant in chemistry.

Professors Cram and Wass will be on leave of absence the second semester. They will leave shortly for Europe.

President Sills spoke in Old Town Tuesday evening, and will speak before the student body of the University of Maine today.

Hartford Alumni Held Annual Meeting Jan. 26

The annual meeting of the alumni of Hartford and vicinity was held Monday evening, Jan. 28th, at the University Club. The gathering was small but the informality of the occasion gave an opportunity for one of the most pleasant meetings the Hartford alumni have had. Mr. McCormick represented the college and gave an informal talk on the activities of the undergraduates and alumni. Dr. P. H. Ingalls '77 and Rev. O. W. Means '84 told interesting stories of their college days and other members contributed reminiscences. Wm. W. Alexander '22 was elected secretary in place of Emerson W. Zeitler '20 who has moved to Portland. Those present were: P. H. Ingalls '77, O. W. Means '84, C. C. Hall '06, R. E. Hall '05, J. W. Hewitt '97, F. D. Wish '13, D. T. Burgh '11, J. C. O'Neil '12, F. K. Ellsworth '97, J. E. Rhodes, 2nd, '97, J. A. Wentworth '09, W. W. Alexander '22, H. M. Springer '20, A. H. McCormick '15.

Showing a burst of speed that brought every spectator to his feet, "Kack" Hamilton, sophomore, running his first race for the college, carried the White to one of the most glorious victories in its track annals. When the announcer gave Bowdoin the decision over Brown and Dartmouth, the very walls of the Arena seemed to shake as the great hall resounded with cheers, for it was undoubtedly this most popular victory of the evening. It was as if the Boston sport fans remembered the admirable showing of the Bowdoin football team against Harvard two years ago, for everybody seemed to want the White to win, and they were well rewarded, not only by a victory but by a close, thrilling, and fast race. The time was three minutes thirty-five and four-fifths seconds.

Brown drew the pole with Bowdoin on the outside and the three teams got away in the order of their advantage, and when the second men started in the order was unchanged, all three men grouped. Dartmouth made a slip in passing the baton and went a little behind. Nutter of Brown turned over a ten yard lead to Chalmers, his teammate, over Carroll Foster, Dartmouth's best quarter-miler, and Bob Foster was a couple of yards in the ruck. Both Fosters closed the gap and on the second lap, Carroll Foster went into the lead but later Chalmers caught the Dartmouth man again and gave Elson, his anchor man, a two yard start. Colloday of the Green and Elson ran neck and neck almost all of the last two laps with Hamilton right on their heels. The three rounded the last corner absolutely even. Then Elson went ahead but "Kack" was by no means out of it. He rushed past Colloday and tore down upon Elson. The Brown flier tried his best but in vain for the White-jerseyed flier flashed by and broke the tape by inches. The Bowdoin runner showed that his winning of the Augusta Cup for running the fastest trial heat in college was completely deserved; and to Jack Magee too much credit cannot be expressed for the development of such a team.

Another wearer of the White who showed his mettle was Captain Francis Bishop in the pole vault. Though from the start he was completely outclassed, he managed to clear twelve feet, which, with his five inch handicap placed him fourth in a competition with a field of record-breakers. A new indoor world's record of twelve feet ten inches was established.

Bob Foster ran in the 1000 yard handicap but he had given his best in the relay and failed to place in this event. Spinney and Farrington ran in dashes while Hardy represented us in the hurdles.

After all, what difference does it make if we did fail to take first in other events. We beat Brown and Dartmouth in a glorious race and to John Tarbell, Harold Littlefield, Bob Foster, "Kack" Hamilton, and Jack Magee unspeakable credit is due for the honor which they have brought to Bowdoin.

Hamilton '26 Wins Trials For Augusta Cup

"Kack" Hamilton '26 won the Augusta Cup for the best time in the relay trials previous to the B.A.A. games. His time was forty-six and four-fifths seconds.

The Augusta Cup was placed in competition in 1909 and the time set by the first winner was forty-five and four-fifths seconds, a record which has not been broken in the thirteen times that the cup has been up. Charles B. Haskell, Jr., who won it in 1912 and 1913, is the only man to win it two years in succession.

The previous winners have been:

1909—Harrison Atwood, 45-4/5 sec.
1910—Henry J. Colbath.
1911—Robert D. Cole.
1912—Charles B. Haskell, Jr.
1913—Charles B. Haskell, Jr.
1914—Leland S. McElwee.
1915—Charles E. Wyman, Jr.
1916—Clarence H. Crosby.
1920—George R. Goodwin.
1921—Edward A. Hunt.
1922—Donald K. Mason.
1923—R. Seymour Webster.
1924—Clarence F. Hamilton.

bridge this gap when one checks up a little on Charley Paddock. To him athletic endeavor is a secondary consideration; character comes first. He is an honor student, a champion collegiate debater, in addition to being the leading athlete in track work in every school and college he attended, and later in world's Olympic games.

During his last year in Pasadena High School he enlisted in the Field Artillery and was commissioned Second Lieutenant at Camp Zachary Taylor. He went to France for the Inter-Allied Service Championship, and his record there is history in the athletic world. In 1920 he went to Europe and won the Far Western and National and World Championship honors in the sprints. But his brilliant career in these past five years has not been allowed to interfere with his Sunday school class in Pasadena, where the blond-haired athlete resides.

His lecture subject is "The Spirit of Sportsmanship," and no living man is better qualified to discuss this subject than Charles Paddock. He is a powerful propagandist for clean sports and for the co-ordination of brain and brawn. He is his own most convincing argument. He is a fluent speaker, with an incisive and thought-inspiring style which instantaneously reflects his brilliant mentality.

Admission to his lecture Friday evening is fifty cents.

Bowdoin Club of New York Meeting Largely Attended

Prominent Alumni Speak—Officers Elected

The annual dinner of the Bowdoin Club of New York and vicinity was held at the Hotel Commodore Friday evening, January 25. There was one hundred and five members present. E. H. Sykes, Esq., of the class of 1894, presided over the meeting, in the absence of President Henry H. Pierce 1896, who was in Florida. L. B. Leavitt 1899 was toastmaster. The speakers were President Sills; two former members of the Bowdoin faculty, Professor William Macdonald, who occupied the Chair of History, Professor Alfred L. P. Dennis, now at Clark University; Dr. Lawrence F. Abbott, of the editorial staff of the Outlook; Captain James G. Finn, of the class of 1905, who served with distinction in the World War and who has just returned to civil life after five years in the hospital; and Mr. Charles A. Coffin, formerly Chairman of the Board of the General Electric Co. and associated with many industrial enterprises. The officers elected for the ensuing year include Hoyt A. Moore, 1895, president; H. L. Palmer 1904, secretary; and R. S. Cleaves, 1899, treasurer.

The Spirit of Kindliness.

In our particular generation, as in nearly every Bowdoin generation since about 1810, I fancy, there has been raised a great hue and cry over the relation of the alumni to the activities of the undergraduate. If we can philosophically believe in "original sin" we can readily concede that the attitude of a number of undergraduates on the subject is entirely natural. As an undergraduate, as a prospective alumnus, without hope of ever attaining to the lofty plane of membership in one of the administrative boards, the writer views without rancor the attempts of discontented—more often disgruntled—members of the College to revolutionize the policies of their Alma Mater in such affairs as most closely concern them. Such attempts are surely not confined to members of any one of the three main groups which make up the College; viz. the administrative department, the alumni, and the undergraduates.

The three and a half years in which the editor has been a member of Bowdoin have seen marked changes in almost every department of our college life. First, and most important, of these is the great change in the scholastic field. With enlarged opportunities, with broadened vision, the young men of our land have found the call of the College increasingly strong. The result is that Bowdoin, like all other reputable institutions of the kind, has found herself in a better position to select quite on her own terms the men who shall be known as her sons. This change in opportunity is the principal cause for a marked raising of the standards for matriculation and graduation. We have seen the coming of the high admission standard and the major examination with some qualms, but for the most part with pleasure at their unquestioned benefit to the College.

The athletic and social departments of the campus activity have been influenced in a like manner, and pretty thoroughly by the direct action of the change in administrative policy. In the athletic organization there has been a general remodelling of the financial system to bring that important part of the work up to a worthy standard of business efficiency. For this improvement we are directly indebted to the painstaking, unselfish efforts of capable alumni and faculty men. There is now a considerable agitation for a change in the coaching system, which may lead to radical departures in that line. The rule debarring freshmen from participation on varsity teams in their first semester at college has been adopted and has already had the sincere flattery of imitation by one of our rivals in the State. Here, as elsewhere, changing circumstances call for and bring forth changing customs or policies.

Changes in social customs, which are strictly undergraduate, come hard. But one fraternity group has carried out the policy of deferred initiation, but its success will doubtless elicit a like action on the part of all the others, in time. There is yet much to be done; much which can be accomplished only by thorough and intelligent cooperation. We look forward to halcyon days when Bowdoin shall be in truth near that goal of perfection toward which we strive.

It has been the good fortune of the writer to know most of the undergraduates of his time, and to view undergraduate opinion from the inside. More than this, he has had the opportunity to see the friendliness, the hearty kindness, with which the alumni and administration seek to assist the undergraduates in their varied activities. The athletic teams, the musical and dramatic societies, the debating organizations, the publications all receive the sturdy support of alumni and administration quite as thoroughly as of the undergraduates. Such support is given not because we happen to be so fortunate as to produce invariably the very best results hoped for, but because all these activities are carried on to the glory and the benefit of the college. We do not claim to be superlatively good. We realize that there is always a room for improvement. We seek criticism that builds, that attempts to raise our standards in a spirit of goodwill.

There has been, during the year, a good deal of comment in support of the spirit of toleration. Why not go still farther than toleration? Why not strive to maintain a spirit of kindness in all our inter-related activities? It is only by such a spirit of cooperation that we can hope to establish a well-knit organization of our three parts in one. We want a better Bowdoin, do we not? Then let us in a kindly, considerate way move on to helpful coordination of our interested parties, and that means all of us—administration, alumni, and undergraduates.

Communication

Editor of the Orient:

Thanks to Mr. Hale's recent note, I must no longer think of the rostrum as an inevitable War Memorial. For Bowdoin men whose lives were so useful to our Motherland, why should we not have a Memorial useful to our Alma Mater?

Without reflecting ungratefully on the zeal and painstaking of the committee in charge, why not canvass all the alumni for their preference, be it a rostrum, a Bowdoin Union or what else? Should not every alumnus who, when the time comes, is asked to give, be asked to vote, the sooner the better? Why take as final only one hundred and forty votes of four years ago? Since it has taken five years to get so far, we might well wait five years longer rather than rush into a project which creates so little enthusiasm as the rostrum.

I know several alumni each of whom is far more ready to give the Union one hundred dollars than to give the rostrum five dollars. Since the committee desire more "modest subscriptions" given by a larger number of men, why not first be sure that the form of memorial determined has the support not only of "representative alumni," but also of the majority of all alumni who care to vote?

Yours truly,
S. C. W. SIMPSON '03.

To the Editor of the Orient:

May we apologize through your columns for the important omission of Mr. MacKinnon's name in a pamphlet published January 28th. It is my sincere desire that he be deprived of none of the credit for his share in that extremely original and daring masterpiece.

Respectfully yours,
BYNE O. MEANS,
Graduate Manager.

Communication

To the Editor:

The pamphlet of Mr. Lee, cleverly satirizing the one gotten out by the "Bolsheviks," has given me the occasion to write this letter which I hope will illuminate and show the real purpose of the latter pamphlet. I am forced to write this without consulting and getting the official sanction of my five colleagues due to the disconcerting effect of examination week and the lack of time that it allows for united action—so, with this as an excuse, I hope that I shall be accused of bumpiness in expressing singly my individual views, nor be charged with displaying merely the attitude of one man and not reflecting somewhat the opinion of the group. I feel it important to write this letter, because, while it is admitted that the original pamphlet contained a good and worthwhile idea, it is also averred that through over-eagerness, and some slight tincture of personal opinion, the attempt was somewhat mishandled. Nevertheless, it is not right to let a good idea

Governing Boards Of College Met Last Week

Athletics and Limitation of Membership of College Discussed

A special meeting of the governing boards of the College was held Friday, February 1, at Hubbard hall. Most of the business was of a routine nature, without public interest, but many important matters were considered. The revised college laws were accepted and adopted. These make many changes in the college business, particularly by giving more power to the executive committee. The committee appointed to look into athletic matters reported that the athletic council as at present constituted has control over athletic sports in so far as that control can be delegated by the faculty, students, and alumni. The boards have, undoubtedly, paramount authority over athletics; future developments may make it seem advisable for the boards to undertake a more direct and active control, but for the present no action is expedient.

The report of the committee on limiting the membership of the college was received, and the boards voted to limit the freshman class for the present to about 150, and to announce that beginning with the fall of 1926 the college will give preference to candidates who offer for admission the subjects required for the A.B. course, and to those candidates for the B.S. course who offer for admission the college's regular and approved subjects only, with no so-called free margin points and who present the largest proportion of those subjects which demand two or more years of study and receive two or more units of credit. Other matters connected with the report of this committee were laid on the table for additional discussion at the June meeting. A buffet luncheon was served at Hubbard hall for the members of the boards and the members of the faculty.

Letters From Graduate Abroad Show Critical Need Of Foreign Students

What is Bowdoin going to do about it?

Part of a Letter from a 1923 Yale Graduate

Here are a few sentences. They may be incoherent. But the awful realization that learning and culture are becoming luxuries too expensive for the German nation has called them out of me. Please use them.

The collapse of culture! The government at the moment is considering the dismissal of one-fourth of all the school teachers because it cannot afford to pay them. Already the schools are crowded. They must become more so. Children come by thousands without food, without underclothes, with scrofula and tuberculosis one sees them on the street. They cannot learn nor the teachers instruct under such circumstances. The Berlin schools have had to close because there was no coal. It is literally true that the literary workers of the nation—on newspapers and magazines as well as in institutions of learning—are being dismissed right and left. A gauge of this is the State's dismissal of one-fourth of all its officials. The higher students are in an even worse case. Also undernourished and consequently sick they must seek industrial employment to keep themselves alive. Their families, mostly of the middle class and dependent on fixed incomes or incomes from more or less dispensable services, are plunged into poverty and have no means to help. And Germany can no longer support sections of its population which do not have directly to do with supplying the basic physical necessities of life. Students live almost entirely without heat in their rooms, so do most people here. Students are found living in garrets and keeping alive on bread and cold coffee substitutes. They frequently work at night and are unable to sleep in a bed from week to week. Outside help must come if the torch of learning is to be kept lighted. At present only a fraction of German students have enough to eat.

The Students of Hamburg

On my first morning in Hamburg I bought a newspaper for 150,000,000,000 Marks. On the front page there appeared a rather startling article. It was the story of a pale-faced man with large spectacles covering overworked eyes who had stood in the early morning in Monckebergstrasse. It had been a chilly misty morning and as he stood there snow began to fall. Simply and directly enough, the article stated that he was a "member of the great society of 'hatless and coatless.'" He was a beggar, and around his neck a great red sign was hung. "Please, please, please, give me something," it read. Not much time had passed before he was arrested and taken to the police court to be questioned. It came out that he is a doctor of philosophy and law, a relief organizer for the city government of Hamburg, and a student at the university. The suffering of the body that had driven the man to this step, and the suffering of the mind and spirit which the taking of it cost him I leave to the reader to imagine. "But," the article ended, "he could not nourish his wife and child." A fitting and typical introduction into German student life today.

There are between 6,000 and 7,000 students in Hamburg. When we remember that most of them come from the middle class; that this class comprising teachers, doctors, lawyers, state officials, artisans, and small merchants has been ruined by the depreciation of currency and the pauperization of the nation; that therefore the city of Hamburg is having to provide feeding kitchens for them—when we realize all this it is not hard to understand why four-fifths of the students must earn their entire living while trying to carry the torch of learning forward to keep Germany a learned and civilized and cultured nation.

Only one-fifth of them have means enough to pursue their studies with their full strength and time. For the other four-fifths the tremendous difficulties of life can be imagined if we keep in mind that fully one-eighth of the entire adult population of Hamburg is listed as unemployed, which means at least a third of the working men. And so we must believe that the registrar of the university is right when he tells us that three-quarters of the students here have not enough to eat.

These conditions are not limited to Germany. The situation is as bad in Russian, Hungary, Roumania and Jugo-Slavia. Is Bowdoin going to offer a helping hand to her sister institutions of learning across the water or is she to sit idly by indifferent to the death struggle?

Enthusiastic Meeting Of Philadelphia Alumni

President Sills Was a Speaker at Meeting in Aldine Hotel—Officers Elected

President Sills was the guest of the Philadelphia Alumni Saturday evening, January 26th, 1924, at their tenth annual meeting and dinner in the Aldine Hotel. His message regarding the intellectual life of the college and the activities of the undergraduates during the past year was most encouraging. Particularly interesting were the President's remarks regarding the policy of keeping Bowdoin a small college, and of maintaining the present high standards. Following President Sills' talk, an hour's questionnaire was enjoyed by the Alumni, after which the business of the annual meeting was transacted. The following officers were elected:

President—Donald E. McCormick '03.
Vice-President—Joseph A. Davis '08.
Secretary-Treasurer—Harrison M. Berry '11.

The announcement that the Philadelphia concert of the musical clubs is scheduled for April 4th was enthusiastically received, likewise, the proposed Bowdoin field day in June and other "spirit-stimulating" activities among the fall months.

go to waste just through poor chiseling, so while I wish to say that, in my opinion, we were wrong in not giving the alumni members of the council credit for honest earnestness, even though we did regard them as inefficient, and for bringing Mr. Ostergren and the Southern Trip in unnecessarily, I feel, after some thought and discussion, that we were right in saying that the students should not pay their blanket taxes until a reform was made or definitely promised.

Probably no one will disagree with the statement that the funds of the Blanket Tax should be used for the benefit of the student body as a whole and not for the pleasure of those few men who either literarily or athletically are talented above the average. The question then is—is the average student getting the return he has the right to expect, and if not, why?

In actual return for the yearly twenty dollars contributed, the student receives a subscription to the "Quill" and "Orient," and admission at half price to most of the games played at the college—which I take is supposed to about equal twenty dollars. So, on the face of it, the student gets his money's worth. But this is merely on the surface, because, the very fact that the students read these publications and are spectators at the games is the one thing that makes them of value. The fact that outsiders take an interest in college activities is not because they cannot see these activities performed as well or better by professionals, but because interest, such as college yells, gives a flavor that cannot be gotten elsewhere. For this reason a student should not more pay to see his own college play football and baseball, than a player on the team should have to pay for the opportunity of playing—especially when the student has himself supplied considerable of the money that finances the game. The player works much harder, it is true, but he also receives more honor and glory; in which way the scales balance.

Now one can agree with all this without denouncing the present system, for while it may be true that the student should be admitted free of charge, if there is not enough money without his paying an extra fee, he must be made to come across. After all, must he? Instead of him being made to pay the difference between what the treasury needs and he should not the expenditure be made to keep within the means of the treasury? If we agree that this should be the case, and indeed, it seems the most elementary type of economy, what is the cause of its not being so? Is it because we have tried to much, or because the management has been inefficient, or is it something of both; the second being the cause of the first?

The figures in the original pamphlet quite conclusively prove that we are spending more than we have a right. These figures themselves have not been denied but instead have been admitted true. These figures are the children of the present system, hence we have a right to call this method inefficient even though we have no doubt that the members of the council are well meaning; and not only well meaning but hard working. Despite the theory, from the nature of its organization it is inevitable that most the work and most the influence should belong to small group. This has happened, and the group is composed of the alumni. While these men endeavor in all earnestness to work for the good of Bowdoin, they very often work to her detriment simply through the fact that their businesses do not give them sufficient time to know thoroughly either the particular needs of Bowdoin or the general trend of collegiate athletics. Also, since they have mostly been educated only at one college or under one system their general knowledge of athletic viewpoints is insufficient for the most progressive and efficient management.

Under a system of faculty control, as suggested in the pamphlet, this condition would not exist. Many students think that this would mean a considerable restriction of activity. The opposite is probably true. Under a proper system of faculty control there would be more athletics within the college, better opportunities to see the varsity teams play, and it is also possible that these contests would be more fortunate.

It is regrettable that the one way to accomplish this reform is not to pay

A New CASE OF SCOTCH Sport Suits

the Blanket Tax. Neither the faculty or students have any legal control over the Athletic Council, but if the Blanket Tax money is withheld until a reform is either accomplished or definitely promised the end will be achieved through mere lack of funds.

It is my earnest hope that in this letter some of the ambiguities of the pamphlet have been cleared up, and it is made plain that the purpose of getting it out was not to institute a red and bloody revolution, nor tie tin cans to the coat-tails of various elderly graduates, nor gain publicity for ourselves, but to point out to our fellow students the need of, and an effectual way to make a real and worthy reform.

Thanking you for your courtesy, I beg to remain

Very truly yours,

W. K. GUTMAN.

English philosopher and man of science. Studied at Oxford and the University of Paris. Wrote the Opus Majus, Opus Minus, Opus Tertium, and many other treatises.

For this he was sent to prison

Roger Bacon may not have invented gunpowder, as has been claimed by some biographers of the famous Franciscan friar, but he exploded some of the outstanding errors of thirteenth century thought. Because of his advanced teachings, Bacon spent many years of his life in prison.

In an age of abstract speculation he boldly asserted the mathematical basis of all the sciences. But even mathematical calculation, he showed, must be verified by experiment, which discovers truths that speculation could never reach.

In the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company, Bacon's principles are followed in every experimental investigation. The gas-filled electric lamp and the electron tube were worked out on paper, but it was experimental verification of the underlying mathematical theory that made electric illumination, radio broadcasting and X-rays what they are today.

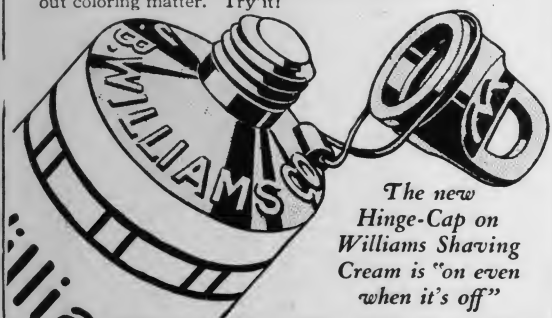

More than a million dollars a year is devoted to research by the General Electric Company in order that the giant—electricity—may be made more and more useful to mankind.

For the best sentence of ten words or less on the value of the Williams Hinge-Cap, we offer the following prizes: 1st prize, $100; 2nd prize, $50; two 3rd prizes, $25 each; two 4th prizes, $10 each; six 5th prizes, $5 each. Any undergraduate or graduate student is eligible. If two or more persons submit identical slogans deemed worthy of prizes, the full amount of the prize will be awarded to each. Contest closes at midnight March 14, 1924. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Submit any number of slogans but write on one side of paper only, putting name, address, college and class at top of each sheet. Address letters to Contest Editor, The J. B. Williams Co., Glastonbury, Conn.

Williams is as much better to shave with as the Hinge-Cap is better than other caps: The lather is heavier and holds the moisture in against your beard. Quicker softening results. Also, Williams lather lubricates the skin. There is noticeable absence of irritating razor friction. And Williams takes good care of the skin. Though you shave daily, your face remains smooth and feels comfortable. Williams is a pure, natural-white cream absolutely without coloring matter. Try it!

Hockey Team To Meet Maine At Orono Friday

Team Strengthened by New Men—
Handicapped by Lack of Practice

Friday the hockey team will cross sticks with the University of Maine puck chasers at Orono. This game will be a part of the Maine winter carnival. The chances of the Bowdoin team are very problematical. If Jim Berry and Charlie Cutter are able to get into the game the possibilities for a win over the Orono team are fairly good. At present it looks as if both men would be eligible. The Maine team will have several advantages over Bowdoin. In the first place it will be playing on its own rink, which is always a distinct advantage for any team. Then again it has played several more games than has the White; the last one was Saturday, when the Boston University sextet was defeated. Bowdoin's last game was played over two weeks ago, when the team was defeated by the Saint Dominique team of Lewiston. In addition to this the team had hardly any practice during the week of mid-year examinations. The only game other than the one with Saint Dominique that has been played was with Bates. Both of these games were played with but very little previous practice. Maine has played two games with Colby and one or two games with small hockey clubs, in addition to the one with Boston University. From this it can be seen that the outcome of the game rests almost entirely on this week's practice, and the chances of Cutter and Berry playing, for with these two men in the game the team is considerably strengthened.

Return of Athletic Goods Is Requested

All men who have athletic goods belonging to the College are requested to return them as soon as possible if they are not still in use. Immediate action in this respect would greatly help the athletic association in its attempt to render an account. Please turn any college material in at Mr. Cobb's office.

Musical Clubs To Give First Concert In Auburn

The Musical Clubs appear for the first time this year, Saturday February 9, at Auburn Hall, Auburn, under the auspices of the Alton M. Gayton Post of the American Legion. Professor Wass will conduct the Clubs for the only time this year at that time. He will leave shortly for a tour of Europe.

The week following the Auburn concert the Clubs will make the annual Boston trip. Concerts will be given at Saco, Kittery, Portsmouth and Boston.

The Portland concert is being arranged for some time in March. The New York trip will be made during the Easter vacation.

The following men will appear with the Clubs in Auburn:

Bowdoin May Compete In N. E. A. A. U. Games

Will Send Men to American Legion Games in Portland in March

It is undecided whether Bowdoin will be represented at the New England Amateur Athletic Association Union games to be held at Boston February 16 or at the American Legion games, which will also be held at Boston, but on February 22, which is the date of the Bowdoin Freshman-Portland High meet.

The N.E.A.A.U. Games will be held at Mechanics Hall, in conjunction with the Harvard, Dartmouth and Cornell triangular meet. If Coach Magee should decide to send a team to these games it will be composed of Bob Foster, 'Kuck' Hamilton, Floyd McGary, and either Mal Hardy or Hal Littlefield. Foster would run in the 1000, Hamilton in the 600, McGary would be entered in the 35 pound weight event, and either Hardy or Littlefield in the high hurdles.

If the relay team should compete in the American Legion Games instead, it would run against Williams and probably Tech. It goes without saying that this would be a whale of a race, with Bowdoin having a more than even chance of winning. Bowdoin's sensational win over Brown and Dartmouth in the B.A.A. games has made the Bowdoin team one of the most popular among the Boston sport fans, and this race in the American Legion games would be one of the drawing cards.

The Harold T. Andrews Post of the American Legion of Portland will have an athletic meet either March 10 or 11. Coach Magee has been engaged to manage the games. Because of his prominence in track circles he is undoubtedly the man for this job, as he is in a position to get some of the best athletes in the East to compete. Members of the track team, such as Mal Hardy, Francis Bishop, Asa Small and "Tiny" McGary will also compete. All of the other Maine colleges will have some of their more prominent individual stars entered. Special events and relay races for schoolboys will be arranged.

College And Church Combine Next Sunday

President Sills to Deliver Sermon at Convocation Service

Next Sunday the service at the College Church will be of particular interest to members of the College, as it is the occasion of the annual convocation service, at which President Sills is the speaker. The College and the old church on the hill are closely linked by the traditions of generations, of which this tradition of calling together the two parts is one of the finest. It is hoped that many of the undergraduates will attend the service, which begins at a quarter to eleven.

President Sills Speaks At Maine On Wilson

Pres. Kenneth C. M. Sills was the principal speaker at a memorial service held for former President Woodrow Wilson at University of Maine, Wednesday night. Pres. Sills referred to the former president as the most distinguished American of the present generation. He said that this was a time to lay aside prejudice in considering what he did, that history is often divided concerning men, even centuries after, but that there is no doubt that it will record Woodrow Wilson as the most imposing figure of the past 25 years.

In closing, he said, there are many different roads to truth. It lies open to all. When we see a man who has given himself to his own conception of the truth, let us not fail to honor him. Nearly the entire student body attended the meeting. Pres. C. C. Little presided. He said that although many may have disagreed with Woodrow Wilson it was fitting that his memory should be honored.

Radio Message Received From Donald MacMillan

The following radio message was read in chapel last Saturday morning: WNP, Auxiliary Schooner Bowdoin to President Sills of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Maine.

The crew of the Bowdoin sends greetings to you and all the boys and professors of the college. So far, all is well.

(Signed) MacMILLAN.

Underclass Debate With Amherst Freshmen Friday

First Varsity Debate on February 25th with Tufts—To Debate Rutgers and Cornell Twice, Also B. U. and Lafayette

The Bowdoin freshman debating team will debate the freshman team at Amherst this Friday. The members of the Bowdoin team are Hewett, Jones, McGuire and Downs, alternate. The freshmen will uphold the affirmative of a question proposing that the United States should recognize Soviet Russia. Professor Davis will probably accompany the team.

February 25 a team composed of Daggett, Hewett, Walch, and Lee alternate will debate Tufts at Medford. The Bowdoin team will uphold the affirmative of the Russian question.

A debate with Rutgers has been scheduled for March 21 at Brunswick. A team composed of Raye, Reed, Rowe and McIntyre alternate will debate for Bowdoin. There has also been a debate scheduled with Cornell, the date of which has not been decided upon, but which will probably be the last of March or the first of April. It will probably be held in Portland.

There will also be a tour, on which a Bowdoin team will debate Lafayette at Easton, Penn., March 28 or 29; Rutgers at New Brunswick, N. J., March 31; and Boston University at Boston. The Bowdoin team will support the affirmative of the Russian question. The team that will make the trip has not as yet been selected, nor has the team that debates Cornell.

Paddock Dons Running Togs After Long Interval

Has First Workout Since Last Spring in Bowdoin Gym—Much Pleased With White Track System

Charles W. Paddock, holder of the world's record in the 100 yard dash, was a guest of Coach Jack Magee at the Bowdoin gymnasium Friday afternoon, prior to his lecture in Memorial Hall that evening. Mr. Paddock lectured on sportsmanship. Paddock and Coach Magee are close friends, due to their acquaintance first made on board the U. S. steamship "Watoika," which carried the American athletes to the Olympic games of 1920. After a thorough inspection of the Bowdoin gymnasium and athletic building, Paddock, at Coach Magee's suggestion, donned running togs. After a brief talk to the Bowdoin track squad, which numbered more than 100, Paddock started limbering up, and later had a few short dashes with some of the sprinters.

This was Paddock's first appearance in a track suit since his competition in France last spring, which caused the greatest track controversy in the history of the sport. Paddock stated to several of the squad that he was amazed at the number of men out for track, and the sincere and earnest manner in which they took their instructions from Coach Magee.

Francis Bishop, captain of the track team, at Coach Magee's request, and for the benefit of Paddock, gave a rare exhibition of pole vaulting. Starting with the bar at ten and a half feet he easily cleared it which he again did when the bar was put at eleven and a half feet. With the bar at the limit, twelve feet, he cleared it several times, with at least a margin of six inches.

Paddock was so pleased by such track spirit at Bowdoin that he remained all the next day, and again worked out under Coach Magee during that afternoon. Several hundred students, as well as many interested townspeople, were on hand to witness Paddock's workout.

Henry Crosby Emery '92 Dies On Return From China

Had a Brilliant Career Throughout Life—Member of Board of Overseers

The College is again called upon to mourn the loss of a most distinguished graduate. Henry Crosby Emery died at sea suddenly on his return from China on February 5th. He graduated from Bowdoin at the head of his class in 1892, and was instructor and professor here for six years. In 1900 he went to Yale as full professor in Economics, and it was said at the time that he was the youngest man ever to be called to a full professorship at Yale. President Taft appointed him as chairman of the United States Tariff Board in 1909 and he served on that board for four years. Shortly after that he gave up his academic position at Yale and went into business in New York City, where he was connected with the Guaranty Trust Company. During the Great War he was his representative in Russia, and in 1917 was captured in the Aland Islands by the Germans and was imprisoned for some weeks. He told the alumni once that he presumed he might be the only American who was in Petrograd when the Kaiser fell, and in Berlin when the Kaiser was dethroned. For the last three years he has been in China and was returning from that country to make his permanent home in New York when stricken by his fatal illness. Harry Emery, as he was known to all of his friends, had unusual personal charm and by common consent it was agreed that he had the most brilliant mind of anyone who has been graduated from Bowdoin in the last forty years. Since 1910 he served as an Overseer of the College; and he had an unusually deep hold upon affection and regard of the alumni. In the brilliancy of his intellectual powers and the charm of his personal comradeship he represented the highest traits of the American college man. His vivid was his personality that we feel as if a very bright light had gone out.

Maine Hockey Team Defeats Bowdoin 6 to 1

Elliott of Maine Scores Five of Six Goals—Berry Does Creditable Work at Goal

With the aid of its stellar captain, Elliott, Maine beat Bowdoin six to one in a hard-fought hockey game last Friday. The White put up a good fight but the Maine team's superior passing game and knowledge of stick handling to say nothing of its excellent defense left Bowdoin quite powerless. If we did manage to break through and get a shot, Baxter, the Maine guard, maintained an almost impregnable goal. Towards the last of the second period, however, Cronin did manage to slip the puck through for the White's only tally.

Captain Elliott was by far the outstanding star of the game, scoring five of the six Maine goals. Yet without teamwork and the accurate passing of Stover, he would have been quite powerless. Stover, who scored the other point, passed the puck to Elliott for four out of his five goals. The work of Jim Berry at goal for Bowdoin was altogether creditable. Time and time again, when the whole White defense had been broken, he averted a score by exceedingly clever work.

Bowdoin showed considerable improvement over its last game but lack of practice has continued to be a great handicap.

The line-up:

Maine (6) (1) Bowdoin
Stover, rw rw, Cronin
Stearns, lw lw, Prebie
Elliott, capt., c c, Cutter
Mackay, rd rd, Widen
Blair, ld ld, capt., Miguel
Baxter, g g, Berry
Substitutions: Maine, Hamor for Stover, Stover for Hamor, David for Mackay, True for Stearns; Bowdoin, Cole for Prebie, Nichols for Cronin, Prebie for Cole, Cronin for Nichols, Littlefield for Prebie, Cole for Littlefield, Nichols for Cronin.
Goals, by Elliott (5); Stover, Cronin. Referee, Kent. Time, three 15-minute periods. Timers, Coach Brice of Maine and assistant manager Vose of Bowdoin.

The Sunday Chapel sermon, delivered by Charles F. Johnson '79, Federal Judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals, was in honor of the late ex-President Woodrow Wilson. Judge Johnson was one of Wilson's personal friends. Much has already been written and said about our recently deceased War President for he stands out, in a period of great diversity of opinions, as a truly great man. He was the exponent of many things for which the world seemed unprepared, but he believed that the great verdict lay in mankind in general. Fundamentally he was a scholar, and as a college—one of the American colleges—we may glory in that which he has brought to public life as a vindication of the college, of higher learning and continued study.

The son of a Presbyterian minister, he was, like other boys, fond of sports of all kinds. But he showed intellectual early in life. He was graduated from Princeton University in 1879, and for a short time he practiced law but he found it uncongenial. Then he took a post-graduate course in political science at Johns Hopkins. In 1883 he published his first book entitled "Congressional Government in the United States." It was an amazing piece of work, showing the unbounded depth of the author's knowledge. He then taught for a few years at Bryn Mawr and Wesleyan respectively and then returned to Princeton as a professor of Political Science and Jurisprudence. He soon wrote a work, "Constitutional Government in the United States," which is considered to be the clearest analogy of United States Constitutional duties ever written. Then he published "A History of the American People," a wonderful story of the traditions of our nation, and these traditions seemed to be a part of him.

In 1910 he resigned his office as President of Princeton and ran for governor of New Jersey, a state then absolutely in the control of gigantic trusts very detrimental to its well-being. He surprised the country by being elected by an overwhelming majority. He was a man with no real political experience whatsoever, a man with high ideals based upon deep sincere study. For the first time he was to test his principles. His success was unquestionable. He reformed legislation and put the trusts under control. As a result he was nominated for the presidency after forty-four ballots by one of our large political parties and subsequently Woodrow Wilson, a college professor, a moulder of youth, found himself at the helm of his country. In his inaugural address he said, "I summon all forward looking men to stand at my side. God helping me, I will not fail them." Here again the verdict will be rendered by mankind. In proof of the fact that Wilson was not cold and unapproachable, Judge Johnson related an incident where Wilson transferred a soldier from one place to another that he might be with his invalid mother. When he had a conscientious conviction that he was right, he was hard to move. To bring our nation, the veritable melting pot of nations, into a unified group was a difficult task, yet in the crisis of the war, he did it. He organized an army and navy in very short notice which will be a wonder of history—he a college professor.

After the war, he then brought forth his very best in an attempt to establish world peace at the Versailles Peace Conference. He said, "There can be no permanent peace without justice and the grouping of the best that there is in this world." He helped to organize a league which fifty-four nations of the world have accepted, yet we—his native land—have failed to do so. He devoted his energy to interesting this country in it. But has he failed? Even Christ at his death asked, "Oh Lord, hast Thou forsaken me?" The verdict is in mankind.

Undergraduate Literature.

A very desirable and interesting form of intercollegiate competition is being attempted this year as an innovation to most of us. This is the literary competition inaugurated by The Granite Monthly, the literary magazine of the neighboring University of New Hampshire, and seconded by a like plan for the colleges of Maine. The former contest is open to all college students, men and women, in the three northern states of New England; the latter is divided into groups to provide competition for the men and women separately.

The purpose of the contest in both instances is to recognize and reward comparative excellence in the writing of the short story, presumably chosen as the most widely used medium of undergraduate literary composition. These competitions are an expansion of the system of encouraging literary effort by the award of prizes for all the varied types of production in the belles lettres. We are familiar with the numerous opportunities of this sort at Bowdoin for comparison of effort in almost every branch, from the lyric to the oration. We welcome, then, from a standpoint of intercollegiate interest, such trials of skill as are now under way, firm in the belief that they may be an evidence of healthy interest in bringing forth more and better work in this important field of learning.

As we pride ourselves on being members of a liberal college, anxious to further interest in the study and practice of the arts, we cannot but find a distinct challenge to take up the gauntlet in this new joust of pens. Even the strong incentive of the liberal prizes offered should not be necessary to elicit numerous entries from Bowdoin. We have talent of a high order in the college. A worthy representation in competitions is quite as essential to the maintaining of our high reputation for creative work as is a worthy representation on the athletic field.

Scholarships.

Dissatisfaction has long been expressed at the present system of awarding scholarships. There is a distinct feeling among the members of the undergraduate body that the worth and the need of the applicant for such aid are not sufficiently investigated and understood by the board of award. Of course the only standard by which the undergraduate may judge the efficiency of the system is the result, as he sees it, and that is far from being universally satisfactory.

In a series of recommendations presented in the Orient a few weeks ago by a student of the College a remedy was suggested. That remedy has been widely discussed, favorably and unfavorably, by the men in college. It has not as yet received definite action from the governing body of either department, neither Student nor Faculty. It suggests, in brief, that the handling of recommendations for scholarships should be put into the hands of a responsible, representative committee of undergraduates, who would supplement the present board in final decisions. This plan has many worthwhile features, and certainly merits thorough consideration by the governing organizations.

Speakers And Preachers
During The Past Year

A recent plea in the Orient for a greater number of speakers and preachers at the College makes the following list of considerable interest. This list includes all those who came to the college to address the undergraduates between January, 1923, and January, 1924.

The list follows:
Rev. C. N. Arbuckle, of Newton Centre, Mass.

Thomas Mott Osborne.
Signora Agresti, of Italy.
Rev. Vincent Ravi-Booth.
Rev. A. A. Callaghan.
Miss Bessie Beatty, on Russia.
R. T. Patten, journalist.

Dean Sperry, of Harvard Divinity School.

Rev. C. M. Sills, of Geneva, N. Y.
Professor Clarence H. White, of Colby.

Rev. Dr. Goddard, of Portland.
Paul A. Buttrick '07 on Red Cross.
Dr. Rupert Lovejoy, of Appalachian Club.

James P. Webber, of Exeter.
Professor Pribram, of Vienna.
Professor W. L. Westermann, of Cornell.

K. P. Tsolainos, of Greece.
Professor R. H. Lord, of Harvard.
Hon. Henry Morgenthau.

Dr. Isalah Bowman, Director, American Geographical Society.
Professor Charles Seymour, of Yale.

Professor Manley O. Hudson, of Harvard.
Rev. Dr. A. Herbert Gray, of Glasgow.

Rev. Dean E. R. Laine, of Portland.
Bishop Slattery, of Massachusetts.
Governor Baxter, of Maine.

Professor Charles U. Clark, lecturer.
Arthur G. Staples, journalist.
President McConaughy, of Knox College.

Rev. Chester B. Emerson, of Detroit.
Paul Blanchard, of New York.
Rev. T. E. Ashby, of Brunswick.

Ralph Adams Cram, of Boston.
Mr. Birge, Y.M.C.A., on Smyrna.
Miss Mary Northend, writer, of Salem.

Professor Knapp, of Bates.
Rev. Harry F. Shook, of Brunswick.
Professor W. W. Lawrence, of Columbia.

Rev. Malcolm Taylor, of Boston.
Professor Allen Johnson, of Yale.
U. S. Senator James W. Wadsworth.

Faculty Coaching System
Triumphs At Wesleyan

A great victory for the system of faculty-controlled coaching at Wesleyan was won when Dr. Edgar Fauver, for nearly fifteen years the director of physical education, withdrew his resignation which had been handed to the trustees of the university on January 19.

Dr. Fauver's resignation was the result of expressed dissatisfaction on the part of a group of alumni who have become disgruntled over Wesleyan's in and out performances on the gridiron in recent years. The alumni charge the mediocre showing to the system of faculty-controlled coaching for which Dr. Fauver is a strong adherent.

The issue was a clean-cut one between two factions which are present in nearly every small college in New England at the present time. One favors seasonal coaching by a highly trained specialist and the other believes in faculty coaching with as much emphasis placed on intra-mural sport as on intercollegiate activities. Because this is true, the small colleges in New England were watching the Wesleyan situation with great interest.

Dr. Fauver withdrew his resignation after pressure had been exerted on him by the faculty, the trustees, the student body, and an appreciable part of the alumni.

At Amherst where "athletic reform" was instituted by former President Meiklejohn and at other colleges where the same sentiments have taken root, those in charge exerted what influence they could from outside to have Dr. Fauver remain. The feeling was that much of the ground which has been gained would be lost if Wesleyan should revert to the so-called seasonal coaching.

One of those who commented with greatest satisfaction on the victory at Wesleyan was Clarence P. Houston, director of physical education and graduate manager of athletics at Tufts College. Mr. Houston said that he was pleased to hear that Dr. Fauver was to remain in his present position at Wesleyan for he was convinced that Dr. Fauver has been an active factor in the forward progress of athletics in the smaller New England colleges.

Faculty Notes

President Sills will be the guest of honor at the annual dinner of the Yale Club of Boston, Friday evening.

Last Saturday President Sills attended a conference of the Presidents of the Maine colleges held at Lewiston.

Professor Hornell addressed the Kennebunk Chamber of Commerce February 5 on the problems of arranging a town's finances.

Professor Henry B. Dewing will address the Twentieth Century Club of Bangor March 8. The subject of Professor Dewing's address will be "Roberts College, an Outpost of Civilization."

The examining committee of the boards will be here February 14 and 15. The members of the committee are Judge Charles Johnson '79 of Portland and Mr. Alfred B. White '98 of Boston, from the Trustees, and Messrs. Waterman '84, Cary '88, and Lumbert '79 from the Overseers.

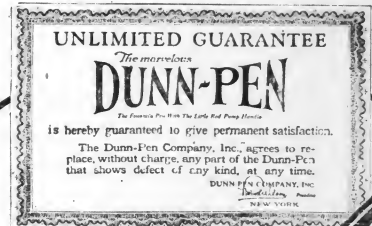

There are now six vacancies in the Board of Overseers. Three are caused by the elections of Messrs. Lawrence, White, and Gibson to the Board of Trustees; and the remaining three by the deaths of John E. Chapman, Henry C. Emery, and Henry B. Quinby.

Saturday Club Concert In Memorial Hall Monday

Artists Furnish Unusually Fine Concert

An audience, altogether too small, enjoyed the delightful concert which was given by Mrs. Florence Ferrell, soprano; Roland Tapley, violinist; and Chester Cook, pianist; at Memorial Hall, Monday evening, under the auspices of the Saturday Club, in co-operation with Bowdoin College. The hard walking and extreme cold kept many people at home, but those who attended were more than repaid by the excellence of the concert, which proved one of the most enjoyable on the Saturday Club program this season.

The program was opened with a collection of songs by foreign composers by Mme. Ferrell, following which Mr. Tapley rendered two numbers, Liebesfreud by Kreisler, being most enthusiastically received. Mr. Cook's piano solos were well received and he played as an encore Schumann's Waltz in E Flat.

Mme. Ferrell responded with the old favorite Annie Laurie as an encore after her most delightful rendering of the Waltz Song from Romeo and Juliet.

The violin solo "Scherzo Tarantelle" by Mr. Tapley was one of the most enjoyable numbers on the program and in response to most liberal applause he responded with the Corinthus Melody "rosakön" by Koschat, arranged by Wintermütz. Another group of songs was sung by Mme. Ferrell and on this occasion her encore was "A Little Song" by Voehls.

Tambourine Chinois by Kreisler was another delightful violin solo by Mr. Tapley and he was again called upon for an encore and played the favorite "Minuet in G" by Beethoven.

The program follows:

Songs:
Nymphs and Shepherd Purell
On the Steppe Grelchmann
Du bist wie eine Blume Rubinstein
Prelude from "The Cycle of Life," Ronald
Mme. Ferrell

Violin Solos:
Romanza Andaluza Sarasate
Liebesfreud Kreisler
Mr. Tapley

Piano Solos:
Moonlight Debussy
Idylle Paraphrase Verdi-Lizze
Mr. Cook
Aria—Waltz Song from Romeo and Juliet Gounod
Mme. Ferrell

Violin Solos:
Indian Lament Dvorak-Kreisler
Scherzo Tarantelle Wieniawski
Mr. Tapley

Songs:
The Brownies Leoni
Invocation to the Sun God Troyer
The Answer Terry
Mme. Ferrell
Violin Solo:
Tambourine Chinois Kreisler
Mr. Tapley
Ave Maria (with violin obligato), Gounod
Mme. Ferrell and Mr. Tapley

Southern University Offers Poetry Prizes

The Southern Methodist University of Dallas, Texas, through the generosity of Dr. Easley S. Jones, co-author with Garland Greever of The Century Handbook of Writing, offers two prizes of one hundred and of fifty dollars respectively for the two best original poems by undergraduates in American universities and colleges.

Every poem entered must be accompanied by a statement from someone in an official position—preferably the executive officer of the department of English—to the effect that the contestant is a bona fide resident undergraduate student. No contestant may submit more than one poem or a group of closely related poems under a single title. The poem submitted must not exceed two hundred lines. Each contestant must send three typewritten copies of the poem (or group of poems) which he submits. All poems not submitted in triplicate will be ruled out. The author's name should not appear on the manuscript. No manuscripts will be returned, but all contestants will be informed concerning the outcome of the contest. No subject or literary type is prescribed. The poems may be lyric, dramatic, or narrative; and they may be written in either free verse or regular metrical forms. Each poem is to remain the property of the author; but it is stipulated that when a prize poem is published, the words "Southern Methodist University Prize Poem, 1924," shall be added.

All poems submitted must reach Dallas not later than March 15, 1924 directed to the following address: Jay B. Hubbell, Professor of English, Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas.

In 1923 two prizes were offered for the best poems written by American undergraduates. The first prize of one hundred dollars was awarded to Miss Roberta T. Swartz of Mount Holyoke College, and the second prize of fifty dollars to Mr. Ottys E. Sanders of Southern Methodist University.

The judges this year are the following well-known poets: Carl Sandburg, John Hall Wheelock, and Vachel Lindsay (not definitely accepted).

Brunswick National Guard Has Many Bowdoin Men

Sixteen Undergraduates Are Members—Professor Davis Captain

The Brunswick Company of the Maine National Guard, Battery C 240th (First Maine) Artillery is becoming almost as much of a Bowdoin as a town institution. Students at Bowdoin who are able to attend the annual summer encampment have been welcomed as recruits, and there are now sixteen of them in the company. They are, Robert Foster '25, Robert Harkness '26, Roland Butler '26, Robert Peary '25, Francis Bishop '24, Lawrence Blatchford '24, Donald Fay '27, David Sellow '27, Walter Gutman '25, Archibald Hepworth '26, Guy Lagro '26, Kenneth MacLean '26, Karl Pearson '26, Clarence Rouillard '24, Ledyard Southard '25. Of these men four are non-commissioned officers. Butler and Harkness are two of the three Maine National Guard candidates for appointment to West Point. Harkness is a sergeant, Butler a supply sergeant, Foster a sergeant and platoon leader, and Peary a corporal. Professor Davis is captain of the company, and Richard Lee the lieutenant. Tuesday evening, February 19, the company will conduct an exhibition drill in the town hall, at which Colonel George E. Fogg, Bowdoin 1902, will be present and will speak. The exhibition will be followed by dancing.

Basketball League To Start Schedule Soon

Representatives of the fraternities met last week at Coach Magee's office to make plans for the interfraternity basketball league. It was voted to have Jack supervise the league, as he has done for the past few years. A committee composed of Burnard, Gibbons and Cronin, was appointed. The schedule for the league will be arranged immediately, and the first games played. There will be two divisions in the league, the winners of each division will play for the championship. Amateur rules will be used, and the same conditions will prevail as have for the past few years.

"The perfect cream in the perfect container"

(This is the way one user describes Williams and the new Hinge-Cap)

Williams Shaving Cream

Men buy Williams expecting to find their main satisfaction in the Hinge-Cap. But when they first use the cream they get an equally pleasant surprise. The heavier lather, the greater thoroughness with which it softens the beard, make a hit at once. Then, Williams lather lubricates the skin so that the razor fairly "glides" the hairs off. And last, there's that delightful after-care of the skin. Truly, you'll find that with the Hinge-Cap Williams is "miles ahead." It's a pure cream without coloring matter of any kind.

$250 in prizes

For the best sentence of ten words or less on the value of the Williams Hinge-Cap, we offer the following prizes: 1st prize $100; 2nd prize $50; two 3rd prizes, $25 each; two 4th prizes, $10 each; six 5th prizes, $5 each. Any undergraduate or graduate student is eligible. If two or more persons submit identical slogans deemed worthy of prizes, the full amount of the prize will be awarded to each. Contest closes at midnight March 14, 1924. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Submit any number of slogans but write on one side of paper only, putting name, address, college and class at top of each sheet. Address letters to Contest Editor, The J. B. Williams Co., Glastonbury, Conn.

Choice of a Career

From the Yale News

THE NINETY-FOUR

Someone, probably an insurance agent, was quoted recently as saying that from the mass of one hundred college graduates one individual only rose to the Polo and butler class, perilously near the top of the financial ladder. Five others became comfortably off and found themselves after twenty years at the small yacht and chauffeur stage. The other ninety-four presumably congregate in the great section of the American people who drive their own Buicks to the golf club. In other words, dreaming about being a rich man is one thing, and making the grade is "something else again."

Yet the ninety-four presumably work just as hard as the sumptuous six. Their business is the axis on which a small and uninteresting world revolves. They have become devotees of the dollar and when that fickle deity deserts, have nowhere else to turn. Jammed in a dull, straight rut of business they can never leave the road and jump the fence into finer fields of life. This, then, is the portion of ninety-four men out of every hundred now on the campus.

The answer to the problem lies in the proper choice of a career.

Between now and Commencement we shall have something to offer on the subject of "Careers." Watch for the space with the Famous Signature.

Plans Are Started For Interscholastic Meet

Will be Held at Brunswick on the Afternoon of March 8th—Gieger to Referee Games

Plans for the annual interscholastic meet for March 8 are now underway, and efforts will be made to make the event one of the greatest affairs in the history of the college. The program was well underway Tuesday and already invitations have been sent out to various schools and more than ever are expected to enter.

Coch Magge announced that Albert Gieger, Jr., chairman of the Athletic Committee of the Boston Athletic Association and a member of the A.A.U., would referee the meet with Hughie McGrath, the well known track starter of the B.A.A., handling the gun. Other officials will be announced later.

Already the various fraternities have started in training for the interfraternity meet on March 7th and a big night is on the program with many of the alumni planning to return to college for both meets.

Judges Announced For Granite Monthly Contest

The Granite Monthly of Concord, N. H., which is conducting a short story contest open to the students of the colleges of the three northern New England States, announces that the closing date of the contest has been extended to March 1st.

This contest is developing wide spread interest and we hope that our colleges will be well represented. Liberal prizes are offered in the amounts following: 1st, $50.00; 2nd, $25.00; 3rd, $10.00.

All manuscripts must be typewritten. Subject matter may be fiction or narrative. No manuscripts returned. The Granite Monthly reserves the privilege of publishing any manuscript submitted.

The judges of this contest will be Norris H. Cotton, editor of The Granite Monthly, William T. Nichols, editorial writer for the Manchester Union, and Frances Parkinson Keyes, author.

Outing Team Places Third In Maine Carnival

Bates Wins With 21 Points; Maine, Second, 12 Points; Colby Last With Five

Doing the best that could be expected, the Bowdoin Outing Club team got seven points and third place in the University of Maine winter carnival, held last Saturday at Orono. Bates was first with 21 points, Maine second with twelve, and Colby was fourth, with five points. Bates was strong in the ski events, while Maine excelled in the snowshoe races.

The members of the Bowdoin team were Eastman, captain, Lavigne, Stubbs, Andrews, Oliver, Spear, Nelson, and Collett, manager. The team had only one or two days of practice before the carnival, and consequently it could not be expected to make a strong showing.

Harold Eastman was second in the hundred and fifty yard snowshoe dash, while his brother won first place for Maine. Stubbs was third in the ski jump, which was not bad when the fact that he had had no previous practice this winter is taken into consideration. The ski relay team trailed the Bates team, with Maine third. The members of the team were Nelson, Spear, Andrews, and Stubbs.

If Bowdoin wishes to make a better showing in the Auburn and Augusta carnivals it will be necessary for more men to try out for the team. There were only seven men out for the Maine carnival team, while at Bates there were 45 out.

Ray Collett, president of the Bowdoin Outing Club, and Harold Eastman attended the meeting of the Maine Intercollegiate Winter Sports Association. At this meeting it was voted to limit the number of the winter sports team to eight men.

The summary of the carnival follows:

Cross country snow shoe race three miles, first, Patten, Maine; second, Wills, Bates; third, Tiffany, Bates; time, twenty minutes, twenty-five seconds.

Ski jump, first, A. Jordan, Colby; eighty-four nine-tenths; second, Baker, Bates, eighty-four two-tenths; third, Stubbs, Bowdoin, eighty-two and eight-tenths.

Ski relay races: two hundred twenty yards per man, won by Bates (Fletcher, W. Gilpatrick, Matsunata, E. Gilpatrick) time two minutes, thirty-nine seconds. Second, Bowdoin (Nelson, Spear, Andrews, Stubbs). Third, Maine (Sargent, Patten, Sweetser, Elliott).

Snow shoe dash, hundred fifty yards, won by Eastman, Maine; second, Eastman, Bowdoin. Snow, Maine. Time, twenty-three one-fifth seconds.

Cross country ski race five miles, won by C. Gilpatrick; second, W. Gilpatrick; third, Fletcher, all of Bates. Time, twenty-three minutes, thirty-nine three-fifths seconds.

Drive For European Student Aid This Week

Critical Condition of European Students Appalling—Student Council Behind Drive

This week, from Tuesday until Thursday, there is a drive being conducted under the auspices of the Student Council for the benefit of European students. Having seen the wretchedness of some of these students, and to a small degree realizing their need of assistance I feel it my duty to do my best to bring the situation before the students of my own college.

The students in Russia say "If we can't go to Heaven then send us to Prague." What do they find in Prague that they prefer it to all places but Heaven? This is what they find. A group of ramshackle barracks turned over to their disposal. Here they eat, sleep and study. They sleep on tables, on tops of chests and benches and a few in the small number of beds they have. They put two beds side by side and then three of them sleep across them. They awake shivering about five a. m., boil themselves some coffee and walk three miles to the university for they cannot afford carfare. They attend classes all day and if they are fortunate they are able to purchase soup and bread at a Y.M.C.A. for cost. After classes they walk back to the barracks and prepare the next day's work. It is not uncommon to go without supper—a supper which many good healthy American dogs would spurn—and study until midnight. This program goes on day after day and they are grateful beyond words to America for opening this opportunity to them. They have American flags hung in every barrack and literally worship America for what she has done for them. Yet there are 31,000 Russian students living on one meal a day—and a very poor one at that.

Our party found students in Hungary, Poland, Austria and Germany who, though we desired to buy them meals, would not eat meat because they had accustomed themselves to living without it and did not wish to endure the struggle again by arousing insatiable desires. Hundreds of students are walking ten miles a day to and from universities and doing all the work on the farms where they stay for two meals a day and a bunk to sleep in. Would American students pursue an education under similar conditions? Ask yourself! How grateful would you be if some friend across the sea gave you a chance to educate yourself—if you were in the wretched circumstances of a European student? Yet $5 will pay the yearly tuition of two students over there.

Never have we had a greater opportunity for service than in aiding these students. Five dollars will mean more to one of these students than $500 to any student in Bowdoin College.

Are they responsible for the condition in which they find themselves? They are not—any more than we are for the luxury in which we find ourselves. Why wasn't your crib and mine in Europe? We don't know, we cannot say—but we should all thank God it wasn't.

Let us in our thankfulness help them in their suffering. It will not hurt us and to them our slightest bit of assistance spells salvation.

Competition For English Prizes Are Announced

"Masefield's Realism" Subject for Pray English Prize

The Forbes Rickard Prize will be awarded by a committee of the Faculty for the best poem written during the present academic year. The competition is open to all undergraduates, and each may submit six poems. Manuscripts must be typewritten and must reach me at least on June 4. All poems published by The Quill will also be considered.

The Pray English Prize will be awarded by a committee of the Alumni for the essay which combines most excellence of composition with most excellence of literary interpretation and criticism. The subject for this year is: "Masefield's Realism." The purpose of the essay is to define and estimate the value of the realism in Masefield's poetry (omitting his dramas), without reference to his life as a man. The material to be read is: Collected Works of John Masefield, Vol. 1 (Poems), published by The Macmillan Company at $3.00. This book should be ordered at once. Those who intend to compete will please give me their names by February 18 at latest.

The essay must be at least a thousand words in length, exclusive of quotations, and must be typewritten. The sources of any ideas and phrases not the writer's own must be carefully indicated in foot-notes. The essays shall be handed to me at latest on May 7. They are to be signed with a pen-name, the key to be enclosed in a sealed envelope accompanying the manuscript. G. K. ELLIOTT.

Alumni Notes

1869—The Honorable Henry Brewer Quincy, U.S.D., of the class of 1869, a member of the Board of Overseers and former governor of New Hampshire, died suddenly on February 8 in New York. He was seventy-eight years old. He was a native of Biddeford, the son of Thomas and Jane E. Quincy. He received his A.B. from Bowdoin in 1869. Bowdoin bestowed an honorary degree of Master of Arts on him in 1916. He also received honorary degrees from Dartmouth and the National Medical College in late years.

1874—Dr. Walter Temple Goodale, treasurer of the Saco and Biddeford Savings Bank since 1909, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, February 2. Death was caused by hardening of the arteries. He was born in Saco September 7, 1851 and graduated from Bowdoin in 1874. After graduating from college, he went to Benicia, California, where he was a teacher in St. Augustine College. In 1888 he graduated from Harvard Medical School and practiced medicine in Saco until fifteen years ago when he accepted the bank position. He was superintendent of schools in Saco for a few years. He was a trustee of Thornton Academy.

1897—Colonel Edward C. Plummer of Bath has been elected vice chairman of the United States Shipping Board. Colonel Plummer has a wide reputation as a shipping law expert, and has made a splendid record in his administrative duties since he became a member of the board in June, 1921. After his graduation from Bowdoin, Colonel Plummer became city editor of a Bath newspaper. He has since made his home in that city. He later became owner of the Bath Weekly Independent. In 1892 he visited the European shipyards to investigate shipping questions; upon which he is a recognized authority. During the Spanish War he was a paymaster in the navy. Having taken up the study of law in his newspaper days, he was admitted to the bar, and served as city solicitor of Bath for several years. He was appointed attorney for the Atlantic Carriers Association. Colonel Plummer has written several articles on shipping questions, and has served on several boards dealing with shipping matters.

1903—E. Farrington Abbott, general manager of the Cushman-Hollis Co., shoe manufacturers, of Auburn, has been elected a director in the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers Association with headquarters in New York. His term is for three years. Mr. Abbott is the only member from his section of New England.

1908—Vice Consul H. Tobey Moores, stationed at Lisbon, Portugal, has recently been promoted, according to a despatch received in this country.

Professor Hormell Is State Senate Candidate

Has Had Much Experience in Public
Finance and Government—Issues
Platform in Open Letter

Much interest will center around the forthcoming primaries by reason of the announcement made by Professor Orren C. Hormell of Bowdoin college, that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senator from Cumberland County. Professor Hormell has many friends in Brunswick and his announcement is very pleasing to them.

The full text of Professor Hormell's open letter to the Republican voters of Cumberland County, follows:

Brunswick, Maine,
Feb. 11, 1924.

"I have decided to follow the advice and recommendations of my fellow

PROFESSOR ORREN C. HORMELL
Candidate for State Senator

citizens of Brunswick, seconded by leading citizens in other sections of the County, and become a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senator from Cumberland County in the primaries to be held in June, 1924. "We Republicans of Brunswick believe that we are truly representing the public opinion of the Republicans of the whole County when we maintain that the best welfare of the County and the interests of the Republican party alike demand that at least one candidate for the Senate be selected from the country towns—from the county outside of the urban center of Portland, South Portland and Westbrook.

"Brunswick is the largest town in the county; Brunswick, moreover, is located in the eastern section of the county which has had no representation in the State Senate since 1910, when Hon. E. W. Wheeler of Brunswick so efficiently served the county and State in that body. Brunswick therefore has no reason to apologize for pressing her claims.

"I believe that there is a public welfare superior to the conflicting interests of apparently hostile classes. It is the duty of the legislator to discover that welfare and endeavor to put it into effect.

"I believe that the greatest need in a popular government such as ours is a legislature with courage enough to follow its own highest judgment without passing the responsibility to the people on the one hand or to the governor on the other.

"I believe that the people of Maine are 'over governed'; that too many laws are being placed on the statute books. A few laws wisely drawn and fully and carefully considered would be a welcome change from recent legislative practice.

"If nominated and elected I would give special attention to the problem of state and local finances to the end that the burden of government might be lessened and equalized, through tax reform, better accounting and budget making methods, and through regulation regarding the incurring and payment of debts.

Respectfully,

ORREN C. HORMELL."

Prof. Hormell was born on an Indiana farm on December 4, 1879, and attended the common school, public high school and the State University of his native state.

His earliest political memory is said to be the wearing of a James G. Blaine campaign button. His father and grandfather were Republicans of the Abolitionist school, nevertheless, Professor Hormell is firm in assertion

Musical Clubs Finish Successful Concert Tour

Concerts Given in Saco, Kittery, Portsmouth, and Boston—Unusually Appreciative Audiences

Last Wednesday morning the College Musical Clubs started on a three days' trip. Professor Wass, who has now sailed for Europe, and his son accompanied them as far as Portland. Just before the train reached Union Station in Portland, all the members of the clubs gathered around their esteemed director and coach and McMennamin in behalf of the clubs presented him with a gold pencil and pen, suitably engraved with his initials. The presentation was made in consideration of the great services which he has rendered in helping organize and perfecting the clubs.

The first concert was held in Saco under the auspices of Thornton Academy. The men were first given a buffet lunch by the young ladies of the institution and afterwards a short informal dance was held in the gymnasium. The concert that evening was attended by a full house and received much applause.

Next the clubs went to Kittery where the concert was given in the First Congregational Church. Friday evening was spent in Portsmouth and after presenting a very pleasing program in the assembly hall of the high school, a dance was given in honor of the men.

The final concert of this trip took place in Boston at the Hotel Vendome on Saturday night. The house was packed and the program was most enthusiastically received. Afterwards a dance was given with music by Walter Johnson's colored orchestra, which provided an exceptionally good time for the men.

On the whole, it was a very successful trip, especially since the audience all seemed to be thoroughly pleased. The several numbers on the program which were the most popular were Keniston's banjo solo, the Popular Instrumental Medley and the song "Rolling Down to Rio." The clubs returned to college Sunday.

The program which the Clubs are presenting this year at all their concerts is as follows:

Coach Magee Supervising Portland Invitation Meet

Is Making Arrangements for Imposing Array of Talent at Portland's First Annual Invitation Track Meet

The first annual invitation track meet in Portland, under the auspices of the Harold T. Andrews Post, American Legion, will be held in Portland, Tuesday evening, March 11. The date was definitely set at the meeting of the Athletic Committee held Tuesday after a conference with Coach Magee who will direct the meet for the Legion and was set at his suggestion.

Magee desired the date to closely follow the big meeting in Philadelphia, Saturday, March 8, in order that he could more easily make arrangements for some of the big track men of the country to come to Portland before they went back West. Coach Magee went to Boston to complete arrangements for the coming of the big stars and to attend the New England indoor track championships and the Harvard, Cornell and Dartmouth triangular meet.

He said at the meeting, that with the dates set for early in March he felt sure of landing such stars as Joie Ray, the wonder runner of the country; Floyd Hahn, the sensational runner who beat Ray twice this year; and Ray Baker, former Bates distance star.

In addition to the three greatest middle distance stars, he plans to have Joe Tierney of Holy Cross, Loren Hutchinson, king of indoor sprinters, Bob Foster, Bishop and Mal Hardy of Bowdoin, Tootell and many other leading lights of the track.

Among the colleges who will be invited to send relay teams are U. of M., Bates, Bowdoin, Colby, Dartmouth, Tufts and University of New Hampshire, as well as all the preparatory and high schools of the state.

Foster and Hardy Win Heats—Other
Maine Colleges Show Well

Bowdoin was represented in the N. E. A. A. U. indoor meet held last Saturday evening at Boston in conjunction with the Harvard, Cornell, Dartmouth triangular meet. Although showing up well in some of the trial heats, none of the Bowdoin athletes placed in the finals. Fred Tootell, captain of last year's track team, and holder of the National Intercollegiate hammer throwing record, broke another record in the 35 pound-weight event, with a heave of 52 feet, 5 inches.

Malcolm Hardy won the second heat of the 45 yard high hurdles. The time was 6.2-5 seconds.

Bob Foster won the third heat of the 600 yard run in 1 minute, 21.2-5 seconds.

Other Maine colleges athletes who showed up well were:

Mittelsdorf of Colby won the 40 yard dash event in 4.4-5 seconds. R. C. Heaton of Colby was first in the fifth heat of that event. Mittelsdorf won the seventh and also the first semi-final.

Clarence Archibald of Bates was third in the 1000 yard run. It was won by Lloyd Hahn, B. A. A., in 2 minutes 21.5-seconds.

K. S. Wentworth of Colby was second in the 35 pound weight throw, doing 43 feet, 5 inches. F. D. Tootell of B. A. A., formerly of Bowdoin won the event with a throw of 52 feet, 5 inches.

Rollo W. Payne of Colby was second in the two mile run, being defeated by Bob Brown of B. A. A. whose time was 9 minutes, 41.4-5 seconds.

Friday the Relay team will run against Williams at the American Legion Games in Boston. It is expected that this will be an exceptionally good game, and from the showing made in the B. A. A. games, Bowdoin will at least be on an equal standing with Williams.

The Bowdoin hockey team pulled one of the biggest surprises of the season when it completely outclassed the University of Maine outfit and won four to one on the Delta last Saturday afternoon. After having held Colby to an extended tie three days before, the White showed the result of its much needed practice under good conditions and failed to give the Orono team a look-in. The earlier games of the year had been played when Bowdoin had had no opportunity to build up any sort of an organization, when the players representing the White could not be called a team, merely six men doing their best under great handicap. But Saturday they proved that a little practice was all that they needed to unite them into a smooth working organization showing power and skill on both the offensive and defensive.

Bowdoin sailed into the first period in a whirlwind fashion that swept the Maine puck chasers completely off their feet. Sweeping down the ice and showing exceptionally good team work especially in the passing game, three goals were scored. Cutter made two of these and Cronin one.

The second period was fast, but there was no scoring. Whenever Maine got within distance, the White defense worked so smoothly that it was impregnable. At the same time however, the Maine defense stiffened and prevented scoring. Early in the last period, however, Charlie Cutter registered Bowdoin's fourth and last tally. The play then went to the other end of the rink and Stearns of Maine saved his team from a White-wash when he found an opening and took advantage of it. From then on the game was fast and exciting. Bowdoin missed a couple of good tries when the Maine team concentrated its energies on the defense.

Cutter was the star of the Bowdoin team, being responsible for three of his team's four goals. He played an all round good game in addition to getting these four goals. This game shows that with a chance for a little real practice the Bowdoin team can compete on an even footing with the best of the Maine college teams. Widen and Miguel playing defense proved themselves strong factors in the Bowdoin defense, while Berry played an exceptionally good game tending goal. Blair and Stearns were the strongest players on the Maine.

Colby Game

After playing three overtime periods in one of the closest hockey games ever seen on the Delta, the Bowdoin and Colby teams had to be content with a four to four tie in their game of last Wednesday. The teams were very evenly matched, as the score indicates, and after the first few minutes of the third period neither team was able to score.

The first goal of the game was made

Grades-A Responsibility.

The posting of the Dean's List presents to the college tangible evidence that there are a goodly number of our undergraduates really succeeding in their scholastic work. Such an increase of freedom as is given by a place on the list should certainly contribute to even more marked and more far-reaching successes. The lifting of classroom restrictions from worthy men represents a strong effort on the part of the governing bodies to inculcate a desire for true scholarship in original work. The theory is, if we understand it correctly, that men who are capable of maintaining a high standing in their courses are capable to do productive work as well.

This is the central idea, the idea which must be the guide for those fortunate men who by dint of their own efforts have done a worthy part in keeping up the high scholastic standard of their College. The difficulty is that such men may have come to feel the necessity of attendance on all classes so thoroughly that they will not take advantage of their present privilege. It may seem strange to urge men to take cuts, yet that is what has to be done if the purpose of the scholarship privilege is to be fulfilled. No one expects that the men so favored will take advantage of the system by cutting classes regularly for foolish or unworthy reasons. On the other hand everyone expects that these men will accept their added responsibility to do some real work for the College.

Originality in scholarly work is the goal to be sought. With all due credit to the lecture system, it does very little to prepare the student for his intellectual activities in later life. There is, of necessity, too much direction, and little or no incentive to individual research and investigation. That is the sort of work that the world requires of its scholars. It is the sort of work that its scholars should learn to do while they are still undergraduates. The men on the Dean's List are, if not real scholars, our nearest approach to them. For that reason we have a perfect right to expect more from them in a scholastic way than we do from the average student, the man who has his hands full to get through his strictly routine work. It is only because more is expected of high-ranking men that more is required of them. There is, therefore, no reason why we should not look forward with confidence to the production of much valuable work by the men who potentially have the time to do it.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

At a recent meeting of the Athletic Council held in Portland I was instructed to draw up a detailed statement of the Athletic Situation from the financial aspect due to the feeling even among many of the students who cheerfully pay the Blanket Tax that they were entitled to more information as to where the money goes. This I hope to do in a later number of the Orient or at a meeting of all students interested whichever seems advisable.

Owing to the fact that the collection of the Blanket Tax now due is absolutely necessary to carry on the sports of Hockey, Track and Baseball for the rest of the College year, a few figures of expenditure and income over the past two College years might give some light on our situation, and show that only by the student contribution through the Blanket Tax can these sports be carried on.

In expenditures I have included all expenses including salaries, equipment, cost of trips and all other items. In arriving at percentage of income produced by the sport I consider only the gate receipts and guarantees and have not included any contributions by alumni or by the student body through the Blanket Tax appropriation.

1921-1922	Expense	% Income
Football	$9,298	79
Hockey	603	42
Track	8,074	21
Baseball	7,520	79

1922-1923	Expense	% Income
Football	$11,663	98
Hockey	1,800	12
Track	10,000	13
Baseball	6,500 Est	47

It will be seen that football without any A.S.B.C. appropriation comes the nearest to being self-supporting but no other sport can exist for a minute without the Blanket Tax aid and this even is hardly sufficient because in hockey, baseball and track where the students form the bulk of the audience and pay no admission the sport manager gets little in the way of gate receipts. Football can get along because the public come in and attend the contests. Manager Ross' statement should appear in the next Orient showing a balance after paying all bills of about $100. He received $1,000 A.S.B.C. or $2.00 per capita from 500 students but he gave admission at $1.00 each to all students for the three games or $3.00 per capita so it can not be claimed that the student body except for the noise of the band and the cheering gave Mr. Ross any financial aid toward his season. His salvation lay in the fact that his sport draws the public but not yet located as we are in Brunswick in sufficient numbers to leave a surplus to carry other sports. Manager Luckden in 1922 had a deficit of $1,000 although salary account that year was not over $1,800.

A couple of recent observations might be of interest showing how the Blanket Tax admission and the small guarantees we obtain work. Take the figures for the recently Colby-Bowdoin Hockey game at Brunswick with an attendance of about 150 students who paid no admission.

Expense:
Colby guarantee	$50.00
Police	3.00
Official	7.00
	—$60.00
Gate	13.25

Partial deficit $46.75
To this must be added the cost of equipment, care of rink, hockey sticks, pucks, coaching if we had any, etc. All this expense must be taken care of by the A.S.B.C.

Take the recent very creditable trip of the Relay team to the B.A.A. Games in Boston.

Cost of the trips, travel	$218.00
Guarantee	40.00

Partial deficit $178.00
To this again must be added the cost of equipment of the men, shoes, running pants and jerseys or such proportionate charge as would be fair to charge to the particular trip, also the cost of coaching must be provided and in this case is provided by the College. The rest of the cost must come through the A.S.B.C. Unpaid Blanket Taxes will not pay the bills.

While our troubles are partly economic due to the depreciated dollar, it must be evident that we are trying to do more than we really can afford, and as Athletics are an undergraduate activity outside the regular curriculum of the College the decision rests with the students as to what sort of a problem the Council as the agent of the students shall plan and carry out. With mounting costs of everything pertaining to Athletics without equivalent increase in income I find little desire on the part of anyone or any department at Brunswick for any curtailment. One Department has increased its expenditure for equipment alone from 1915-1916 to last year 4,000% (four thousand).

However there is a somewhat brighter side to the situation careful budgets have been made in Hockey, Track and Baseball and each Department is co-operating in every way with my office to keep within the budgets where the expenditures are based on the estimated income so that if the students pay the Blanket Tax in full and as cheerfully as any one can pay any Tax, we should complete this College year without any deficit in any sport. All depends on the income and the main source of the income is the revenue from the A.S.B.C. It is impossible for the Athletic Council, efficient or in-efficient to stretch the "dollar."

LYMAN A. COUSENS,
Acting Graduate Manager.

President Sills Conducts

Convocation Service

Takes Up Relations Between Education and Religion

In an address at Convocation Service at the First Parish Church last Sunday morning, President Sills in speaking of some of the relations between education and religion spoke in part as follows:

"If religion is to have its proper place in the future development of this nation, there is need of considering with much care the whole matter of religious education. Religious instruction is primarily the concern of the home and of the Sunday School. But under present social conditions the results obtained under our present methods are far from satisfactory. We ought to study carefully with a view to possible adoption the experiments that are being carried on in many parts of the country in the religious day school. In Maine, Bar Harbor is furnishing an excellent example. At the request of parents scholars are dismissed from the public schools for one hour a week to receive religious training under the auspices of their respective churches. There may be some practical and legal difficulties to overcome; but such religious day schools are a symbol of the interest which the community takes in religion."

In discussing some other phases of the religious life of the day President Sills said: "It is sadly true that there are many decisive forces now in evidence in our own state. Maine has been proud of her reputation in the past for liberality and tolerance in all religious matters. But there is some evidence that prejudice and bigotry have not died out. For many people would make the test of their political support of a candidate for office the particular branch of the Christian Church to which he belongs. It is high time to do away with such bigotry. There are too many evils in our political and social life to fight without wasting our time as Christian people by quarreling with one another. We need more of the unity of the spirit of brotherhood among all people who profess and call themselves Christians. I should not speak thus were I not thoroughly convinced that this danger is now threatening the State of Maine."

Faculty Notes

When the State of Maine Near East Relief Bureau was looking for men to speak throughout the state to further their cause one of the first men to whom they turned was Professor Dewing of the Bowdoin faculty. Professor Dewing has probably had as close a relation with the conditions in the Near East as any man in the state. For a number of years he was the Dean of Roberts College in Constantinople, and he made a thorough study of conditions there.

Entries For Freshman-Portland High Meet Friday

To Be Hard Contest This Year for Both Teams

The Portland High-Bowdoin freshman meet will be held this Friday. Last year this meet was easily won by the freshmen by a score of 65 to 30. As this is the first meet of the year for the freshmen it is difficult to predict the result of the meet. The Portland boys have been working for several weeks in preparation for the meet, and without doubt they will put up a good fight. The freshmen have been practising daily for the past few weeks under Coach Jack Magee's careful supervision, and this meet will be a fine opportunity for them to show the result of their practise.

The entries are:

10 yd. dash: Portland, R. Currie, Hanlon, Black, Burrows, McCarthy, Malia, Powers, Moody. Bowdoin, Farrington, Connor, Kohler, Cutter, Wood, Palmer, McInnes, Brown, Hull, Buker, Fogg. Portland: Norton, Cobb, W. Mullin, J. Mullin, L. Mullin, Norton, Shatz, Wood, Boyd.

1000 yd. run: Portland, Etter, Libby, Cook, Jennison, Malia, Woods. Bowdoin, Boynton, Whittier, Bargh, Hodgkins, Crane, Huntress.

300 yd. run: Portland, Black, Hanlon, Norton, McCarthy, R. Currie, H. Powers, E. Etter, Cobb. Bowdoin, Farrington, Kohler, Wood, Cutter, Fay, Connor, Palmer.

45 yd. high hurdles: Portland, Currie, Wood, L. Mullin, Newall, Burrows, Ritchie. Bowdoin, McInnes, D. Farrington, Kendall, Hull.

Running broad jump: Portland, J. Mullin, Norton, Moody, Shatz. Bowdoin, Buker, F. Farrington, Hill, McInnes, Kendall, Willey, Hull, Sawyer, Brown.

Amherst 1927 Debaters Defeat Bowdoin Freshmen

White Loses Decision by Two to One Vote of Judges

The Amherst College freshmen debaters defeated the Bowdoin freshmen team last Friday evening in Johnson Chapel, Amherst. The decision of the judges was two to one.

The subject was: Resolved, That the United States should grant recognition to the government of Russia. Bowdoin upheld the affirmative and Amherst supported the negative.

The Bowdoin team was composed of W. A. MacGuire, M. A. Hewett, F. N. Jones, and T. L. Downs alternate. The Amherst team was composed of T. S. Ward, C. W. Cole and W. F. Gellhorn. Professor Russell M. Geer of Amherst College presided and the judges were: William C. Dreher, Ray Stannard Baker, and the Reverend Henry G. Ives.

This is the third time that Amherst and Bowdoin have met in underclass debate. Amherst has won twice and Bowdoin once. Both freshman teams were victors over the sophomores in their respective colleges.

Deering And Skowhegan High To Debate Friday

On Friday evening, the twenty-second, there will be a debate between Deering High and Skowhegan High School in the Bowdoin Interscholastic Debating League, at eight o'clock in the debating room in the library. Deering High recently defeated Portland High, and Skowhegan defeated Cony in the League. This is the final debate in the league composed of these schools, the winner to receive a cup.

There is also a second league composed of Jordan, South Portland, Morse, and Brunswick High Schools which will meet in March.

The debate Friday will be on the question of recognizing the Soviet Government of Russia.

that his Republicanism is founded upon principles rather than upon family tradition.

After graduating from college, Prof. Hormell taught three years in a public high school. He did his graduate work at Harvard where he received a Ph.D. degree in Political Science. He specialized in municipal government with special emphasis upon municipal finance. After leaving Harvard he taught one year at Clark University.

Prof. Hormell has taught Government at Bowdoin since 1911 except for the time spent with the Army Expeditionary Forces teaching at the University of Beaune in France, and carrying on Institute work in several of the A.E.F. camps.

Upon coming to Maine, Prof. Hormell joined a Bureau for Research in Municipal Government. The Bureau has been able to furnish materials from the first identified himself with the civic life of the community and state. In 1914, he established at upon financial and other problems, not only to many Maine municipalities but to municipalities and citizens in other states as well.

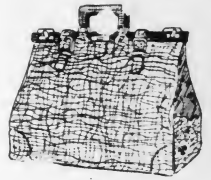

He has been one of the leaders in the movement for uniform accounting and budget systems for Maine cities and towns. He is frequently consulted on town affairs, not only in Maine but at times in neighboring states. His bulletins on Accounting, Budget Making and Sources of Municipal Revenue in Maine, have been widely used.

The problem of taxation has been one of his chief interests. Municipal debt is also a subject which is a hobby of his and he has a bulletin upon that subject ready for publication. He has also published the results of an impartial investigation of the working of the Direct Primary and a Guide for the Study of Civics, for use in the schools of Maine.

On the more practical side, Prof. Hormell has assisted in installing accounting systems and forms for reports in several cities and towns, including Augusta, Skowhegan, Brunswick and Yarmouth. Last summer he aided the State Auditor in preparing the form required by law for reports from cities and towns to the State Auditor.

Prof. Hormell has served two terms as chairman of the Republican Town Committee of Brunswick. He ran for the position of Representative to the Maine Legislature in 1916, and, although the Democratic candidate was elected, ran about ninety votes ahead of his ticket.

He is one of the Directors of the Brunswick Chamber of Commerce and president of the First Parish Men's Club. He is a member of the Executive Council of the American Political Science Association, and has served on a committee of that association, which has investigated and published its findings on County Government, and also on Conditions in Rural Life.

Likely Luggage--either cases, bags or kit bags. In black tan or elk. Decidedly serviceable and good to look at. Moderately priced.

The services of Prof. Hormell as a speaker before civic organizations, Chambers of Commerce and similar bodies are in constant demand.

Prof. and Mrs. Hormell are active in social affairs of town and college, and at the present time Mrs. Hormell is president of the Brunswick League of Women Voters.

High praise for Williams Shaving Cream is contained in this suggested slogan for the Hinge-Cap. Yet truly, the combination of faster beard-softening, elimination of razor friction through lubrication of the skin, and the extraordinary care of the skin which Williams gives, has never been equalled by any other shaving cream. And Williams is a pure product, absolutely without coloring matter! Begin on a tube--compare it in every way.

$250 in Prizes

For the best sentence of ten words or less on the value of the Williams Hinge-Cap, we offer the following prizes: 1st prize $100; 2nd prize $50; two 3rd prizes, $25 each; two 4th prizes, $10 each; six 5th prizes, $5 each. Any undergraduate or graduate student is eligible. If two or more persons submit identical slogans deemed worthy of prizes, the full amount of the prize will be awarded to each. Contest closes at midnight March 14, 1924. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Submit any number of slogans but write on one side of paper only, putting name, address, college and class at top of each sheet. Address letters to Contest Editor, The J. E. The Best Business Career

IS what every ambitious senior is thinking about at the present time. Life insurance is one of the best, one of the most desirable, and one of the most satisfactory as a permanent calling.

In assets and volume of business, life insurance is one of the three leading businesses of this country, yet the field is comparatively underdeveloped. Only 7 per cent of the economic value of human life in the United States is covered by insurance. This gives an idea of the big field still to be worked, especially business insurance for firms and corporations.

As to remuneration: Reports of college graduates who have entered business indicate that life insurance is at the very top as a source of income. Now is the time for you to consider what you are going to do after graduation. If you are ambitious and willing to work hard and are interested to know about life insurance, address

Bowdoin Club Of Bangor Gives School Debating Cup

George F. Eaton '14, president of the Bowdoin Club of Bangor, presented Bangor High with the loving cup which was the gift of the club and which will be awarded annually to the class winning the inter-class debate.

In presenting the cup to Clarence W. Proctor '98, principal of the school, Mr. Eaton spoke of the great value of debating in schools and colleges and urged keen competition among the classes for the cup.

Alumni Notes

1891—The Rev. Owen E. Hardy died in Walpole, Mass., last week after a short illness of pneumonia, resulting from what was considered to be a minor nasal operation. Mr. Hardy was the pastor of the First Congregational Church in Alstead, New Hampshire, at the time of his death, and he had formerly filled the same position in Shelburne, Mass., and Milton, New Hampshire, respectively.

Medic-1900—Dr. James W. Laughlin, Bowdoin Medical School '00, has assumed his duties as assistant surgeon at the Old Soldiers' Home at Togus. During the war he served as a 1st Lieutenant in the Medical Corps first at Camp Wadsworth then at Camp Devens. After this he went abroad and took charge of an evacuation hospital where he became a major. Since his return, he has served on the Maine Public Health Commission.

Thursday there will be a student election for assistant football manager. Those who will be voted on are C. Davis, Griffin and Harkness. At the same time there will be a chance to vote for the proposed change in track management. According to this plan there will be a manager of cross country, and a manager of relay and track.

in the first period, when Cutter scored on a rebound.

The second period was by far the most interesting of the game. Both teams were going well, and each made three goals. The fireworks started almost as soon as the period, for Cutter made his second goal of the game, after about a minute of play, on the rebound of a shot by Cronin. Shortly after Preble made a seemingly impossible shot from the side of the rink. The Colby offense then settled down to work. Vale, the diminutive Colby captain, made a pretty shot from directly in front of the Bowdoin goal. A few moments later Muir made a perfect pass to McGowan, who caught the Bowdoin defense napping, and slipped the puck past Berry for Colby's second tally. McGowan again scored on a rebound shortly after this. In the very last part of the period Cole, the freshman star, succeeded in making Bowdoin's final score of the game from a scrimmage directly in front of the Colby goal.

Although many fine shots were made the Bowdoin offense could not score in the third period. McGowan made his final goal of the game when he scored on a pass about the middle of the period. Although both teams were fighting every minute of the three overtime periods neither could score.

Cutter was easily the star of the Bowdoin offense, his fine stickwork being directly responsible for two of Bowdoin's goals. Captain Miguel and Widen played a fine game on the defense, while Berry starred at tending goal. McGowan, Vale and Millett were the stars of the Colby team. McGowan played an especially good game.

The summary:

Colby	Bowdoin
McGowan, lw	lw. Preble
Muir, rw	rw. Cronin
Millett, ld	ld. Widen
Pike, rd	rd. Miguel
Vale, capt.	c. Cutter
Fagstrom, g	g. Berry

Basketball Schedule Started Last Monday Evening

To Play Nine Games a Week Until Elimination is Finished—Three Games Tonight

The original basketball committee appointed by the Student Council was made up of three members, Gibbons '24, Cronin '25, and Bernard '25. Coach Magee appointed Stiles '24 to fill the vacancy caused by Gibbons' resignation and to act as secretary of the league. The committee met last week and drew up a schedule and rules for further consideration and at a meeting of the captains on Thursday afternoon schedule and rules were adopted.

There will be three games a night on three nights a week, Monday, Tuesday, and Friday. The committee decided that it would be better to have three games a night rather than two in order that the schedule might not be so long drawn out with a corresponding lack of interest. As it is now the games begin Monday the 18th and the final inter-league games will be played on Monday, March 10th. Some time before the Easter vacation the winners of the two leagues will clash in the Town Hall. The shield will go to the winner of this game.

A list of the men which each house wishes to play must be given to Magee before the first games. Men must have his ok before playing. The eligibility of the players rests entirely with Coach Magee and all track men who play must wear knee pads. To offset the cost of the shield to be given to the winner each group represented in the league will be required to pay two dollars. This money should be handed to Secretary Stiles.

The games are to be played as scheduled. If one team fails to appear on scheduled date and time the game will be forfeited. If both teams fail to appear the game will be cancelled and both teams credited with one game lost. The rules governing the games must be strictly adhered to in order to run the league games in an efficient and successful manner.

The games will begin promptly at 7:15 on Monday, Tuesday, and Friday evenings for the next three weeks. Here is a chance for every Bowdoin man to take an interest in basketball and to help his fraternity win. No admission will be charged at these games.

The fraternities have been divided into Leagues A and B. League A is composed of: Alpha Delta Phi, Beta Theta Pi, Chi Psi, Delta Upsilon, Kappa Sigma and Theta Delta Chi. League B consists of: Delta Kappa Epsilon, Non-Fraternity, Phi Delta Psi, Psi Upsilon, Sigma Nu and Zeta Psi.

The schedule is as follows:

Monday, February 18th
Delta Kappa Epsilon vs. Zeta Psi.
Alpha Delta Phi vs. Chi Psi.
Delta Upsilon vs. Theta Delta Chi.

Tuesday, February 19th
Non-Fraternity vs. Sigma Nu.
Phi Delta Psi vs. Psi Upsilon.
Beta Theta Pi vs. Kappa Sigma.

Friday, February 22nd

Bowdoin Freshmen Win Over Portland Track Men In Dual Meet By 64 to 31

Third Successive Bowdoin Victory—Four Meet Records Broken and One Tied—Farrington, 1927, and Etter, Portland, Double Winners

For the third time in the three years that the annual dual meets have been held the Bowdoin Freshman Track Team swamped the Portland High track men last Friday in Hyde Athletic Building, 64 to 31.

Farrington of Bowdoin and Etter of Portland were the individual stars. Farrington was high point man of the meet taking two firsts, a second, and a third for a total of fourteen points. Etter took first place in the 1000 yard run and first in the mile run.

Four meet records were broken and one was tied. In the 300 yard dash, Farrington clipped the previous record held by "Kack" Hamilton by one second flat. Etter of Portland set a new record of four minutes fifty-five and one-fifth seconds in the mile which was eight and two-fifths seconds better than the previous mark made in 1922 by Howes of Bowdoin. In the 12 pound shot put, Baker of Bowdoin broke the record, made by Charles of Bowdoin in 1922, when he put the shot forty-five feet four inches. The former record was forty-three feet two inches. Willey of Bowdoin took the pole vault at a height of ten feet three inches which broke the former record of nine feet nine inches made in 1923 by Robinson of Bowdoin. In the 45 yard high hurdles, McInnes of Bowdoin equalled the record made by Littlefield in 1923 by covering the distance in six and two-fifths seconds.

The mile run furnished the thrills which the relay race failed to provide. Etter of Portland, by making a spurt which brought every spectator to his feet, nosed out Ham, Bowdoin's crack distance man, by the narrowest of margins. So close was the finish that no one could be sure of the winner. When the gun was fired Ham had the pole and Jennison of Portland took the lead, with Coburn of Portland second. On the second lap around Ham took the lead with Sheh of Bowdoin second, Jennison of Portland third, and Etter of Portland fourth. On the next time around Etter passed Jennison and Sheh, taking second position about five yards behind Ham. Ham and Etter gradually drew away from the rest of the pack which was being led by Austin of Portland. From the ninth lap until the finish, the race became a personal struggle between Ham and Etter. On the last time around both men sprinted, with Ham one or two feet ahead until within twenty yards of the finish when Etter cut loose and with a terrific burst of speed crossed the line a fifth of a second ahead of the Bowdoin man. Austin of Portland placed third.

In the 1000 yard run, Etter, finishing with a wonderful sprint, had little difficulty in beating Boynton of Bowdoin. Whittier placed third for Bowdoin.

Bowdoin was never in danger in the relay. Kohler immediately took the lead over Currie of Portland. Cutter and Wood increased the Bowdoin lead and when Farrington, the Bowdoin anchor man, took the baton, the Freshmen were fifteen yards to the good. Farrington walked away from his Portland competitor and finished well over a quarter of a lap in advance.

Bowdoin took all the points in the hurdles, the shot, and the pole vault, and all but one in the 40 yard dash. In the trial heats in the hurdles, Portland failed to place a man. Portland gave the Freshmen little trouble except in the broad jump, where the high school boys were distinctly superior, and in the mile.

The summary follows:

40 yard dash—First heat, won by Kohler, Bowdoin; second, McCarthy, Portland; time, 5:15 s. Second heat, won by Conner, Bowdoin; second, Baker, Bowdoin; time, 5 s. Third heat, won by Farrington, Bowdoin; second, Burrows, Portland; time, 4:45 s. Fourth heat, won by Currie, Portland; second, Wood, Bowdoin; time, 5 s.

Final heat, won by Farrington, Bowdoin; second, Conner, Bowdoin; third, Currie, Portland. Time, 4:45 s.

1000 yard run—Won by Etter, Portland; second, Boynton, Bowdoin; third, Whittier, Bowdoin. Time, 2 m. 34.45 s.

300 yard run—First heat, won by Farrington, Bowdoin; second, Conner, Bowdoin; time, 36.25 s. Second heat, won by Wood, Bowdoin; second, Cutter, Bowdoin; time, 36.35 s. Third heat, won by Black, Portland; second, Kohler, Bowdoin; time, 37.35 s.

Interfraternity Winter Carnival This Week

Collegiate and Scholastic Events to be Held on the Mall Friday and Saturday

The second annual winter carnival of the Bowdoin Outing Club will take place February 29th and March 1st. The Outing Club has arranged the events of the two days with the purpose of including everyone in the activities.

This year there will be an added attraction of events for the high school boys and girls of Brunswick. Prizes and ribbons will be given for places in all events, both scholastic and collegiate.

At this annual carnival the aim is to stimulate interest in the Outing Club and in winter sports in general. It is hoped that this opportunity will be taken by all, for the carnival can be a success only if everyone cooperates.

The club invites the students and guests to join them in making this carnival a memorable one. Please send in your entries before Thursday night.

Events in order of occurrence:

Friday 2.30 P. M.

Snowshoe dash, 150 yards (trials)—One entry from each house.
Ski relay race, 880 yards (trials)—Four man teams.
Snowshoe relay, 880 yards (trials)—Four man teams.

Freshman Class Numerals Awarded After Dual Meet

Thirty-Five Members of Winning Team Receive Numerals

Nineteen twenty-seven numerals were awarded to 35 Freshmen who participated in the dual meet with Portland High School last Friday in Hyde Athletic Building.

The following men received them: Frank Farrington, Kohler, Conner, Cutter, Wood, McInnes, Brown, Hull, Baker, Fogg, Boynton, Whittier, Bargh, Hodgkins, Huntress, Donald Farrington, Kendall, Hill, Willey, Sawyer, Proctor, Murphy, Lancaster, Pillsbury, Eke, Levine, Rowe, Ballantine, Renouf, Ham, Sheh, Burgess, Kellett, Kaler, Fay.

Frank Farrington is the captain of the Freshman Team and Johnson is manager.

With a decided victory over Portland High last Friday, the Freshmen have the dual meet with Hebron Academy and the Freshman-Sophomore Meet to look forward to. The yearlings should experience but little difficulty in disposing of Hebron on March 1. They will without doubt receive a severe trouncing at the hands of the Sophomores on March 22.

Blanket Tax Standing

Fraternity averages for the men who have paid their blanket taxes have been computed and are published below in accordance with the announcement in last week's Orient:

1. Delta Kappa Epsilon	100.0
2. Alpha Delta Phi	97.5
3. Beta Theta Pi	94.4
4. Zeta Psi	89.7
5. Chi Psi	84.0
6. Psi Upsilon	82.5
7. Sigma Nu	78.8
8. Phi Delta Psi	66.6
9. Delta Upsilon	52.3
10. Theta Delta Chi	51.3
11. Kappa Sigma	47.4

A total of 325 men have paid blanket taxes so far this semester up to last Saturday noon.

Outing Team Places Second In Augusta Carnival

Bates Wins—Eastman Scores for Bowdoin—Colby and Maine Tie for Third

Last Saturday the outing team competed in the Augusta Winter Carnival, where it made its best showing of the year, getting second in the intercollegiate events with eight points. Bates was first with a total of twenty-three points, while Colby and Maine were tied for third place with seven points each. Harold Eastman, captain of the team, won the 150-yard snowshoe race, and in the 880-yard ski relay race the Bowdoin team finished second. Bates won this event, while the Maine team failed to finish. The members of the Bowdoin team were Atwood, Carlton Nelson, Small, and Gilbert Spear. This was by far the best showing that the outing team has made this year, as in all the previous carnivals that it has competed in the team has not been able to do better than third or fourth.

The summary of the intercollegiate events is as follows:

150 yard snowshoe dash: Eastman of Bowdoin first, Patten of Maine second, Gerald of Maine third.

Three mile snowshoe cross-country race: Laughton of Colby first, Patten of Maine second, Wiles of Bates third.

Five mile cross-country ski race: W. Gilpatrick, C. Gilpatrick, Fletcher, all of Bates, tied for first place.

Ski jump: Matsumaga of Bates first, Baker of Bates second, A. Jordan of Colby third.

880 yard ski relay race: Bates first, Bowdoin second, Maine failed to finish.

BOWDOIN VICTORIOUS OVER WILLIAMS IN RELAY RACE AT AMERICAN LEGION GAMES

Foster Second in Colonel Gaston "600"—Bowdoin Makes Best College Mile Relay Time

Colby Adopts Freshman One-Semester Ruling

Four Maine Colleges Will Put Rule Into Effect This Fall—Movement Rapidly Spreading

After much deliberation Colby College has passed the one semester rule barring freshmen from competing in intercollegiate athletics until they have successfully passed one semester of their college work.

Colby's action closely follows that of Bates and completes the list of the four colleges in Maine which have adopted the rule. The announcement was made by Dr. George F. Parmenter, chairman of the executive committee in charge of affairs at the college, in the absence of President Arthur J. Roberts who is on a four months' tour of Europe.

Agitation for the adoption of the one semester rule by all the colleges in New England was begun as a result of the meetings and conferences of New England College Presidents held at Springfield, Mass., at the instance of former President Meiklejohn of Amherst.

Further impetus was lent to the proposal in Maine when the presidents of the four colleges within the state met at Waterville last fall. Previous to this meeting the University of Maine had adopted the rule, and soon after Bowdoin announced its adoption of the rule. Bates and Colby have followed suit within the last month.

Beginning next fall no freshmen will participate in intercollegiate contests in Maine until the beginning of the second semester.

Second Team Defeats K. of C. Hockey Team 4-3

In a very close overtime game played on the Delta Monday evening the Bowdoin second team defeated the Brunswick K. of C. team 4 to 3. Both Griffin and Bucknam made a goal, and the other two goals of the second team were made by a member of the K. of C. team.

The summary:

Bowdoin 2nd Brunswick K. of C.
Griffin, c. Vermette
Fisher, lw. Paiment
Bucknam, rw. W. Avery
Moore, ld. J. Turcotte
Forsythe, rd. V. Charron
Lord, g. Theberge

Substitutions: White for Bucknam, Caughey for Moore, Bucknam for White, Moore for Caughey.

Goals, Paiment 2, Vermette, Bucknam, Griffin.

Referee: Plaisted.

Time: 3 ten minute periods; one five minute overtime period.

Commencement Play Cast Announced After Trials

The cast for the commencement play was chosen last week. The play to be given is Macbeth and the coach is Mrs. Arthur Brown. The first reading was held at her home last Monday evening, and a rehearsal of the first act will be made next Monday night.

The judges selected the following men for the cast:

Duncan	Deering	25
Macbeth	Hepworth	25
Donalbain	Carter	25
Macbeth	Bigelow	26
Macduff	Kowe	27
Angus	Davis	26
Lennox	Davis	26
Ross	Heisey	26
Fleance	Simons	24
Sward	Simons	24
Seyton	Cloutier	27
Scotch Doctor	MacKinnon	25
Sergeant	Littlefield	26
Porter	Daggett	26
Lady Macbeth	Leighton	26
Gentlewoman	Pike	25
Witches	McIntire	25
and Montgomery		27
Murderers	Shea	25
	Wignot	26

Bowdoin increased the prestige which she enjoys around Boston when Jack Magee's crack relay team defeated the Williams' aggregation and when Bob Foster, New England half-mile champion, placed second in the Colonel Gaston "600" at the American Legion games held in the East Armory, Boston, on Washington's Birthday.

In the relay, Williams drew the pole. Tarbell, lead-off man for Bowdoin, took the lead in the middle of the first lap only to lose it to Dodge in the middle of the second. When the baton changed hands, Littlefield, running second for Bowdoin, was five yards behind. Not only did Littlefield wipe out the Williams' lead, but he handed Foster ten yards besides. Bob Foster, New England champ in the half-mile, added five more yards to Bowdoin's lead when he walked away from Perkins, also a crack half-miler.

"Kack" Hamilton, anchor man for Bowdoin, with fifteen yards to the goal, looped around for two laps with keep gaming steadily. With a half a lap to go, Hamilton opened up and tore for the line, and finished two yards ahead of his Williams opponent.

In the 600 yard run for the Colonel Gaston cup, Bob Foster drew seventh position in a field of seven entries. Mulvihill of Holy Cross had the pole. On the first corner Keiley of Boston College fell down with two men over him. Mulvihill, having the pole, wasn't held up and scooted ahead of the pile-up. Foster hurried over the heap and started after Mulvihill. During the race Archibald of Bates passed Foster only to be overtaken by the Bowdoin champ who was out to overtake Mulvihill. At the finish Mulvihill was first, with Foster four yards behind him and a good yard ahead of Archibald.

Bates, the only other Maine college which was entered in the meet, lost in its two mile relay race with Boston College by a margin of a hundred yards.

Bowdoin's time in the relay was somewhat slower than it might have been had the White been pressed. As it was the time was the fastest made in the college mile relay races.

Bowdoin Fencing Team Loses To M. I. T. 8 to 1

The Bowdoin fencing team lost to the M.I.T. team last Saturday 8 to 1, in a match held at Cambridge. Perkins was the only scorer for the Bowdoin team. The summary:

Foils
Ferre, M.I.T., beat Clow, Bowdoin, 5 to 2.
Levis, M.I.T., beat Davis, Bowdoin, 5 to 2.
Perkins, Bowdoin, beat Hawthorne, M.I.T., 5 to 4.
Levis, M.I.T., beat Clow, Bowdoin, 5 to 3.
Seabury, M.I.T., beat Davis, Bowdoin, 5 to 4.
Ferre, M.I.T., beat Perkins, Bowdoin, 5 to 2.

An International Challenge.

If there is any one factor that works to more effect than all others for the removal of prejudice and the arousing of a spirit of understanding among the nations, it is the college. Born with the purpose of freeing men's minds from the dark shadows of unreasoning prejudice, it has come to be one of the greatest means in the life of the world to bring about toleration of the real sort. To this end, men graduating from colleges and universities in this country have long been urged by all sorts of inducements to continue their study abroad, and foreign students have been welcomed in large numbers to our own higher institutions. There is little doubt that these efforts have had much to do in bringing about a spirit of international responsibility and friendly cooperation. The sad part is that only a few of us ever have the opportunity, as students, to know at first hand what is going on in the universities of our sister countries across the sea.

For that reason it becomes increasingly difficult for us, infected with the bacteria of conflicting propaganda spread by the press, to see with a clear eye just what conditions are prevalent abroad. It would be necessary to enter into a long and involved discussion of politics, economics, and sociology to explain with any lucidity the causes of our vast misinformation. An example from an article on the peasantry of Russia, published in a recent issue of a widely read magazine, will give an idea of what may happen in the ranks even of our expert reformers and informers in the field. Three experts, a relief officer, a chemist, and a bureaucrat hastened to the relief of a famine stricken province in the south of Russia. The relief officer concentrated flour ten miles off, but for lack of transport could not move it; the chemist showed how edible bread could be made from the bark of trees, forgetting that the needy area was a treeless steppe; the bureaucrat, seeing that the famine could not be relieved, compiled tables to prove that there was no famine at all. You can imagine what sort of information would filter through to us on that situation.

In spite of the colossal misinformation on almost all subjects, we have, however, certain thoroughly reliable sources. From these sources we learn that the young men, our contemporaries and colleagues in education, who are attending the universities of the afflicted nations of central and north-central Europe are actually in dire distress. A thumb-nail sketch of that distress was presented to readers of the Orient in an article prepared by Horace Hildreth and published in these columns two weeks ago. We do not doubt the extent of the need of our fellows in Europe, but do we appreciate it? It is difficult to realize that the price we unthinkingly pay for a trip to Portland, for a few hours of pleasure at a college dance, for a week end in Boston, for our annual movie bill, or for our supply of smoking materials for a few weeks, would support not one, but many European students for a whole year. It is difficult to realize that five American dollars, not much to us, will pay the tuition of two destitute European students for a year. We often feel hurt because we have not the money to spend on fads, on self-gratification in senseless frivolities, forgetting that we have brothers in Europe who are living on one poor meal a day, and suffering their poverty gladly if only they can get an education.

We talk a great deal about the responsibility of the college man to take the lead in the affairs of the world when he has left the undergraduate life. Is it less true that Europe needs her undergraduates of today for the leaders of tomorrow? Can we not forget the trivialities of the moment to show to the ambitious students of Europe that America is great in heart as well as in purse? It is our duty, may rather our privilege, to stand by our fellows in Europe in the time of their distress. We have heard the challenge, we cannot plead ignorance of the conditions, we must realize that upon us lies the responsibility, in no small measure, for the future peace and welfare of the world, as represented by the present welfare of the struggling students of Europe.

Communication.

The following communication has been received in regard to the fund for the completion of the Louvain University Library, destroyed in the Great War. Here will be said of this worthy cause in the next issue of the Orient. (Editor's note.)

Editor, Bowdoin Orient:

I note in the press that an intensive movement is being started by some of our Universities and Colleges to raise the necessary money to complete the Louvain University Library, destroyed by the Germans. American Educational Institutions were pledged to restore this building as a tribute to a great seat of learning.

The traditions of Bowdoin are such that we must not fail to make a contribution in the name of the College.

Cannot the Orient issue an appeal? Every alumnus and undergraduate should take pleasure in giving some sum, however small, to this noble cause.

EDGAR O. ACHORN.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

Our war memorial when erected should be something of beautiful design which will inspire to higher ideals those who look upon it. It should be entirely removed from the utilitarian. A structure designed to house utilitarian activities such as a union, and merely called a war memorial, would be an unfortunate selection.

No subject now before Bowdoin men for discussion needs more careful consideration than this one. "When there is no vision the people perish" and we must design our war memorial with vision and not with an eye to immediate usefulness.

Yours very truly,
JOHN W. FROST '04.

Communication

To the Editor of the Orient:

At the risk of starting endless arguments but feeling that it is about time all of us faced the financial facts in Athletics at Bowdoin as they are I wish to point out what I consider the fallacy prevalent regarding the Blanket Tax and what it should do. In 1900 support of Athletics was by student subscription about as follows: For Football $5; for Baseball $5; for Track $3; for Tennis, etc., $2; a total of $15. In addition we paid full admission to all contests in Brunswick, say eight contests at 50 cents or $4, a total of $19. This was our average athletic Blanket Tax and I am assured by Pres. Sills, Dr. Kendall '98, Robert K. Eaton '07, and others, that this amount is a fair average at that time. We had fewer students and of course less expenditure in every way. Last year the Athletic Blanket Tax was $12. We gave at least $5.00 worth of admissions to each taxpayer. This year it has been raised to $16 and we are giving at least $6 worth of free admissions to Brunswick contests. It must be seen that with the dollar worth only 50¢ of what it was in 1900 with a much smaller per capita Athletic Blanket Tax it is not a revenue producer commensurate with the demands made upon it because we have no other revenue except the gate receipts from the public and our guarantees from other colleges.

In 1900 then the Athletic Blanket Tax was the student contribution, the entire amount of which went for the support of the selected few who comprised the Athletic Teams and the amount was $19.00. Today the taxpayer feels that he is entitled to something for his tax (namely full admissions to all contests and it was only commencing last year that he did not pay part admission and that partial admission helped out the managers tremendously, due to the fact that the students were the audience. For instance in the Indoor Meets with free student admission Manager Johnson's receipts were nearly $300 less than those of Manager McGorrell two years before when admission or part admission was paid by all. Blanket Tax admission last year cost the Managers at least $1,500 in loss of revenue. The $12 amount was not a revenue producer. Even $16 is not enough without rigid economy if admission is granted. The Athletic Blanket Tax must be available in its entirety for the support of the teams. If it were a fact that only a "selected few" were on the squads then the present amount might be sufficient and admission granted to the taxpayer, but when you have a large group of toward 200 students engaged in competitive athletics, with only one sport nearly self-supporting, it is impossible to furnish coaching, equipment, trips to the large number of men we do with the present theory of the Blanket Tax. The taxpayer last year who paid the $12 felt that he should have free admissions to all Brunswick contests and he did at the cost as stated above to the managers of at least $1,500.

Now what did the men numbering 200 who were on the squads expect to get and did get, some of course much more than others. And here in all sports I credit as income earned simply the gate and the guarantees. I do not consider as income any contributions by alumni, or by the students through the Blanket Tax or Insurance. We did receive insurance in amount of $1,050, $700 in Track and $350 in Baseball which amounts were available and was good luck and showed foresight on the part of the managers, but in no sense in estimating budgets could it be considered income. The total amount raised last year for Athletics through the Blanket Tax was $4,950. Considering only the actual income produced by each sport by gate and guarantees it was necessary to obtain from the student body through the Blanket Tax, or from Alumni or from Insurance, or in other ways the following sums:

For Football	$ 300
Track (exclusive of salary)	4700

Your Athletic Council then, representative of students, alumni and faculty, urged on by the insistent demands not only of the large part of the student body engaged in Athletics, a large dominant group, by interested Alumni by the Press, by the desire to win, allowed the managers to spend more money than was available by any chance, expenditure without income and the amount above the A.S. B.C. appropriation was $5,450, the difference between $4,950 and $10,400. This apparent deficit was handled as follows:

Insurance	$1050
Alumni	2700
Note at Bank	2000

$5750

The discrepancy of $300 was used in the Council in payment of old bills and interest on notes outstanding. It was evident to some at least that the Athletic Machine had run away and must at some cost be checked unless from students, alumni and friends an unlimited reservoir of funds could be provided. Consequently you have seen the establishment of a Central Office, with a single check book for all sports, all bills paid by the Treasurer of the Council, the expenditure having been previously authorized by the Office as being within the limits of budgets already drawn up. Also all equipment issued from this office on signature. The need for this will be seen when I state that the Football Department after buying $1,200 worth of football equipment this fall has less on hand than in the summer, some of course was consumed by the usual wear and tear but no one believes for a minute that the normal consumption was anything like that amount. Outing Club Completes Carnival Competitions

Organization Has Great Possibilities and Deserves More Support—Many Plans for Expansion During Next Year

This winter the Outing Team has competed in three winter carnivals with varying degrees of success. At the University of Maine Carnival the White snowbirds were able to come away with third place only. At the Auburn Carnival they met with still more meager success, taking last place with a total of only three points. A grand total of eight points gave them a very poor second place at the Augusta Carnival last Saturday. To say that the Bowdoin ski and snowshoe athletes are inferior to the members of the other Maine college teams is to say too much, however, for in competition with Maine and Colby the Bowdoin team did very well. When Bates entered the arena the men from the other colleges were forced to battle among themselves for the honor of winning a poor second place. It is this continued excellence of the Lewiston aggregation which should spur the other college teams to still greater effort next winter, thus assuring the lovers of winter sports in Maine of more closely contested meets in the future.

With all due regard to Bates there is no reason why the skiers and snowshoers from Maine, Colby, and Bowdoin should not be able to win first places in the carnivals at which there is intercollegiate competition. The wonderful showing which Bates has made this winter in skiing and snowshoeing goes to show what conscientious preparation will do for a winter sports team. Matsunaga, a Japanese student at Bates, had never seen a pair of skis before last winter; yet because of his intensive training and his steady application to the task of mastering the art of ski-jumping, he was able to win second place at the Auburn Carnival and first place at Augusta. In a little more than one year Matsunaga has developed into one of the most perfect ski-jumpers in the state. To the Bates ski coach goes much credit for the great strides which this man from the Orient has taken in the field of jumping. But all the praise should not go to one man. The hard work which this young man has done is responsible to a great extent for his almost unprecedented success. In the other branches of winter sports Bates has also excelled. Her cross-country ski-runners have won every place in every carnival this winter. Her relay men have walked away with every race on skis since the first intercollegiate competition three weeks ago. The gruelling cross-country snowshoe races have been run with Bates men well represented among the winners. In the snowshoe dashes alone the wearers of the gaiter have failed to show their superiority.

While this article is not written with the intention of lauding the Bates winter sports men, it will, I hope, tend to show that hard work in the preparation for competition in ski and snowshoe events has made the athletes of one college infinitely superior to those of the remaining colleges in the state. This winter Bates has taught the rest of us a lesson which none of us will soon forget. The example which the Lewiston colleges has set must be followed by the other colleges if the annual competition among them is to remain even interesting.

In order to show where it is that Bowdoin has failed it is necessary to bring to the attention of every Bowdoin man the plan, and its execution, by which Bates has attained her success. In the first place, there is a powerful feeling of sympathy and cooperation prevalent on the Bates campus with regard to the Outing Club and its team. Approximately 50 per cent of the student body at Bates belongs to the Outing Club. Although all of the members of that organization are not particularly interested in competing in winter sports, nevertheless, the financial assistance which their membership in the club brings to it is not inconsiderable. The membership fee is larger than the fee imposed by the Bowdoin Outing Club, yet the Bates club has no difficulty in securing fifteen or twenty times as many members as the Bowdoin club. It is this spirit of cooperation alone which can produce the enthusiasm among the members of the team which is absolutely necessary for a winning group of athletes.

In marked contrast to the attitude of the Bates undergraduate body is the attitude of the Bowdoin students. An apparently uncontrollable desire to "razz" the men who are trying out for place on the Outing Team runs riot from one end of the campus to the other. Possibly the newness of the team is the cause of this derisive attitude. It is most certainly apparent that the scoffers do not realize that the training for the winter sports team is equally as intensive and fully as tiring and disheartening as is the training for most of the other athletic teams. The attitude of a large number of students has made it doubly difficult for the aspirants for berths on the team in question to continue their attempts. The undergraduate body as a whole perhaps is not inclined as a general rule to ridicule the efforts of men out for minor sports. Yet, the fact remains that the student body does not and has not cooperated with the Outing Club in its efforts to produce a decent winter sports team.

The lack of a ski-jump is yet another handicap under which the club has been laboring. The Bowdoin ski-jumpers have participated in contests without any preparation whatsoever. In two years of competition the Bowdoin men have won only one place in ski-jumping—and that was a third place at the Auburn Carnival of last year. Ski-jumping itself is one of the most spectacular, yet one of the most difficult, feats connected with carnival events. In spite of the serious drawback suffered by the Bowdoin jumpers, they have been able to make as many jumps as those made by the men from the other colleges. The fact that they have had no practice in jumping prior to the reason for their failure to win any points, give them a jump and Bowdoin men will soon be rated among the best jumpers in the state. There is no reason why such a condition should not exist. If every man would subscribe the very nominal membership fee of the Outing Club, it would be possible to build an ideal ski-jump. With such a jump at their disposal, the Bowdoin men would be in a position to acquire the form in jumping which they lack at the present time.

Before any great steps can be taken toward developing a winning team the undergraduate body must show an interest in the club. This interest must not be confined to a few tame excursions into the country surrounding Brunswick, in the company of some beautiful young woman; but it must express itself in the willingness of the students to try out for the team. A handful of enthusiasts can do something toward putting Bowdoin in the front rank of winter sport contestants, but with the cooperation of everybody we can prove to the other colleges that Bowdoin's preponderance in athletics is not confined to one or two branches of sport.

So then, all together, support that team—and next year will show a radical change in the position which the Bowdoin Outing Team has held for the last two years.

Communication

must be known in College and it looks to me very nearly like downright dishonesty. From now on through the Office this loss should be eliminated with the co-operation of all.

The program for this year was as follows:

1. A careful budget all sports based on income.
2. Increase of about $2,000 from Blanket Tax.
3. Alumni assistance $2,300, a part of this if possible to be used to reduce the notes outstanding. $400 already has been so used. About $400 has been used to meet old bills constantly appearing.

If this program is carried out we will end the year with no deficit provided there is a full payment by all students of the Blanket Tax and only by that payment can we do so. The question as I see it is up to the students. They control the purse strings, because constant yearly solicitation of the Alumni for Athletics is not possible, causes some dissatisfaction and embarrassment the College in the drives it has made and will make for funds, for the Endowment Fund, for a Union, Rostrom, Swimming Pool and numberless other things which undoubtedly will come up in the near future.

It was Mr. Gutman, I believe, in one of his recent incisive outbursts who suggested that "expenditure be made to keep within the means of the Treasury." I am told, and I can readily believe, that he represents only a small group at the College, because I have yet to find a member of any athletic department who will admit that he should be curtailed in any way in coaching, equipment, trips, competition and in the innumerable expenses of the sports, chair cars, jock straps, etc., the question of income has no part in the picture, some of these men themselves not paying the Blanket Tax. The challenge is then just as much to the men in Athletics to pay their Blanket Tax and to aid by helping reasonable economy as it is to the other group of men who obtain none of the benefits directly but should pay in order to make Bowdoin Athletics possible.

We have seen the tuition doubled in a few years. House parties at the fraternity houses last year undoubtedly cost twice the amount of the Athletic Appropriation of $4,550 and it remains to be seen if enough money can be paid through the Blanket Tax this year so that "red-blooded Athletics" at Bowdoin can be successfully carried on. I believe we shall be successful.

Professional jugglers could handle the old-style shaving cream caps and never once drop one down the drain or under the bath tub. But for most of us, this new Williams Hinge-Cap puts an end to an ancient nuisance.

Williams Shaving Cream is just as much pleasanter to use as is the Hinge-Cap. It softens the beard with uncanny speed. The thicker lather holds the moisture in against the skin where it is needed. This lather lubricates the skin, too, so that painful razor friction is eliminated. And when your shave is done, that famous ingredient in Williams which helps the skin, leaves your face cool, soothed and refreshed. No coloring matter is used in Williams—it is a pure, natural-white shaving cream.

Faculty Notes

Alumni Secretary Austin B. McCormick has returned from a three weeks' leave of absence in Colorado where, with Thomas Mott Osborne and Paul W. Garrett of New York he made a study of the following institutions, the state prison, the state reformatory for men, the industrial school for boys, and the industrial schools for girls. This study was made at the request of Governor William E. Swett. Thomas Mott Osborne is famous all over the country as a prison reformer; Paul W. Garrett is secretary of the National Society of Penal Information; and Mr. McCormick is a member of the general committee of that organization. The report on the state prison, the most important of the reports, will not be published for some time, as it is a confidential report to the governor.

While in Denver Mr. McCormick met a small group of Colorado alumni at a luncheon.

The regular meeting of the Brunswick League of Women Voters was held in the parlors of Hotel Eagle, Friday afternoon, February 15. The speaker of the afternoon was Professor Orren C. Hornell, who spoke on the subject of "Town Affairs."

Samuel B. Furbish, treasurer of Bowdoin College, attended the fifth meeting of the Association of Business Officers of New England Educational Institutions, which was held, Saturday, at Tufts college.

The annual election of officers took place towards the close of the afternoon session, Samuel B. Furbish being unanimously elected president for the ensuing year. He succeeds E. D. Edgerton, the treasurer of Dartmouth College. Thirty-six colleges and universities of New England are represented in this association, with the Carnegie Foundation, Delaware College, Princeton University and University of Pennsylvania cooperating.

Baseball Prospects For Spring Problematical

Indoor Training Started—Large Number of Men Report—Schedule Announced

Facing a reorganization of the whole baseball team, Coach Ben Houser has a hard task cut out for him. The problem is to build up a team from a few seasoned veterans, some men who showed up well last spring but just failed to make the team, and several very promising freshmen.

The battery men have had two weeks of practice. All the candidates have been working hard, and Coach Houser is very much pleased with the showing that they have made. Although several of them may not make an especially good showing this spring, they can be counted upon to come through next year, after they have had some needed experience. Both the pitchers and catchers are now in first class physical condition, much of the time of the last two weeks having been devoted to conditioning.

Among the veteran pitchers are Captain Rupert Johnson, George Robinson, Horace Hildreth, Laurence Southwick, John Stalford, Wayne Sibley and Marshall Gay. Although most of these men are not letter men, practically all of them have been out for baseball before. There are also several promising pitchers in the freshman class. Among them are Leon Rideout, Rodney Bartlett, Matthew Willey, Lawrence Ranney, and John Hopkins. Rideout, who is a graduate of Cony High of Augusta, is an especially promising man, having had considerable experience, and being possessed of much natural ability. Stalford and Sibley have been somewhat handicapped, Stalford having been in the infirmary, and Sibley being troubled with a sore arm. All of the pitchers who were out last year are considerably better now than they were last spring. Several of them played summer baseball, which gave them extremely valuable experience and training. At present it looks as if Coach Houser would face a difficult problem when it comes to picking the hurlers who will make the trips, as they are all about equally matched. Southwick is in mid-season form already, for with the track and gymnasium work that he did during the winter, he was in need of very little conditioning work. Coach Houser has found it necessary to let up on his work.

There is almost an overabundance of catchers. Mal Morrell, who was regular catcher last spring, is out again this year. Leo Blake is also a veteran catcher. In addition to these men there are several other promising men in the freshman class, among who are Gilbert Vaux, Clifford Gray, and Walter Morrell. Vaux is an experienced man, having caught for the New York Athletic Club, while both Morrell and Gray have had considerable high school experience. Charles DeBlois, a sophomore transfer from Colgate, is another man who is showing up very well, although he will not be able to play this year. All of these men are very good catchers, any one of them being able to make the average college team. Coach Houser may be forced to work some of them in the infield, as practically every one of them is a very good hitter. As with the pitchers, it will be a hard job to pick those men who will make the trips and in doing so everything such as hitting ability and experience will have to be taken into consideration.

The infielders reported for practice Monday. The infield will be a serious problem this spring. Joe Smith and George Davis of last year's team have graduated. Jake Aldred will be unable to play because of his studies. Dave McLaughlin, who played second last spring is at present on probation, although he has a chance of working it off by the time the season opens. The situation is made some brighter by the fact that Fat Hill, who played first two years ago, is again back at college, and will probably be out for the team. There are several promising candidates from the freshman class, and there are also some promising men who were out for the team last year and are again out this year.

The outfielders will not report for practice until the first of March. The question of the outfield seems to be the least of Coach Houser's worries, as there are several very good veterans of last year's team who are still in college and who will be candidates for the team.

Manager Burnard has announced the baseball schedule for 1924. It includes the regular state series games, the New England trip, and the Southern trip.

The season opens with the Navy at Annapolis on March 29th. The New England trip begins with Wesleyan at Middletown on May 6. Games with Harvard, Massachusetts Aggies, Brown, and Tufts will follow in succession.

On May 23 which is Ivy Day, Bowdoin will play Bates here and on the following day will meet Tufts here.

The complete schedule is as follows: March 29—Navy at Annapolis.

March 31—Georgetown at Washington.

April 1—Columbia at New York.

April 2—Princeton at Princeton.

April 3—New York Athletic Club at Traveller's Island.

Major George H. Putnam Lectures On Relations Of England And America

Pleads for World Court and League of Nations—Reviews Past Associations and Need for More Cooperation

"Let us have peace" was the subject upon which Major George H. Putnam spoke last Sunday evening in Memorial Hall. These were the words of his old commander, General Grant. He related his opinion that the next war would destroy civilization due to the many new barbaric munitions that were discovered during the last stages of the World War and those since that time. There has been only one plan presented to prevent such destruction, and that is to have all nations come together into one family regardless of the name that it shall bear. The English speaking people are the logical ones to advance such a system. It is the duty of the most representative government to promote such a system. But where does the United States stand in this matter? Unfortunately, it is the only large country in the world which has not entered this family. Prejudices have played an important part in our isolation.

King Albert of Belgium in creating the World Exposition, brought about a closer relation between countries, but there is still greater work to be done. We should get out of the habit of "brick throwing" towards the foreign nations. The British have been considered our enemies in the past due to the stress by faculty text books and the mistakes of a few English leaders. Of late this tendency has been cast aside. The intermingling of the British and American soldiers, fighting side by side, has aided in bettering our relations.

At the time of the Revolutionary War, King George the Third, was really Prussian in blood. Major Putnam pointed out the fact that we were not fighting the English people, but a selfish government led by a monarch and politicians. Even Burke, one of the foremost statesmen of that time, pleaded for us. Such great leaders as Colonel Barre and John Wilkes refused to fight against us, giving up their careers because they felt that the cause was unjust. Parliament did not represent the people because many of the nobility then held office. Only sixty per cent of the people of England had free utterance, and this gave a much different aspect upon the conditions.

In the War of 1812 we were hasty in entering on the side of France because the seizing of our ships was only the result of the stupid actions of a few foolish English statesmen. But on the contrary, where the reasons were justifiable as in the last war, he would have joined the French army against Prussianism if he were younger. In fact, Major Putnam was offered a commission of Adjutant-General in Roosevelt's division in 1918. This is very remarkable because of Major Putnam's some 82 years.

England's attitude toward the Confederacy was also due to the mistakes of a few men. They had sent munitions and food supplies by the appeals that the Southern leaders made. This breach of law was eventually smoothed over at the Genoa Conference when England agreed to pay an indemnity of fifteen million dollars. Gladstone later admitted his mistake in a speech before Parliament. These were personal misdeeds, not national ones. Woodrow Wilson had great ideals but his methods were likewise faulty. Bryce made a wonderful survey of the English speaking people's conception of government on a Fourth of July celebration held in England—at which many Americans were present. Lord Cecil then extended King George's congratulations for the success of the American Revolution. Then Major Putnam addressed the gathering taking as his text the need of interdependence upon which the English Speaking Union was founded. In connection with our Decoration day services for our fallen soldiers, he was greatly impressed by the sympathy that the English extended as they gathered to pay tribute to our men buried in the Winchester cemetery. Major Putnam then told an interesting story about a review of some of our soldiers at the close of the war. The bandmaster wishing to please the king asked the representatives of the Americans from what state the first regiment came. As it happened, it

Bowdoin Night At The Pastime Tomorrow

Tomorrow evening will be Bowdoin night at the Pastime. The theatre will be open only to Bowdoin men, so it is apparent that it will be a real Bowdoin night for Bowdoin men. It will be held under the auspices of the Student Council; if it is successful the Council plans to have more of them, but the students of the college must turn out as a body to show that they want more of them—in other words, the students will have to support it.

The program will be a humdinger. You can't possibly afford to miss it. There will be a headliner packed full of thrills and laughs; and also one of the snappiest comedies ever seen on a Brunswick screen. But hush! this is not all, there will be vaudeville. To begin with, the renowned Harry Keaney and his Merry Minstrels will put on a snappy act. You all know that Harry tickles a mean uke—enough said. This alone will be worth the price of admission, but there will also be several other entertaining acts put on by headliners drawn from the thespian talent of the college. So remember all ye sons of Joe Bowdoin, gather at the Pastime tomorrow evening and park your feet on each other's backs. One show only at seven.

Twenty Schools To Compete In Interscholastic Meet

Medford, Portland, and Hebron to Send Strong Teams

The annual Bowdoin Indoor Interscholastic Track Meet will be held Saturday of this week in the Hyde Athletic Building. Sixteen schools will be represented, they are Portland High school, Morse High school of Bath, Gardiner High school, Goulds Academy, Kents Hill, Lewiston High school, Lawrence High school of Lawrence, Mass., Skowhegan High school, Abbott School of Farmington, South Portland High school, Hebron Academy, Coburn Classical Institute of Waterville, Medford High school of Medford, Mass., Brunswick High school, Thornton Academy of Saco, and Lynn Classical High school of Lynn, Mass. Medford and Lynn Classical are new comers to this meet, while it will be Lawrence High school's second year here.

Medford, from previous performances this winter, would seem to be about the best team entered, for it has won the Huntington Interscholastics. Last Saturday at the B.A.A. Interscholastics held in Boston Medford trailed Andover and Exeter for third place. Hank Moore won the forty yard dash, Hornell tied for second in the three hundred, Moody tied for second in the high jump, Parslev did very well in the high hurdles, the relay team made the third best time.

Lynn Classical would not appear to have such a formidable team, as in the same meet the best that it could do was to get one and three-quarters points.

Hebron Academy and Portland High will have strong teams entered, although from the showing these teams made again the Bowdoin freshmen in their dual meets Hebron seems to have somewhat the better balanced team. There should be a hard fight for second place between Portland and Hebron and Lynn Classical, unless some unheralded team comes through unusually well. Gardiner High, with nearly twenty men entered, is likely to put up a good fight for a share of the points. Some of the other teams, such as Coburn Classical Institute and Abbott School are quite likely to have individual stars who will upset the dope in some of the events. But from every viewpoint the meet promises to be one of the best ever held.

Annual Interfraternity Meet Friday Evening

The sixth annual Interfraternity Track Meet will be held Friday evening in the Hyde Athletic building. Those who have seen previous Bowdoin interfraternity track meets are loud in their praise of them, saying that the keen competition and fine management of the meet make it one of the best indoor meets in New England to watch. This year's meet promises to equal all the previous ones.

The captains of teams are Foster, Beta Theta Pi; Small, Alpha Delta Phi; Townsend, Delta Kappa Epsilon; Hanlon, Delta Upsilon; Lavigne, Psi Upsilon; Charles, Chi Psi; H. Hildreth, Zeta Psi; Hamilton, Theta Delta Chi; Lovell, Sigma Nu; Fanning, Kappa Sigma; Deering, Phi Delta Psi. All men must run in the forty yard dash, and two men of each relay team must compete in either the 440, 880, or mile.

Bowdoin Ties For Second In State Hockey Series

The Bowdoin-Bates hockey game, which was to have been held at Brunswick last week, has been cancelled and the final standing of the State series is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Tied	P. C.
Bates	5	0	0	1.000
Bowdoin	1	2	2	.333
Maine	2	4	0	.333
Colby	1	3	2	.250

American Legion Games In Portland Next Week

Coach Magee in Charge of Events—Remarkable Array of Nationally Known Athletes Entered—Special Train Rates

The coming American Legion games, to be held at Portland next Tuesday evening, promise to be the best ever held in Maine. Coach John J. Magee is managing the games, and this fact explains to no little degree the reason why some of the best athletes in the East will compete.

Maine, Colby, and Bates are sending full quotas of athletes to the games, and Bowdoin expects to do the same. One of the features of the meet will be the two mile varsity relay race between Maine and Bowdoin. This race alone should be worth the price of admission. The last time Bowdoin and Maine ran was in the B.A.A. games last winter, and the students of both colleges are anxious to see their teams in competition.

With Joie Ray entered in the mile, that race should be a top notcher. There are many who would go to the games for no other reason than to see Ray run. For this event Jack has also secured other millers who will be able to force Ray to the limit, including Lloyd Hahn of the B.A.A. whose previous performances this year mark him a threat to Ray himself.

The 600 will be one of the best races, as far as entries are concerned, to be held in the East, and should be one of the best in the country.

Bowdoin men will be especially interested in the shot put, as Fred Toetell is entered in that event. Jackson of the University of Maine will give him plenty of competition.

With Captain Bishop of Bowdoin and Captain Libby of Dartmouth entered in the pole vault, there should be some dizzy heights reached in that event.

In addition to the two mile relay race, Bob Foster, Mal Hardy, John Tarbell, Frank Farrington, and other varsity track men will be entered in the meet. Among other Maine collegiate athletes who will compete are Mitletsdorf of Colby, Archibald of Bates, Paine of Colby.

The Maine Central Railroad has offered to give half fare from all points from which over one hundred will agree to go, and so it will probably be possible to go to the meet for $1.00 round trip.

Musical Clubs Give Concert In Bangor

Trip to Washington and Philadelphia Last of March

With an audience of over eight hundred people the Bowdoin Musical Clubs presented their annual concert in Bangor last Friday evening.

The concert was given in the City Hall and was under the auspices of the Bowdoin Club of Bangor. Dancing to the strains of a Bowdoin orchestra followed the concert.

On March 31 the Clubs will start on their annual New York trip. The concert in New York City has been cancelled, but the Clubs will appear as scheduled in Philadelphia, Washington, New London, and one other place which has not yet been announced. Although there will be no concert in New York the Clubs will be in the city one day.

If tentative plans are carried out the Clubs will broadcast a short concert in the afternoon of the day of their appearance in Philadelphia. The alumni in the Quaker City have made arrangements with Station WEF, the Strawbridge and Clothier broadcasting station, for a program of four or five numbers.

The regular concert will be given in the evening under the auspices of the Alumni Association of Philadelphia.

FRESHMEN WIN OVER HEBRON ACADEMY IN DUAL MEET 65-30

Farrington of Bowdoin High Point Man—Rowe of Hebron Only Double Winner—Six Records Broken and Two Tied

Bishop Places Fourth At I.C.A.A.A. Indoor Meet

University of Pennsylvania Wins for Second Consecutive Year

Francis P. Bishop, Maine Intercollegiate champion pole vaulter and captain of the Bowdoin track team, placed fourth in the pole vault at the third annual I.C.A.A.A. meet at the 22nd Armory in New York, last Saturday.

The intercollegiate indoor pole vault record was equalled by three men who tied for first place. They were: Benjamin M. Owen of Pennsylvania, S. Scholpp of Yale, and Kenneth Libbey of Dartmouth. The fourth place was a tie between Francis P. Bishop of Bowdoin, Nelson B. Sherrill of Pennsylvania, and Marfus O. Skiles of Dartmouth. The height, which ties the intercollegiate indoor record, was 12 feet 6 inches.

Captain Bishop was the only Bowdoin man entered in the meet. The University of Pennsylvania was the winner for the second consecutive year. There were twenty-three colleges entered.

The only Maine man besides Captain Bishop who was entered in the meet was Roland W. Payne of Colby who placed fifth in the two mile run.

Theta Delta Chi Easily Wins Second Annual Interfraternity Carnival

Won Every Event Except Cross Country Ski Race—High School and Grammar School Contests New Feature of Meet

Scoring almost as many points as all the other teams, the Theta Delta Chi team won the second annual Bowdoin Outing Club winter Carnival, held Saturday. The winning team was first in every event, except the four mile ski race. Eastman, of the Theta Delta Chi team, was easily the star of the carnival winning three events, and running on the winning snowshoe relay team.

Second place was a tie between Psi Upsilon and Delta Upsilon, each team scoring seven points. Delta Kappa Epsilon was fourth with six points. Kappa Sigma was fifth with five points; Sigma Nu and Zeta Psi were sixth and seventh, with four and three points respectively.

The results of the events were as follows:

One hundred and fifty yard snowshoe race—Won by Eastman, Theta Delta Chi; Lavigne, Psi Upsilon, second; Elliott, Delta Kappa Epsilon, third. Time, 23-2-5 seconds.

Two hundred yard ski dash—Won by Atwood, Theta Delta Chi; Mitchell, Delta Upsilon, second; Morrell, Delta Kappa Epsilon, third. Time, 41-4-5 secs.

Quarter mile snowshoe race—Won by Eastman, Theta Delta Chi; Lavigne, Psi Upsilon, second; Lovell, Sigma Nu, third.

Two mile cross-country snowshoe race—Won by Eastman, Theta Delta Chi; Page, Sigma Nu, second; Lavigne, Psi Upsilon, third. Time, 13 minutes 43-4-5 secs.

Four mile cross-country ski race—Won by Andrews, Kappa Sigma; Fay, Delta Kappa Epsilon, second; Oliver, Theta Delta Chi, third. Time, 21 m. 30 s.

Eight hundred yard snowshoe relay race—Won by Theta Delta Chi (Snea, Raymond, Irack, Eastman); Delta Upsilon (Smith, Ingraham, Palmer, Mitchell) second; Delta Kappa Epsilon (Morrell, Elliott, Craig, Perkins) third.

Eight hundred yard ski relay race—Won by Theta Delta Chi (Oliver, Palmer, Moore, Atwood); Delta Upsilon (Ingraham, Fish, Small, Mitchell), third; Zeta Psi (Wilson, Gray, Porter, H. Hildreth), second.

About fifty or sixty couples attended the informal dance in the Gymnasium last Saturday evening following the Winter Carnival and the Bowdoin Freshmen-Hebron Academy track meet.

Six records were broken and two were tied when the Bowdoin Freshmen defeated Hebron Academy in the dual track meet held last Saturday in Hyde Athletic Building. Bowdoin took 65 points to Hebron's 30. The first event, the forty yard dash, was hotly contested. In the first two heats, Hebron men eliminated Kohler and Wood, two of the Freshmen's mainstays. Farrington and Conner, however, took the two remaining heats for Bowdoin. In the final, Conner beat out Farrington by an extremely narrow margin. The time was 4-5 seconds, which equals the record made last year by Tarbell of Bowdoin.

The meet was much more interesting than the score would seem to indicate, and very seldom could the freshmen feel sure of their points until the tape was broken. It was an afternoon of close and fast racing. Frank Farrington was again the individual star of the meet, winning a first in the three hundred yard dash, and seconds in the forty yard dash, the shot put, and the broad jump. He was hard pressed for his honors, nevertheless, by Rowe, the Hebron star, who took firsts in the high and broad jumps, and a third in the forty, running up eleven points for his team. Both of his firsts broke the records for this dual meet. One of these, the broad jump, was his own record in the first place.

The 1000 yard run was one of the best events on the program. Burt of Hebron took first place, finishing a bare yard ahead of Whittier of Bowdoin who ran a thrilling race. When the gun was fired, Boynton of Bowdoin, who was expected to place first, took the lead. Hodgkins of Bowdoin passed Boynton before the end of the first lap. On the third time around Burt passed Boynton and took second, a few yards behind Hodgkins. Boynton braced and took second, but was soon overtaken by Burt and Whittier. On the next to the last lap Burt took the lead from Hodgkins who dropped to third, with Whittier second. The finish was a race between Whittier and Burt. The latter managed to finish a scant yard ahead of the Bowdoin man who put up a wonderful fight. Hodgkins of Bowdoin placed third.

Farrington easily won the 300 yard run. Edes of Hebron, who made the best time in the trial heats, placed second. In the final heat, Raymond of Hebron had the pole with Farrington in second position. Farrington, with a wonderfully sure start, took the lead and increased it steadily. He finished eight yards ahead of his nearest competitor.

Bowdoin took all nine points in the 600 yard run. Hull broke the previous record held by Kack Hamilton by one and two-fifths seconds. At the start, Hull had the pole with Bradbury of Hebron in second position and Rowe of Bowdoin in the third position. At the gun, Hull took the lead with two Hebron men following. Rowe of Bowdoin was fourth and Ballentine fifth. On the second lap Ballentine passed Rowe, and the Hebron men who were running second and third commenced to lag. Ballentine, closely followed by Rowe, went by the Hebron men. Hull led the field by a considerable margin, and Ballentine and Rowe were fifteen to twenty yards ahead of their Hebron competitors as they neared the finish. Ballentine was noticeably exhausted at the finish and when Rowe started to pass him he fell down. He was, however, sufficiently far ahead of the Green runners to take third place. Hull's time was one minute, twenty-two and four-fifths seconds, which breaks the record made by Hamilton of Bowdoin last year.

In the 45 yard high hurdles, McInnes of Bowdoin equalled the record of Littlefield of Bowdoin. Flint of Hebron was second, and Hull of Bowdoin third.

Captain Rowe of Hebron broke his own record made last year in the running broad jump. Captain Farrington was the only Bowdoin man to place.

Baker of Bowdoin did not show up as well in the 12 lb. shot put as he did in the dual meet with Portland High.

More About Loyalty.

There is one aspect of the college situation whose bearing upon the fraternity system is so acute that it affects their very existence. That is the aspect of loyalty. To whom shall our loyalty be given; to our college, or to our fraternity? A few days ago I was asked what my attitude would be in this regard after graduation. The question was not an easy one to answer, nor is it likely to be for any man who has been active in both his fraternity and his college affairs. At present, however, I feel that the college has the greater claim. This is because the fraternity is distinctly an outgrowth of the college, and as an auxiliary deserves support and encouragement only so long as its aims do not conflict with the aims of the college. With the facts in view, there seems to be no other conclusion that the undergraduate can draw than that his liege lord is the college.

Yet there is plenty of evidence that the man in college does the direct opposite. In undergraduate activities, in student elections, in such distinctly college actions as the payment of the blanket tax and of contributions to the many worthy philanthropies that call for our support, the fraternity, not the college, takes the leading part. We do not have to look far for evidence of this fact. In the compilation of fraternity averages for payment of the blanket taxes, published in the last issue of the Orient, it became apparent that certain members of the college who had declared themselves strongly opposed to paying the "tax" had, under the stress of fraternal urging, contributed their share. This does not mean that the attitude of the men has changed. What it really signifies is that they are willing to be coerced for the sake of saving the fraternity's face in the eyes of the undergraduate majority. We can cite instance upon instance of the same sort of thing in all the varied "drives" that the college undertakes. For its work as a collecting agency we have only praise for the fraternity, but we do wonder what sort of logic makes a man appear devoted to a cause when his loyalty is forced by the action of his fraternity. So much for the work of the fraternity as a collector, let us consider now its aptitude in vote-getting.

We have been taught to look askance at the hateful manipulation of the ballot by unscrupulous politicians throughout the country. Corruption in civic elections has little sympathy among the students of this college, but it is no mis-statement to say that, as civic corruption is despised outside our walls, it is fostered within them. The party system, consciously or unconsciously, never worked with more facility than it does right here. Fraternity combinations are not satisfied with electing the comparatively unimportant class officers, but they go straight down the line to push their candidates through in every election. The system of bribery is quite as shame-faced and no more versatile or ingenious than that of the lowest political "boss" or his most devoted "ward-heeler." It is not pleasant to know that conditions are not salutary: it is invigorating to know that something can be done about it.

The fraternities started the corruption in campus politics. It devolves upon them to stop it. A means has been suggested by one of the fraternities which has adopted it and carried it out successfully for a year. The suggestion is that each fraternity incorporate within its bylaws a provision forbidding combination with any other fraternity for the purpose of winning elections. Looking at the situation as the majority of men in college now do, it takes courage to vote for such a step in support of fair play. We believe that the undergraduates of Bowdoin want to see their leaders elected by a decent system, and we believe that they have the courage to inaugurate such a system.

Sunday Chapel

Major George H. Putnam Emphasizes Need of Optimism and Vision

Last Sunday's Chapel address was delivered by Major George A. Putnam, a veteran of the Civil War and the holder of an honorary degree from Bowdoin, conferred upon him at the time of our centennial commencement in 1894. He chose for his text, "If they have no vision, the people perish." In opening, Major Putnam called to our attention the statement made by many sceptics that men have always fought and will continue throughout eternity to be of just such an aggressive nature. There have always been sceptics, men who believed that a thing couldn't be done merely because it never had been, that it is useless to attempt anything new merely because it is doomed to failure before birth. Imagine, nevertheless, just what condition the world would now be in, what state of civilization would exist at present, if our long forgotten ancestors of the stone age had listened to such men as these. It is fairly safe to say that there would be no real civilization at all. The beginning of world organization probably began thousands of years ago when some man conceived the idea that there was no need for all the families for miles around to feel that a sort of everlasting warfare was necessary to the existence of men. He probably approached one neighbor on the subject, and this man said that such an idea was foolish and that man was a quarrelling beast and always would be. Not disheartened by this, however, he approached several other neighbors and these showed a gleam of intelligence with the result that a truce was arrived at which enabled the members of the various families to about their daily work without feeling that when they assembled at night at least one or two would be missing. Such agreements as these grew more frequent and more extensive until at last we found several nations bound together by this Divine Right Theory.

In the Holy Roman Empire, we find the first attempt at a family of nations. To be sure, these nations were many of them taken by force but the salient idea in the governing of them was the establishment of a fair system of administering justice, the settlement of disputes by arbitration rather than by force. Later Saint Paul offered a plan for an agreement between the nations that would remove forever the peril of war, and likewise a plan was offered at the Vienna Conference in the early part of the last century whereby an agreement could be made between the sovereigns of the states of the world which would prevent all war. Now, the non-aggressive element throughout the world have finally decided that there can be no more war. The horrors of the last one, along with the prospective terror of a future one made more ghastly by science, have brought them to this decision. The sceptics may laugh, but they will be reminded of the fact that many said that it was foolish to try to prevent the owning of slaves, since it was an age old custom, even mention in the Bible without contempt. But the abolition of this vice was accomplished even if it was an expensive achievement, and just so will the abolition of war be brought about, although the expenditures may not be as flesh and blood. Why shouldn't a small nation without a large army or navy feel absolutely secure in the world.

Should might make right or right make might? In the last war Germany, by way of her militaristic strength did as she pleased, and she pleased to invade a small comparatively helpless country like Belgium. Now we have offered to us in the League of Nations a truly American ideal. Here we settle disputes between our states by arbitration rather than by war, and this is just the alternative that the League offers to the nations of the world through its World Court, a group of the most expert arbitrators in the world. Why has not America adopted an adaptation from its own system. The answer lies in the fact that, although it is a strictly American ideal, petty feelings and a far too provincial scope of thinking have halted us in our move to become a party in this extensive move towards world peace.

Tufts Debaters Defeat Bowdoin At Medford

White Upholds Affirmative for Russian Recognition—To Meet Rutgers, Lafayette, and Boston University Late in March

The Bowdoin debating team was defeated Monday evening, February 25, in a debate with Tufts held at Medford in the College Chapel. Bowdoin was represented by Daggett '25, Hewett '27, Walch '25, and Lee '24 alternate. The team upheld the affirmative of the question, Resolved: "That the United States should grant recognition to the government of Russia." The members of the Tufts team were Albert W. Vanderhoof, Alfred A. Sartorelli, Clarence A. Roberts, and Francis H. Russell alternate. The judges were Mr. John F. Neal of Boston, Professor George M. Sneath of Boston University, and Judge Thomas Weston of Newton. Their decision was unanimously in favor of the negative. President John A. Cousens, LL.D., was presiding officer.

Logic and common sense, which formed the basis of Bowdoin's argument were effectively offset in this debate by the negative's use of points of great emotional significance. The Bowdoin speakers were unusually skillful and well informed, and they gave an admirable presentation of the case which they had prepared. The hospitality and fairness of the Tufts team and the considerate approval given by the large audience to both sides made the visit to Medford a pleasure, notwithstanding the defeat.

Selections were rendered by the Tufts Glee Club during the period between the main speaking and the rebuttal and during the time that the judges were making their decision.

On March 28 the Debating Team will leave for a trip of five days in order to debate Lafayette at Easton, Penn., on March 29, Rutgers at New Brunswick, N. J., on March 31, and Boston University at Boston on April 2.

Bowdoin will in every case uphold the affirmative of the question: Resolved that the United States should grant recognition to the government of Russia. The team which will make the trip has not yet been announced.

On Friday evening, March 21, Bowdoin will entertain the Rutgers debaters in Memorial Hall and will uphold the negative of the Russian question. The team which will represent Bowdoin will be composed of Raye '24, Read '26, Rowe '24, and MacIntyre '25 alternate.

Negotiations are pending for a debate with Cornell in Portland sometime in April. The question to be debated has not yet been decided.

Bowdoin And Colby Hockey Teams Battle To 1-1 Tie

Cutter Scores Bowdoin's Goal—Second Tie with Colby on Ice

In another very evenly matched game with Colby, Bowdoin battled to a one to one tie at Waterville last Monday afternoon. Both teams were seriously handicapped by the poor ice, which a warm sun had made very soft, and for this reason it could not be called a fast game. The first two periods were see-saw affairs, both teams getting dangerous at times, but neither having sufficient punch to get the puck past the goal tender of its opponent. During these periods, Miguel and Widen proved invaluable to the White in breaking up the Colby offensive rushes. The third period started off in the same way as the previous two, and until late in this period there had been no score. With about three minutes to go, Charlie Cutter got the puck in mid-ice, and after carrying it a short distance, sent it speeding towards the Colby goal. It looked as if the goal tender were going to stop it easily, but it slipped right past him into the cage for Bowdoin's only score, a beautifully accurate shot.

It looked as if the game was Bowdoin's, for the time was almost up, but suddenly McGowan of Colby, showing some very clever stick-work carried the puck through out defense for the tying score of the day. The game did not go to over-time periods as it did here because Captain Miguel and the rest of the team had to leave for Brunswick. Miguel and Cutter starred for the White, while McGowan was the outstanding player for Colby. The line-up:

Colby (1) (1) Bowdoin
Muir Cronin
Cronin Cutter
McGowan Preble
Pike Miguel
Millet Widen
Fagerstrom Berry

Score, Bowdoin 1, Colby 1. Referee, Haines of New Hampshire. Goal judges, Barnes and Hunt. Time, three twelve minute periods. Substitutions, for Bowdoin, Littlefield for Preble, Cole for Cronin, Cronin for Cole, Preble for Littlefield; for Colby, McBay for Pike. Goals made by Cutter, Bowdoin, and McGowan, Colby.

Deering High Wins Over Skowhegan In Debating

The Deering High school debaters won their division of the Bowdoin inter-scholastic debating when they defeated the team from Skowhegan in Hubbard Hall on February twenty-second. The subject of the debate was "Resolved, that the United States government should recognize the Soviet Government in Russia," and the winners supported the affirmative.

The Deering team was Dorothy Whelpley, John Davis, Charles Guptill, with Maurice Lord as alternate. The Skowhegan debaters were James White, Reid Appleby, Hamlin Tobey, and Rebecca Russakoff alternate. The judges were Professors Henry B. Dewing, Thomas Means, and Noel C. Little, and they gave a two to one verdict in favor of Deering.

Freshman-Hebron Meet

Nevertheless he broke the record made last year by Prince of Hebron. The distance was 44 feet 1 inch, four feet five inches better than the previous record. Beach of Hebron took third, and Captain Farrington was second.

In the high jump, Captain Rowe of Hebron broke his previous record. Kendall and Hull won second and third places for the yearlings.

Ham, Jack Magee's freshman discovery, won the mile run with no real competition. At the gun, Ham immediately took the lead, followed by Bargh of Bowdoin and Penley of Hebron. On the second time around Penley passed Bargh. Ham steadily increased his lead. By the seventh lap, Wardwell of Hebron had passed Bargh, with Sheh of Bowdoin in fourth position. On the tenth lap Penley set out after Ham, but the Bowdoin runner was too far ahead to be caught. Penley dropped steadily behind and on the next to the last lap was passed by Wardwell. At the finish Ham was well ahead, with Wardwell second, and Penley third. The time was four minutes fifty-two and one-fifth seconds. This breaks the previous record by seven and four-fifths seconds.

The pole vault was handily won by Willey of Bowdoin who broke the previous mark of nine feet nine inches made by Robinson of Bowdoin. Renouf of Bowdoin took second, and Bearce of Hebron was third.

Bowdoin won the relay race without being pressed. Kohler, lead-off man for the Freshmen, kept two yards ahead of Raymond of Hebron from start to finish. Bowdoin gained over a yard when the baton changed hands. Cutter gained two yards over Bearce of Hebron and gave Ham a lead of nearly six yards. Ham gained ten on Bradbury. Farrington took the baton with a sixteen yard lead. Rowe, Hebron anchor man, started to crawl up on the Bowdoin captain, but Farrington spurred and finished eighteen yards to the good. The time was two seconds slower than that made by the Bowdoin Freshmen last year.

The point summary is as follows:
40 yard dash—First heat, won by Bearce of Hebron, five seconds; second heat, won by Edes of Hebron, 5 1-5 seconds; third heat, won by Farrington of Bowdoin, 4 4-5 seconds; fourth heat, won by Conner of Bowdoin, 4 4-5 seconds. Final heat, won by Conner of Bowdoin; second, Farrington of Bowdoin; third, Rowe of Hebron. Time 4 4-5 seconds. (Equals record).

1000 yard run—Won by Burr of Hebron; second, Whittier of Bowdoin; third, Hodgkins of Bowdoin. Time 2 minutes 37 seconds.

300 yard run—First heat, won by Farrington of Bowdoin; second, Conner of Bowdoin; time 36 seconds. Second heat, won by Edes of Hebron; second, Wood of Bowdoin; time 36 seconds. Third heat, won by Raymond of Hebron; second, Beach of Hebron; time 36 1-5 seconds. Final heat, won by Farrington; second, Edes; third, Raymond. Time 35 3-5 seconds.

45 yard high hurdles—First heat, won by Flint of Hebron; second, D. Farrington of Bowdoin. Second heat, won by McInnes of Bowdoin; second, Hull of Bowdoin. Final heat, won by McInnes; second, Flint; third, Hull. Time 6 2-5 seconds. (Equals record).

Running broad jump—Won by Rowe of Hebron; second, Farrington of Bowdoin; third, Flint of Hebron. Distance 20 feet six inches. (New record).

12 lb. shot put—Won by Hull of Bowdoin; second, Farrington of Bowdoin; third, Beach of Hebron. Distance of 44 feet one inch. (New record).

600 yard run—Won by Hull of Bowdoin; second, Rowe of Bowdoin; third, Ballentine of Bowdoin. Time, 1 minute, 22 4-5 seconds. (New record).

Running high jump—Won by Rowe of Hebron; second, Kendall of Bowdoin; third, Hull of Bowdoin. Height, 5 feet 4 1-4 inches. (New record).

Mile run—Won by Ham of Bowdoin; second, Wardwell of Hebron; third, Penley of Hebron. Time 4 minutes 52 1-5 seconds. (New record).

Pole vault—Won by Willey of Bowdoin; second, Renouf of Bowdoin; third, Bearce of Hebron. Height 10 feet 6 inches. (New record).

Relay race—Won by Bowdoin (Kohler, Cutter, Ham, and Farrington); Hebron (Raymond, Bradbury, Bearce, and Rowe). Time 2 minutes, 15 4-5 seconds.

He Reached the Top

THE Vice-President of a great life insurance company who began his career as an agent has this to say to seniors who are about to graduate from college:

"If you love work and desire to pursue an honorable, useful and lucrative mission in life this is the business for you to take up. Life insurance salesmanship offers a fine field for the energies of the splendid young men in our colleges.

"That this is true is demonstrated by those college men who have taken up life insurance for they have shown that the college man is fit for this kind of a job and that the job also is fit for the college man.

"The work of the life insurance salesman is distinguished by independence and opportunity for directing his own. It gives all possible opportunity for individual initiative and a chance to make an ample income at an age when most fellows are struggling on a wage pittance."

That is the story of one who began at the bottom and reached the top without the help of a college education. The advantages are with you who graduate from college. Before deciding your career make inquiries of the "Agency Department."

Apprentice to an English book-binder. Attracted the attention of Sir Humphrey Davy, becoming his assistant. "The greatest experimentalist of all times," says one biographer. The electrical unit Farad was named for him.

"What's the use of it?"

Michael Faraday saw the real beginning of the age of electricity nearly a century ago when he thrust a bar magnet into a coil of wire connected with a galvanometer and made the needle swing.

Gladstone, watching Faraday at work in his laboratory, asked, "What's the use of it?" The experimenter jestingly replied, "There is every probability that you will soon be able to tax it." The world-wide use of electricity that has followed the Faraday discovery abundantly justifies the retort to Gladstone.

Faraday's theory of lines of force is constantly applied in the Research Laboratories of the General Electric Company in devising new electrical apparatus of which Faraday never dreamed. Every generator and motor is an elaboration of the simple instruments with which he first discovered and explained induction.

In 1880 the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, of New York City, installed a generator of 1200 lamps capacity, then considered a giant. By continuous experimentation and research the General Electric Company has developed generators 500 times as powerful as this wonder of forty years ago.

What is your Verdict?

When you have tried Williams Shaving Cream your verdict will be as favorable as is your verdict about the new Hinge-Cap. The heavier, faster-working Williams lather, the fact that Williams lubricates the skin, the fine condition of your face after the shave, these qualities make men stick to Williams as faithfully as the Hinge-Cap sticks to the tube. As regards the Hinge-Cap, here is an offer we make:

$250 in Prizes

For the best sentence of ten words or less on the value of the Williams Hinge-Cap, we offer the following prizes: 1st prize $100; 2nd prize $50; 3rd prize, $25 each; 4th prize, $10 each; 5th prize, $5 each. Any undergraduate or graduate student is eligible. If two or more persons submit identical slogans deemed worthy of prizes, the full amount of the prize will be awarded to each. Contest closes at midnight March 14, 1924. Winners will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Submit any number of slogans but write on one side of paper only, putting name, address, college and class at top of each sheet. Address letters to Contest Editor, The J. B. was from Georgia. When they drew up in front of Buckingham palace, the band played "Marching Through Georgia."

Since before the war, England has been striving for a closer relationship and more mutual understanding with America, but a feeling has been prevalent in this country that the English are natural enemies, and that to come under any such agreement with her would be detrimental to our national interests. The men who spread such propaganda as this can naturally be classed as nothing but stupid and selfish. No firm foundation for a permanent World peace can be established without America's cooperation, and yet we, the most resourceful and influential nation in the World have refrained from taking a part in such a magnanimous enterprise as the World Court. We must abandon our policy of isolation, and play the part of the big brother to the other countries, using our national prestige to aid in overcoming the bullying attitude which some of the nations have adopted. We should take our part hand in hand with England and the other members of the White race in the struggle to overcome for ever the fear of impending war. If such an agreement had been in the minds of men at the time of the war of 1812, there would have been no war. We have now reached a period where we must take an active part in such worthy causes as the League of Nations and the World Court, and to do this we must be careful to elect men to the Senate who are willing to cast aside their personal prejudices and act for the best interests of the World as a whole. Let there be protection for the smaller nations of the World, and may America do her share in bringing about the stable formation of a congenial community of nations.

Centennial Of Class Of 1825 To Be Observed

The 100th anniversary of the graduation of the famous class of 1825—the class in which Hawthorne and Longfellow graduated—will be officially observed by the college at the commencement of next year, and a committee to arrange the program has been named as follows:

President Sills, and Dr. Samuel Valentine, Dr. Cole from the Trustees, and Augustus F. Moulton, Edward P. Mitchell, and Arthur G. Staples of the Overseers.

Biology Club Heard Paper
On Ruffed Grouse Last WeekWeymouth '24 Gives Interesting
Discussion on Noted Game Bird

A meeting of the Biology Club was held the evening of Feb. 26, at the Biology lecture room, followed by refreshments at the A.D. house. At this meeting Mr. C. G. Weymouth '24 gave a most interesting lecture on the Ruffed Grouse. The lecture was illustrated by a large number of lantern slides which were made by Mr. Weymouth. A short summary of the lecture is as follows. From the time when the early pilgrims discovered what a pleasing delicacy the flesh of the grouse constituted, down to the present day, the grouse have deservedly held a place among the most widely known of our native birds. The different ranges which the rough grouse inhabits was first explained and then a variation of the different species was explained. In Eastern North America the ruffed grouse vary greatly throughout their range. This variation has been so great that the species has been split into two geographic races, one the more northern, which is the one we have in Maine, is designated as the Canada ruffed grouse. The chief differences of the northern form are the larger ruffs and the much larger size than those of the southern species. What does the grouse eat? Its diet is varied. In the winter when the ground is piled high with deep snow, it takes to the top of the trees and feeds on the buds of apple, poplar, birch, iron-wood and willows. In the summer the birds feed on the leaves of growing plants, insects, grasshoppers and crickets. In autumn fruits of all kinds; berries, wild grapes, various nuts and apples. Analysis of the food showed 11 per cent of animal matter and 89 per cent of vegetable matter. Perhaps the most important thing to consider is that of the diseases of the grouse. According to a report of the British agriculture and fisheries committee; the main causes of the diseases of the bird is due to a parasitic worm which lives in the blind gut of the caecum. Its diameter is less than that of a hair, and a maximum length of one-half inch. There are sometimes as many as 18,000 in a single bird, which seriously interferes with digestion causing a disease known as "Strongylosis." The infected birds become emaciated and the greater number die during the stress of the reproductive season in April and May.

In America the ruffed grouse is subject to times of maximum and minimum abundance as the European red grouse, but no investigation has been made, although many theories have been advanced following each period of scarcity. These periods of scarcity appear to occur approximately ten years apart one in 1907 and again in 1917. Mr. Edward Woodruff who secured the information from New York game wardens in 1907, concluded that the causes for the wholesale destruction of the grouse in order of their importance were:

First: The universal number of foxes and goshawks.

Second: The extreme cold, wet and late spring of 1907.

Alumni Notes

1915—Announcement of the marriage of George A. McWilliams to Miss Mary Rose Reddy of New York in New York last week has reached Maine. McWilliams is also a graduate of the Harvard School of Business Administration, and served during the war as an interpreter. He formerly lived in Bangor but is now connected with Brown Brothers, private bankers, in New York City, where he is handling all French, Spanish, Portuguese and Italian correspondence.

1916—Alfred H. Crossman has moved to Southern California to join the forces of the Southern Sierras Power Company. His address is 455 Cover Street, Riverside, California.

1917—Lieutenant-Colonel Sherman H. Shumway, of Skowhegan, is being urged for collector of revenues in the Port of Portland by the temperance element of the state. Following the recent liquor trouble in Aroostook County, these people feel that a competent and fearless man is needed to undertake this task. Lieut.-Col. Shumway seems to fulfill these requisites. At the outbreak of the war he joined the Second Maine Infantry as a private, and went overseas as a 2nd lieutenant. While across he saw a great deal of action and his work was so good that he came back as a Lieutenant-Colonel. The appointment is made by President Coolidge upon the County Y. M. C. A. Boys' Conference March 14-16

The arrangements for the forthcoming conference of boys which is scheduled to meet here from March 14 to 16 inclusive, are rapidly being completed. This convention is being organized under the auspices of the Cumberland County Y.M.C.A., in conjunction with the local committee of which Professor Wilmot B. Mitchell is chairman.

Mr. Coates, secretary of the Cumberland County Y.M.C.A., was in town recently with the announcement that he has secured H. W. Gibson as principal speaker for the convention. Mr. Gibson, who will give three addresses, at the banquet on Friday, Saturday forenoon, and Sunday afternoon, during the convention days, has been connected with work among boys for over thirty years, twenty of which he has been boys' secretary of the Mass. and R. I. State Y.M.C.A. He is one of the foremost camp directors for boys, director of Camp Beckett and is an author of boys' books. He is the author of "Boyology," "Camping for Boys," "Camp Management," his most recent book, and "Services of Worship for Boys." He is in great demand all over the country for boys' conferences, Father and Son gatherings, Parent Teachers' Association meetings, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, Forum clubs and High school assemblies.

Third: An epidemic of some disease. The questionnaire of 1917 reported the principal cause foxes, bad nesting season, and hawks. Both these reports were natural and not the result of scientific investigation. Dr. Allen of Cornell University has been carrying on a scientific investigation as to the causes of the scarcity of the ruffed grouse in different parts of the state of New York. Of the various diseases which cause the death of the grouse, he has laid greater stress on the newly discovered Dispharagus. This disease is caused by a stomach worm. In order to preserve the ruffed grouse and to solve the problem which causes so many deaths is to send the stomachs of the birds to Bowdoin College or to Dr. Allen at Cornell. By this method we could find out the conditions in every state and be able to predict when the next great scarcity of ruffed grouse will appear.

BETAS WIN CLOSELY CONTESTED INTERFRATERNITY TRACK MEET

Hardy '24 High Point Man With 13½ Points—High Jump Record Broken by H. Hildreth '25—Connor Equals 40 Yard Mark

Beta Theta Pi, with a galaxy of stars as great perhaps as any other ever assembled in the history of interfraternity track competition at Bowdoin, carried off the Sixth Annual Interfraternity Track Meet last Friday evening in the Hyde Athletic Building, with a safe margin of ten points over Sigma Nu, the runner-up and last year's winner. The Betas piled up 39 points while the Sigma Nus took 29. Theta Delta Chi took third place with 19 points, and Zeta Psi and Chi Psi followed with 17 points each. Thirteen points were sufficient to give Alpha Delta Phi sixth place. Kappa Sigma followed in seventh place with 5 points. Delta Upsilon and Psi Upsilon took a single point apiece, while Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Delta Psi failed to place a single man.

Malcolm Hardy of Beta Theta Pi won the cup offered by Dr. Frank N. Whittier for the athlete scoring the greatest number of points. Hardy placed first in the 45 yard high hurdles, second in the high jump, third in the low hurdles and broad jump, and was a member of the Beta Theta Pi relay team which took first place. This gave the Beta star a total of 13½ points.

Horace Hildreth of Zeta Psi broke the meet record in the running high jump when he cleared the bar at 5 feet 10 inches, three-quarters of an inch higher than the height attained by Philbrook of Chi Psi last year. Connor of Sigma Nu, a member of the Freshman class, equalled the record of 43-5 seconds in the 40 yard dash held jointly by Samson and Pierce of Beta Theta Pi, Pirnie of Delta Upsilon, Nevins of Zeta Psi, and Butler of Chi Psi.

The finals in the 40 yard dash and in the relay were easily the most thrilling events on the program. In the relay final, which took place on Saturday afternoon, Beta Theta Pi, through the great work of Tarbell and Foster, took first place in what at first seemed a losing race.

Ham of Zeta Psi had the pole, with Lovell of Sigma Nu in second position. Hardy of Beta Theta Pi in third position, and Spinney of Alpha Delta Phi on the outside. Lovell took the lead, with Ham, Spinney and Hardy following close at his heels. The men kept the same order all through the first leg, with Hardy gradually dropping behind. When Tarbell of Beta Theta Pi took the baton from Hardy, he was five or six yards behind Cutter of Alpha Delta Phi, who was third man, and ten or twelve yards behind the leader, Connor of Sigma Nu. With long swift strides, in perfect form, Tarbell caught up with Cutter before the end of his first lap. Just before the next to the last corner of his second lap, the tall Beta let out and passed Cutter and Connor, who had been overtaken by Gray of Zeta Psi. When Bob Foster, Beta captain, took the baton from his teammate, he was running neck and neck with the Zeta Psi man, Lee. Foster immediately took the lead, and with rapid, ground-gaining strides, gave Beta Theta Pi a ten yard lead before he had finished his second lap.

On the first corner of the last lap around, Farrington of Zeta Psi and Littlefield of Sigma Nu fell. Mason of Alpha Delta Phi passed the pile-up and finished ten or twelve yards behind Webster, Beta Theta Pi anchor man. Farrington placed third. Connor of Sigma Nu won the 40

Bowdoin Night at Pastime Proves Decided Success

Bowdoin Jazz Orchestra Together With Keane's Entertainment Features

Bowdoin night at the Pastime Theater last Thursday evening was a decided success in that practically all of the men who went felt satisfied. Before the show began, the Bowdoin Jazz band, composed of Hood '25, Brown '27, C. Davis '26, Oliver '26, Keniston '24, Kimball '24, Gonya '24, Armstrong '27, Worsnop '24, provided entertainment which was very good, especially the duet features of Hood and Davis on the piano when syncopation fairly bounced from the keys. In the meantime, the peanuts were filling the air and one could not remain oblivious to the presence of cigarette smoke, so President Miguel of the Student Council, after striving for some time to get attention, finally succeeded in asking the fellows to refrain from the throwing of missiles and to follow the safe and sane policy to prevent fire in the theater.

The first picture was Charlie Chaplin in "The Pilgrim," an exceedingly humorous presentation made all the more so by the remarks of the college wits. After that, Harry Keane '24 appeared so carefully disguised that it took most of the audience fully two seconds to recognize him; but after that, he received the proper reception. Of course Harry had his uke or it wouldn't have been natural, and he was surely up to his old-time form. After he had rendered several selections in that clever way of his, he called two other similarly blackened men to the stage, Vaux '27 and Southwick '25, and they sang us a few songs in that good old dinky manner, producing some very good harmony.

The feature picture was Mae Murray in "Broadway Rose," and although many of the fellows had seen the picture, they felt that Mae was worth seeing twice anytime, and in several places they expressed their joy which quite drowned out the music which the jazz band had been producing throughout it all.

Much credit is due to the Student Council, the jazz band and to Harry and his companions for the good time which they provided for the students, and it is hoped that there will be another Bowdoin night soon.

Bowdoin Defeats Auburn Y.M.C.A. Gym Team 30-20

The Bowdoin gymnasium team defeated the Auburn Y.M.C.A. in a gymnasium meet held last Thursday evening at the Auburn Y.M.C.A. The final score was 30 to 20. A good sized crowd was present, and the meet was a success.

Summary: Marching, Bowdoin and Auburn tied, 2½ points each; club swings, Auburn, first; high bar, Howard, Bowdoin, first; Collins of Bowdoin, second; Reynolds of Auburn, third; horse, Corbett of Bowdoin, first; Collins of Bowdoin, second; Roberts of Auburn, third; mats, Reynolds of Auburn, first; Collins of Bowdoin, second; Howard of Bowdoin, third; parallel bars, Collins of Bowdoin, first; Rogers of Auburn, second; Wilson of Bowdoin, third; flying rings, Jewett of Bowdoin, first; Phillips of Bowdoin second; Reynolds of Auburn, third. The members of the Bowdoin marching team were, Collins, leader, H. K. Eastman, Howard, Jewett, Kirkpatrick, Peary, Gibbons, Rowe, and Wilson.

Coach Magee Appointed Olympic Track Coach

To Have Charge of Athletes in Long Distance Running and Walking—Six Assistant Coaches Elected

Coach Jack Magee was appointed one of the six assistant Olympic coaches at a meeting of the executive Olympic committee held last Saturday at New York. This appointment did not come as a surprise, as it is well known that he would doubtlessly be chosen. The other coaches are Alonzo A. Stagg, University of Chicago; Harry L. Hillman, Dartmouth; Thomas F. Keane, Syracuse; Edward L. Farrell, Harvard, and Lieutenant Eugene L. Vidal, West Point. Another Maine track mentor was chosen to help guide the destinies of the United States Olympic team in the person of Coach Michael Ryan of Colby, who will serve as trainer of the marathoners.

Coaches Magee and Keane will have charge of the athletes competing in the 1,500, 5,000, and 10,000 meter runs, 3,000 meter team race, 3,000 meter steeple chase, cross country, and 10,000 meter walk; while the other coaches' assignments are as follows, Stagg, 400 and 800 meter runs and 1,600 meter relay; Hillman, 110 and 400 meter hurdles and running high jump; Farrell, running broad jump, hop, step, and jump and pole vault; Lieut. Vidal, decathlon and pentathlon.

This will be the first Olympic team of the United States not to have a single head coach in charge, but instead the destinies of the team will be entrusted jointly to Lawson Robertson, of the University of Pennsylvania, as head coach; and Walter Christie, of the University of California, as head field coach. In addition to the assistant coaches these two men will have definite assignments, Robertson will have charge of the men in the 100 and 200 meter sprints and the 400 meter relay, while Christie will handle the men in the shot put, hammer throw, discus, and javelin. A special committee, to be appointed by the Olympic body, will act as a final court of authority in track matters. This committee will include one member of the coaching staff.

Robertson, Vidal, Ryan, Hillman, and Farrell are all former Olympic competitors.

In addition to having Coach Magee on the staff of Olympic coaches Bowdoin will have at least one of her athletes, or former athletes, on the team, as it goes without saying that Fred Tootell will make the team. He should be the best man on the team in the hammer throw. If he continues the way he is going now there is a good possibility of him breaking the world's record in that event, as Coach Farrell of Harvard and others have predicted this. If this happens it would be a great personal triumph for Coach Magee. It will be remembered that when Jack first took "Toots" to the big meets everyone said that he could not become a good hammer thrower unless he changed his style, but events have not turned out thus. In addition to Tootell both Captain Francis Bishop and Bob Foster have been mentioned as likely candidates for the Olympic team.

Nine official sectional tryouts will be held in May and June to select men for the final tryouts to be held June 13 and 14 in the Harvard Stadium.

Professor Burnett Speaks On Human Intercourse

A meeting of the Senior honorary society, Ibis, was held last Thursday evening in the Theta Delta Chi House. Professor Burnett read a paper on "The Value of Human Intercourse" which was exceedingly interesting. Those present were Dean Nixon, Professors Elliott, Burnett and Bell, and the members on hand were Wescott, Rouillard, Brisbois, Davis and Watson.

Juniors Attention!

At present there is a large number of men in the class who have not ordered and paid for their Junior pictures. All pictures must be taken, ordered, and paid for by the end of this week in order to be sure of being in the Bugle. In case any member of the class finds it impossible to do this he should immediately get in touch with Frederick P. Perkins, Editor-in-Chief, D.K.E. House, or with Howard E. Kroll, Business Manager, D.U. House. Informal pictures must also be handed to the member of the board in your house immediately, as the Bugle goes to press in the near future, and any pictures not in at that time will be left out.

Four Records Broken and One Tied—Moore of Medford High Point Winner—Hebron Finishes Second—Lowell With Four-Man Team Third

Rutgers To Debate In Memorial Hall March 27

Team Chosen for Southern Trip—Debating Council Receives Gift—Interscholastic Debates

At the debate with Rutgers, to be held in Memorial Hall, March 27, the Glee Club will sing before and after the debate. As usual the members of the A.S.B.C. will be admitted without charge, the price to the general public being fifty cents, while High school students will be admitted at half rate.

The following have been appointed to take part in the remaining debates, to meet Lafayette at Easton, Penn., Rutgers at New Brunswick, N. J., and Boston University at Boston, during the spring recess, Atherton Daggett '25, Raye '24, Rowe '24, and Lee '24 alternate. In accordance with Cornell's proposal one Bowdoin speaker and two Cornell speakers will take one side of the question, while two Bowdoin speakers and one Cornell speaker will take the other side. This is the so-called Oxford system. Furthermore the audience will render the decision by ballot.

In the preliminary debates of the Bowdoin Interscholastic League B on March 7, Brunswick High defeated Morse High, and Jordan High defeated South Portland. Brunswick had the negative of the Russian recognition question and Jordan High the affirmative. Brunswick was coached by Walsh '25, Jordan High by Saunders '24, Morse by Churchill '24, and South Portland by F. E. Clough. The final debate of this league will be held Friday evening, March 14, in Hubbard Hall.

It was announced in Chapel Monday morning, March 2, that the Debating Council had received a very welcome gift of $50 from Major George H. Putnam.

President Sills read a paper Monday evening before the Fraternity Club of Portland on "Lorenzo the Magnificent, a Study in the Life and Literature of Renaissance." Tuesday evening he spoke at the annual dinner of the Y. M. C. A., of Beverly, Mass., on "Popular Education Your Responsibility." He will speak Thursday evening at the annual dinner of the alumni of Augusta, and Friday evening at the boys' conference to be held in Memorial Hall.

Hockey Letters Awarded By Athletic Council

W. B. Jacob Elected Assistant Graduate Manager—Nine Letters Given

At a meeting of the Athletic Council held in Brunswick March 7 Ross '24 was awarded his football letter. The following were also awarded letters in hockey, Captain Miguel '24, J. Berry '25, Widen '26, Preble '25, Cutter '26, Cronin '25, C. L. Cole '27, Nichols '25, and R. Littlefield '26. At this meeting W. B. Jacob was elected to act as assistant graduate manager, taking the place of R. H. Cobb '17, who has very generously given much of his time and services without remuneration to this office. Mr. Cobb completes his work at Bowdoin until next fall the first of April.

There is a possibility of a fencing match to be held with Norwich in the Bowdoin gymnasium.

Four records were broken, and one was tied in the twelfth annual Indoor Inter-Scholastic Track Meet, as the Medford High School team from Massachusetts won easily piling up forty-four points. Hebron Academy took second place with Lowell High third, scoring twenty-five and twenty points respectively. Moore of Medford was the individual star of the meet with a total of eleven and a quarter points, accumulated by a win in the broad jump, a second in the forty yard dash, a third in the shot put, and running anchor man on the winning relay team. His team-mate, Hormell was second with a first in the three hundred, a third in the forty yard dash, a fourth in the broad jump, and a member of Medford's relay team, a total of nine and a quarter points. Although many of the afternoon's events brought many surprises, the greatest one of all, probably, came in the very first one, the forty yard dash. After three exceedingly fast semifinal heats, Moore and Hormell of Medford, Daley of Lowell, McCarthy of Portland, Rogers of Somerville, and Rowe of Hebron had survived. Moore, by virtue of his win in the New England inter-scholastics, was the heavy favorite, but the dope was decidedly upset when Daly led him at the tape in the fast time of four and three-fifths seconds. Lowell later proved that his victory was not a flash in the pan, for its four man team proved to be the dark horse of the meet when every one of its men took a first.

The next event on the program was scheduled as the trials in the six hundred yard run, but so many men dropped out, that the coaches agreed to run it without the preliminaries. Once again the Lowell team showed its mettle when Pearson led the field and won handily winning in the record breaking time of one minute and twenty and one-fifth seconds. Surette of Medford and Johnson of Somerville were second and third respectively.

In the first heat of the forty-five yard high hurdles, Parksley of Medford broke the record by a fifth of a second, winning his heat in six and one-fifth seconds. The other heats served to qualify Burrows and Currie of Portland, Paul of Thornton, Pomeroy of Jordan, and Flint of Hebron. In the final, Parksley took first, with Flint, Currie, and Burrows in the other three places, in six and two-fifths seconds.

Burke of Lowell, running a beautiful race all the way, romped home with the thousand yard run, tying the present record of two minutes and twenty-eight seconds. He had a ten yard lead over Etter of Portland, who was picked to win because of his double win in the dual meet against the freshmen. Steward of Medford, and Bogle of Thornton took third and fourth.

In the three hundred yard run trial heats Moore, Hormell and Rierdan of Medford, Small of Morse, Bradbury of Hebron and Rogers of Somerville Objectives.

We have removed ourselves from the productive life of the world for four years of seclusion in the college. The world is willing that a certain number of her young men should be so removed and that willingness is founded on certain excellent and tangible reasons. The impression of the youth entering college is rather frequently that, so long as his financial condition and his intellectual or social inclinations will permit his spending four years in life that is not immediately productive, he is entitled to spend that time in college quite as he pleases. It takes time and some experience to remove this impression, with the result that not a few of our esteemed colleagues, never having either the time or the experience to apprehend the truth, get through college somehow or rather with out coming to a full realization of what the college and college education mean to the world as well as to the men who benefit by them.

The stern edict of the wolf-pack, "Eat or be eaten," may apply to people of the average intelligence and culture expected of the college-bred person, but we doubt it. It does apply, however, in some measure if the college, and by the college I mean the higher institution which devotes itself to instruction in the distinctly cultural branches of learning, consistently fails to produce citizens whose minds are broad enough to appreciate the opportunities, to work for the good of human kind, the world will most certainly destroy the college as a member which has ceased to perform its function. Whether or not we find penury of understanding and sympathy among the men who have graduated from our colleges we do find an appreciable lack of these qualities among the undergraduates. If this is due merely to youth and inexperience, well and good; if it is due, as we think it is, to indifference and selfishness, we must remedy it.

All that we can expect of the undergraduate is that he will stop to think a moment and analyse his position in relation to the other millions of people who inhabit the earth. If we can obtain such thought from every undergraduate in every college or university in the land we shall come pretty near the millennium in higher education. Unfortunately the difference and antagonism to constructive thinking cannot be routed out by a resolution or a "drive." But there are a sufficient number of men who are willing seriously to consider their objectives in life to give us hope that in time the greater number of college men will realize that they are privileged not because they are intended to be given an advantage which will enable them to heap up more money than their less fortunate opponents in business but because the welfare of the community demands the services of citizens who have breadth of vision and appreciation of the opportunities for making the lives of all people more nearly happy. When we realize that the opportunity for service is the whole "raison d'être" of the college we may expect that the position of the college man in the minds of his compatriots will be considerably raised.

Library Letter, No. 1

Dear fellow Alumnus:—

A short time ago, that loyal friend of the Library, William J. Curtis, of the Class of 1875, suggested that it might be a good thing if the Librarian kept the Library a little more in your mind through the publication in the Orient of brief notes on its needs, its resources, its history, and its hopes for the future. It is surely a pleasant task for the Librarian to write you these intimate letters and he believes that a better acquaintance will result in the advancement of the Library.

The courteous Editor of the Orient has given this plan his hearty approval and agrees to give the Librarian such space as he is able, from time to time. So you are urged to keep on the lookout for the mark of the Library that appears at the head of this letter, and to read the notes that you will find thereunder.

The Mark of the Library—At its beginning the College adopted a Seal, that is so familiar to you that it commands your attention whenever seen.

The first large collection of books added to the Library was the library of Hon. James Bowdoin, son of the Governor, which was received after his death in 1811. This collection numbered some 2,000 volumes, and was especially rich in French literature and history, and rare tracts on American history, and included almost everything in print on Mineralogy.

In each of these books was a book-plate bearing the coat of arms at the head of this letter,—the coat of arms of the Bowdoin Family. The original plate from which these book-plates were made is still in the possession of the Librarian.

Many years ago Dr. George T. Little had a book-plate made carrying the Bowdoin coat of arms as the central feature. This was not satisfactory and was abandoned. Somewhat less than ten years ago the Librarian succeeded in having made a fine copy of the old coat of arms. Since then he has used it on all letter-heads and postal cards, and many of the book-plates of the Library, and it has come to be recognized as the mark of the Library.

It is fitting that the Library have a distinctive mark of its own, and it is especially fitting that this mark should be the coat of arms that is still to be seen in all parts of Hubbard Hall in the old Bowdoin books. When you see this mark, think of the Library.

Faithfully yours,

THE LIBRARIAN.

Sunday Chapel

President Sills Urges Closer Relations Between Faculty and Students

President Sills delivered the Sunday Chapel address last Sunday, and made a closer relation between the faculty and students the aim of his speech. He began by giving us an idea of what the college was like one hundred and eight years ago when the Reverend William Allen was president. There were four other members of the faculty and one hundred and fourteen students, but among them were such men as Franklin Pierce, later to be president of the United States, Hawthorne and the two Longfellow. President Sills pointed out that probably none of these men had any idea just what they would do after they got out of college, and least of all they had no idea that they would be leading men of their time. There are certain respects in which the present college differs from the one of those days. The trouble seems to rest with both faculty and the students, for the faculty doesn't try enough to assist the students in choosing their careers while the students do not attempt to get this assistance, and they do not have enough interest in their work, and their main object seems to be to get from one year until they have finally graduated. Then they plan to go out into the world and drift around until they have finally discovered what they are willing to call their life's work. To be sure, by the time graduates have come back for their tenth or fifteenth reunion they have settled down to a permanent career. We should be ready to step out into a permanent niche when we have graduated.

President Sills said that he had two pieces of advice to offer to the present students of our colleges. The first was that we can not begin too early to think about our futures, and we should dig deeply into ourselves and consider seriously just what we are most fitted for, and aim at whatever we choose. We should avail ourselves of all possible advice and counsel was the second bit of advice. Many tragedies would have been averted if the students had been willing to consult their friends on the faculty, and almost every student before we get through has made a fairly close friend among the members of the faculty. If we avail ourselves of the helpful suggestions which their more mature minds could offer us we might find ourselves better fitted to step into the affairs of the world. These men are not mere instructors in their assigned subjects. They are moulders of men, and they can mould more perfectly if they can make the students feel that they can be taken into confidence. Last of all, President Sills reminded us of the definition of college, a group of people, faculty, alumni, and students, bound together with a definite object in view. We should make the best of what it has to offer us.

yard dash by inches when he lunged at the tape. The judges were in conference for several minutes to determine the second, third, and fourth place winners. They awarded second place to Hamilton of Theta Delta Chi. Nichols and Farrington, both of Zeta Psi, were tied for third place. Foster of Beta Theta Pi handily won the mile run. The second man, Small of Alpha Delta Phi, was fifteen yards behind Foster and nearly ten yards ahead of Ham of Zeta Psi. Berry of Delta Upsilon lost what seemed like a certain fourth place when his sprint proved less substantial than that of Mushroe of Chi Psi.

The 45 yard high hurdles were easily won by Hardy of Beta Theta Pi. Littlefield of Sigma Nu, who placed second, was considerably pushed by McInnes of Zeta Psi. Hull of Chi Psi took fourth.

Hamilton of Theta Delta Chi took the lead at the start of the 440 yard run and kept it throughout the race. Tarbell of the Beta Theta Pi, who got a very poor start, furnished the thrills in the event when he went from last to second place. Webster, record holder in the event, finished fourth.

Joe Was Worried.

He had failed. He had made a mistake, and for the life of him he didn't know what. He hadn't been writing her as much as he would have liked to. But he didn't realize—how could he—that her room-mate got The Orient every week, and was quite disagreeable about men that didn't even have sense enough to substitute canned news when they didn't have time to write themselves.

That's the hard part—that Joe has to suffer. But you can order The Orient for her from now until the end of the year—at special rates. It's the thing to do and an unexcelled opportunity to make up for those letters you mean to write.

NEW UNIVERSITY CLUB OF BOSTON TO BE COLLEGE ACTIVITIES CENTER

A distinctive feature of the new University Club of Boston will be the sports. Squash, racquets, swimming, bowling and billiards are to be fostered by club tournaments with the consequent continuance of intercollegiate rivalry. The best exponents in each sport will represent the University Club in Boston, and intercity club competition.

Upper classmen who expect to be in Boston after graduation will certainly want to be identified with this club, the location of which will be in the center of activities at the corner of Trinity Place and Stuart street. Announcement has been made by the Executive Committee that the construction of the building will be started within a few months. The cost of the new club will reach nearly $2,000,000.

As it will require a year or more in construction, and also, as there will undoubtedly be a long waiting list by the time the club is completed, it is the desire of the Executive Committee to offer the members of the two upper classes an opportunity to make application for membership at this time. On April 1, the privilege of purchasing certificates of ownership will be withdrawn. After that date, the applicant will be required to pay an initiation fee of $100.

Due to the first three years out of college will be $25 each year, beginning when the club house is ready for occupancy.

Provision has been made in the plans for Turkish baths, several floors of sleeping rooms, a commodious library, large dining-room, private dining-room, ladies' dining-room and other features of the modern club.

The club is primarily for the young college men, rather than for those who have been out many years. The headquarters of the Executive Committee are at 24 Federal Street, in charge of Donald D. McKay and Barton K. Stephenson.

Interscholastic Meet

qualified, all of them finishing easily. In the final, still another record was topped as Hormell, the diminutive Medford athlete, clipped a full second from the record hung up by Lundell the Harvard freshman captain. Rogers, Rierdan and Small took the other three places in a close finish.

Running one of the cleverest races of the afternoon, always running behind until the last couple of laps, Willard of Lowell, suddenly flashed past the eladers and brought to his team another first in the mile run, finishing in four minutes and fifty-six and two-fifths seconds. Nobody expected to see him win for it was not until the bell lap that he finally made a bid for victory, but he had a burst of speed with which the other runners found themselves unable to cope and he led the pack by about ten yards as he broke the tape.

The running broad jump was won by Moore of Medford with a leap of twenty-one feet three and seven-eighths inches. Although the winner tried to break the record which is about five inches greater, he had taken part in so many other events that he was too tired to do it. Rowe of Hebron was second, Mostrom of Moses Brown third, and Hormell of Medford fourth. The high jump also developed a first for Medford when Moody soared over the bar at five feet eleven and seven-eighths inches breaking the record by the fraction. Rowe of Hebron also took a second here, while Parksley of Medford, Paul of Thornton, and Surette of Medford tied for third.

Hartgrove of Kents Hill brought in their only first, when he won the shot put with a toss of forty-seven feet and seven inches. Beach, the husky boy from Hebron, took second, while Moore of Medford and Black of Portland took third and fourth places respectively. The pole vault was won at ten feet by Pearce of Hebron, and the other three places went to Menton of Thornton, Harding of Hebron and Mullin of Portland in that order.

The first team race between Hebron and Skowhegan proved to be a walk-away for the prep school, as would naturally be expected. The race between Jordan High of Lewiston and Thornton Academy was much more interesting than the previous one since it was hard fought throughout, with the Lewiston lads coming through strong enough to win at the tape. Though it was by no means the fastest race of the afternoon, one of the best to watch was the one between Portland and Lawrence High Schools, which was an exhibition of real pluck, a game fight to overcome a lack of running knowledge. Portland took the lead until their second man fell down, and from then on Lawrence went ahead. On the last lap, the Lawrence man fell and almost lost his lead but managed to get to his feet quickly enough to barely beat his opponent. South Portland had to put up a stiff battle to beat Morse High of Bath, while Brunswick finished in the rear in this race. Hebron won the Portland Evening Express Cup for the Maine relay team turning in the best time, running its race in two minutes eighteen and one-fifth seconds. Coach

Magee felt that Medford had too strong a team to compete against any one team in the field, so he picked an all-Maine team to compete with them, but even this was too weak to offer any kind of competition to the Medfordites who won handsily.

Alumni Notes

1885—David Patten Howard, legislator, lawyer and veteran of the Spanish-American war, died February 29th at Denver, Colo., after a month's illness.

As representative of the northwestern district in the legislature, and chairman of the Moffat tunnel committee, he was largely instrumental in shaping its passage, and later, as assistant counsel to the commission, had a large part in preparing the brief that established the validity of the bonds.

Born at Farmington, Me., Aug. 10, 1861, of a military family which included Maj. Gen. O. O. Howard and Gen. Charles Howard, brothers of his father, he was the third of the family line to graduate from Bowdoin college. Leaving Bowdoin in 1885, taking a law course at Boston, Howard soon moved to Colorado, and, since his early manhood, had been identified with state activities.

As captain of Company C, First Colorado regiment, which he organized at Cripple Creek, where he was engaged in the practice of his profession, Captain Howard had a large part in the taking of Manila, the Colorado troops leading the charge. Soon after returning from the war he moved to Grand county and resumed the practice of law, maintaining an office both at Hot Sulphur Springs and Denver. About a year ago he was stricken with an attack of the heart trouble which resulted in his death. He had recovered to some extent and resumed his activities until about a month ago.

Medic-'00—Dr. H. K. Stimson is now with the Veterans' Bureau and is also practicing, specializing in tuberculosis cases. His office is in the U. S. Bank Building in Denver, Colorado. Dr. Stimson left the army in January, 1923, after serving from 1917. He was for some time stationed at the Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Colorado.

'04—Chester T. Harper is now practicing law, with offices in the Flatiron Building, Denver, Colo. His many friends will be glad to hear that he is entirely recovered in health.

'07—The business address of Felix A. Burton, architect, has been changed to The Thorndike Building, 234-240 Boylston street, Boston.

'08—J. M. Boyd may now be reached at P. O. Box 1200, Denver, Colo. His former address was Silverton, Colo.

'18—Paul C. Young is now assistant professor of Psychology and Education at the Florida State College for Women. His address is 24 West College Avenue, Tallahassee, Florida. Professor Young received his degree of Ph.D. in psychology from Harvard in June, 1923.

William M. Ingraham, Bowdoin 1895, of Portland has announced his candidacy as Democratic candidate for Congress. Mr. Ingraham will run as an opponent of the Volstead Act for he believes that the Act has been unsuccessful, and that a citizen has as much right to ask for its modification as for the modification of tax laws.

Robert Hale, Bowdoin 1910, has announced his intention to seek re-election, as Republican, for his seat in the Legislature from Portland. Mr. Hale, son of Judge Clarence Hall of the United States District Court, is a prominent young attorney in Portland.

"Best Paid Hard Work in the World"

IS the way a JOHN HANCOCK salesman described his work. He is a college graduate and in five years has put himself at the very top of his business. He never yet has called upon a prospect without a previous appointment. The best life insurance salesmen today work on that plan, making it a business of dignity, such as any worthy and ambitious college graduate can find satisfying to his mental needs, and highly remunerative as well.

The man above quoted is the John Hancock's youngest general agent. This shows what college graduates of the right type can do in this business, how they can build up earning power and at the same time provide for an accumulated competence for the years to come.

Graduation is a vital period in your life and you are liable to hold to the business you start in. It would be well before making a definite decision to inquire into life insurance as a career. Address, "Agency Department."

low hurdles when Littlefield and Lovell finished in first and second places respectively. Mal Hardy of Beta Theta Pi, winner in the high hurdles, placed third; Wentworth took fourth place for Chi Psi.

The 880 yard run furnished one of the most thrilling finishes on the program. Miller of Theta Delta Chi broke the tape with not more than a foot lead over Fanning of Kappa Sigma. At the start, Fanning took the lead. On the second lap around, Webster of Beta Theta Pi passed five or six men and took the lead from Fanning. On the third lap, Miller of Theta Delta Chi advanced to first position. Miller steadily increased his lead; with Webster, Robinson of Beta Theta Pi, Johnson of Psi Upsilon, and Fanning following in order. On the next to the last lap, Fanning came rapidly to the front and Webster dropped rapidly behind. Whittier of Delta Kappa Epsilon looked for a time to be the man who would finish fourth, but the greater strength of Johnson of Psi Upsilon proved too much for him. On the last time around, Fanning started a sprint which cut down Miller's lead by leaps and bounds. At the finish, the Theta Delta Chi runner was a bare foot in advance of his Kappa Sigma rival.

Robinson of Beta Theta Pi took third place, with Johnson of Psi Upsilon fourth.

The team races were for the most part unevenly contested. The fastest time made in the team races was two minutes, thirteen and four-fifths seconds, by Beta Theta Pi against Kappa Sigma, which finished second, and Delta Kappa Epsilon.

In the field events of the afternoon, Chi Psi took the largest number of points.

Sigma Nu took eight points in the running broad jump, when Lovell and Snow took first and second places. Hardy of Beta Theta Pi was third, and Farrington of Zeta Psi fourth.

The pole vault was won by Bishop of Beta Theta Pi at 10 feet 9 inches. Willey of Alpha Delta Phi was second and Nason and Renouf of Theta Delta Chi tied for third.

President Sills has recently been appointed chairman of a national committee on studies of the English Speaking Union of New York.

Professor Mitchell gave a lecture on "A Yankee in England" at the Universalist church Sunday evening at half past seven. The lecture was held under the joint auspices of the Universalist Associates and the Men's Club of the first parish.

Professor Cram is at present in Cambridge, England, where he is engaged in research in the chemical laboratory of Sir William Pope. Sir William Pope is well known as a chemist in England and is past president of the English Chemical Society. It is a compliment not only to Professor Cram but to the College that he has given Professor Cram an opportunity to work in his own laboratory.

Professor Henry B. Dewing addressed the Twentieth Century Club of Bangor last Monday evening on the subject of Robert College, an Outpost of Civilization. Nearly forty members of the club were present, and the meeting was considered to be one of the most successful of the year.

WILLIAMS is a wonderfully popular shaving cream. Here's why:—It's heavier, faster-working lather, the way it lubricates the path of the razor and eliminates painful friction, the soothing ingredient which keeps the skin so smooth and cool even in daily shaving—these are qualities men like! They also like its purity—no artificial coloring. With the new Hinge-Cap, Williams is winning more friends than ever before. See if you ever used a shaving cream as good.

GRAY '24 AWARDED EVERETT SCHOLARSHIP--ROUILLARD '24 RECEIVES LONGFELLOW AWARD

Rouillard to Study Romance Languages at Harvard—Gray Will do Graduate Work in History At Cornell

The Bowdoin faculty has recently awarded two of the most coveted honors that the college has to offer,—the Charles Carroll Everett Graduate Scholarship, and the Henry W. Longfellow Graduate Scholarship. The Everett Scholarship has been awarded to Glenn W. Gray of New Vineyard, Maine, and the Longfellow Scholarship to Clarence D. Rouillard of Topsham, Maine. Both of the scholarships entitle the recipient to a year's graduate study in any institution they may select in this or some other country. Gray plans to study History at Cornell and Rouillard will study the Romance Languages at Harvard. Both men are leading students of the senior class at Bowdoin. Rouillard has done his major work in English, while his minor work has been in French, History, and German. Gray has majored in Government and has taken minors in History and English. Both men are assistants in the Government department. Gray is also assistant in History and Rouillard is assistant in English. They have been active in the Government Club and in debating.

Rouillard has been particularly prominent in the college publications. He is a member of the Bear Skin Board, was Editor-in-Chief of his Class Year Book, and is now editor of the Quill, the literary monthly. He has played leading parts in undergraduate performances during the last three years and has been active in Y. M. C. A. work. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and a graduate of Brunswick High school.

The Everett Scholarship was founded in memory of Charles Carroll Everett, D.D., of the Class of 1850, for many years President of the Harvard Divinity School. Under the terms of the award this scholarship is given to the member of the graduating class of Bowdoin College whom the President and Trustees shall deem the best qualified to take a post-graduate course in either this or some other country.

The Longfellow Scholarship was founded by the daughters of Henry W. Longfellow of the class of 1825—Miss Alice M. Longfellow, Mrs. Edith L. Dana, and Mrs. Anne L. Thorpe—for a graduate scholarship "That would enable a student, after graduation, to pursue graduate work in some other college, or abroad, if considered desirable; the work to be done in English, or general literature, and the field to be as large as possible—Belles Lettres in a wide sense. The student to be selected should be some one not merely proficient in some specialty, or with high marks, but with real ability in the subject and capable of profiting by the advanced work, and of developing in the best way."

Kennebec Bowdoin Alumni Hold Meeting And Banquet

At the twenty-fifth annual meeting and banquet of the Kennebec Bowdoin Alumni Association held in Augusta last Thursday evening at the Augusta House, John V. Lane '78, of Augusta was elected president of the association. Sanford Fogg '89 was elected first vice president, Leigh Webber '16 of Augusta, second vice president, Herbert E. Locke '12 of Augusta, secretary-treasurer; executive committee, Blaine S. Viles '03, Fred R. Lord '11 of Augusta, and Charles A. Knight '96 of Gardiner. President Sills, Col. Sherman Shumway '17, and Horace Hildreth were the speakers. In the afternoon, before the meeting, a reception was tendered President and Mrs. Sills from four to six o'clock, when Hon. and Mrs. Blaine S. Viles entertained in their honor. The members of the Kennebec Alumni Association, the wives of the members, as well as representatives of the college attended.

Theta Delta Chi Wins Basketball Championship Over Zeta Psi 23 To 21

Sigma Nu Easily Defeats Chi Psi in Game Between Runners Up of Two Leagues

The Inter-Fraternity Basketball League final was played last Friday afternoon in the town hall. The winners of the two leagues, Theta Delta Chi and Zeta Psi, were the contestants for the shield, and as soon as the whistle blew, it looked like a walk-away for the Zetas, when Gibbons tossed a couple through the hoop before the play had had a chance to get under way. And so it went the whole first quarter, basket after basket for the husky Zetas with not a look in for the Theta Deltas, and the period ended twelve to nothing. But the second quarter told a different story. This time it was the Zetas who found themselves buried by a storm of lightning speed and deadly accuracy. Basket by basket, Miller of the Theta Deltas pulled his team-mates up, while his guards refused to let the Zetas win in scoring distance, until the half ended with the score thirteen to twelve in favor of Theta Delta Chi, who was never again to be headed.

The second half was a battle royal all the way, a wonderful exhibition of clean, hard playing, with the winners never more than four points ahead, and even at a tie for a few minutes. Every basket was the result of a severe struggle, and there was excellent team-work, especially in passing by both teams. The game ended after a terrific struggle by the Zetas to pull into the lead with the score twenty-three to twenty-one against them. It is easy enough to pick the individual stars of both teams when one looks at the tallies by Miller and Gibbons, but to say that any other one or two men stood out would be doing an injustice to the others, for every man on the floor contributed his share to the game.

The line-up:
Theta Delta Chi (23) (21) Zeta Psi
Miller, rf lf, Nichols
Bishop, lf rf, Ham
Hamilton, c c, Kirkpatrick
Blake, rg lg, Vaux
Blanchard, lg rg, Gibbons
Goals from the floor: Miller 6, Gibbons 5, Bishop, Hamilton, Vaux, Nichols, Ham, Kirkpatrick; goals from fouls, Miller 4, Hamilton 2, Gibbons 2, Blake, Ham.

In a game to find the runner-up in both leagues, the Sigma Nus walked away from the Chi Psis in a one-sided game by the score of nineteen to five.

House Parties And Gym Dance Make Sophomore Hop Brilliant Success

Seven Houses Have Parties—More Than a Hundred Couples Attend Gym Dance

Following the house dances held Thursday evening the Sophomore Hop, held in the gymnasium last Friday evening, was very successful, being attended by more than a hundred couples. The committee in charge of the dance was composed of Hamilton '26, chairman, Griffin '26, Berry '26, and Neally '26. Moynahan's Orchestra of Harvard University furnished the music. The patronesses were Mrs. K. C. M. Sills, Mrs. C. C. Hutchins, Mrs. R. H. Cobb, Mrs. G. R. Elliot, Mrs. M. B. Cushing, Mrs. R. J. Ham, Mrs. N. C. Little, and Mrs. W. H. Little. The gym was decorated with colored streamers, and the various fraternities had booths.

House dances were held by seven of the fraternities. Neither the Psi Upsilon, Kappa Sigma, nor Phi Delta Psi fraternities held dances. A joint dance was held by the Zeta Psi and Alpha Delta Phi fraternities, at the former's house.

Preble '25 Elected Hockey Captain For Next Year

At a meeting of the varsity hockey letter men held at Webber's studio last Thursday, Howard B. Preble '25, of Marblehead, Mass., was elected captain for the season of 1925.

Preble is a Junior and has made his letter every year since he has been in college through consistently good playing. His election is a popular one as his work as forward this past season, although not of a sensational type, has been recognized as effective and consistent by all who have played for or against him during the season. He has been one of the strong points in the team's offensive.

Captain Preble should have an unusually strong aggregation next year, and all who know the material that is left in college expect a team that should be able to make a strong bid for the state championship. Captain Miguel is the only letter man to graduate this year, and his work, both as a strong defensive and a fast offensive man, will be greatly missed. Cutter, the individual star of this year's team, will be back, and Widen, regular defense man, Berry, goal, and Cronin and Preble, wings, will all return. There are also a large number of second team men who should be able to make a strong bid for the varsity team next year.

Second Annual Gymnasium Exhibition To Be Tomorrow

Work of Advanced Gym Squad Will be New Feature This Year—Boxing and Fencing Events to be Held

The Annual Exhibition of the Physical Training department will be held tomorrow evening at 7.30 in the gymnasium. It will include a general exhibition of work done by all the classes in physical training, also interclass boxing and tugs-of-war, and an exhibition by the fencing team. The complete program is as follows:

1. Mass calisthenics.
2. High bar and mats.
3. Dumb bells.
4. Boxing.
5. Parallel bars and rings.
6. Wands.
7. Fencing.
8. Three man pyramids.
9. Tug-of-war.
10. Tug-of-war.
11. Pyramids.
12. Tug-of-war.

Those taking the physical training work have been divided into four sections. The regular class work was carried on in all sections. It included military marching, to teach the fundamentals of drill; calisthenic work, for general muscular development; apparatus work. The freshmen specialized in dumb-bells, the sophomores in wands, and the juniors in Indian clubs. All classes had the three man pyramids, games, and contests.

At the same time an advanced section was taking advanced work in all these lines, primarily for men who intended to go into teaching, and also for men who wanted advanced work. From this group was developed the gymnasium team, which has had one meet, with the Auburn Y.M.C.A., and which will do the major work in the exhibition. The physical training schedule also included boxing, fencing, and tennis, inside the gymnasium, and a limited number of men, and the outdoor club and hockey for men outside the gymnasium, and track work for a large number of men. Recently the class section drills have been abandoned, and the men divided into two sections, one of which is composed of those men who are willing to go into the exhibition, and those men who prefer not to do so. It is the hope of the department to prove to the men in college through the advanced work that the gymnastic work can be a real athletic accomplishment, and to increase the general interest in physical training. The following men elected the advanced courses, Collett '25, Collins '26, Frizzell '25, Eastman '25, Hamilton '25, Herson '24, Howard '25, Jewett '24, Kirkpatrick '24, Lee '24, Peary '25, Phillips '24, Saunders '24, Smythe '25, Walton '25, Weymouth '24, Rowe '24, Wilson '27, Burnell '24, Burbank '26, Palmer '25, Plummer '27, and Webster '25.

For the exhibition numerous events have been added to the program since last year, in particular, the apparatus work, the torch swinging, the marching pyramids, and the wand drill. Stanley Collins has been elected captain of the gym team and Langdon Jewett manager. The following men are on the team, Frizzell, Eastman, Herson, Howard, Kirkpatrick, Lee, Peary, Phillips, Smythe, Walton, Gibbons, Rowe, and Wilson.

BOWDOIN RELAY TEAM EASILY RUNS AWAY FROM MAINE AT AMERICAN LEGION TRACK MEET

Bishop Breaks State Pole Vault Record—Charles and Littlefield Win Events—White Wins Two Mile Relay By Thirty Yards

Freshman-Sophomore Track Meet Friday Evening

Sophomores Excell in Runs—Freshmen Strong in Field Events—Capt. Farrington, 1927, Unable to Compete

The annual Freshman-Sophomore track meet will be held Friday evening in the Hyde Athletic Building. From all indications this should be a very interesting meet, and the result should be much closer than it has been for the past few years. The freshmen will be greatly handicapped by the loss of their captain, Frank Farrington, who will be unable to compete because of the bad condition of his leg which was hurt in the Inter-fraternity meet. This will be a severe blow to the yearlings, as Farrington would undoubtedly have been able to have placed in the forty yard dash, three hundred yard run, shot put, and high jump. As it is the sophomores should be given a good run for their money.

The sophomore team looks unusually strong, with three members of the varsity relay team on it. They are Kack Hamilton, Hal Littlefield, and John Tarbell. With these men the second year men should be able to clean up in all the runs. In addition to these men there are Fanning, Robinson, Spinney, and Claff who should all be able to do considerable for their team. If Connor can repeat his performance of the inter-fraternity meet, the freshmen should have first place in the forty yard dash. Buker in the shot put and Renouf in the pole vault should both be winners of their events. But it is in seconds and thirds that the freshmen should count on gathering the largest part of their points.

The third big surprise came in the second event on the program, the forty-five yard high hurdles. In the trials, Sullivan, B.A.A. star, and McInnes of Bowdoin had qualified, and in the second heat Hardy and Littlefield were left. Hal Littlefield had run a trial in the forty yard dash and had then gone into the semi-finals but when he came to start the finals of the hurdles, he forfeited his two foot handicap, claiming that it had hurt his trial heat, and despite his previous work, came through and beat the B. A.A. favorite and his team-mate Hardy at the finish, in the fast time of six and two-fifths seconds.

Provisional Commencement Parts Are Announced

The following seniors have been chosen by the faculty to write provisional Commencement essays:

Edward Harold Coburn.
Walter Knowlton Gutman.
George Edwin Hill.
Richard Henry Lee.
Harvey Bulfinch Lovell.
Edward Wesley Raye.
Clarence Dana Rouillard.
George William Rowe.

From these eight, four essays will be chosen to be given in June.

Bowdoin To Meet Rutgers Friday In Memorial Hall

Dates for Southern Trip Revised—Teams Announced

The names of the men who will represent Rutgers here Friday evening in the debate to be held in Memorial Hall have not as yet been received. The Bowdoin team is handicapped by the injury to William Rowe, sustained at the time of the gymnasium meet at Auburn. Rowe has been in the infirmary ever since, and it is expected that his place in the debate Friday evening will have to be taken by the alternate, Glenn R. McIntire. McIntire will appear for the first time on a Bowdoin intercollegiate team, following extensive experience in college on class teams. Lawrence M. Read is a sophomore, and has been on both of his class debating teams, having previously debated for his high school in Springfield, Mass. As assistant manager of debating, Read has been responsible for the smooth running of the two Bowdoin Interscholastic Debating Leagues. Edward W. Raye had his previous training in debating at Bates College, where he was assistant in debating and on the college debating squad. He was active also in debating at Lynn, Mass., and he has been appointed to a place on the team which will make the trip during the spring recess, and also on the team against Cornell.

The dates of the tour have been revised so that the schedule now stands, Rutgers College, March 31; Lafayette College, April 1; Boston University, April 2. Furthermore it is quite certain that the Oxford system debate with Cornell will be held in the Portland High school auditorium on Saturday evening, April 5. Undergraduates within reach of Portland during the recess will please take notice.

Coach Jack Magee's American Legion Games, staged under the auspices of the Harold T. Andrews Post in Portland last Tuesday evening were a decided success in the eyes of all those who were there, and the Bowdoin Track Team helped to make it. The wearers of the White took all three places in the pole vault, the first two in the shot put, a first and a third in the hurdles, and topped it all off by walking away from Maine in the relay race.

There were several upsets in the meet, the biggest one coming when Cavanaugh of Boston College, starting with twenty-five yards handicap, led the far famed Joie Ray to the tape by about twenty. The college man went out almost of the field at the start, and when it came to the final sprint, he had almost as much left as the little Illinois A. C. flier, who succeeded but little in his attempt to close the gap.

Another surprise came when Archibald of Bates unexpectedly took Jake Driscoll, Boston A.A. star, and George Marsters, Georgetown captain, into camp in the six hundred yard scratch invitation run. The winner took the lead at the pole, and Marsters went in second with Driscoll trailing another Bates man. Then the two trailers displaced Marsters but Driscoll wasted a lot of energy in trying to get past Archibald's team-mate who had him fooled on the corners. At last both he and the Georgetown man got by and it was a wonderful fight to the finish with the Bates flash just ahead at the tape.

The third big surprise came in the second event on the program, the forty-five yard high hurdles. In the trials, Sullivan, B.A.A. star, and McInnes of Bowdoin had qualified, and in the second heat Hardy and Littlefield were left. Hal Littlefield had run a trial in the forty yard dash and had then gone into the semi-finals but when he came to start the finals of the hurdles, he forfeited his two foot handicap, claiming that it had hurt his trial heat, and despite his previous work, came through and beat the B. A.A. favorite and his team-mate Hardy at the finish, in the fast time of six and two-fifths seconds.

Captain Francis Bishop was the only record breaker when he won the pole vault with a leap of twelve feet two inches, and established a new mark for the state of Maine. Bill Willey, a freshman vaulter took a second with eleven feet ten inches. He had a handicap of a foot and four inches. Robinson of Bowdoin used his foot and nine inch handicap to advantage when he took a third with eleven-nine.

Charles and Buker of Bowdoin took first and second in the shot put with three and four inches advantages respectively, but they were hard pressed by Hartsgrrove, school-boy from Kents Hill, who was the only one destined to start from scratch.

The crowning event of the evening in the eyes of Bowdoin men was the relay race against the University of Maine. Each man ran five laps, seven hundred and eighty yards. Joe Small was the lead off man for the White, and, although he tried his best, he could not seem to get by his opponent who led him to the first corner. It was a close race all the way and at the finish Fanning was started about five yards in the ruck. He tried to pass the Maine runner Murray, but the latter seemed too fast. As the race went on, Murray increased his advantage, and Fanning appeared to have shot his bolt. But when the last lap came, the Bowdoin man uncorked a burst of speed which brought all the spectators to their feet, tore by his opponent at the last curve and handed over about five yards to Kack Hamilton. Although the Bowdoin man's right to lead was challenged several times, he remained in front the whole way and handed over a ten yard lead to Bob Foster. Hillman, the Maine star, started after Bob like a whirlwind, but Bob wasn't running to be passed, so for the first three laps it was a thriller, close all the way until the Maine man began to weaken. Then it was that the crowd found out that Foster hadn't been hurrying very much for he continued the remainder of the distance at almost the same pace, opening up about a thirty yard gap at the finish. It was a thrilling

Honor Systems.

We have been discussing for some time the attitude which the undergraduates should take in regard to the so-called honor system in class-room work and in examinations. Arguments have been vigorously adduced on both sides, but with little effect. It is clearly evident that something is wrong with the present system, under which the undergraduate plays a game of hide-and-seek with the faculty, and it is quite as evident that no substitute thus far offered is meeting with the hearty approval of the men in college. "The Quadwangler," writing in the Boston Transcript for March 14, comments on a recent editorial in the Orient, in which the editor suggested a solution of the campus political difficulties by a system of fraternity honor, in which the honor was intended to replace most of the system. In the same column, the Boston writer devotes considerable space to the recommendations of Dr. John Crawford, a professor at Lafayette, in regard to the honor system in examinations. The statement of the case is so concise and admirable that we take the liberty of reprinting it in full for the benefit of Bowdoin men interested in the question.

"The Quadwangler is making no rash promises but this is as good a place as any to say that if they keep on tinkering the honor system the time may some day come when he will find it possible to approve that method of student government. Considerable repair work, however, is still necessary. And it must go below the surface. In the language of the automobile mechanic the whole chassis should be taken down, overhauled and set up again. Moreover, while the job of reassembling is going on, no great harm will be done if an assistant or somebody loses, throws away or otherwise disposes of much of the so-called system. Then the chief mechanic will be in a position to concentrate on the honor part of the business.

"The programme suggested in the Lafayette Weekly by Dr. John Crawford, professor of the classics in the college, marks a step in the right direction. Under his plan there is no call for the services of a student council to administer the system. Nor is the student required to make any sort of written pledge, either that he will himself refrain from cheating in examinations or that he will report others he sees cheating. This latter part of the arrangement appeals to the Quadwangler as it will doubtless appeal to many college men. Most students have fairly well defined notions of what their attitude toward their fellow students should be. 'Live and let live' is perhaps the rule of conduct that the majority follows. Above all things they have no inclination to serve as bearers of tales, to become what Dr. Crawford describes as something between a low order of detective and stool-pigeon.

"In spite of much pretty talk to the contrary, the honor system as now commonly in effect is not a thorough-going success. They say that it reduces the amount of cheating. That may be so but it probably isn't so. What it does do is to reduce the amount of cheating that the authorities know about. Even in colleges where the honor system prevails students are still taking notes to examinations and they are still copying from their neighbors' papers. With the instructor staying out of the classroom their task is very much simplified. Their only worry is that some other student will report them and that really can't be called a worry because they are among friends and the very least that one friend does for another is to turn his head when he sees some shady performance going on. It may be good ethics or it may be bad ethics, but it is a fact that Americans have been brought up to have a hearty dislike for the man who tells on somebody else. They may think, when they sign a pledge, that they are going to live strictly up to its terms, but in the end human nature triumphs. Besides, it isn't a great deal of work to close one's eyes or look the other way. What we don't see doesn't hurt us.

"Under Professor Crawford's plan most of the system has been thrown overboard. Students would be given square buttons and when they wore them to an examination they would thereby serve notice that they were willing to be on their honor. They would be free to wear them to one examination and not to another. Men who did not play fair would not be subject to any discipline through exposure by classmates, because no one is asked or expected to tell on another, but they would, Dr. Crawford thinks, lose the respect of their fellows so that eventually a tradition of honor more powerful than any rules would be built up."

Library Letter, 2

Dear Fellow Alumnus:—

Frankly, the reason for writing you these letters is, either to get you interested in the Library, or to keep you interested if you are already kindly disposed toward the institution housed in Hubbard Hall. The Librarian knows that many of the graduates of the College are interested in the Library; he knows that some of them have expressed their interest in a way to satisfy his highest desires,—he will tell you about some of them later; he hopes that through these letters many more will express their interest in a material way, when the way is shown them.

Not all of the troubles of the Librarian arise from the lack of sufficient funds, but the most of them do; and it will be well to start out with a clear understanding, because so many of the things in these letters will refer to what money can do, or to what money has done. Still, it would be far from the truth to assume that the sole purpose of these letters is to show you needs and ask you to help in satisfying them.

Comparative figures are often of little value and usually require copious footnotes to make them intelligible, but there may be some lesson to learn from a comparison of the expenditures of four libraries of nearly the same size in colleges of a similar character. The libraries of Amherst, Wesleyan, and Bowdoin are very nearly the same in number of volumes. The library of Williams may well be considered in the same class, though it is some twenty-five thousand volumes smaller. By the latest available figures it appears that the expenditure for books, periodicals and serials, and binding, the criterion by which the advance of a library may be measured, is 1.5 times greater at Williams, 2.5 times greater at Amherst, and 4.5 times greater at Wesleyan than at Bowdoin.

The question whether each of the three colleges, whose libraries have been chosen for comparison with the Bowdoin library, may not be leading Bowdoin College in resources, in efficiency, and in service, is not considered here. The Librarian recognizes as a fact, that if this is a question at all, it is not a question for him but for others to consider. He is responsible, more than any other single person, for the development of the Library and when he learns that libraries of a similar size performing similar services are spending, profitably and wisely, he believes, from 1.5 times to 4.5 times as much as he is able to spend on his library he wants you to share this knowledge with him, just as he wants you to share all the good fortune that has come in the past in no small measure.

Faithfully yours,
THE LIBRARIAN.

Communication

Editor of the Orient:

I hope I may be pardoned for the following "outburst," but it represents the attitude of a good many Bowdoin Alumni, I know.

Although some time has passed since the "Don't Pay Your Blanket Tax" leaflet was broadcasted, continuing reference to it has kept it constantly in my mind. When I first read it, I tried to dismiss it from my mind, considering it a childish prank, engineered by small boys who didn't know what they were talking about. The more I think of it, however, the madder I get. If it had offered a bit of constructive criticism, and had been signed, showing that the writers were at least not cowards, and had quoted authority for their statistics, it might be excusable.

My advice is for poets to stick to their poetry, and keep out of athletic controversies until they know something about them, or can present a case based on the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. That pamphlet could be picked all to pieces, but it is so obvious, what's the use of starting?

Without dwelling on the merits of coaches, or dealing at all in personalities, I think it is a shame to denounce a man who thinks more of Bowdoin College than of his "job." He is sincere, which is more than can be said of the writers of that propaganda. To make goats of members of the Athletic Council, who are true Bowdoin men, giving freely of their time and money to help the College, not themselves, these students laud an inferior coach, and try to make a fool of his successor. Might it not be well on consider all conditions? I speak as one who has been in close contact with all parties concerned.

I am glad to hear that the blanket taxes are coming in better than ever before, and the writers of the paper were ostracised by their own efforts.

Very truly yours,
R. G. WOODBURY.

Sunday Chapel

Speaks on Life of President Emeritus
Charles W. Eliot of Harvard

President K. C. M. Sills gave the Sunday Chapel address last week, and took for his text, "A good name is far better than riches." He opened by telling of the notable ceremony which is to take place this week at Harvard University, a ceremony at which our country will be represented by Chief Justice Taft, and the educational world by President Angel of Yale University. This ceremony is to be in honor of a man who might justly be called the greatest living American. President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard. The significance of this affair goes much farther than the walls of Harvard.

There are certain qualities of the man himself which make him what he is to Americans, but in order to understand these, it is necessary to look into the life through which he has passed. Born in Boston, the cradle of New England civilization, he graduated from the Boston Latin School and at the age of fifteen entered Harvard. Four years later he graduated in the class of 1853. For some time he was a tutor and professor of Chemistry and Mathematics at his Alma Mater and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. At the age of thirty-five he was called to the president's chair at Harvard and for forty years, he guided the destinies of that great educational institution, drove out its provinciality, and made its scope world wide. In 1909 at the age of seventy-five he retired from his position—but not into oblivion, for such a man as he cannot help but increase the admiration of his fellow men as he continues to help.

But it is not primarily with Dr. Eliot, rather with the qualities of old New England when it was at its best that we are interested. His personal distinction, acquired by work, by education and by the fine temper of his character are outstanding. President Sills recalled the occasion when the then President of Harvard conferred an honorary degree upon the brother of Emperor Wilhelm of Germany. None in attendance raised any question as to which of the two, the prince of the struggling German Empire or the stately President Eliot. His pure and undefiled speech and his vigor and distinction in style made him far superior. There is a sort of austere morality about him and he has always kept himself aloof from evil. He has been, and still is one of the most ardent supporters of that great American heritage—Liberty, and despite his great age, he will pass into his ninety-first year next week, there is nothing aged about his expression of his interest and liberty is one of his greatest interests. The people of this country should rejoice, especially at such a time as this when the very foundations of government are being shaken by the accusations against our officials, in such a man as Charles W. Eliot, a man who sees that the future of our country as well as of the other countries of the world is dependent upon man's dependence upon God.

Baseball Season Opens Next Week With Navy At Annapolis On Saturday

Team Badly Cripples Through Injuries and Men Leaving College—Freshman
Prospects Strengthen Team

With the first game of the baseball schedule to be played with the Naval Academy at Annapolis a week from Saturday, there is much interest in regard to who will make the trip with the squad.

After watching the men practice in the age it is quite evident that several members of the freshman class will be assured of places on the team, and several more should be sure of making the Southern trip. But there is another thing which is being awaited with equal apprehension, and that is the review of classes. It is known that several of these freshman stars are rather shaky in one or two subjects, and all that is needed to keep them off the team is a minor warning. When this fact is taken into consideration it is quite evident that there is an air of uncertainty about the make-up of the team.

It is expected that the catcher's shoes will be filled by Gil Vaux '27, who has played for the New York Athletic Club, and is one of the freshmen who is showing up so well. Les Blake '25 will probably be second string catcher.

The only two pitchers who are sure of making the trip are Larry Southwick and Stanley Robinson. Both of these men have shown that they have a lot on the ball, although Robinson has been somewhat slowed up recently by a bad heel. Gray and Sibley also are almost certain of making the trip. Although these two men will probably go as pitchers, Sibley could be used as an outfielder because of his hitting ability, and in a pinch Gray could be used as a catcher. The remaining pitchers will probably be either Rideout, Staiford, or Horace Hildreth. Staiford was set back a great deal by a severe attack of jaundice.

For the most part the makeup of the infield is fairly well established. Jake Aldred will probably play first, Mal Morrell second, and Captain Rupe Johnson shortstop. For the third baseman it is about a toss up between Barrett Nichols and Dave McLaughlin. Although Captain Johnson is without doubt one of the best pitchers of the Maine Colleges it has been wise to change him to shortstop because of the lack of men for that position, and because of his ability to play the position. He is one of the best hitters on the team. This will be no new position for him, as he has had considerable experience there playing summer baseball.

At the first of the year it appeared that we would have the best outfield of the Maine colleges, and one of the best in New England. But it was only an idle dream, for when Asa Small and Dave Needleman left college, and it became known that Dick Jones could not come out because of his bad knee, the situation was reversed. Fat Hill, one of the few experienced men on the squad, will probably hold down one of the positions in the outfield, where his experience will be very valuable. Lawrence Ranney, on account

A Class Distinction

The Hinge-Cap is the insignia of Williams Shaving Cream and of Williams only. You'll notice three things about Williams every time you shave. 1. Williams lather is heavier and holds the moisture in against the beard. Quicker and more thorough softening takes place. 2. Williams lather lubricates your skin — your razor actually seems to "glide" the hairs off. 3. Williams lather leaves the skin in marvelously fine condition. No matter how frequently you shave, your face stays cool, smooth and comfortable.

You'll enjoy every shave with Williams. It is a pure, natural-white cream without any artificial coloring whatsoever.

Brunswick High Wins Interscholastic Debate

The championship debate in League B, Bowdoin Interscholastic Debating League, was held in Hubbard Hall, last Saturday evening, March 15. The debate was one of the most informing and spirited high school debates ever held on the campus. The negative represented by Brunswick High school clearly excelled in thoroughness of information and analysis, and to some extent in vigor and effectiveness of presentation, and was awarded the unanimous decision of the judges over the affirmative, represented by Jordan High school of Lewiston. Notwithstanding competing attractions the audience in attendance crowded Hubbard Hall.

The winning team was composed of Ralph Edwards, Ansel Mathurin, Miss Madalyn Patten and Miss Dorothy MacKay as alternate. They were coached by J. Weston Walch '25. Their opponents, Jordan High school of Lewiston, were the Misses Clara Parnell, Grace McCarthy, Beatrice Libbey with Queenie Ferguson alternate, and they were coached by R. Justin Saunders '24. Athern P. Daggett of the Bowdoin Debating Council presided, and the committee in charge of the debate were Lawrence M. Read, Donald W. MacKinnon and J. Weston Walch.

In the preliminary debates Brunswick had defeated Morse High of Bath, and Jordan had obtained the decision over Edward Little High of Auburn. The Brunswick team will meet Deering High in the finals sometime in the near future.

The two cups offered by the College for the league championships will shortly be awarded. That for League A to Deering High School, and that of League B to Brunswick High School, thus ending the most successful year yet in Bowdoin Interscholastic debating.

Cumberland County Boys' Conference Held Here

Over Two Hundred Boys Take Part in Rallies, Dinners, Athletic Contests, and Inspection of College

The Cumberland County Boys' Conference was held here at Bowdoin over the last week end. A large group of boys from all parts of the county assembled here in town and were given some very interesting entertainment. After they had been taken to all the points of interest here in town, especially those places related to the history of the college, they went to the Hyde Athletic Building where, under the direction of Coach Jack Magee and Physical Training Instructor Roland H. Cobb, a track meet was conducted. Before the events were run off, Captain Francis Bishop gave an exhibition in the pole vault in which he cleared twelve feet, and Horace Hildreth gave one in the high jump, leaping over five feet eight inches. Then the boys themselves competed, and gave a very good demonstration of athletic skill throughout it all. Rancour of Brunswick was probably the best runner there, winning firsts in the Junior forty yard dash, and the junior three hundred yard run. After the meet, all the boys entered into a hard fought tug-of-war.

In the evening, the gathering went to Memorial Hall, where they heard two very interesting speakers in Professor A. O. Gross, and Y.M.C.A. head Horace Hildreth. The latter spoke on his trip through Europe taken last summer when he went over to study conditions among the common people and students in the countries left desolate by the war. He painted a very vivid picture to the boys of the awful conditions existent there. Professor Gross then gave a talk on birds, principally about the gulls of the Maine coastline, and he illustrated his talk with stereopticon views taken on Great Duck Island. He also told the interesting story about the nest of night hawks built upon the roof of the Brunswick High school, and said that it was almost time for them to be returning for their fourth year to this habitation.

Southern Baseball Trip Begins On Saturday With Navy at Annapolis

Team Will Leave Friday—Has Had No Out-of-Doors Practice—Many New Men on Squad

The baseball team leaves Friday on its annual Southern trip, playing its first game Saturday with the Naval Academy at Annapolis. The men who will probably make the trip are, Mal Morrell, Les Blake, catchers; Larry Southwick, Red Robinson, Cliff Gray, Wayne Sibley, pitchers; Jake Aldred, first; Don Lancaster, second; Captain Rupe Johnson, short stop; and either Dave McLaughlin or Barrett Nichols, third; both of these men will make the trip, as one will act as substitute infielder. The only outfielder who is absolutely sure of going is Fat Hill, although Lawrence Ranney will undoubtedly be with the team if he is up in his studies. The other place is a toss-up between Williams, Fish, Daggett, and H. Smith. One of the men who is showing a great deal of promise is Rodney Bartlett, a freshman south paw. Last fall he was troubled with a bad arm, and so he did not get out for fall baseball. During the winter his arm has improved greatly, and now he appears to be an extremely promising pitcher. He has an excellent curve, very good control for a left hander, and fairly good speed.

This week will be spent in smoothing up the work of the team before the trip. It is hoped that it will be possible for the team to practice out doors once or twice before leaving on the trip.

As all the teams to be played have been practicing out doors for a long time, the Bowdoin line will have a severe handicap against them. As this is practically a new club, it is naturally not to be expected that there will be only victories won over the experienced teams to be played. However, much experience will be gained which will be of great value in the spring series. With a fair number of the breaks and with no injuries or sickness, Bowdoin men may well look forward to a reasonably successful trip. Of the team Southwick is the only experienced pitcher. What the others will do is extremely problematical, especially Gray, who has been changed from a catcher to a pitcher. Robinson and Sibley pitched several games last year for the second team, but they have not had the experience of playing against first class teams, and their work will naturally be watched with keen interest.

The team will leave Friday morning for Boston, going to New York from there by boat. It will leave New York Saturday morning for Annapolis, where it plays in the afternoon.

Pedagogical Course To Hear Interesting Lecturers

The work of the seventh week of the course in pedagogy at Bowdoin was conducted Tuesday and Thursday of last week by Mr. Josiah W. Taylor, Agent for Secondary Education of the State Department. Mr. Taylor discussed the work of the smaller high school. The work of the course to date has proved very interesting. Superintendents Cone of Brunswick and Jack of Portland have each conducted a week's work. Principal Moulton of Edward Little High School a week's work, and Principal Wing of Deering High School had charge of the work for three weeks. This week Principal Kimball of Brunswick High School will give a lecture and conduct a conference on the subject "Planning the Curriculum."

After the Easter vacation Dr. Augustus O. Thomas, State Commissioner of Education, will lecture to the class on April 8th. On April 10th Professor McDonald, Professor of Education at Bates, will conduct a lecture and conference. The remainder of the course will be devoted to the technique of teaching special subjects such as History, Science, English, the Classics, Modern Languages, and Mathematics. An innovation will be tried on May 15th when the lecture and conference will be shared by two recent graduates now teaching. These men will deal particularly with the mistakes of young teachers and with the pitfalls that await the novice. One of the men chosen for this work is Ezra P. Rounds '20, now teaching Mathematics at Exeter. The second man will be chosen later.

President Sills will deliver the final lecture in the course and part of the work dealing with teaching of special subjects will be conducted by other members of the faculty.

Musical Clubs Will Leave On Annual New York Trip Next Monday

Will Broadcast From Philadelphia—Thirty-Five Men Will Make Trip

Thirty-five men will leave with the Musical Clubs Monday when they start on their annual New York trip.

The first concert will be given at Concord, Mass., on Monday evening, March 31. On Tuesday the Clubs will appear in Providence, R. I., and on Wednesday at New London, Conn. On Friday, April 4, they will give their concert at Philadelphia, Penn.

On Friday afternoon, Station WFI, the Strawbridge and Clothier broadcasting station, at Philadelphia, will send out a special radio concert from 3.45 until 4.30. The radio program will be as follows:

1. Rise Sons of Bowdoin Combined Clubs
2. A Selection by the Instrumental Club
3. (a) Old Jonah
(b) Discovery
Glee Club, Soloist, Thompson '26
4. Banjo Solo
5. Popular Instrumental Medley

6. Bowdoin Songs
(a) Bowdoin Beata
(b) Phi Chi Combined Clubs

There will be no concert in New York City, but there is a possibility that the Clubs will appear in Brooklyn.

After the Easter recess, there will be concerts in Portland, Brunswick, and Bath. These appearances will be the last this season.

Bowdoin Athletes Show Possible Olympic Material

Tootell '23 Sure of Making Team—Both Bishop '24 and Foster '25 Strong Contenders for U. S. Team

On the team which will represent the United States at the Olympic games next July there is sure to be at least one Bowdoin man. He is F. D. Tootell '23, track captain last year and one of the greatest athletes ever developed in Bowdoin. "Toots" not only holds the American intercollegiate record in the hammer and weight events, but has also several times unofficially broken world's records in these events. In the coming spring, the former Bowdoin captain should officially break the world's record in the hammer throw and the weight events.

Captain Francis P. Bishop of this year's track team should also be a strong contender to represent the United States in the pole vault. Bishop is rated as one of the four best pole vaulters in all American colleges at the present time.

Bob Foster '25 is the third Bowdoin man who stands a very good chance of being chosen for the American team. Foster is the New England champion in the half-mile and is recognized as one of the greatest middle distance runners in college circles.

With Coach Magee already chosen as one of the six assistant Olympic coaches, Bowdoin should be well represented at the big games in July.

Bowdoin Defeated By Rutgers Debaters 3-0

Rutgers defeated Bowdoin by a 3 to 0 decision in the intercollegiate debate last Friday evening in Memorial Hall. Bowdoin upheld the negative of the question: Resolved, That the United States should immediately recognize the Soviet Government of Russia.

The Rutgers team, which had the evening before defeated the Boston University debaters, was well-balanced and made an excellent impression on the Bowdoin campus. The team was composed of Charles S. Dayton '25, Victor W. Simons '24, Harold L. McDonough '24, and Raymond L. Brandes '26, alternate.

Bowdoin was represented by G. William Rowe '24, Lawrence M. Read '26, Edward W. Raye '24, and Glenn R. McIntire '25, alternate. Rowe '24 did not debate on account of injuries received in an accident recently and his place was taken by the alternate, McIntire '25.

Professor Stanwood presided. The judges were: Rev. John M. Arters of Portland, Mr. George C. Wing, Jr., of Auburn, and Mr. Ralph W. Leighton of Portland.

Music was provided by the Bowdoin Glee Club.

Ninetieth Birthday Greetings Sent Dr. Eliot

Bowdoin Faculty Sends Formal Note to President Emeritus of Harvard

The following letter of congratulation from the Bowdoin college faculty was mailed to Ex-President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University, on Wednesday, to reach him Thursday on the occasion of his ninetieth birthday. Charles W. Eliot, Esq., LL.D., President Emeritus, Harvard University.

My dear Mr. Eliot:

By formal vote of the Faculty of Bowdoin College I am asked to convey to you the very warm regards of the members of the Faculty and all good wishes on your ninetieth birthday. Here at Bowdoin your name has long been held in high regard. Your picture hangs in our college office, the only picture of a person not immediately connected with Bowdoin that has that distinction. Throughout the long administration of our late President William DeWitt Hyde we heard much of your policies and felt your influence. We desire you to know in what honor you are held, and that as teachers and students we appreciate what you have done for American education.

Faithfully yours,
KENNETH C. M. SILLS,
President.

Debating Team Takes Southern Trip Next Week

Will Meet Rutgers, Lafayette, Boston University, and on April 5th Cornell at Portland

During the Easter recess the Bowdoin Debating Team will make an extended trip which will include Rutgers College at New Brunswick, N. J., Lafayette College at Easton, Penn., Boston University at Boston, Mass., and Cornell University in Portland.

The team which will make the trip is composed of Rowe '24, Raye '24, Daggett '25, and Saunders '24 alternate. In every case Bowdoin will support the affirmative of the question: Resolved, That the United States should immediately recognize the Soviet Government of Russia.

G. William Rowe '24 will make his first appearance in an intercollegiate debate. He has had, however, considerable experience as a debater at Bangor High school and as a member of the Bradbury teams. He is active in the Musical Clubs and the Masque and Gown. He is editor-in-chief of the Orient, and a member of the Student Council. He is a member of Kappa Sigma.

Edward W. Raye '24 was a member of the Bowdoin team which lost to Rutgers last Friday evening. He is a newcomer in Bowdoin debating circles, having transferred from Bates this fall. He has had considerable experience in class debating at Bates. He is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity.

Athens P. Daggett '25 is the most experienced of all the men who will make the trip. He was a member of the varsity team last year and took part in every debate. He was a member of the Bowdoin team which was defeated by Tufts last winter. He was a member of his class team during his freshman year, and took part in the first underclass debate with Amherst. At present he is the manager of the Bowdoin Debating Council.

Raymond J. Saunders '24, the alternate, has had previous experience in class debating and Bradbury competition. He is a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

The team will be accompanied by Professor William Hawley Davis.

The debate with Lafayette at Easton, Penn., will be the first ever held with that institution. The Lafayette team is coached by A. R. Thayer, Bowdoin '22, a member of the Bowdoin team of 1921-22 which did not lose a single debate. It was this team which went as far West as Ripon, Wisconsin. Thayer's Lafayette team has had an exceptional record. In the last month it has defeated the University of Pennsylvania, Hamilton and Union. At Easton, the team will be given a reception by Thayer and Quinby '23, who is an assistant professor of English at Lafayette.

The debate with Cornell in Portland on April 5 will be conducted according to the English system. Two Bowdoin men and one Cornell man will meet a team composed of two Cornell men and one Bowdoin man. The decision will be made by the audience.

The complete schedule is as follows:

- March 31—Rutgers at New Brunswick.
- April 1—Lafayette at Easton.
- April 3—Boston University at Boston.
- April 5—Cornell at Portland.

SOPHOMORES VICTORIOUS OVER FRESHMEN 53-51 IN CLOSEST INTERCLASS MEET IN HISTORY

Last Event Decides Winner—Littlefield '26 High Point Man—Kendall '27 Breaks High Jump Record—Baker '27 Betters Shot Put Mark

Second Annual Gymnasium Exhibition Was Success

Freshmen Win Tug-of-War—Advanced Gymnasium Team Gives Splendid Performance

The second Annual Exhibition of the Physical Training department was held last Thursday evening in the gymnasium. A fair sized crowd of students, townspeople, and members of the faculty was present. The exhibition was in every respect a credit to the department. The work of the advanced class was especially noteworthy. Through the forming of this advanced class it is hoped that next year more interest will be developed in gymnastics, as this year shows increased interest over last year.

The first event on the program was marching by picked men of the advanced class, Collins, Peary, Lee, Howard, Jewett, Eastman, Kirkpatrick, Wilson, Walton. This was followed by mass calisthenics, in which members from all the classes took part. Members of the freshman class gave an exhibition drill with the dumb-bells. There were two snappy bouts of boxing. In the first one Parker '26 and P. Phillips '24 mixed it up, then Berry '26 and Fasso '25 gave an exhibition of good boxing. Lee '24, Perry '25, Wilson '27, and Collins '26 did some fine work on the parallel bars, and Phillips '24, Walton '25, and Peary '25 did some thrilling stunts on the flying rings. Members of the sophomore class gave a wand drill.

In a fencing match Perkins '25 defeated Davis '24 7 to 2. Picked groups from all the classes were in the three man pyramid event, while a group of sophomores formed marching pyramids. Lee '24, Walton '25, Wilson '27, Phillips '24, and Smythe '25 gave an exhibition in dumb-bell swinging, and later on, with the lights turned off, of swinging torches.

The interclass tugs-of-war were interesting, and all proved thrillers. In the trials the freshmen walked away with the sophomores, and the juniors did the same to the seniors. In the finals it looked at first as if the juniors would win, but the freshmen had a strong comeback and finally won from their heavier opponents.

Coach Houser To Manage Augusta Millionaires

At a meeting of the directors of the Augusta Baseball Club last Friday evening, Ben Houser, Bowdoin baseball coach, was unanimously elected to guide the destinies of the Augusta Millionaires during the coming summer.

Coach Houser has for many years had charge of Augusta teams and during that time has turned out many championship teams.

Athletic Council Meeting

Schedules and Freshman Coaches Discussed—Fencing Letters Awarded

At a meeting of the Athletic Council held last Saturday afternoon it was voted to award letters in fencing to Davis '24, Clough '25, and Perkins '25. The track and baseball budgets were discussed in detail, and plans were made for erecting bleachers during the baseball season, and additional bleachers during the football season. It was voted not to sanction the changing of the Tufts game to Portland next fall. The question of a coach for freshman football next fall was discussed in detail. The request of West Point for a baseball game April 4, 1925 was discussed and it was voted to arrange the game. Next year's Southern trip will be confined to the vicinity of New York, as it is possible to run such a trip without a deficit.

It was voted to send three men to the Penn Relay Games, although Bowdoin will not be represented by a relay team.

In one of the closest Freshman-Sophomore track meets ever staged at Bowdoin, a meet which was in doubt until the very last event was run off, the Class of 1926 defeated the Class of 1927 by a margin of two points in Hyde Athletic Building last Saturday.

The final score was 53 to 51. The deciding event of the meet was the pole vault. The Freshmen had pinned their hopes on Renouf, who had been picked by nearly everyone to take first place in the event. Through nervousness, the first year man failed to clear the bar on his third attempt at 10 feet, a height which he has consistently bettered in practice.

Two Freshmen broke the only records which were smashed. In the high jump, Kendall '27 bettered the previous mark of 5 feet 7 inches, held by Small '25, when he cleared the bar at 5 feet 9 1/8 inches. In the shot put, Baker '27 set a new record of 37 feet 7 1/2 inches, nearly a foot better than the previous record made by Charles '25.

The high-point man of the meet was Littlefield '26 who took first place in the high hurdles, second in the high jump, and a place on the relay team for a total of 94 inches.

Easily the feature of the meet was the 880 yard run, an event which brought forth howls of encouragement from the supporters of both teams. Fanning '26 nosed out Ham '27 in as exciting a race as is seldom seen. At the start, Ham, who less than a half-hour before had won the mile run, had the pole. Fanning '26 took the lead, with Robinson '26 second, Ham third, Gentner '26 fourth, Whittier '27 fifth, and Rosen '27 sixth. On the second lap, Whittier and Rosen who were running side by side passed Gentner. On the third time around, Ham passed Robinson and took second position. Whittier advanced to fourth. Whittier soon overtook Robinson but was unable to hold his lead. On the fifth lap Ham started out in earnest to take the lead from Fanning. The last two laps were almost a sprint, with Fanning always a few feet in the lead. At the tape Ham made one desperate attempt to win, but his effort in the mile run had tired him and his fresher opponent took first place by a small margin. The thrilling finish brought every spectator to his feet.

In the 440 yard run the Freshmen failed to place a single man. The race was won by Tarbell '26, with Spinney '26 and Claff '26 in second and third places respectively. Wood '27 gave Claff a hard race for third position. At the start Wood had the pole, with Tarbell in second position. Connor '27 took first place when the gun was fired, with Tarbell second, Spinney third, Claff fourth, and Wood fifth. On the second lap Connor dropped to fifth place. The men ran in the same order to the finish. On the last time around Wood made Claff fight his hardest to win third place.

Connor '27 took first place in the forty yard dash. Spinney '26 and Claff '26 took second and third respectively. Claff was hard pressed by Ham '27.

First place in the 45 yard high hurdles went to Littlefield '26 who won without difficulty. The Freshmen took the remaining points in the event when Hull and McInnes finished in second and third places.

The mile run was a walkaway for Ham '27. At the finish he was more than half a lap ahead of Berry '26, the only Sophomore entered in the event. At the start Berry had the pole. Ham immediately took the lead with Berry '26 and Burgess '27 after him. Sheh '27 was fourth. On the second lap, Kellett '27 took third from Sheh. Ham and Berry gradually increased their lead over the rest of the pack. A second race between Burgess, Kellett, and Sheh developed, until on the fifth lap Sheh started out in earnest and was never in danger throughout the remainder of the grind. Not until the ninth lap did Berry begin to fall noticeably behind Ham.

Vol. LIII. March 26, 1924. No. 32

In Passing.

With the present issue, Volume LIII of the Orient passes into history. We have no desire to turn our final contribution to this column into a vaulting "Morituri Salutamus," an inane review—of matters of which our readers must already have heard more than enough, nor a bit of maudlin sentiment to tell to our portion of the world how infinitely displeased we are at coming to our last opportunity to sway the public mind by our effusions. There is little doubt in the minds of any of us that the Orient will go on through the next and many more volumes, surviving changes in personnel and continuing to represent the life of Bowdoin not only as a bearer of tidings of joy and woe but as the spokesman of those spirits in the College who have ideas which they wish to disseminate. It has been the good fortune of the Orient, during the past year, to bear an active part in a good many discussions of subjects ranging from the comparative spiritual ability of two burly gentlemen whose business it is to instruct youths in the intricacies of football, to the precise motif of such a work of art as would be suitable for the further decoration of our fair campus. The Orient has enjoyed these controversies immensely and it hopes that its enjoyment has not been entirely unshared by its readers.

No person who has followed the story of the college during the last months can deny with any real basis in fact the contention that there is a spirit of progress manifesting itself in the undergraduate life. The men in college are in the throes of a Bowdoin reformation which may mean much or little, but which assuredly exists. Noteworthy steps have already been taken toward the amelioration of interfraternity conditions, toward the raising of scholastic and athletic standards, toward the happy solution of our numerous problems by the application of intelligent methods. It is unnecessary to reiterate at this time the principles which have guided the student reform movements of late, nor is it necessary to repeat the story of the reforms which have actually been accomplished. What we want to get at is the fact that the college is really progressing and that the men in college seem to be proud of that progress. True, there has been little enough sympathy shown for some of the less popular movements, despite the fact that even these were originated in the same spirit of improvement which gave rise to the others. But on the whole we find a greater spirit of willingness to cooperate than was evident not long ago. This is encouraging. It means that the minds of Bowdoin are set upon more solid ideals, however shakily those ideals may seem to be followed at the present. We look upon the past with satisfaction, as upon a period of productive turmoil. We look upon the future with optimism, as upon a period in which the turmoil may possibly become less the dominant note, and the productivity the more apparent. Bow-doin has much to attain, much that is within its grasp if only it will make the little effort of closing its fingers upon it. This, we have no doubt, Bowdoin will do, but it had better do it soon than late. And with that, adieu.

Communication

Editor, the Orient:

I have had a lot of enjoyment reading the Orient this year. The large number of contributions indicates that the fellows in college and the Alumni are taking very active parts in regard to all the college activities.

The articles concerning the proposed memorial have been especially interesting. I, like at least a few others of the Alumni, am not especially keen about the plan for a Rostrom. I think that they might put up something a bit more appropriate. I can't seem to picture a Rostrom as blending especially well with the rest of the campus. I also agree with Mr. John Frost '03, that we don't want something that is altogether utilitarian, like a Union. I also feel that there should be a greater expression of opinion from the entire Alumni on the matter of the memorial. The figures on which the vote for the Rostrom were based seemed to me to be very small. I think that another vote should be taken. The original Committee for the Memorial could submit a list of plans to the Alumni from which the choice was to be made. This vote could go out in conjunction with the regular ballots that go out in the spring of the year in connection with elections to vacancies on the various boards.

I have thought recently that some sort of a memorial seat could be placed at the end of the concrete walk from Hubbard Hall. This would be about half way between the Art Building and Appleton Hall. This seat could be of granite and in an appropriate shape, either round or four cornered. If four cornered, the seats could be concave. The granite seat would act as a base for a flag staff and could have bronze designs or letters as desired. The present flag staff on Memorial Hall could be used to fly the college flag on gala days, and the proposed staff for the National colors. As I see it, this sort of a memorial would appeal directly to the patriotism of all who would see it and in this way would be a fitting memorial for the Bowdoin Men who served in the World War. The matter of the design could be settled by the present committee.

This may not appeal to any members of either the college or Alumni, but I feel that it is at least a suggestion. If I recall, there was an appeal for suggestions published in the Orient this winter.

Wishing you success, I am

Very truly yours,

EBEN G. TILESTON '22.

Communication

Editor, the Orient:

This afternoon I had the undiluted pleasure of watching the new alma mater, Trinity, proceed to a comfortable victory over University College and thereby won the Rugby football championship among the Oxford colleges. This evening the "rugger supper" was held with due ceremony in the Trinity hall. I believe many Americans would discover unexpected novelty and relish in contemplating for the first time the Englishman at play.

Toasts exchanged everywhere about the dining hall, commons (bread) and banana skins flying with unremitting regularity, done here and there vaguely dignified, and a din of voices that undergoes no abatement for four hours. King George is toasted, the teams are toasted, the tables are cleared away, and the rest of the evening is devoted to a furious gents-only dance. An orchestra renders the back porch plaint, and the Barney Google melody of delicious memory, not to mention Hortense and Eliza Jane, over and over again. Not the least feature of the dance is provided by our Trinity faculty—three of them work nobly tonight. Our reverend chaplain forgets it is Ash Wednesday, gambols about with the best of them, and retains a tenacious strangle-hold on an ample pipe. Of course the stimulant for the occasion is issued from the college stores,—and so I leave it to the average undergraduate imagination to visualize our Trinity hall at, say, eleven this morning.

And now, having written this much, I must come to the point and admit that the impulse which actuates this letter is not concerned with the blithe-some "binge" of tonight. But I could hardly let this chance for "college advertising" go by. No reader of this column shall be allowed to ignore the fact that Trinity has fought its way through the "rugger cupper" to the topmost position in the University. It is of the centenary celebration of the Oxford Union Society that I should like to insert some lines in your columns. This probably is the most significant occasion that I shall have the good fortune to attend during my stay at Oxford. Most of the great figures of today in England who have been at Oxford were among the speakers. The names of Mr. Asquith, the Marquess Curzon, the Earl of Birkenhead, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, will probably be the most readily respected.

I found my seat between the pro-convict of Queen's and an aristocratic looking M.A. from Magdalen of some fifteen years' standing. The pro-convict quite justly deplored the atrocious standards of our American state universities and of our high schools,—but I spare you a detailed account of our feelings in these matters.

After the lengthy meal, the king was toasted, and with the toast to the University began the series of seventeen speeches. The meeting (of over 500 men) seemed to me much like a glorified Commencement dinner, except that its date was February 29. Sir John Simon only intensified that impression when he lavished praise and affection upon Oxford with the utmost grandiloquence imaginable. His toast to the University was responded to by Lord Curzon, who holds the honorary position of Chancellor of Oxford.

At this point I might add that Lord Birkenhead holds the honorary office of High Steward of the University,—and according to the ancient statute, receives a yearly salary of five pounds. The actual head of the University is the Vice-Chancellor, listed in the books after the Chancellor and the High Steward. All through the evening the majority of quips were directed at Lord Birkenhead, with not a few allusions to him as F. E. Smith in undergraduate days.

Lord Curzon offered the most polished, facile, and precise speech of the evening. Only the Earl of Birkenhead rivalled him in wit. Lord Curzon seems the perfect example of a shrewd, sharp politician possessed of a most winning suavity. Let me give the following excerpts from his remarks, which went to make up the best speech of the evening.

"If I may whisper a word in the ears of the Right Reverend Prelate who sits on my right, I would sooner be Chancellor of Oxford University than I would be Archbishop of York. I might even extend the compliment to his Grace of Canterbury, and, if I may throw a bouquet in the direction of Mr. Asquith, I would sooner be Chancellor of this University than I would be an ex-Prime Minister of England whose chances of returning to that exalted office are alleged to be of a very speculative character."

"This society has no official existence in the University itself and is not even mentioned in that monument of literary style, the Oxford Calendar. Its president is not prayed for on Sundays, much as, I am sure, he stands in need of that arbitrary assistance to continued existence. We could dispense with the professors, or, at any rate, with some of them; we could get on very well without the proctors; it would not be a difficult thing to disestablish the Chancellor, but the Union,—no."

"I sometimes used to think that it (the Union) resembled the House of Lords, that Chamber in which I now spend the evening of my days in the company of many other ex-presidents. I do not know whether I ought to carry the resemblance as far as that, but, at any rate, it was infinitely superior in all respects to that temple of bourgeois mediocrity, the House of Commons."

"I read in the records among the ex-presidents of this society the names of no less than twenty Cabinet Ministers, a remarkable feat of production; and that list includes twelve bishops and three archbishops, quite an abnormal exploit of gestation."

"I might speak of the Union as a place where some of us at least used to coin our laboured impromptus and deliver our polished sarcasms in what I have always been told is called the Balliol manner. I have never understood what it meant, and I think you ought to appoint a committee consisting of Mr. Asquith and myself to find out what it really means. That horrible engine of execution, the black hall, was unknown in this society."

"How good it is to know that in 1832 a future Archbishop Taft was fined one pound for persistent and disorderly interruption in private business. How good it is to know that Ruskin once moved the resolution, 'That in the opinion of this House intellectual education as distinct from moral discipline is detrimental to the interests of the lower orders.' A motion in my time, 'That this House desires to be cremated,' was carried by a majority of three. But I am sorry that a motion, 'That in the opinion of this House life is not worth living,' was, for reasons which I am quite unable to fathom, ruled out of order.

"I recall—as of interest to Mr. Asquith—that about the time I was at Oxford, a resolution was moved and carried with immense enthusiasm at the Union, 'That Liberalism is in Theory a pestilential heresy, and in practice a typical illusion.'"

"In 1893, a young undergraduate named F. E. Smith moved, with entrancing eloquence, and obtained the assent of the Union to his proposal, 'That the advent of a dictator would be a blessing to the French people.' Why confine beatitude to the French? Why not an exchange of nationality and substitute 'the British, for the French'? I am quite certain that if the noble and learned lord were to come here, and with the slightest change in epithets were to move the same resolution, he would without difficulty carry it into effect. If in the course of his demonstration he indicated that in the High Steward of this University, in an ex-President of the Union Society, and in an ex-Lord Chancellor the man of destiny was to be found—nobody would be the least surprised."

So much for Lord Curzon. The Archbishop of York answered Lord Cecil's toast to the church and among other things told how at Oxford, "I had dreamed of some day becoming prime minister of England,—and in my more chastened moments I had thought of being Lord Chancellor,—but I confess I never dreamed of becoming Archbishop of York. I wonder if F. E. Smith ever entertained visions of becoming Archbishop of Canterbury." After the more serious part of his speech, the archbishop said, "I want now to strike a deeper note, but I promise Lord Birkenhead it will not be a discourse on idealism in public affairs."

I shall allude to only two more speakers, passing over even Hilaire Belloc and the Earl of Middleton, who gave the assemblage ample opportunity to display the unrestrained restlessness of which an English audience is capable.

Mr. Asquith responded for the House of Commons. Incidentally, it is just fifty years since he served as president of the Union, and yet Lord Curzon, who succeeded him but six years later, looks thirty years his junior. The leader of the weakening Liberal party seems quite too feeble for continuing much longer in active political life, let alone bearing the responsibility of the prime ministry again. His delivery seemed almost halting at times. To me he had the most attractive and pleasing personality of all the speakers.

After receiving a marvellous ovation from the gathering, Mr. Asquith reminisced concerning the jubilee banquet of the Union fifty years ago, spoke of the many distinguished people there,—"they had all been presidents of the Union, and it might not have escaped the notice of those among them who were, as I am, an academic antiquary, that a substantial majority of them had emerged from the walls of Balliol."

Mr. Asquith went on to say that "there is nothing arrogant or exclusive about Balliol"; he was puzzled about certain "spasmodic recurrences of Wadham, disorderly phenomena which baffle the calculations of the most expert seismologists—perhaps Mr. Lord Birkenhead may give us some light on this academic problem of long standing."

Alluding to the House of Lords, Mr. Asquith was "inclined to think that many of its members wished at times that they were back in the bourgeois House of Commons. My learned friend, Lord Birkenhead, must have moments when he aspires to be once again where he has been so redoubtable, and I am not at all sure, if such a thought is not a disrespectful hypothesis, that a similar yearning does not from time to time visit the august solemnity of our Chancellor."

When the toastmaster belled out in a vast and far-reaching voice, "Mr. President, Your Grace, My Lords, and Gentlemen—pray silence—for the Right Honourable the Earl of Birkenhead," an ovation followed which equalled the one for Mr. Asquith. His speech was the most scintillating of the evening. No other was so entirely extemporaneous—Birkenhead selected all the main witticisms of the nine orators before him and handed back fitting rejoinders. In manner he was a fair opposite to Curzon's "classical grace," but his intellect appeared quicker, more alert, and more agile than that of any of the others.

Birkenhead spoke in part as follows: "The Law is both arid and remunerative. I represent its aridity; Sir John Simon represents its remunerative character. When Lord Curzon said he did not know what the Balliol manner was, he did himself and Mr. Asquith a great injustice." In referring to the committee suggested by Lord Curzon, Birkenhead proposed that in addition to Mr. Asquith and the Marquess there should be included, in the interests of perfect harmony, Sir John Simon himself.

"Ms. Asquith has said that Wadham had occasionally amazed the other colleges of Oxford by its recurrences. Wadham's problem has never been why Balliol so seldom emerged; it has always been why Balliol had ever emerged at all."

"Reference has been made tonight to the commission which had recently been making recommendations as to the future of your University life. I am not at all satisfied with the activities of that commission. Of course Sir John Simon is satisfied, and of course Lord Curzon is satisfied. Why? Because it is packed with All Souls men. Only the other day, when Lord Chelmsford, reacting to an acute mood of class consciousness, joined the present Government, I thought there was a chance for me to become a member of the commission. I know as much about Oxford as most people, but such was the strangle-hold that All Souls maintains on the commission that if they have not a majority on it, the whole thing disappears. I am informed that certain supporters of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald from Glasgow, who naturally hold strong views on this appointment, specially insisted on Lord Chelmsford maintaining this position."

In closing, I mention the Centenary debate of the preceding evening only to say that the motion was 'That civilization has advanced since this society first met,' that Professor Gilbert Murray opened the debate in light entertaining style, and that easily the brightest speech of the evening was given by Father Ronald Knox, a priest of brilliant reputation who served some years ago as president of the Union. Two other speakers of note were Philip Guedalla, the keen and dazzling Jewish historian, and John Buchan, the novelist.

To expatiate further on the merits of the centenary celebration or on the influence of the Union in the public life of Great Britain would be, on my part, merely platitudinous. That you may fully appreciate the significance of the occasion, let me call to mind once again the galaxy of famous men who were its brilliance,—need I say more?

EDWARD B. HAM '22.

The Freshman runner gradually gained a wide lead. With a wonderful sprint which brought him across the finish a full half lap ahead of Berry, Ham finished strong. Sheh came in third, a quarter of a lap behind Berry.

The 36 pound weight event and the discuss throw were held Friday afternoon. In these two events the yearlings cleaned up all the points except second place in the weight, which was taken by Loud '26. Farrington '27 won the discuss with a throw of 107 feet, 61 inches. Buker '27 and Murphy '27 took the other two places. Hewett '27 won the weight event with a heave of 34 feet 9 7-8 inches. Robertson '27 was third.

In the high jump, Kendall took first with his record-breaking height of 5 feet 9 1-8 inches. Littlefield '26, with a jump of 5 feet 5 inches, took second. Tarbell '26 placed third at 5 feet 3 inches. In the broad jump, Hull earned the cheers of his Freshman supporters when he made a jump of 19 feet 8 1/2 inches, a distance which was easily good for second place. The event was won by Snow '26 with a jump of 19 feet 9 1-8 inches. Gray '26 took third place when he jumped half an inch farther than Littlefield.

The Freshmen took all places in the shot put. Buker, with his record-breaking put of 37 feet 7 1/2 inches, took first. Farrington and Ecke '27 were second and third.

Robinson '26 won the pole vault at a height of 10 feet 6 inches. Snow '26, with a vault of 10 feet, took second. Renouf '27 tied with Kaler '27 for third at a height of 9 feet 6 inches.

The relay race was a walkaway for the 1926 team. The Sophomores drew the pole. Connor '27 took the lead from Spinney '26 and held it for the first lap. On the second time around the Sophomore runner passed Connor and gained ten yards besides. Cutter '27 gained a little on Fanning '26 on the first lap of the second leg. Fanning more than made up for the loss on the second lap and gave Tarbell nearly a quarter of a lap over Ham '27. Both these men ran at the same speed and Littlefield '26 still had a quarter lap ahead when he took the stick from Tarbell. Wood, Freshman anchor, gained a few yards on Littlefield who contented himself in loping around.

During the meet, Captain F. P. Bishop of the Bowdoin track team broke the official college record in the pole vault, clearing the bar at 12 feet 6 5-8 inches. This height is the highest officially recorded in the State of Maine and is somewhat better than the New England indoor record.

The summary of the meet is as follows:

The way to get the finest shave

The Hinge-Cap is a sure way of identifying Williams Shaving Cream. And Williams, besides giving you the convenient Hinge-Cap, will improve your shave in three ways:

First, the lather is heavier and holds the moisture in against the beard. Quicker and more thorough softening of the beard results. Second, the razor glides more easily through the Williams-softened beard because Williams lather lubricates the skin. Lastly, an ingredient in Williams keeps the skin in good condition no matter how heavy your beard nor how frequently you shave. In addition, you'll enjoy Williams because it is a pure, natural white cream without coloring matter of any kind. Ask for it.

"I HAVE ever considered it as the indispensable duty of every member of society to promote, as far as in him lies, the prosperity of every individual, but more especially of the community in which he belongs."

Alumni Notes

Dr. George F. Libby, of Denver, a graduate of the Medical school in the class of 1891, and president of the Western Alumni Association, has had placed in the University Club of Denver a Bowdoin shield. This shield occupies the most striking position of all the college shields used in the windows of the building. Dr. Libby was the first man to present a shield of his college, and in consequence the Bowdoin shield occupies a position of honor. Dr. Libby designed the shield, which is an elaboration of the college seal done in black, white, and gold glass.

Bowdoin Club of Portland Holds Annual Meeting

A meeting of the Bowdoin Club of Portland was held last Thursday evening at the Congress Square Hotel. Over 50 members attended. The meeting was presided over by John F. Dana, president of the club. President Sills was the principal speaker of the evening. In his address he told the members of the club of the needs and conditions of the college at present. An interchange of telegrams was made with the Harvard Club of Maine, which was meeting at the same time at the Falmouth hotel. President Sills also paid a fine tribute to President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, stressing the background of New England tradition which had helped to create his greatness. The oldest alumnus present was Cyrus B. Varney '63.

Sunday Chapel

President Sills Blames Lack of Will for Nine-Tenths of Failures in College

Nine-tenths of the failures, scholastic and otherwise, at Bowdoin College are caused, not by lack of mental ability or previous training, but by weakness of will, said President Sills at the Chapel service last Sunday.

Ninety-nine per cent of the men at Bowdoin have excellent intentions. They don't want to hurt those who are sending them here, they don't want their college life to amount to naught, yet their good intentions are frustrated by weakness of will.

We know that there is a task which has to be done tonight in preparation for tomorrow. A group of fellows will congregate in some room, the time slips by unnoticed. The result is that nothing is done that should be done. The next morning we are not ready for the test which comes. It is easy to cheat. We do. That is the beginning of a serious habit.

Those in charge of the administration of the College feel that a great evil with which they have to contend is the increasing number of men who come to college with undisciplined minds. Excellent advice to younger fellows who are planning on coming to college is to train their wills to stick to a task until it is done.

The application of this lesson to the moral field is obvious. We forget our religious duties. Most of us come from Christian homes, most of us have been brought up in a Christian atmosphere. On our first Sunday mornings here, we are too tired to go to church. Then we are told that it isn't the thing to do, that the college doesn't stand for religion.

The kind of person we are in college is the kind of person we are in after life. Many a fellow who can never say "No" has wrecked his life as a result. Many a fellow who follows the path of least resistance makes a mess of his life before middleage. It is a weak subterfuge to believe that we are the objects of our environment, of birth, and of circumstance.

Failures are caused in nearly all cases by weakness of will; and nine-tenths of the things done right are so done because of strength of will. The real way out is by the paths of religion. Most of us have religion whether we show it or not.

New England Classical Association To Meet Here

Annual Convention April 4 and 5—
Classical Club Will Present
"Menaechmi"

The nineteenth annual meeting of the Classical Association of New England will be held at Bowdoin April 4 and 5. This is the first time that the college has ever entertained such a large organization. It is planned to have the members of the Classical Club show the guests around the campus; in addition to which they will present the "Menaechmi" of Plautus, as translated by Dean Nixon. Through the kindness of several of the fraternities and those students who room in Hyde hall the guests will be accommodated on the campus. The ladies who will attend the meeting will stay in the Delta Kappa Epsilon, Beta Theta Pi, and Zeta Psi fraternity houses, while the men will stay in Hyde Hall. All will eat at the Sigma Nu and Theta Delta Chi houses.

All the members of the Association will be the guests of the college at a dinner to be given Friday evening in the vestry of the College Church. After the play to be given the same evening the ladies of the Association will be tendered a reception by Mrs. K. C. M. Sills, while the men will be entertained at a smoker at the Sigma Nu House. All the high school teachers of Cumberland County are being invited to the dinner Friday evening, which will be followed by the play, and later on in the evening to the reception and smoker.

The faculty committee in charge consists of the members of the classical departments of the college, which will be assisted by an entertainment committee appointed by the faculty, of which Professor Burnett is the chairman.

The complete program is as follows:

Friday, April 4, 10.00 A. M.

Faculty Notes

Dean Nixon is contributing a volume to that notable series, "Our Debt to Greece and Rome," published by Marshall, Jones & Co., of Boston. The title of the book is "Martial." Just half a hundred books are planned for authoritative but non-technical, written for the general reader of cultivated tastes. About a dozen of these volumes have already appeared.

Alumni Secretary Austin H. McCormick will be the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Ad Club of Springfield, Mass., April 16. During the last year he has spoken at similar dinners in Lowell, Hartford and Providence.

The paper read by Professor Davis at the annual convention of the National Association of Teachers of Speech at Cincinnati last December is published as the leading article in the Quarterly Journal for Speech Education for February, 1924. The paper presents methods employed in English 6.

During the last week Alumni Secretary Austin H. McCormick spoke at Church Men's Clubs in Augusta, Rockland and Portland.
